"GOLDENROD AND ASTER."

The goldenrod, the goldenrod,
That glows in sun or rain,
Waving its plumes on every bank
From the mountain slope to the main—
Not dandelions, nor cowslips fine,
Nor buttercups, gems of summer,
Nor leagues of daisies, yellow and white,
Can rival this latest comer!

On the plains and the upland pastures
Such regal splendor falls,
When forth from myriad branches green
Its gold the south wind calls,
That the tale seems true, the red man's God
Lavished its bloom the day
Wauabuma, chief of the Iroquois,
Wedded the fleet Nahuay.

And darker than April violets,
Or pallid as wind flowers grow,
Under its shadows from hill to meadow,
Great beds of asters blow
O, plots of purple o'erhung with gold
That need no walls nor wardens,
Not fairer shown, to the Median queen,
Her Babylonian gardens!

On Scotia's moors the gorse is gay,
And England's lanes and fallows
Are set with broom whose winsome grace
The hovering linnet hallows;
But, alas, for the flowers of hearth and hedge,
And the linnet, lightly won—
Their bloom, to one blaze of wayside gold,
Is the wan moon to the sun!

And were I to be a bride at morn,
While the chimes rang out I'd say:
"Not a rose, but the goldenrod,
Strew in my path today;
And let it brighten the silent aisle,
And flame on the after stair,
Till the glory and light of the fields shall flood
The solemn dimness there."

And should I sleep in my shroud at eve,
Not lilies pale and cold,
But the purple asters of the wood,
Within my hand I'd hold:
For the goldenrod is the flower of love,
That time and change defies;
And asters gleam through the autumn air
With the hues of paradise!

—EDNA DEAN PROCTOR.

DAILY papers are joking all kind of fun at William Jennings Bryan because, they claim, he don't know what to do with the Philippine Islands. Do the daily papers know what to do with them?

FUSIONISTS seem agreed that only a man who represents Democracy in its honesty and sincerity should be nominated for the U. S. Senate against the present incumbent. This don't look much like voting for unanimously C. K. Davis.

How Can They Reconcile?

How can our Republican friends reconcile their preachings and their practices? It looks to us as if it would be a difficult job to make any inteligent being believe that a dollar that nobody would take outside the country in which it was made would not be the best protection that that country could get. We are told that a bimetallic dollar, good in the United States for anything a gold dollar is good for, would not be received in foreign countries. We are told to manufacture our own goods and sell them to our ownselves and keep our dollars at home. If there is any object in keeping our goods at home, and the gold bugs tell the truth when they say no country would receive our silver dollars, and they really want to do all the business on our own land, why don't they favor dollars that will stay at home and do the business? We can't see how they can make these things jibe, not by a long ways. For our part we believe any country would be glad to use anything we did for money whenever they had business with us.

How can they reconcile their cry "America for Americans" and their expansion idea. Their preaching that "America is for Americans" and their warlike efforts of capturing foreign lands, and making distant notions a part of our people?

Do they mean, America is to be the world and the world be subject to the dictates of the President at Washington? or what do they mean any way?

"America for Americans."

Our Republican friends have preached protective tariff for years, and used as an argument that it excluded foreign goods from our lands, and created a heme market. That they believed in America for Americans.

All this sounds very well. The unsophisticated, in numbers sufficient, with the aid of interested manufacturers, and others, were coaxed, forced or otherwise induced to vote for party nominees to enforce these beautiful sentiments. The advocates of these doctrines were elected and lo! and behold! What are we at?

Instead of having America for Americans they are gobbling up the islands of the sea, inhabitants and all, expanding our domains around the globe. Creating the necessity for sailors and soldiers by the thousands, to guard property and persons of individuals who are after the wealth. It is not now "America for Americans" but "Americans for the world."

Are they excluding foreign goods from our shores and giving us home markets? Not if they tell the truth when they say that the Dingley bill is producing more revenue than any other tariff bill ever had. Tariff bills can't exclude goods and produce revenue at the same time. It goods don't come to our shores there can be no revenue collected on them. And if the Dingley bill is producing a large revenue there must be a large amount of goods landing at our custom houses. If foreigners, in spight of the tariff, are supplying our people with goods and wares it is no wonder that we read of the closing down of mills in the east, and later of those in the south even, where labor is cheaper.

So Uncle Sam is taking to his bosom the inhabitants of the West Indies, and of the Philippines, is he following up the preached doctrine of "America for Americans."

Do the authorities in favor really believe in protecting American Laborers in the mills, and mines, and fields, and in other walks of life, or are they catering to make money powers who seek to beat down coal to $2 25 a ton, delivered at Ohio dock, or who seek to cut down the price of laboring and professional men to, in some instances, 50 cents on the dollar of their regular prices?

Are they really trying to cut down the importation of foreign goods by protective tariff of the highest order or are they aiding the moneyed concernes by contracting the currency to a gold standard, claiming that we must have "sound money" "money good in Europe" or in "the markets of the world?" And what can they care whether or not Europe or any other country will take our dollars if their object is to keep our dollars at home?

Now after solemnly thinking the matter over are we just now acting as our republican friends claim to believe in the theory of "America for Americans?"

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(Fromour Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 16, 1898.

The administration is not so cock sure as it was that its bill for the increase and reorganization of the regular army, which, if it becomes a law, will increase our military expenditures, including pensions, to an amount largely exceeding that paid by any European government to maintain a great army on a war footing, and which is masquerading in the House as the Hull bill, can be put through the Senate. Consequently it is become more than a suspicion that the carrying out of the recent decision to muster out 50,000 of the volunteers is to be postponed and manipulated so as to get votes in the Senate for the army bill; and no large number of volunteers are likely to be mustered out until Senatorial pledges enough have been secured to make the passage of the bill certain, and it may be impossible to contain those pledges as strong endorsement of the democratic opposition to the bill is coming from every direction. Of course, this sort of thing is hard on the volunteers, but the administration isn't worrying about that.

The Vanderbilt interests are not satisfied with owning one seat in the Senate- that promised by Boss Platt for Chauncey Depew; they are out for another seat. The body of Senator Morrill, of Vt., who died in Washington, this week, and whose funeral will be held in the Senate chamber tomorrow was hardly cold before the wires were being pulled to get Dr. Seward Webb, who married one of the Vanderbilt girls, and who acquired a residence in Vermont several years ago, for the purpose of awaiting Senator Morrill's death, appointed to succeed him. This scheme will be watched with much interest, particularly as it has been a boast of Vermonters that the state has never had a rich Senator. Perhaps the Vanderbilt who owns "Biltmore", in N. C., also has an eye on the Senate.

It strikes the average man who has no prejudice in the matter that the protection editors whose papers are among the 157 dailies which comprise the American Newspaper Publishers' Association were very illogical when they signed an argument, to be presented to the Anglo American Joint High Commission, asking that news paper, which now has a duty of $6 a ton, and that mechanically ground wood pulp, which now has a duty of $1 67 a ton, be admitted from Canada free of duty. The argument goes on to say that the duty on paper and wood pulp acts solely for the benefit of the paper trust, which is unquestionably true, just as the duty on many other things acts for the benefit of other trusts, the most of which could not possibly exist under free trade. For a protection paper to ask for free trade for the paper it buys and a high tariff on things which others buy is equivalent to a man saying, "tread on everybody else as much as you please, as long as my toes are spared." These gentlemen should bear in mind that the average man can see through their selfishness, and that if free trade in paper and pulp is a good thing, it must be equally good in everything else. It has been the favoring of particular interests that has disgusted so many with every protective tariff we have had. Te theory that every man should be allowedto buy where he can buy the cheapest is thoroughly good, but it isn't carried out by allowing one man that privilege and denying it to another. Equality before the law—the only real equality possible in any country is the cornerstone of free government. Every man that lessens it weakens free government.

It seems from the reports of Gen. Otis that Aguinaldo will be unable to hold his government together long enough to be officially asked to step down and out by Gen. Otis. His Cabinet has resigned and he has not been able to form another, but that is no reason why a good enough government for the Philippines would not be formed from the educated and well to do natives, if this government chose to lend a hand in doing so. Aguinaldo is an adventurer, who was a priest's servant only a few years ago, and who has been seeking only his own gain, not the welfare of the islands. He and several others of a kind sold out the Philippine insurgents for a sum in Spanish gold and then Aguinaldo stole the money from his fellow traitors.

Senator Perkins, of Cal, says he intends voting against the ratification of the treaty of peace, unless instructed by the legislature of his state to vote for it. He said further: "I have very strong convictions on this subject, and am not endeavoring to draw an unnecessarily dark picture when I say that a general reaction against expansion is now going on all over the country, and before a great while we will be brought face to face with a realization of the fact that we have more momentous problems to solve right here at home, without going to the far-off Philippines, in search of material with which to establish a colonial policy. I am quite sure that other republican Senators are as much opposed to the policy of expansion, as announced by the President, as I am I am convinced that the more our practical business men ponder the subject, the more they will be impressed with the belief that we do not desire nor do we need the Spanish colonies of the Pacific or the West Indies."

ORIENTAL MARKETS.

Value of Imports Yearly Amounts to Nearly a Billion Dollars.

Manila as a Distributing Point for This Country Will Prove of Immense Advantage to Our Merchants.

Nearly a billion dollars' worth of goods are every year imported into the countries commercially adjacent to the Philippine islands, and more than half that amount is composed of the class of articles produced or manufactured in the United States and offered for sale by its people. Two tables just prepared by the treasury bureau of statistics present some startling facts as to the consuming power of the countries in easy reach of Manila as an entrepot and distributing point.

From Manila to Hong-Kong and Canton, the gateway to southern China, is but half the distance from New York to Havana, and from Manila to Yokohama, Port Arthur, Shanghai, Bangkok or the strait settlements, is in each case a distance but little if any greater than that from New York to Havana. The great ports and cities of British India and Australasia, while somewhat more distant, are much nearer to Manila than to any other general distributing point, for the great class of merchandise which the countries in question produce.

The importations into these countries, Japan, China, British Australasia, and British India and strait settlements, as above indicated, amount to nearly $1,000,000,000 a year. Those of Japan, which a decade ago were less than $50,000,000, are now more than $100,000,000, and steadily increasing. Those of China have increased 20 per cent. in the last decade, and now amount to nearly $200,000,000 a year. Those of British India and the strait settlements, which show an increase of about ten per cent. in the decade, are $300,000,000 annually. More than half of the imports of these four great countries are, as above indicated, classes of articles produced in the United States and offered for sale by its people. Of cotton and cotton goods alone the imports into these four countries amount in round numbers to $130,000,000 per annum, and of this amount but little over $10,000,000 worth is from the United States, the great cotton-producing country of the world. Imports of iron and steel into the countries in question amount to over $30,000,000, and of this $7,000,000 worth comes from the United States.

NEW TUBERCULOSIS CURE.

Prof. Landerer, of Stuttgart, Claims to Have Discovered Successful Method of Treatment.

Prof. Landerer, of Stuttgart, has just published his discovery of what he believes to be a cure for tuberculosis in its first stages, together with the results of 15 years of his special treatment of the disease. His method of treatment calls for subcutaneous and intravenous injections of cinnamic acid and its derivatives, hetol and hetokresol.

The treatment has been abundantly tested in the Karl and Olga hospital, Stuttgart. His notes show that tuberculosis, taken in its first stages, was invariably cured by the cinnamic acid treatment, with the aid of dietetic and hygiene measures, continued for a period of several months, while in the case of those in whom the disease had advanced to the second stage 70 per cent. were cured. The injected drugs act directly on the diseased tissues, Prof. Landerer says, cleatrizing them and checking tubercular agglomeration. Several specialists on lung diseases express the opinion that the discovery is most important and well supported by experiment.

"ARE AWFULLY FRIENDLY."

British Marine Writes of the Cordial Relations Between British Tars and American Troops.

An interesting letter from a marine on board the British first-class cruiser Powerful, recently at Manila, on the relations between the British tars and the American troops has been published. The writer says:

"Our men and the Yankee soldiers are awfully friendly. Very few of the Americans were in uniform. They often only had the number of their regiment written on a piece of paper and pinned to their jackets. It was a sight to see them come on board, speaking to everybody. When we saw them go up to officers without saluting we felt as if we must drop on the spot. They offered cigar cases to our men with: "Have a cigar, my boy," and afterwards handed us visiting cards, saying: 'Now be sure and look us up if you are down our way.'"

The young king of Spain has just had a very pleasant windfall in the shape of a legacy of 3,000,000 pesetas, bequeathed to him by an old gentleman named Soler, who had a close, though unacknowledged, relationship to the king, being a natural son of Ferdinand VIII., and greatuncle of King Alfonso. The testator's relatives opposed the will, but the queen regent, as her son's next friend, supported it, and the suit has now been decided in favor of the king.

Hissed to Sleep by a Snake.

A curious remedy for sleeplessness is used by the inhabitants of the Samoan islands. They confine a snake in a hollow bamboo, and the hissing sound emitted by the reptile is said to quickly induce slumber.

UNDERGROUND ROAD.

Richard Croker Says That Rapid Transit Below the Surface Is Coming in New York.

Richard Croker has announced in the first issue of the Verdict, O. H. P. Belmont's new weekly paper, that the underground rapid transit scheme would be put through during Mayor Van Wyck's administration, and that the work would be done with private capital. The announcement was contained in the following paragraph of an interview with Mr. Croker:

"During Mayor Van Wyck's administration the tunnel will be begun. It will be wide enough for four tracks. At the least it should cost $50,000,000. No; the city cannot build it. The city has neither the money nor the credit, under the law, to build it. The city will need all its money for schools.

"The tunnel will be built by private capital. There are men with the money and the inclination to build it. They will come forward. When they do, they will meet with every proper encouragement from the present city government and from Tammany hall. They will have to agree to those requirements which the city will impose touching the time in which the tunnel must be built and the character of the work, and give a proper bond to carry them out. Then the city will make the necessary grants. My own belief is that the tunnel will find its beginning within the coming year."

FISH IN AN OYSTER SHELL.

A Sea Bass Discovered by a Cook Where a Rockaway Was Expected.

The cook in the fashionable cafe in the New York Times building was opening Rockaway oysters the other night when he gave a yell, dropped his knife and jumped away from the bar. As he had pried apart the shell of an exceptionally large specimen the oyster apparently jumped three feet from the shell and began flopping about the bar.

"Oh, Lord," groaned one of the loungers, "my wife told me I'd see things if I didn't stop drinking. This is my finish."

It was a sea bass, a little over two inches long, and beautifully marked. It lay gasping on the bar. Somebody put it in a tumbler of water. Oyster crabs and cracker crumbs were dropped into the water, and the bass ate hungrily.

It is supposed that while the oyster was feeding the bass swooped down on it, to be caught when the bivalve closed its shell. Thereupon it ate up the oyster.

CREATES FAMILIES.

There is trouble in Jersey City, N. J., and 40 or 50 happy homes are on the verge of being broken up forever, while the school census that recently was taken there is the cause of it all. The men who were employed to collect the names of the school children receive five cents for each name gathered, and this the enumerators regarded as a good thing.

Other irregularties are alleged against the census, but this particular one has taken the breath away from many a prominent citizen. In order to swell their income the enumerators created more children, and attributed them to men who were unmarried, to men who had no children, and in some cases to parents who never existed.

It was a sad, sad shock to City Treasurer S. B. Dickinson, who is wifeless, to find that he was credited with having four children in the public schools, and many other well-known citizens suffered in the same manner.

Chief of Police Murphy had his men make an investigation, and that is how the fraud was disclosed.

DEVISE HUGE LIFE RAFTS.

French Experts Plan a Device by Which to Avoid Another Bourgogne Disaster.

In connection with the construction of new French trans-Atlantic liners, to run between Havre and New York, the French government is urged to test practically a scheme of carrying two great, well-equipped rafts, so constructed that they cannot be submerged. These rafts will be carried as shade decks, and in the event of a ship sinking as the Bourgogne did, the passengers will have a prospect of being saved. The French experts who present this scheme will make the raft to be carried forward 82 feet long, 23 feet wide externally, and 19 feet wide internally. The after raft will be 100 feet long, and of the same width as the forward raft. The two rafts will temporarily accommodate 2,000 persons.

Car Ferry Between Florida and Cuba.

A ferry for loaded cars is talked of between Tampa, Fla., and Havana. The fleet, according to a southern paper, is to build suitable tracks at both ends and load cars in Havana with fruit and perishable goods, run them on the ferryboat, and then send them away across the gulf to Tampa, run them on the tracks, and then away to northern destinations.

Oregon's Lumber Production.

The sawmills of Portland last year cut 130,000,000 feet of lumber at eight dollars per thousand, worth $104,000,000. The cut of the state brings the total value of Oregon's lumber production to $4,398,585,043.

And Every Democrat, Every Republican, Every Man, Woman or Child who can read will want to read it.

"Meantime we prefer to take our chance with the conservative Democrats, fighting within the party, to reform it of its excesses, and to restore it to its better uses, than to pursue an Ignis Fatuus which, if it had been more real, would have resulted in the election, instead of the defeat, of the Free Silver Fusion in 1896, and which with singular unanimity, the voters have refused to follow.

The Courier-Journal is a Democrat, not a Republican; and it will under no circumstances or conditions pursue a policy whose only effect is to continue the Republican party in power."

The Twice-a-Week Courier-Journal is a Democratic paper, of six or eight pages, issued Wednesday and Saturday of each week. Brooms have lately advanced 25 cents a dozen. This comes of cleaning out so many Spanish cities.

It is stated that there is no profane word in the Japanese language. If a citizen of Japan misses his train there seems to be no relief for it except silent distrust.

The nude appearance of the man with the scythe and hour-glass, as depicted on the new calendars, shows that very few people have been taking a stitch in Time.

Maryland has revived an old state law providing that when one person kills another he must pay the family of the murdered man $5,000. It does not, however, prescribe a place for finding the $5,000.

Two new papers started in Manila are called "Freedom" and "American." Journals printed in Spanish are suspending, and Manila will henceforth get the latest news in the English language.

Miss Maria Sandoval, the only woman lawyer in Mexico, won a case the other day in the criminal court at St. Louis. Twenty-five years ago news of this sort would have been remarkable, now it is nothing very unusual.

The orders issued for the last force of regulars to be sent to the Philippines direct that commissioned and noncommissioned officers be permitted to take their families with them on the transports. This signifies that the troops are not to make a flying trip, but will remain at their new post of duty for an extended period.

Christobal Colon, the most famous cat the world has ever known, died the other day at the home of its owner, Capt. Lloyd Clark, the ex-commander of the battleship Oregon. The cat was sent to Capt. Clark last September by the members of his crew on the Oregon, who took it from the Spanish cruiser Cristobal Colon, the flagship of Cervera's fleet. The cat was recently exhibited at the Chicago Cat show, where it won the medal.

The queen of Spain and the youthful king have had a pleasant little windfall. Some time since there died in Madrid an old gentleman named Soler, who bequeathed to the young king a legacy of 3,000,000 pesetas. The relatives of the testator opposed the will, but the queen, as her son's next friend, supported it, and has won her cause. It is stated that Soler was a natural son of King Ferdinand VII., and hence great-uncle of the young king.

The English war department recognizes the value of singing by its soldiers while on the march, and has ordered 25,000 books of patriotic and military songs as an experiment. These books will be distributed among the men in the infantry regiments, and classes for singing will be formed in the barracks. A similar experiment has been tried in France with great success, the number of stragglers on a day's march being reduced 70 per cent, when the men were singing.

No death sentence has been executed on any Yankee soldier in the late war for any of the crimes that are punishable by death under the rules of war. And President McKinley's commutation of the death sentence passed upon a private soldier for having murdered one of his comrades helps to preserve that remarkable record. It is interesting to note, by the way, that in this case the offender was a colored trooper, who killed a white man, and that the recommendation for mercy was made by Gen. Joe Wheeler, of Alabama.

If there be any at this late day who still doubt that Dewey is a name to conjure with, here is the latest fact they must explain away. In the rooms of the Hardware club, on the top floor of the Postal Telegraph building, New York hangs a picture of the redoubtable Vermont admiral. It is the only article in the room that was not destroyed or damaged by the recent fire. The window frames, the furniture, the hangings, and the other pictures all suffered, but Admiral Dewey's picture is still as clean and fresh as on the day it was hung.

It is not often that a man returns home after he is officially dead, but Leonard Wood, of the Sixth Massachusetts volunteers, has just had that experience, and has even seen a little monument erected to his memory in his home town of Passiac, N. J. He enlisted with a Massachusetts regiment, went to Porto Rico, and caught the yellow fever. Through a mistake he was officially reported as dead, but the other day, "just to surprise the folks," he slipped up to the front door and burst into the room with a hearty yell. It was a surprise indeed.

Now that we have a tropical island of our own in Porto Rico, it is very likely to divert some of the winter pleasure travel that has heretofore gone to Florida. The same will probably come true of Cuba when the island has become quiet under a new order of things. Already we find in a New York paper an advertisement of an excursion to all the places made interesting to Americans during the recent war. But the cost of such a trip will probably prevent it from displacing the customary winter resorts. Besides, most people will not care to challenge malaria.

ROMERO IS DEAD.

Washington, Dec. 30.—Senor Romero, the ambassador from Mexico to the United States, died at four o'clock this (Friday) morning, aged 62 years. An operation for appendicitis was performed upon Ambassador Romero on Tuesday. For many hours the physicians were encouraged to hope for a successful result, but the age and frail constitution of the patient tended to diminish the chances for his recovery, and the end came at the hour above stated.

[Mr. Romero was made secretary of legation as long ago as 1859, when he was only 22 years old. Since that time he has taken a large part in the public affairs of his country, exclusive of the many years he has lived in Washington. As Gen. Diaz' chief of staff in the French invasion, as principal agent in the American treaties after Maximilian's defeat, minister of finance under Juarez, member of congress, postmaster-general and in other important functions, he had his share in patriotic and unselfish devotion to his country. His duties as representative of a proud and sensitive government were delicate and important, and his success is a splendid tribute to his rare powers as a diplomat. His ability and his high personal character have been well appreciated in Washington. Mr. Romero married an American lady, Lucretia Allen, of Philadelphia. Here and in Europe he was considered one of the greatest, if not the greatest, man produced by Latin America in these times.]

Washington, Jan. 2.—Public funeral services over the remains of the late Don Matias Romero, the ambassador from Mexico to the United States, who died Friday morning, were held at St. Matthew's church Sunday. Distinguished honors to the memory of the deceased was manifested in the presence at the ceremonies of President McKinley, Vice President Hobart, nearly all the members of the cabinet, representatives of the entire diplomatic corps, officers of the army and navy, and private citizens. At the conclusion of the service, the body was taken to Mount Olivet cemetery and placed temporarily in a vault pending its removal to Mexico.

UNDER A NEW FLAG.

Spanish Sovereignty in Cuba Comes to an End — Ceremonies of Transfer Are Simple.

Havana, Jan. 2.—The sovereignty of Cuba passed from Spain to the United States at noon Sunday. The form of the transfer was simple, consisting only of an exchange of speeches in the salon of the palace, the hauling down of the Spanish flag and the raising in its stead of the flag of the United States on the flagstaff on the palace roof. Salutes were fired from the heavy guns of the forts and the warships before and after the change of flags. The raising of the stars and stripes was greeted with cheers by the people who covered the roofs of the buildings around the palace and the plaza.

No crowd was permitted to gather in the streets in the vicinity of the palace to witness the epoch-making function.

FARMER MURDERED.

Three Masked Men Commit a Diabolical Crime in Nicollet County, Minn.

New Ulm, Minn., Jan. 3.—A shocking murder has been committed in the township of Lafayette, Nicollet county, just across the river from New Ulm. About midnight three masked men appeared at the house of John Wellner, a farmer, and made a disturbance. Wellner went outside with a lantern to investigate and was shot in the back. He died instantly. Mrs. Wellner at this juncture came out of the house and was seized by the murderers who took her into the house, bound her to the bedstead and ransacked the dwelling. They then disappeared, leaving no clew to their identity.

Canadian Postage Reduced.

Washington, Dec. 31.—The Canadian government in a telegram from Postmaster General Mulock to Postmaster General Emory Smith announces that it has reduced the domestic letter rate from three to two cents per ounce, commencing January 1. Under the convention between the United States and Canada letters are sent from this country to Canada for two cents, the domestic rate of each country applying to letters sent. The reduction now made is reciprocal, and for the first time, permits letters to be sent from the other side at two instead of three cents.

Eleven Persons Hurt.

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 30.—Baltimore & Ohio officials in this city give out the following account of a collision which occurred near Rockwood, Pa., Thursday night: A west-bound freight engine collided with the east-bound passenger train due at Rockwood, Pa., and a serious wreck resulted. Eleven persons were injured. All of the injured were taken to Rockwood hotel. None of the injured will die. The collision was caused by the engineer of the freight train overlooking the time of the passenger train.

Confederate Graves in the North.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 3.—Gen. Clement A. Evans, of this city, who was chairman of the commission appointed by the governor, in response to a resolution adopted by the last legislature requiring the members to secure information as to the location of the graves of confederate soldiers who died in northern military prisons, has reported. The report shows that nearly 22,000 confederate dead are buried in the northern states.

Held for Postage.

Washington, Dec. 30.—The postmaster at San Francisco has called attention to the large amount of mail matter accumulating there under the mistaken notion that domestic postage applies to Hawaii. Letters for residents of Hawaii still require the international postage of five cents per half ounce, though all mail to people in the United States military or naval service is transmissable at domestic rates.

Grants Amnesty to Many.

Rome, Dec. 30.—King Humbert has signed a decree amnestying or reducing the punishments of the rioters who took part in the disturbances last spring. About 700 persons who were sentenced by courts-martial and about 2,000 who were condemned by civil courts have been liberated, but all recidivists or habitual criminals have been excluded from the benefits of the decree.

IS FOUND GUILTY.

Mrs. Botkin Is Convicted of Murder at San Francisco—Penalty Is Life Imprisonment.

San Francisco, Dec. 31.—Rather to the general surprise of those who have followed the Botkin trial and to the entire dismay of the defendant and her attorneys, Mrs. Cordelia Botkin was Friday night found guilty of murder in the first degree for causing the death of Mrs. John P. Dunning by sending a box of poisoned candy to her temporary home in Dover, De. The condemned murderess will be spared an ignominious death on the gallows, however, the jury that found her guilty imposing also the penalty of life imprisonment. The verdict was unexpected.

[John P. Dunning formerly resided in San Francisco. When the Spanish-American war broke out he went as a newspaper correspondent to Cuba. His family moved to Dover, Del. One evening shortly after, while entertaining her sister, Mrs. Deane, and some friends, Mrs. Dunning received a box which had come by mail. It contained candy and a handkerchief. There was a note pinned to the handkerchief reading: "For your little daughter." Mrs. Dunning and her guests ate of the candy. Nine persons immediately became sick. Mrs. Dunning and Mrs. Deane died, but the others were saved with difficulty. An investigation followed, and at the trial evidence was introduced showing that Mrs. Botkin had bought the box in San Francisco and that the writing accompanying the handkerchief was hers. The alleged motive for the crime was Mrs. Botkin's infatuation for Dunning and her belief that Mrs. Dunning had had him sent to Cuba to remove him from Mrs. Botkin.]

LATE SENATOR MORRILL.

Montpelier, Vt., Jan. 3. — The body of the late United States Senator Justin Smith Morrill arrived here Monday from Washington. On the train which brought the body of Montpelier was also the body of the senator's wife who died at the capital several months ago.

The body was borne from the train to the capitol, where it lay in state in the corridor before representatives' hall. During the day hundreds passed by the casket. The funeral services in representatives' hall were largely attended. Men from all parts of the state came to pay final respects to the memory of the late senator. President M. H. Buckman, of the University of Vermont, delivered the eulogy. After the lobbies were cleared the bodies of Senator Morrill and Mrs. Morrill were taken to Green Mount cemetery, where they were placed in a vault to remain until spring when they will be carried to Strafford for interment.

HUNDREDS DROWNED.

Appalling Disaster Reported from Hankow, China—Houses Fall Into a River.

Victoria, B. C., Dec. 31.—The steamers Victoria and Yamaguchi Maru arrived Friday with news from the orient to December 15. Another serious calamity, writes the Hankow correspondent of the North China Daily News, files of which were received by the steamers, has befallen the unfortunate town of Hankow. About 1,000, if not many more, of the inhabitants, have met death by drowning. About noon on December 3, half a street of houses extending along the edge of the river Han suddenly broke way and tumbled into the water on top of all the boats there. Houses and boats, with all the people in them, disappeared in a moment. About 100 buildings and the same number of boats are gone.

Three Men Killed.

West Plains, Mo., Dec. 30.—At Ambrose, in Ozark county, William Barton shot and killed two men named Cobb. Sheriff Luna quickly organized a posse at Gainesville and started out to capture the murderer. He was found near the scene of the tragedy, but before being arrested he shot and killed Henry Winger, a member of the posse, and then surrendered. News of the tragedy is very meager, but from the best information obtainable three men are dead and their slayer is in jail at Gainesville, closely guarded.

Sent to Jail.

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 31.—David J. Telfair, who claims to be at the head of a concern worth $100,000,000 and who says Cornelius Vanderbilt is one of his backers, is locked up in the Fulton county jail because he failed to pay for six pairs of shoes. Telfair claims he has gone to jail as a matter of principle, and says there is a story of persecution back of it all. He claims his concern operates gold mines in China, obtained under a special concession from the emperor, secured through Mr. Wu Ting Fang.

Fierce Storm in Nebraska.

Omaha, Neb., Dec. 30.—A very severe storm prevails in Nebraska. Though the mercury has not yet reached zero, a high wind is driving fine particles of snow and ice with a velocity that renders it very dangerous for man or beast to be exposed. Considerable snow has fallen, but it is shifted hourly, so that the ground seems clean except where the snow is piled in drifts. The indications are for a very severe storm all over the state.

Meets a Horrible Fate.

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 31.—At the Dovetail box factory in this city Joseph Pocher, aged 17, an employe, was caught in the machinery, whirled rapidly about a pulley, parts of his body being cut or twisted off and whirled in various directions, and the body torn to shreds. Gudor Hough tried to rescue Pocher and was also caught and whirled three times around the pulley, but the machinery was stopped in time to save his life.

Great Strike Expected.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 3.—A general strike in the bituminous coal region is looked for on April 1, at the close of the term of the interstate agreement between the miners and operators. This strike can only be averted by the miners and operators of the competitive field reaching an amicable agreement at the convention to be held in this city next week.

Declines a High Honor.

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 3.—Rev. James Bowen Funsten, rector of Protestant Episcopal church, Portsmouth, who was elected bishop of Boise by the triennial council at Washington City two months ago, has declined the honor and will remain with his present parishioners.

May Bring Leprosy to This Country.

It is pointed out that the United States soldiers in Hawaii may contract leprosy there, and bring it to this country when they return. While leprosy is much to be dreaded, there are a thousand times as many victims to stomach disorders and blood diseases, but there is a cure for them in Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Other common ailments that the Bitters are a specific for are malaria, fever and ague. Sold at all drug stores.

Guarding Against Twin Germs.

A village clergyman tells this story: He was walking through the outskirts of his parish one evening, when he saw one of his parishioners very busy whitewashing his cottage. Pleased at these somewhat novel signs of cleanliness, he called out: "Well, Jones, I see you are making your house nice and smart." With a mysterious air Jones, who had recently taken the cottage, descended from the ladder, and slowly walked to the hedge which separated the garden from the road. "That's not 'xactly the reason why I'm a doing of this 'ere job," he whispered, "but the last two couples as lived in this 'ere cottage 'ad twins; so I says to my missus, I'll take an' whitewash the place, so as there mayn't be no infection. Ye see, sir, as 'ow we got ten children already." —Cornhill Magazine.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is often ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Mrs. Hoffman Describes How She Wrote to Mrs. Pinkham for Advice, and Is Now Well.

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Before using your Vegetable Compound I was a great sufferer. I have been sick for months, was troubled with severe pain in both sides of abdomen, sore feeling in lower part of bowels, also suffered with dizziness, headache, and could not sleep. I wrote you a letter describing my case and asking your advice. You replied telling me just what to do. I followed your directions, and cannot praise your medicine enough for what it has done for me. Many thanks to you for your advice. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured me, and I will recommend it to my friends.—Mrs. FLORENCE R. HOFFMAN, 512 Roland St., Canton, O.

The condition described by Mrs. Hoffman will appeal to many women, yet lots of sick women struggle on with their daily tasks disregarding the urgent warnings until overtaken by actual collapse.

The present Mrs. Pinkham's experience in treating female ills is unparalleled, for years she worked side by side with Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, and for sometimes past has had sole charge of the correspondence department of her great business, treating by letter as many as a hundred thousand ailing women during a single year.

THE SENATORIAL INSTINCT.

A Detroit Cat That Was Likened Unto the Luxurious Statesman.

"I guess I just about have the blue-ribbon cat story," declared one of the employes at a Detroit depot. "We had a big tom here that was a favorite for months. He never did anything worse than to whip an occasional dog that came prowling about, or scratch some kid that wanted to carry him off. But he became fat, lazy, self-important and impudent. He asserted a right to be on top of the desks, and resented the noise of a typewriter when he wanted to take his afternoon nap.

"So another of the boys and myself slipped Tom into a box car, and sent him to Chicago. There was no chance for him to escape, for it was a tight box car, with the doors sealed, and billed through.

"Two weeks later there came a carload of furniture from Chicago, and after it had been shunted to a side track the work of unloading was begun. The men scattered when they saw a pair of fiery eyes working toward them through chair legs and over carpet rolls. While they were arming themselves with coupling pins in order to resist the attack of some wild 'critter,' a long, lean and hungry-looking cat sprang out, blinked till he became accustomed to the light and then trotted to my office. There he gave me an ugly leer, winked at the clerks and curled up on a window sill in the sun. I accepted old Tom and now call him 'Senator.'"

"Why Senator?"

"Because he knew a good thing and was so anxious to get back."—Detroit Free Press.

COULDN'T FOOL HIM.

How a Colored Boy Knew Joseph Jefferson Was Not a Circus Rider.

Joseph Jefferson and his son Tom were walking home from a duck hunt on his plantation in Louisiana one evening, when one of the colored boys asked Tom what he did in the show. Tom said:

"Go up, John, and ask him! he'll tell you."

The colored boy went up to Mr. Jefferson and said:

"Mr. Joe, will you be mad if I axed you somethin'?"

"No, John, what it is?" said Mr. Jefferson.

"What do you do in de show?"

Mr. Jefferson replied that it would be rather difficult for him to explain to him what his particular line of business was.

"Well," said John, "dus yer swallow knives?"

Mr. Jefferson told him he had no talent whatever in that direction.

"Well, yer son told me yed swallowed knives and forks and fire, and de Lor' knows what all, and I believe he was jest foolin' me."

Mr. Jefferson agreed with him, saying that his son was quite capable of it.

Mr. Jefferson asked him how he could be sure of that. John burst into an immoderate fit of laughter.

"O, no; no sir! Yer can't fool me on dat. I've seen yer get on a horse—yer ain't no circus actor."—Boston Globe.

Question of Values.

He knew that she was a cleaver business woman, and therefore he thought his scheme a good one. But he did not realize that she was such a good judge of values.

"I have made a bet that I will marry you," he said.

"Money up?" she asked.

"Yes," he answered, pleased at the businesslike way she took hold of the proposition.

"How much?"

She looked him over critically.

"Too low," she said at last. "You'll have to get it raised to $5,000 or you'll lose."

And at that, as she afterward explained, she was giving him a bargain-day price.—Chicago Post.

How It Happened.

The police magistrate eyed the prisoner sternly.

"You were arrested," he said, "for assaulting the player of a street piano. What is your defense?"

The dago came along and started playing 'There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town To-night,' so I took it as a personal matter and proceeded to put a dent in his features. The cops hurried up and pinched the dago and his piano, and I—"

"Well, you?" urged his honor.

WAS A GREAT YEAR.

The Past Twelve Months and Their Leading Events.

Important Occurrences in the United States and in Foreign Lands—Epitome of the Spanish-American War.

The year 1898 will always be one of the most memorable in the history of the United States. It was the year of victory in a war with a foreign nation and the year in which the republic relinquished its isolated position and entered upon its career as a world power. It is unnecessary to review in close detail the swiftly occurring events of the war with Spain, as they are fresh in the memory of every reader. It began in the interests of humanity and for the protection of American interests; it has closed with the extinguishment of the colonial sovereignty of Spain and the extension of the area of the United States, bringing with it new duties and responsibilities. To-day the stars and stripes wave over Cuba, Porto Rico, the Philippines and the Ladrones. Looking at the struggle briefly, war existed when the battleship Maine was blown up in Havana harbor, February 15. On the 8th of March congress voted unanimously and without debate a defense fund of $50,000,000. On the 20th of April it passed a joint resolution demanding that Spain relinquish its authority and government in the island of Cuba and withdraw its land and naval forces from Cuba and Cuban waters. On the 25th of April the president stated in his message to congress the causes of war which congress had already declared to have existed since April 21, and announced the severance of diplomatic relations with Spain. Events now moved swiftly. April 22 congress passed the volunteer army bill and voted an embargo on coal and war material. April 23 the president called for 125,000 volunteers and April 24 Spain declared war.

Military operations actively ensued. They may be summed up in this brief statement. Destruction of the Spanish fleet at Manila May 1; destruction of the Spanish fleet off Santiago July 3; surrender of Santiago July 14; invasion of Porto Rico July 21. On the 25th of July Spain, through M. Cambon, the French ambassador, asked what terms of peace were demanded. After deliberation the president replied, demanding the evacuation of Cuba, the cession of Porto Rico and one of the Ladrones and certain concessions in the Philippines, to be settled by a joint commission. On the 12th of August the protocol was signed and hostilities were suspended. September 27 the peace commission began its sessions and December 10 the treaty was signed, seven months and 19 days after the declaration of war. Rarely has a war been fought and a treaty made in shorter time than this. The treaty will undoubtedly be ratified within a few weeks, and then this country will take its seat at the council board of the nations as a war power, prepared to execute the new duties imposed upon it. Rarely also has a war been fought with so little comparative loss. No official report has been made of Spain's losses, but the total casualties upon the American side were as follows: Officers killed, 23; enlisted men killed, 257; total, 280; officers wounded, 113; enlisted men wounded, 1,464; total, 1,577. Of the navy: Killed, 17; wounded, 67; died of result of wounds, 1; invalided from service, 6; total, 91. Spain lost 25 war vessels; the United States, none. The cost of the war to the United States was about $222,500,000; to Spain, about $1,075,000,000. We have gained 120,110 square miles of territory, with 8,892,769 population, not including Cuba—yet.

Work of Congress.

So much of the time of congress was taken up by the discussions which preceded the war and the legislation which it necessitated that it did not have much leisure for other subjects. Of the war measures aside from the joint resolutions demanding the evacuation of Cuba, which were followed by the declaration of war by Spain, were the war revenue law and the act for the temporary increase of the army. That war revenue law, with its stamp taxes and its increased beer tax, will remain on the statute books for a year at least. Under that law three per cent. bonds to the amount of $200,000,000 were sold.

The other notable events in congress were the annexation of Hawaii and the enactment of a bankruptcy law. The necessary two-thirds vote could not be obtained for the ratification of the treaty for the annexation of Hawaii, but after the war with Spain began no difficulty was found in adopting a joint resolution which made the islands a part of the United States. The bankruptcy act, which provides for both voluntary and involuntary bankruptcy, is the first the United States has had since 1878. It will be in full force after this date.

The less important measures of the session were the creation of an industrial commission to investigate immigration, labor, manufacture and business; the prohibition of the killing of fur seals in the North Pacific and the importation of sealskins; the enactment of an Alaskan homestead and the right of way to encourage the construction of railroads, and the prohibition of the carrying of merchandise, directly or indirectly, between United States ports in foreign vessels.

Great Year for Trade.

The development of American trade and commerce during the last twelvemonth has been so great as to excite the envious wonder of the world. The value of domestic exports in 1897 was $1,050,714,000. Last year it was $1,250,000,000. The silver exports will add about $30,000,000 to that imposing total. The value of the imports was less than in 1897. This was due partly to the heavy importations in the last-named year in anticipation of the passage of the Dingley tariff law. But aside from that the fact is apparent that this country is making for itself more and more of the goods it used to buy abroad, and that the importation of foreign manufactures must continue to decrease. The exports were so large last year because the demand for American wheat did not decrease materially, this country supplying over 80 per cent. of the European demand for foreign wheat; because the Europeans who began purchasing American corn in 1897 found that it was a most desirable commodity and kept on buying it in 1898 to the extent of 200,000,000 bushels, and because the newly-discovered ability of the American iron and steel manufacturers to undersell the rest of the world enabled this country to sell half as much again of those metals and their products last year as in the preceding year.

The supremacy of the United States in the manufacture of the world's chief metals is conceded now. The Americans have not only beaten their English competitors in neutral markets, like Australia, India and Russia, but have invaded English markets and undersold the Englishmen at home, getting contracts for iron pipe to be laid in English cities and steel rails for English roads. The American iron industry throve last year, but the indications are that it will be even more prosperous in 1899. The output of pig iron last year was 11,500,000 tons, the greatest ever yet reached by 2,000,000 tons. This year's output will be still greater.

Our Trade Balance.

The excess of exports of merchandise and silver over the imports last year was $339,500,000. So large a trade balance in favor of this country has put it in that most enviable position where New York is able to dictate money rates to London, Berlin and Paris. Part of the money due the United States for this excess of exports has been loaned on call in European cities. Part has been sent here in the shape of gold. Owing to the gold importations and the supplies drawn from the American mines the stock of that metal available for monetary uses amounts now to $695,000,000, while at the close of 1897 it was $696,333,000.

THE OLD YEAR ABROAD.

Events of Interest and Importance in Foreign Lands.

While there have been no great wars in the old world during 1898, the contests of diplomacy and politics have been none the less conspicuous and far-reaching in their results. The most significant of them has been the competition of the great powers over the partition of the ancient empire of China and the defrauding of Japan out of the fruits of its war which it so justly earned. The treaty between these two oriental nations had hardly been negotiated before the scramble of the powers began. Russia was the first in the field, and to secure an outlet for its Trans-Siberian road and an open port the year round obtained from China the cession of Ta-Lien-Wan and Port Arthur. The breaking up of a German mission in Shantung was a pretext for Germany to make its grab of territory. It secured the port of Kiao Chou and a 99-year lease of a large area in Shantung province, which is peculiarly rich in minerals. Great Britain, feeling itself overreached, especially by the action of Russia, made a peremptory demand upon China for a lease of the port of Wei-Hai-Wei, which occupies a commanding position, and which was held by Japan as security for the payment of the Chinese indemnity. China promptly paid the indemnity and made the cession. Meanwhile France secured the lease of a bay in Chinese waters and also strengthened itself along the Tonquin frontier. Immediately after this cession Great Britain secured still another by leasing a large area near Hong-Kong, which gives it a still stronger foothold in southern China. These are the entering wedges which must soon rend the old empire—a process of dismemberment which will be materially aided by revolutions in various parts of the country and by governmental anarchy in the capital. It is apparent that China as an empire will soon disappear, and that its partition among the western powers is certain.

Africa.

The march of events in Africa has been well-nigh as interesting as that in Asia, growing out of the conflicting interests of Great Britain and France in the Soudan. The trouble began first in February, when French troops invaded what was claimed to be English territory in West Africa. A long correspondence ensued between the two governments, which at last resulted in a settlement of the boundary dispute in that quarter. Meanwhile, in April the Anglo-Egyptian army, under Gen. Kitchener, began its expedition up the Nile. In rapid succession the dervishes were defeated at Shendy, Kenneri, Gedaref, Omdurman and Khartoum, the latter being the crowning blow which destroyed the dervish army, made the khalifa a fugitive, gave the British control of the Soudan and opened the way for their project of securing a continuous stretch of territory in East Africa from Cairo to Cape Town. This project is further aided by another British expedition moving northward from Uganda to Lake Rudolph, which will soon make a junction with the forces at Fashoda. Meanwhile the French force under Maj. Marchand, coming in from the west, had occupied Fashoda, but was compelled to leave by Gen. Kitchener, an event which for a time threatened war between France and Great Britain. The cloud, however, passed over, the French evidently recognizing the impossibility of thwarting the British plan for a new empire in Africa. The Fashoda incident appears to be closed, and France will have to content itself with holding as much of the Niger country and of the Atlantic side of the Sahara as possible, giving up its ambition for an outlet to the Red sea or the Indian ocean on the east. It will not be many years before a British railroad will be in operation between Cairo and the cape. Meanwhile the Anglo-French boundary questions will be referred to arbitration on the suggestion of Lord Salisbury. The only other incident of general interest in Africa during the year is the refusal of the Transvaal government to recognize British suzerainty and the development of a feeling of discontent, which at the close of the year menaces a revolution in the capital which the Boers may find it difficult to suppress.

France.

The Dreyfus agitation has kept France prominently and disgracefully before the whole world during the year, beginning with the anti-Semite riots and trial of M. Zola in January and closing with the grant of revision by the court of cassation. This agitation has made French justice a mockery and a byword, and it has not been without its political influence upon the government. The cabinet resigned early in June and M. Brisson formed another. Individual resignations followed, and at last the whole cabinet resigned in October upon the question of the supremacy of the civil over the military power. A new ministry has recently been formed by M. Dupuy, which comes into power amid menaces of revolution and continuous disorder, growing out of the attempted settlement of the Dreyfus affair.

In Other Lands.

Germany, outside of its engagements with China, has been mainly interested in the emperor's spectacular visit to the Holy Land and his hobnobbing with the grand Turk, while Austria has been mourning the death of its empress, who fell a victim to the knife of the anarchist Luccheni at Geneva. Denmark has also lost its queen, and happy Holland has a new one by the accession of Wilhelmina. The czar of Russia has delighted the doves by his proposition for an international conference to consider the question of reducing military forces and at the same time has encouraged the hawks by immensely increasing his own army and navy. Crete has at last been saved from further oppression by Turkey. The Musulman outbreak against British authority led to prompt action by the great powers. The last Turkish soldier has been ejected from the island, the Mussulmans on the island have been disarmed, and, with the consent of Great Britain, France and Russia, Prince George of Greece becomes governor, and the Christians are secure at last in their rights.

GREETINGS EXCHANGED.

Washington, Jan. 3.—The president and Mrs. McKinley received the season's greetings Monday from the great throng of callers representing every branch of public life, who attended the white house reception. It was the first time since the present administration began that circumstances permitted the observance of this custom, and this, as well as the happy and propitious circumstances under which the year begins, added to the interest and enjoyment surrounding the event. It was an ideal mid-winter day, the air crisp and bracing, and the ground covered with snow. The executive mansion was elaborately decorated for the event, a wealth of cut flowers, palms, potted plants and ferns transforming the apartments into bowers of shrubbery and bloom. In the receiving line with the president and Mrs. McKinley were the members of the cabinet and the cabinet ladies, while back of the line stood many ladies from the army, navy, congressional and judicial circles. Among the most notable figures in the line of callers were the foreign ambassadors and ministers, in their rich diplomatic uniforms. Officers of the army and navy also were in full uniform, giving a brilliancy and dash to the occasion. The army group which attracted most attention, was made up of Maj. Gens. Miles, Shafter and Lawton and Brig. Gen. Corbin, who, after greeting the presidential party, were invited to join the receiving party. The reception lasted something over two hours, and was in every way a successful and happy ushering in of the new year.

A NOVEL PLAN.

Scheme for Raising Funds to Build Big Convention Hall in Kansas City Is Unique.

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 3.—Kansas City's new great public building, the convention hall, practically completed, was dedicated to the public in a unique way Monday. The building, which will seat 15,000 people and is one of the largest in the country, was erected by popular subscription and through other means of raising money. Business men had donated the greater part of the money when it was found that more funds were needed. First thousands of convention hall buttons at one dollar apiece, each of which entitled the holder to one share of stock in the building company, were sold. Later gifts were donated by business men until no less than 7,000 presents, ranging from a sheet of music to a $4,000 house and lot, and including a lion cub, a race horse and three $1,000 thoroughbred heifers had been received by the building committee. These presents, it was decided, should be drawn as prizes, and 160,000 tickets at 25 cents each, and entitling the holder of each to a "grab" for the prizes, were sold. Monday the "drawing" was begun, and thousands of people of all degrees and conditions flocked in and out of the building to take their turn at a chance. A band discoursed music, while the judges, with the aid of two blind boys from the Kansas City, Kan., asylum, awarded the prizes, tickets numbering from 1 to 160,000 and corresponding with those sold, being drawn from two glass wheels, presided over by the sightless boys.

Were Not Arrested.

Havana, Jan. 3.—It developed Monday that company A, of Indiana regiment, which waved Cuban flags during the parade Sunday was not arrested, as cabled Sunday night. Investigation showed that the flags were distributed to them by Cubans in the crowd, and that the act of waving them was thoughtless and not prearranged.

THE LAWMAKERS.

The Minnesota Legislature Organizes for Business.

A. N. Dare of Elk River is Elected Speaker Without Much Opposition. Resolutions Presented Calling for Grain Investigation

St. Paul, Jan. 3.—For the thirty-first time a Minnesota state legislature was organized today. Both houses proceeded to the business at hand with considerable dispatch, though the senate was more prompt in attending its ends than the representative body. In both houses the caucus slates went through unfractured, and it was noteworthy also that in both houses the minority made a point of also following its caucus nominations. The house did not conclude its morning session until half past two. At that time the members were ready for an adjournment until 4 o'clock. It was expected that in the interval a committee which had been appointed to wait on the governor in conjunction with a committee from the upper house for the purpose of learning his pleasure for the arrangement to be followed out in the inauguration tomorrow, would be ready to report. The senate took a recess somewhat earlier than the house to meet at the same hour, 4 o'clock.

Of far greater moment, however, than the organization of either house, was the introduction of a resolution among the representatives by J. S. Jacobson, of Lac-qui-Parle county. The resolution calls for an investigation into the conduct of the grain department of the state railroad and warehouse commission, and is significant in that it gives the first hint of the program which the republican managers have determined to follow out this session. If reforms are to be made and legislation of the character to recommend itself to the people at large to be enacted, the republican majority in the house and senate has determined that this shall be its work, and that its party shall have the credit for it.

The grip confined Secretary of State Berg to his room this morning and therefore a somewhat unusual procedure was employed in organizing the house. The constitution provides that in the event of an incapacity on the part of the secretary of state, the oldest member of the lower legislative body in point of consecutive service shall be called to the chair. Under this provision J. F. Jacobson, of Lac qui Parle county, the dean of the house, was asked by Assistant Secretary of State Lomen to handle the gavel during the morning.

Mr. Jacobson's first act was to call upon C. F. Staples to officiate as temporary clerk. Then the ceremony of swearing in the members began. As the roll was called, the members responded by senatorial districts, and before Justice Collins, of the state supreme court, who was stationed to the right of the speaker's throne, pledged themselves to uphold the constitution of the United States and of the state, and to perform faithfully the duties of their office.

As each member came forward he delivered his certificate of election to Assistant Secretary of State Lomen, at the clerk's desk.

In taking up the election of officers there was no deviation from the caucus programs of last night. The republican majority in every instance elected their candidates by a vote of 70 to 80 plurality. A. N. Dare, of Elk River, was nominated for speaker by Representative H. R. Mallette, a fellow colleage of Mr. Dare's. The nomination of H. S. Stivers, the candidate of the minority, was made by John Pennington.

The vote was, Dare 92, Stivers 25. Chairman Jacobson then named Messrs. Gutterson, Winston and Yale to notify Mr. Dare of his good fortune and to escort him to his seat.

When the hour came for calling the senate to order, there were few people in the gallery, but about 100 people sat on the senate floor and of the half dozen ladies present nearly all of them were on business bent. Lieutenant Governor Smith took hold of the session and carried forward the business in rapid order. A great many resolutions were presented, but so many of them conflicted that all but about half a dozen were withdrawn.

Almost as soon as the hands of the clock pointed to the noon hour, Chief Justice C. M. Start appeared in front of the lieutenant governor's chair and called the senate to order. Almost immediately after the administration of the oath to Lieutenant Governor Lyndon A. Smith, prayer was offered by Rev. W. W. Lewis. The credentials of the senators were then called for. These were presented by districts, and the senators sworn in by Chief Justice Start. After roll call, at which all were present, the slate was adopted, with the exception of the clerks of committees and the committees' stenographers. On the adoption of the rest of the slate the roll call was divided, always 44 in its favor and 19 against. When the resolution to adopt the nominations for committee clerks and stenographers was presented it was laid over by Senator Sheehan giving notice of debate.

PENSIONS FOR TEACHERS.

When the legislature assembles next week it will be asked to pass the following bill:

"Section 1. That, in order to better the conditions of rural schools by pecuniary aid to teachers, the following provisions are hereby made: Teachers having served faithfully in the rural schools of the state for a period of twenty years and over shall be paid a pro rata pension as follows: Twenty years and under thirty, $10 per month; thirty years and under forty, $15 per month; forty years and over, $20 per month.

"Sec. 2. A list of successive schools taught, stating year, length of term in months, number of school district, name of county, postoffice address, and such other facts as may be required, shall be made out annually by the teacher on blanks furnished by the state superintendent of public instruction, who, thereupon, shall file said list and draw a warrant to be indorsed by the state auditor and paid by the state treasurer to the teacher named in the warrant.

"Sec. 3. The sum of ten thousand dollars ($10,000), or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated annually out of any moneys in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated.

"Sec. 4. This act shall take effect and be in force on and after the first day of July, eighteen hundred and ninety-nine (1899)."

UNCONSTITUTIONAL.

A decision was handed down from the supreme court in which it was held that the law providing for the appropriation of money for seed loans is unconstitutional. The reason for the decision is that the money appropriated is for a private purpose, and therefore illegal. The same order holds that those who have already borrowed money under the law cannot use the decision as a means of escaping payment, because, having availed themselves of the law, they are now estopped from pleading its unconstitutionality. The case is that of William Deering & Co., appellants, vs. Peter August Peterson, defendant, John Gillespie, garnishee.

A WOMAN'S CRIME.

A woman's jealousy was the cause of a frightful crime at Duluth. Mrs. H. L. Borglund shot and killed Peter Hanson, a tailor, and then cut her own throat, but was not as effective in her own case and will probably recover. Mrs. Borglund is a widow of 40 years of age. She kept a number of boarders, among them Hanson, who was her cousin. He was 30 years of age, but although 10 years his senior, the widow was wildly in love with him. Hanson paid her considerable attention for a time, but lately had been quite devoted to a younger and fairer woman.

SMALL BOY AS BANKER.

F. H. Peavey three years ago started a little financial scheme to induce small boys of Minneapolis who were working for a living to put their surplus earnings in the bank. In the three years 176 boys have enrolled themselves in Mr. Peavey's Economic club, and out of that number 137 have still some money in the treasurer's strong box. One boy who saved $81.70 drew it out to start his sister in the millinery business. Many of the depositors are office boys, of whom one has saved $54, another $63, another $42, another $34, etc.

HELD UP.

John P. Voyer, an employe of the Pioneer Press, was held up by masked footpads early in the morning while on his way from home to work in St. Paul. He had but 40 cents in his pockets, and no valuables, having left his gold watch at home. When within a block of his residence a tall man poked a revolver in his face, and accompanied the action with a demand to hold up his hands. He complied with the demand and allowed a second robber to go through his pockets and secure the little change he had.

The Ills of Children.

Dr. Hartman offers his advice to parents on the treatment of coughs and colds.

LEARN to guard against colds. Nearly all the ills of children begin with taking cold. If your child catches cold don't wait a moment before attacking that cold.

To the ignorance or neglect of parents is due the fatal termination of many children's complaints.

If you are not informed as to the proper course to pursue to drive off a child's cold, write to Dr. Hartman, president of the Surgical Hotel, Columbus, O., for advice, and ask for some of his free books which contain the most pertinent facts about colds and coughs and all catarrhal diseases.

Peru-na, Dr. Hartman's great prescription, is wholly vegetable. It wards off colds entirely if taken at the beginning in proper doses. It breaks up settled colds quickly; it is scientific and safe; there is no mystery about it. Dr. Hartman's books tell just how it acts and why. All druggists sell it.

Mrs. C. T. Rogers, Elgin, Ill., says: Dr. S. B. Hartman, Columbus, O.

DEAR SIR:—"Your medicine saved my baby's life. We stopped all treatment but yours, and now he is a beautiful boy. It was certainly a miracle."

Mrs. Becking, East Toledo, O., writes to the Peruna Medicine Co.:

DEAR SIRS:—"Peruna is the best medicine I ever had in my house. My children had a bad cough, and one of them had the lung fever. I cured them all with Peruna."

Proper knowledge of the treatment of coughs and colds is of the first importance to parents. This knowledge is offered free. All catarrhal diseases succumb to Peruna.

MANITOBA'S CAPACITY.

Can Raise Enough Wheat to Supply Britain All She Requires from Abroad.

Toronto, Nov. 10th.—The World comments on the report of the United Empire trade league on the capacity of Canada as a granary for Britain. The report refers to Manitoba as follows: Manitoba has an area of 47 millions acres. Deducting ten million for lakes, rivers, townsites, and waste land, 37,000,000 acres are left for farm cultivation or homes for 116,000 families on 320 acres each and as up to now there are only 27,000 farmers there altogether, that leaves room in one province for 89,008 more wheat growers. Supposing, then, we got them there and each one of them out of his 320 acres grows on an average 100 acres at 20 bushels to the acre, if you figure it up you will find it is quite possible for Manitoba alone to supply us with all the wheat we require from abroad. It is only a question of money, and, comparatively speaking, not money either. The cost of one first-class battleship (about £750,000) would put 5,000 families on to farms in the North West, allowing £150 to each to find them in implements, seeds, horses, &c. Would keep them until their first crop was harvested. Five thousand farmers, averaging 100 acres of wheat each at 20 bushels to the acre, means an extra 10,000,000 bushels, for if that scheme is not liked Britain would put a duty on foreign wheat.

In addition to the wheat lands of Manitoba there are the millions of acres in Assiniboia, Alberta and Saskatchewan.

Healthy, Happy Girls

often, from no apparent cause, become languid and despondent in the early days of their womanhood. They drag along always tired, never hungry, breathless and with a palpitating heart after slight exercise so that merely to walk up stairs is exhausting. Sometimes a short, dry cough leads to the fear that they are "going into consumption."

They are anæmic, doctors tell them, which means that they have too little blood. Are you like that? Have you too little blood?

More anæmic people have been made strong, hungry, energetic men and women by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People than by any other means. They are the best tonic in the world.

Miss Lulu Stevens, of Gasport, Niagara Co., N. Y., had been a very healthy girl until about a year ago, when she grew weak and pale. She lost her appetite, was as tired in the morning as on retiring, and lost flesh until she became so emaciated that her friends hardly knew her. The doctors declared the disease anæmia, and gave her up to die. A physician who was visiting in Gasport prevailed upon her to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. She did so, and was benefited at once. She is now well and strong—the very picture of health.—Buffalo (N. Y.) Courier.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, Jan. 6, 1899

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO

DELANO DIARY

—Miss Mollie Maxfield gave a party to a few friends one night this week.

—The sociable at the parsonage, owing to the neglect to advertise it in the papers was not so numerously attended as otherwise probably would have been.

—The Eagle has secured the County printing on the only bid in. Several other papers are in the deal with the Old Bird.

—Several shows were in town since Jan. 1. As editors complementary tickets seem to have gone out of fashion it is a good fast for editors to return the compliment.

—Christ Gast who was operated on several weeks ago for hernia, on Monday had the artificial anus then established removed and a Murphy button inserted into the bowels. If he does well he will be about in a few weeks.

—John Lohmiller distributed about town last week some of the finest Calendars we have seen. A perpetual calendar figures backwards and forwards, the invention of Salmon A. Buell, of Minneapolis. The Minneapolis Brewing Company sent them out."

—The spring campaign is already waxing warm, and rumors are rife of candidates in abundance for village offices. The proper thing to do, in order to have good government is to select good men, men who are not seeking office continually, and place them in positions where they can have something to say how things go.

—C. R. Carlton is our authority for stating that Riley Sturman killed a three year old heifer and brought her to town Wednesday and sold the meat for 6 cts and 7 cts and realized over $62. for the animal. Mr. Carlton says he has always argued that it paid even in Minnesota, to raise good beef, and that this instance goes to prove the correctness of his belief. Mr. Sturman also has horses more valuable than most of people about here, on his fine stock farm.

—We understand that Waverly has organized a Senate, and intend, improving her citizens in parliamentary usages and in oratory. Good. Now if Delano would organize a House of Representatives and challenge Waverly's Senate to debate some of the live questions of the day, we could have lots of fun and learn heaps of things. Or, the House might wrestle with "Free Silver 16 to 1" or "Expansion" or some such question one evening, and the Senate try it another evening, and each visit the other, and enjoy seeing how their neighbors run things.

—At a called meeting of the M. E. church, at the church, on Monday evening, the Trustees were authorized to mortgaged the church property to pay the present indebtedness. Efforts are being made to raise money enough to pay up some of the present debts, so that a mortgage need only remain or the parsnage, leaving the church free. This is a nice church property and deserves being cleared of the mortgage, and fixed up in good shape. Let everybody take hold and help place this old landmark in our village on a good footing again.

County Cullings.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Nugent, of Buffalo, are on the published list of those attending John Lind's reception Tuesday evening, at St. Paul.

Although G[illegible] the price to be had [illegible] up to the pursuit of the Boxell murderers we have not yet heard of their being captured. This was a horrible affair, and it must be hard for people to sleep comfortably in a farm house in a county where such things are liable to occur. There has been altogether too many murders committed in Wright county and the murderers allowed to escape. If our officers can't make out to find the perpetrators of such horrible crimes what are our officers for? And what is the use of such men in office?

A LIBRARY IN TWO BOOKS.—It has been said that the Bible and WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY constitute a good library; and while this seems to be a strong statement it is in a great degree true, for these two books constitute a source of knowledge that no single intellect can exhaust in a lifetime, and a fountain head from which all can drink and daily grow wiser and better. At any rate these books from the best foundation for every library, and in reading, as in building, a good foundation is essential. They are also authoritive guides, each in its sphere, the one, that the heart and life may not offend against God, and the other, that the tongue and pen may not offend against man.

ACTIVE SOLICITORS WANTED EVERYWHERE for "The Story of the Philippines" by Murat Halstead, commissioned by the Government as Official Historian to the War Department. The book was written in army camps at San Francisco, on the Pacific with General Merrit, in the hospitals at Honolulu, in Hong Kong, in the American trenches at Manila, in the insurgent camps with Aguinaldo, on the deck of the Olympia with Dewey, and in the roar of battle at the fall of Manila. Bonanza for agents. Brimful of original pictures taken by government photographers on the spot. Large book. Low prices. Big profits. Freight paid. Credit given. Drop all trashy unofficial war books. Republican Resolutions.

The Eagle has at last concluded to notice "Those familiar resolutions of an old time Republican county convention," as she calls them, which we have been running in the GAZETTE. The Old Bird is mistaken though about their being in our columns for "the these many years." They are the freshest they have got. They are the very resolutions on which the Republ's elected nearly their full ticket; on which the Senator and Representatives were sent to St. Paul, and they bind the vote of our Senator to C. K. Davis but not to Knute Nelson. The Hon Mr. Nelson's friends may deem it proper to look after their own interests just a little bit, and if they do these resolutions may come in handy by way of argument for knocking the props from under the once great lecturer on Feudalism but now corporation admirer. It seems now-a-day to be a kind of free for all fight, every man for himself, and Old Knute is known to be up to snuff in that kind of a scramble for office.

C. A. French read a resolution which was adopted as follows:

RESOLVED: That we commend the course of Senator C. K. Davis the senior senator from this state, and earnestly urge that the nominees of this Senatorial Convention give him their undivided support, if elected to again return him to the United States senate at the close of his present term.

E. D. Washburn presented the following resolution, which was also passed:

WE, the republicans of Wright County in convention assembled, renew our allegiance to the principles of the republican party, and pledge our loyal support to all the nominees of the party in which as voters we exercise the rights of suffrage.

Notice of Hearing of Application to Sell Intoxicating Liquors

Notice is hereby given that Fritz Wegner has made application, according to law, to the Village Council of the Village of Delano, in the county of Wright, and State of Minnesota, for a license to sell Intoxicating Liquors for the period of one year from the 13th day of January 1899.

The place where the said business is to be carried on is designated as follows: On the first floor in the front room, of the two story brick building situated on Lot 28, Block 8 Original Townsite of Delano.

Said applicant prays that such License be granted to him pursuant to the ordinance of said village of Delono and the Statutes of said state of Minnesota in such case made and provide.

Patent office Washington, D. C.

The above application will be heard at a special meeting of the Village Council, in the council room at the City Hall, in Delano at 8 o'clock, Friday evening January 13, 1899.

When Cold Water is Good For The SKin.

THE time to use water, cold water, icy cold if you like, on the face, is in the morning, just after getting up. Dash any amount of it over the face and throat then. Massage the face in cold water if you have time and rub the skin dry with a Turkish towel.

Rain does not hurt the complexion unless it is a very bleak rain. Rain falling on the face, except very cold or blown with force, actually acts like a cosmetic.—From "Health and Beauty," by Esther Buckingham, in Demorist's Magazine for December.

WAYS AND MEANS.

To the Friends of Our Cause—Through the action of the National Democratic Committee, the undersigned have been appointed a committee on ways and means to begin work, now, for the campaign of 1900, and desire to issue the following address upon the work we have undertaken:

Money to meet expenses is as necessary in securing justice for the people in the trials of great political issues before the jury of the whole people, as it is necessary in the case of a litigant securing a fair and impartial hearing before a court and jury. In the latter instance a suitor without money is unable to employ counsel of ability, take needed depositions, and make other legitimate preparations requiring the expenditure of money; and when thus situated, if opposed by a wealthy adversary, he frequently fails in securing justice by being unable to fairly and fully present his case to the court and jury.

And while this is true of the individual in a court of justice, on a much larger scale it is true of a great body of people contending for the cause of truth and liberty. Money must be raised to pay the necessary expenses, or our cause will meet with an adverse verdict in 1900.

The forces opposing us have four active national committees, to whom money is supplied by those profiting by national legislation and the corrupt administration of affairs. One of these committees is the so-called National Democratic Gold Standard Committee, at the head of which is Mr. George F. Peabody, a New York banker. Another is the Indianapolis Committee, the outgrowth of the Indianapolis gold standard commercial convention, at the head of which is H. H. Hanna, who is insidiously working through commercial bodies, seeking to frighten them into compliance with the behests of the money power. The third is the bankers' organization at 52 Williams street, New York, that is supplying free of expense to all willing newspapers misleading arguments in favor of the gold standard; and the fourth is the National Republican Committee, of which Mark Hanna is chairman, and to whom the trusts, monopolies and other combinations are furnishing the money for corrupting the minds of the people and debauching the nation.

If we are to combat the evil influences at work the necessary money must be raised to defray the necessary expense thereof. We appeal to the people—the great common people—who have no interest in special legislation and whose rights and that of the common welfare are to be protected.

All money collected will be paid to the national treasurer of the committee, the Union Trust Company Bank, corner of Dearborn and Madison streets, Chicago. No money will be paid out except as appropriated by the committee in session deliberating upon its expenditure. We have appointed Mr. W. H. Harvey as the general manager of the work of the committee.

The plan adopted and approved by the committee is to secure a subscription from as many persons as possible to pay one dollar per month for each month from now till October, 1900. Thus a person subscribing to the fund of the Ways and Means Committee in October, 1898, will agree to pay one dollar per month for twenty-five months, or in all, $25. One subscribing in November following will agree to pay one dollar each month for twenty-four months, with the last payment due Oct. 1, 1900. A subscription in December, 1898, means twenty-three payments, the last Oct. 1, 1900, and so on. The number of payments depends on the month and year in which the subscription is made and all ending on the first day of October, 1900. Where one is willing and able to pay more than $1 per month, the subscription will be accepted for such increased amount as the subscriber is willing to make. Where one is not able in his judgment, to subscribe one dollar per month, he will be expected to get one or more to associate themselves with him jointly in the subscription for the one dollar per month. It is the opinion of the committee that it is only in this way that the money needed can be raised—that it must come from the people whose rights and interests are to be protected.

The offices of the committee have been opened at room 1044 Unity Building, Chicago, where a complete set of books will be kept showing the names of all subscribers with their postoffice address by counties and States, and the condition of each account will at all times appear upon these books. In no instance will solicitors be authorized to receive money. Anyone soliciting subscriptions will receive no money from the subscriber, but will forward the subscription papers to the national office. The national office will notify the subscriber of the receipt of his subscription and will forward blanks governing the details of remittances to the national treasurer.

It is from the sincere advocates of our cause everywhere that subscriptions to this fund for human liberty are expected, and, on the whole, a sum sufficient may be thus raised to properly present our cause to the American people;—which means success, for a just cause is doubly strong. To those who appreciate what hangs upon the impending struggle, the payment of the one dollar each month will assume an importance equal to that of love for home and children. The fund thus collected may decide for weal or woe our fate and that of countless millions to come after us.

The selfish system of greed that has mothered the gold standard, special privileges and monopoly, is destroying the opportunities for the enjoyment of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness! It is confiscating our homes and reducing the people to tenantry! It is quartering among us the agents of English money lenders who are coming into the possession of the title to our lands and the business industries of the nation! It is destroying human character and lowering the standard of morals and religion! It respects neither sex nor age! The babe in the mother's arms, the aged and enfeebled, the boy just budding into manhood are, all alike, through poverty existing or threatened, the victims of its rapacity! Honor and patriotism, a decent self-respect and love of country demands its overthrow! Our future and that of posterity is involved! Our cause appeals to the manhood and womanhood of America!

ANDREW CARANGE the great iron magnate is wonderfully averse to the idea of U. S. running the Philippine Islands as a colony.

GOV. LIND'S inaugural address is well spoken of in all the papers. It don't seem as if it is going to shake our public credit much.

SENATORS Edmunds, Hoar, Reed and other men who have been looked upon as leaders fail to see what right the U. S. or Spain, or anyother power has to establish a military government in a country struggling for freedom.

GOLD bugs must favor expansion so as to get rid of our supposed heap of gold in the Treasury, pay Spain $20,000; pay for shipping Spainards home, millions more, in order to establish trade in the Philippines send over a couple of gold dollars for each native to jingle do business on or put in his ears, as he sees fit. Nothing like expansion.

EVEN John Sherman who has always been looked upon as one of the staunchest republicans; ready to go most any length for party, has protested against American's taxing her subjects, and bonding herself, for money to spread out the country, and take in nations who are, and for years have been struggling for freedom, and independence.

SOME of our astute politicians are so much in favor of having people understand that our country is at peace, as to propose that, at the next election, a northern and southern general be nominated for President and Vice President. Why, if the country is at peace, is it necessary to have a military head to it? If the object is harmony, and the north and south are already one, why not put it McKinley and Aguinaldo? Some might not think it constitutional, but the old constitution is being strained considerably now a days. For our part the best men in the respective parties should be nominated. Living north or south should cut no figure. Then there appears to be a race war. If it were made McKinley and Brooker Washington, perhaps that would help matters, if that is what they are after.

THE political campaign, no matter how quietly, is still on for 1900. Wires, for years kept bright by useage, are now being worked by politicians of the past. Some of them can't keep up the strain, for two years and will break. Others, overworked, will become so plain to the sight of ordinary people, as to no longer make the political ghosts appear self acting, but will show the power behind the throne that pulls the wire when the ghost is to grin. Others, through fear of the manipulators of showing their real position may be allowed to lapse into innocuous disuetude, to rust out. At any rate the Wright county Democratic Gold Bug corporation machine has been so fearfully racked that it seems now, an utter impossibility, as it should be, to again get it into running order; other than to slink off to the shade of some corner and hide it from public scrutiny. There are a good many honest men in the ranks of the republican party that feel the same way.

REPUBLICANS haven't lost all their patriotism, even in the U. S. Senate, and House of representatives. There are men, some of them tracing their Yankee blood well back to Revolutionary days, or before. History and tradition has taught them how the people of those days, then belonging to a foreign nation, who had been subjected to taxation without representation gained their independence; our independence! These bright and shining lights daring to face frowning leaders favoring Imperialism for others at once, and more than likely, for ourselves in the near future, a genuine Napoleanic dynasty, are to be commended for their good judgment and patriotism. Who, in this country prefers to hear the steady tread of armed men at every cross roads and voting precinct, to what we have been taught are American priviliges. Yankee blood does not boil alone on this question; many who has not lost the accent they brought across the water with them, are as determened as anybody can be, that the land of the brave and the home of the free, shall remain and be what it was made for.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(Fromour Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 6, 1899.

Mr. McKinley is still playing foxey on the Philippine question, and he will probably keep it up until the Senate ratifies the treaty. The message he sent with the treaty of peace to the Senate was purely formal, and might have been put in four words, "here is the treaty," although the administration must be in possession of much information relating to the present critical relations between our troops and the Philippine insurgents which the Senate, and the people, would like to know. Not a word received from Gen. Otis by the administration since the insurgents in possession of Iloilo virtually defied Gen. Miller and his troops, who had been sent by Gen. Otis to take possession of the town, has been made public, except that reinforcements had been sent to Gen. Miller. Although the news from Manila is carefully censored it has made it plain that the situation is alarming and that a fight between the insurgents and our troops is among the daily probabilities. Should the natives start a revolution against our authority, it would undoubtedly result in increasing the sentiment against our keeping the Philippines; that may account for so much official retience.

The treaty of peace was taken up today by the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, and the expectation is that it will be reported to the Senate sometime next week. Opinion differs as to how soon a vote will be reached. In fact, there will be nothing tangible upon which to base an opinion until the opponents of the treaty indicate their intentions. It is claimed that 70 Senators have promised to vote for ratification. Even if that claim be correct, enough Senators would be left against the treaty to prevent, if they are disposed its being voted upon at this session, as the appropriation bills, not one of which has yet been passed by the Senate, the Nicaragua Canal bill and other measures will all be pressing for action, with the probability that an extra session will be necessary growing stronger every day.

Jerry Simpson was in his seat when Congress reassembled, for the first time this session. He is the same old Jerry; defeat hasn't soured him at all. He says he is still in politics and expects to be as long as he lives. He is strongly opposed to the large standing army provided for by the Hull bill, and will be heard from before the bill is jammed through the House.

Southern men who come to Washington these days nearly all have something to say about the propositions to admit Confederate veterans to government Soldiers' Homes and the pension roll, and the substance of the opinions of nine-tenths of them is contained in the following remarks, made by Mr. A. D. McClure, of Ga.: "If any one supposes that the southern people have the remotest idea that the veterans of the Confederate Army or their friends expect pensions of U. S. Government, or even reception into the Soldiers' Homes, a grievously mistaken notion is cherished. Our people are not dreaming of any such idea, for they are too sensible to entertain any proposition so utterly romantic, not to say absurd. The old Johnies are doing first-rate without any bounty from Washington. Our pension list is already big enough, and there is no need for further burdens. The whole idea is Quixotic and the very first to denounce it would be the proposed beneficiaries."

Whether the public gets a chance to see the report of the army board of survey, which is now secretly investigating the charge of Gen. Miles, that the beef furnished our soldiers in Cuba and Porto Rico was "embalmed" with chemicals, which rendered it unfit to eat and dangerous to health, will depend entirely upon what srcretary Alger says after the report has been submitted to him, and what he will say will depend upon the nature of the report. If it be against Miles, it will be published as widely as possible; if it confirm his charges, it will be pigeonholed for keeps. The beef trust is working hard to convince the board that they used no chemicals and that the beef furnished the soldiers was the same that the trust sells in every large city in the country all the time. Gen. Miles is conducting an independent investigation, although the office of the Inspector General of the Army, and the War Investigating Commission is also dallying with the beef question.

The Senate might have done four day's work this week, but it did not actually do four hours work. Evidently the Senators are not helping the administration avoid an extra session of the next Congress.

Talk of the administration putting a candidate in the field against Czar Reed for the speakership of the next House is again preyalent. It is said that Mr. Reed has been asked to define his position towards the Hull army bill and several other measures in which the administration is deeply interested and that if he does not agree to aid in putting those measures through the House, an administration candidate for Speaker of the next House will at once be brought out. Such talk has heretofore amounted to nothing, and this will probably do the same Reed isn't likely to help the administration; nor will he fight it. He will allow it to pass any bill that can command a majority.

ADVERTISE IN THE GAZETTE.

THE SONG OF THE "No. 9."

My dress is of fine polished oak,
As rich as the finest fur cloak,
And for handsome design
You just should see mine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I'm beloved by the poor and the rich,
For both I impartially stitch;
In the cabin I shine,
In the mansion I'm fine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I never get surly nor tired,
With zeal I always am fired;
To hard work I incline,
For rest I ne'er pine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I am easily purchased by all,
With instalments that monthly do fall;
And when I am thine,
Then life is benign—
No. 9, No. 9.

To the Paris Exposition I went,
Upon getting the Grand Prize intent:
I left all behind,
The Grand Prize was mine—
No. 9, No. 9.

At the Universal Exposition of 1889, at Paris, France, the best sewing machines of the world, including those of America, were in competition. They were passed upon by a jury composed of the best foreign mechanical experts, two of whom were the leading sewing machine manufacturers of France. This jury, after exhaustive examination and tests, adjudged that the Wheeler & Wilson machines were the best of all, and awarded that company the highest prize offered—the GRAND PRIZE—giving other companies only gold, silver and bronze medals.

The French government, as a further recognition of superiority, decorated Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, president of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor—the most prized honor of France.

The No. 9, for family use, and the No. 12, for manufacturing uses, are the best in the world to-day.

And now, when you want a sewing machine, if you do not get the best it will be your own fault. Ask your sewing machine dealer for the No 9 Wheeler & Wilson machine. If he doesn't keep them, write to us for descriptive catalogue and terms. Agents wanted in all unoccupied territory. WHEELER & WILSON MFG. CO. Chicago, Ill.

BOOKKEEPING B. C.

Discovery of Clay Records of Business Transactions, Temp. Darius II.

An American archaeological expedition excavating at Nippur discovered recently in a room 20 feet below the surface some 730 clay tablets, the business records of a rich firm of merchants, Ulurashu Sons. These documents are dated in the reigns of Artaxerxes I. (464-424 B. C.) and Darius II. (423-405 B. C.). The tablets are of various sizes, some resembling the ordinary cake of soap of commerce. They are covered with cuneiform characters clear and distinct as when the bookkeeper of Ulurashu inscribed them 2,500 years ago, says the New York Commercial Advertiser.

Among them is this guaranty for 20 years that an emerald is so well set that it will not fall out:

"Bel-ahiddina and Bel-shumu, sons of Bel, and Hatin, son of Bazuza, spoke unto Bel-nadinshumu, son of Morashu, as follows: "As concerns the gold ring set with an emerald, we guarantee that for 20 years the emerald will not fall out of the ring. If it should fall out before the expiration of 20 years Bel-ahiddina (and the two others) shall pay to Bel-nadinshumu an indemnity of ten mana of silver."

Then follow the names of ten witnesses and of an official who is described as "the scribe of the Concordance of Proper Names." The document concludes with the thumb-nail marks of the contracting parties.

There are also leases of various kinds and contracts for the sale of sun-dried bricks and other merchandise, and for the loan of seed corn and oxen for plowing.

BENEVOLENCE IN ANIMALS.

Instances Which Illustrate This Quality as Existing in Domesticated Quadrupeds.

We have seen a small pig, stuck in a paling through which it had tried to squeeze, assisted by an elder one inside. Attracted by its cries, it took the small pig's head in its mouth and tried to pull it through, in doing which it almost pulled the sufferer's head off. In another case a cat deliberately fetched its owner to assist another cat which was lying helpless in a fit. Moreover, domesticated animals are to some extent "progressive," and have realized the notion of common good among other creatures than their own stock, says the London Spectator.

There is a good deal of service and benevolence among very different domesticated animals, especially in the form of protection, sharing of food and forbearance. Specialized instances in which dogs or cats have taken food to others could doubtless be authenticated, though the writer has not witnessed a case. But there is the strangest of all evidence that they have a tendency to perform these and other services to other animals, because the domesticated creatures voluntarily offer these services of benevolence to man. How can anyone doubt that animals (in domestication) are willing to feed each other, when there are cats all over England and Scotland which delight in bringing food as presents to their owners? We need not go back to the historic cat which caught a pigeon every day and brought it to its master when a prisoner in the tower.

REIGNS WITHOUT WOMAN.

A Barren Land Where the Masculine Will Rules Supreme Over Everything.

There is at least one tiny section of the globe where women are conspicuously absent from society and where man reigns supreme, undisturbed by the vagaries and caprices of even a single woman's will.

There is only one territory of any size—and never has been but one—occupied by any considerable population from which woman is absolutely excluded. Yet such a place exists to-day and has existed for centuries. As far back as history reaches to all females it has been forbidden ground. This country without women is situated on a bold plateau between the old peninsula of Acte, in the Grecian archipelago, and the mainland. Here in the midst of cultivated fields and extensive woodlands dwells a monastic confederation of Greek Christians, with 23 converts and numbering more than 7,000 souls. Not one of the monastaries dates from a later time than the twelfth century. A few soldiers guard the borders of this land, and no woman is allowed to cross the frontier. Nor is this all; the rule is extended to every female creature, and from time immemorial no cow, mare, hen, duck or goose has been permitted to enter this territory.

A Bridge of Coffins.

When the British forces were marching to Pekin in 1860, after the capture of the Taku forts, one of the rivers became so swollen with the heavy rains that it was rendered almost impassable. While in this quandary a bright idea suddenly struck one of our officers. Being well aware that the Chinese generally ordered their coffins years in advance, and kept them on the premises, and also that they are perfectly airtight, he consulted with his brother officers, with the result that orders were given to search all the houses of the village and collect every coffin. With the aid of a few empty casks, the soldiers constructed a pontoon bridge of coffins sufficiently strong to bear the artillery and the river was thus passed in safety.

Relics of Medievalism Sold.

The old Martello towers of Great Britain, from which warning was given of threatened invasion by blows of a hammer, have now come under the auctioneer's hammer, and will soon disappear.

NORTHERN FUR COMPANIES.

They Were Founded Chiefly by Englishmen, But the Scotch Are in the Majority Now.

Latterly all the employes of the Hudson Bay company were caught young; only lads born in the solitudes of the highlands could habituate themselves to the life of loneliness; only constitutions of iron, hardened under hereditary conditions, could endure so tremendous a strain. It was essential that the brain power of the factors should be unimpaired, and that their energies should rise superior to the depressing surroundings—in fact, that the man must be all there when a sudden call was made on his mental resources, says Blackwood's Magazine.

It may be assumed that the first adventurers consisted chiefly of Englishmen, although the Scottish invasion of England had set in with the accession of King James. But it is certain that afterward, both with the Hudson Bay company and its great Canadian rival the names of factors, traders and prominent partisans, with scarcely an exception, were Scottish. The story of trade and discovery in the northwest reads like a muster roll of the clans, and mainly of the northern clans of the second order. There are MacTavishes, MacGillivrays, McKays, McLellans, McDougalls, with Frasers and Stuarts and the French Frobishers. A McKenzie, a Fraser and a Thompson gave their names to as many mighty rivers. That came in the natural course of things. The company found its best recruiting grounds in the highlands, and enlisted the martial spirit of the mountaineers for a country where local feuds were forgotten.

HIS MIND WAS RELIEVED.

"Oh, My! Oh, My! I Wasn't Scared—I Was Just Hit," Said the Glad Soldier.

A surgeon relates that before Santiago, he (the surgeon), going to the front, came upon a young officer, sitting beside the road, trembling like a leaf, and whiter than the dead men around him. At sight of the surgeon he began to talk, says the San Francisco Argonaut.

"I'm a coward, I'm a coward, I'm a coward," he said; "I knew I'd run, and I did. I'm disgraced forever. I was going along all right, not thinking of anything but getting at the dashed Spaniards, yelling to my men to come on, and running ahead as fast as I could, when all of a sudden I stubbed my toe, or something, and then I can't remember being scared, but I must have been, for I came galloping back here, sick as a dog. I'm a coward, and I wish I were dead! Why don't somebody shoot me? I've got such an awful goneness right here," and he put his hand to his stomach.

The surgeon gave him a quick look and caught him as he plunged forward in a faint. Where the awful goneness was a Mauser bullet had found its billet. They carried the wounded man to the field hospital, and he chuckled all the way: "Oh, my! oh, my!" he said, over and over; "I wasn't scared! I wasn't scared!" And then he would laugh delightedly: "I wasn't scared. I was hit—I was just hit. I ain't a coward after all."

PAYING OFF OLD SCORES.

There is a young coed at the University of Chicago who has been doing a lot of thinking lately. Ever since her debut in the Midway school she has been one of the most popular girls at the institution, but unfortunately for herself and several ardent admirers, she contracted a coquettish manner, which caused untold jealousy on the campus. Several of the boys got together one cold afternoon a few days ago and before long the conversation turned to the charming young woman in question. Then and there a scheme of revenge was decided upon by the six. It was in effect that all go and call on the lady the same evening, entering 15 minutes apart, and to regard one another as perfect strangers as well as interlopers. One of the six described the event as follows:

"It was a villainous thing to do, but the girl is somewhat of a joker herself, and we all had an old score to pay off. We carried out the idea to perfection. I was the first to call and the girl said she was glad to see me. Before she had time to say anything else another young man was ushered in. She was glad to see him, too. But when the third young man arrived she was somewhat confused and stammered a little over her welcome.

Queer Names for Women.

The wives of some of the Indian braves have names as odd and often as droll as their husbands. They seem to have cognomens of their own, too, and not to take those of their spouses only. Some of the actual names given in a census of the families of the scouts at one place include Mrs. Short Nose, who was before her marriage Miss Piping Woman; Mrs. Big Head, formerly Miss Short Face; Mrs. Nibbs, formerly Miss Young Bear; Mrs. White Crow, formerly Miss Crook Pipe; Mrs. Howling Water, formerly Miss Crow Woman; also Mrs. Sweet Water, Miss Walk High, daughter of Mr. White Calf, and Miss Osage, daughter of Mr. Hard Case.

Utility of "Tabby."

The Duches of Northumberland owns a shawl which formerly belonged to Charles X. of France, and was manufactured from the fur of Persian cats. Many thousands of cats' skins were utilized, and the weaving occupied some years. The shawl measured eight yards square, but is so fine that it can be compressed into the space of a large coffee cup.

Cordelia Viau has been sentenced at Montreal, Quebec, to be hanged on March 10 for the murder of her husband. The defense was that hypnotism controlled the hand that committed the murder. The war with Spain has led to many record-breaking acts by the United States, but none more unique and significant than the ordering of 4,000 coffins for the purpose of bringing home the remains of American soldiers buried in Cuba and Porto Rico. The United States senate, which is sometimes called the millionaires' club, might with equal appropriateness be designated as an old gentleman's club, for there are a considerable number of members who are well on in years and there are no really young senators, with the exception of Senator Penrose, of Pennsylvania, who is but 38 years old. Most of the senators are on the shady side of 60 and a number of them are past 70 while the late Senator Morrill, of Vermont, was in his eighty-ninth year.

We are doing remarkably well in the Pacific. San Francisco is only about 7,000 miles from Manila, but between San Francisco and the Philippine city we have Honolulu, 2,000 miles from San Francisco, and Guam, about 3,000 miles from Honolulu. With a navy yard on our Pacific coast, with a naval station at Honolulu, another at Guam and another at Manila, and with a coaling station in Pango-Pango, Samoa, about half-way between Honolulu and Australia, we shall be in pretty good condition to look after the commercial affairs of the Pacific in the future.

Lieut. Hobson, in an address on "How the Merrimac was Sunk," which he repeated in a number of the larger cities of the country, told of the heroic death of one of the seamen aboard the Viscaya. Hobson found the charred remains of the poor fellow, standing with his hands on the wheel that controlled the Viscaya's steam. His devotion to country and flag, Hobson declares, is unprecedented in history. He died at his post while driving the big cruiser ashore so that his comrades might escape, but Hobson is mistaken in regard to his devotion being unprecedented.

Consul Swalm, at Montevideo, reports that the United States has entered upon another and important line in its commercial expansion. He says that American coal has come into the river Plata in active competition with the Welsh coal. The English coal yards have had a monopoly of the coal trade there until last July, when an American company established itself on the river Plata and secured contracts to the amount of $206,000. Three large cargoes of American coal arrived and were eagerly taken, and the consul adds: "American coal has come to stay in these markets."

PRESIDENT TO FILIPINOS.

Washington, Jan. 6.—The following is the text of the instructions sent to Gen. Otis, in command of the United States forces in the Philippines, as expressive of the purposes of the United States with respect to them:

Adjutant General's Office, Washington, D. C., Dec. 27, 1898.—Gen. Otis, Manila: By direction of the secretary of war, I have the honor to transmit herewith instructions of the president relative to the administration of affairs in the Philippine islands:

"Executive Mansion, Washington, D. C., Dec. 21, 1898.—To the Secretary of War—Sir: The destruction of the Spanish fleet in the harbor of Manila by the United States naval squadron, commanded by Rear Admiral Dewey, followed by the reduction of the city and the surrender of the Spanish forces, practically effected the conquest of the Philippine islands and the suspension of Spanish sovereignty therein.

"With the signature of the treaty of peace between the United States and Spain by their respective plenipotentiaries at Paris, on the 10th inst., and as the result of the victories of American arms, the future control, disposition and government of the Philippine islands are ceded to the United States. In fulfillment of the rights of sovereignty thus acquired and the responsible obligations of government thus assumed the actual occupation and administration of the entire group of the Philippine islands becomes immediately necessary, and the military government heretofore maintained by the United States in the city, harbor and bay of Manila is to be extended with all possible dispatch to the whole of the ceded territory.

"In performing this duty, the military commander of the United States is enjoined to make known to the inhabitants of the Philippine islands that, in succeeding to the sovereignty of Spain, in severing the former political relations of the inhabitants and in establishing a new political power, the authority of the United States is to be exerted for the sovereignty of the persons and property of the people of the islands and for the confirmation of all their private rights and relations. It will be the duty of the commander of the forces of occupation to announce and proclaim in the most public manner that we come, not as invaders or conquerors, but as friends, to protect the natives in their homes, in their employments and in their personal and religious rights. All persons who, either by active aid or by honest submission, cooperate with the government of the United States to give effect to these beneficent purposes, will receive the reward of its support and protection. All others will be brought within the lawful rule we have assumed, with firmness if need be, but without severity so far as may be possible.

"Within the absolute domain of military authority, which necessarily is and must remain supreme in the ceded territory until the legislation of the United States shall otherwise provide, the municipal laws of the territory, in respect to private rights and property and the repression of crime, are to be considered as continuing in force, and to be administered by the ordinary tribunals as far as possible. The operations of civil and municipal government are to be performed by such officers as may accept the supremacy of the United States by taking the oath of allegiance, or by officers chosen as far as may be practicable from the inhabitants of the islands.

"While the control of all the public property and the revenues of the state passes with the cession, and while the use and management of all public means of transportation are necessarily reserved to the authority of the United States, private property, whether belonging to individuals or corporations, is to be respected except for cause fully established. The taxes and duties heretofore payable by the inhabitants to the late government become payable to the authorities of the United States, unless it be seen fit to substitute for them other reasonable rates or modes of contribution to the expenses of government, whether general or local. If private property be taken for military use, it should be paid for when possible in cash at a fair valuation, and when payment in cash is not practicable, receipts are to be given.

"All ports and places in the Philippine islands in the actual possession of the land and naval forces of the United States will be opened to the commerce of all friendly nations. All goods and wares, not prohibited for military reasons by due announcement of the military authority, will be admitted upon payment of such duties and other charges as shall be in force at the time of their importation.

"Finally, it should be the earnest and paramount aim of the military administration to win the confidence, respect and affection of the inhabitants of the Philippines by assuring to them in every possible way that full measure of individual rights and liberty which is the heritage of free people and by proving to them that the mission of the United States is one of benevolent assimilation, substituting the mild sway of justice and right for arbitrary rule. In the fulfillment of this high mission, supporting the temperate administration of affairs for the greatest good of the governed, there must be sedulously maintained the strong arm of authority, to repress disturbance and to overcome all obstacles to the bestowal of the blessings of good and stable government upon the people of the Philippine islands under the free flag of the United States.

"WILLIAM M'KINLEY."

Acknowledge receipt.

His Head Burned Off.

New York, Jan. 9.—As John Ferris, watchman at a lime kiln in Williamsburg, was making his early rounds Sunday he noticed a man who appeared to be sleeping at the edge of the kiln. Stepping closer to get a better view of the stranger Ferris was horrified to see that the man had no head, it having been burned off completely. He had wandered to the kiln to get warm, and the gases arising from the furnace overcame him. He probably was dead before the fire reached his head. The man was unidentified.

Story Denied.

Hong-Kong, Jan. 9.—According to the statements of people who have just arrived here from the island of Balabac, south of the island of Palawan, there is no truth in the report that the Spaniards there have been massacred by the Filipinos. They say the story is an invention of priests to prejudice the Filipino cause, declaring also that there are not more than half a dozen Spaniards in the island, and that all who have been killed fell in warfare.

Will Preach in Plymouth Church.

New York, Jan. 7.—The advisory committee of Plymouth church, Brooklyn, Friday night, after hearing the report of the subcommittee chosen to select a pastor to succeed Dr. Lyman Abbott, unanimously recommended that Rev. Newell Dwight Hillis, D. D., of Chicago, be called to the pastorate. Dr. Hillis has been preaching for the past four years at Central music hall, Chicago.

To Resist American Occupation.

Paris, Jan. 6.—An official telegram received by the Filipino junta here dated Manila, January 4, says that Aguinaldo has gone to Iloilo, at the request of the insurgents there, to place himself at their head, with the view of their possible fighting with the Americans.

Ordered to Manila.

St. Louis, Jan. 10.—The Twelfth United States infantry, now stationed at Jefferson Barracks, near this city, is under orders to sail for Manila on the 15th inst. The regiment has been under marching orders for the past three days. It will probably go by the way of New York.

BLOW TO CIVIL SERVICE.

Anti-Reformers Score a Victory in Committee of the Whole—Vote No Appropriation.

Washington, Jan. 7.—The anti-civil service reformers scored a victory in the house Friday. The legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill was taken up for consideration, and when the appropriation for the civil service commission was reached Mr Evans (rep., Ky.) made a motion to strike it out. This motion has been made annually for a dozen years or more, but has invariably failed. But Friday the opponents of the law laid great stress on the fact that they could not get a direct vote upon the proposition and were therefore compelled to seek its nullification in this manner Even these appeals failed to bring out the full strength of the opposition, though the motion to strike out carried by a narrow majority—67 to 61. This was in committee of the whole, where no record is made of the vote. Mr. Moody (rep., Mass.) gave notice that he would demand a record vote in the house, where the friends of the civil service law expect to reverse the decision. Those who advocated the motion to strike out were: Messrs. Evans (rep., Ky.), Grosvenor (rep., O.), Hepburn (rep., Ia.), Linney (rep., N. C.) Brown (rep., O.) and Marsh (rep., Ill.). Its opponents were Messrs. Moody (rep., Mass.), Hopkins (rep., Ill.), Fleming (dem., Ga.), Brosius (rep., Pa.), Henderson (rep., Ia.) and Dolliver (rep., Ia.).

OFF FOR ROME.

Archbishop Ireland Leaves St. Paul for His Annual Visit to the Holy City.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 10.—Archbishop Ireland quietly left home Sunday night for a trip to Rome, having kept the time of his departure from all inquirers. He goes on his regular visit to the holy see. It is customary for all the archbishops to make such visits every seven years, and the last visit of Archbishop Ireland to Rome was made in 1892, so that it is now time for him to make his regular visit. All matters in which the particular visiting prelate may be interested are gone over thoroughly, and in that way this visit will probably call for the consideration of many of the important questions that are to come up in the United States during the next few years. Archbishop Ireland does not expect to return before June.

DENIES THE CHARGES.

Gov. Atkinson, of West Virginia, Says He Is in No Combination on the Senatorship.

Charleston, W. Va., Jan. 10. — Gov. Atkinson has issued the following signed statement in reference to the story that has been generally circulated charging him with being in a deal with N. B. Scott. The matter has created quite a sensation among the factions of the republican party in the senatorial contest.

"Executive Mansion, Charleston, W. Va. —There is absolutely no truth in the charge that Commissioner of Internal Revenue N. B. Scott and myself, or any other candidate for United States senator, has formed a combination whereby the weaker man in the end will throw his political strength to the stronger.

(Signed) "GOV. G. W. ATKINSON."

A BRUTAL DEED.

A Cincinnatian Pours Oil on a Woman's Clothing and Then Sets It on Fire—His Victim Dies.

Cincinnati, Jan. 9.—Ida Price was fatally burned in her room by having coal oil thrown over her clothing and then fired. Her screams brought help, but the door was locked. The door was broken in, the flames put out and the woman taken to the hospital, where her injuries were pronounced fatal. She was able to say that William Kennedy was the man who tried to burn her to death. He had locked the door to insure her death. He is under arrest. She died Saturday night.

Metropolis, Ill., Jan. 10.—December 26 Dr. H. Y. Mangum, a prominent citizen of this county, died of pneumonia. Twenty-four hours later his daughter Lucy died, three days later his wife also died, and the youngest son, Sam, was buried the following day. Monday evening word reached here that the only remaining member of the family, the grandmother, Mrs. Worley, is also dead. All have died from the same disease, pneumonia. A married son, who lives in Johnson county, is the only one left.

Issue Is Confiscated.

Berlin, Jan. 10.—The Paris Figaro was confiscated by the police throughout Germany Sunday on account of a caricature which it contained, copied from Puck, representing Emperor William of Germany in the guise of a "despised animal." Puck, in its issue of December 7, published a double-page cartoon by Pugh representing all the crowned heads and entitled "The Threatened Revolt in the Jungle." Emperor William was represented as a boar.

Won't Liberate Spanish Prisoners.

Madrid, Jan. 6.—The following official dispatch has been received from Manila: The insurgents refuse to liberate the prisoners on the demand of the Americans, claiming that this might be construed as an act of submission to the United States. With regard to liberating the monks, the insurgents intend to negotiate with the vatican directly. Gen. Rios has now opened direct negotiations with the insurgents concerning the prisoners.

Not Long Separated.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 10.—A special to the Tribune from Red Wing says: Mr. and Mrs. Peder Bengtson, of Wanamingo, the oldest couple in the state, both died in that town on Monday. They were about 95 years of age and both died within an hour of each other.

Ambassador to Russia.

Washington, Jan. 7.—The president has practically selected William Potter, of Philadelphia, for ambassador to Russia. Mr. Potter was formerly minister to Italy, having been stationed at Rome during the Harrison administration.

Oregon Legislature Meets.

Salem, Ore., Jan. 10.—The Oregon legislature assembled in regular session Monday. The organization of both houses at the late special session was continued.

FATAL RAILWAY WRECKS.

Eighteen Dead and Forty-Eight Injured the Result of a Collision in New Jersey—Other Disasters.

Plainfield, N. J., Jan. 10.—Eighteen dead and 48 injured are the result of a wreck that took place on the Lehigh Valley railroad Monday afternoon at 12:45 o'clock, a mile east of the town of Lincoln. Two passenger trains, each crowded with its human freight, going in opposite directions, rounded the curve at that point on the same track and crashed into each other at full speed. There was a mistake somewhere, but no one has yet been able to fix the responsibility. The wreck was the most serious recorded in this section for years. The scene of the collision was near West Dunellen station, on the Lehigh Valley railroad, and about 30 miles from New York city.

Knoxville, Tenn., Jan. 9.—Four dead, two injured, one of these perhaps fatally, and the loss of property of the Southern railway to the amount of about $25,000 is the result of a wreck which occurred Sunday morning on the Knoxville & Ohio branch of the Knoxville division of the Southern railway, 1½ miles west of Elk Valley. The dead are: Engineer J. D. Maxey, Fireman Frank Reddy (colored), Brakeman Ironza Hoover (colored), Flagman W. A. Dillon. The injured are: Engineer Goff, badly but not fatally cut on the head and bruised, and Fireman George Huskisson, badly burned and may die. Maxey, Reddy, Hoover and Dillon were burned to death or killed underneath the ruins of three engines and a number of cars and coaches of the two wrecked trains.

Omaha, Neb., Jan. 10.—A special to the Bee from Sidney, Neb., says: There was a wreck on the Union Pacific at Sunal, 15 miles east of here, at 4:35 Monday morning, which resulted in four deaths and eight people being injured. The dead are: Engineer Dell Bonner, fatally hurt, died during the afternoon; Fireman John C. Coleman, Creston, Ia., instantly killed; young woman, supposed to be Miss Myrtle Armstrong, of Paxton, Neb.; unknown old man.

Milwaukee, Jan. 5.—A special to the Herold from Rondout, Ill., says: The Libertyville "Scoot," a suburban train of Chicago, south-bound, ran into the engine of a freight north-bound Thursday, injuring four persons.

SHIPS AND MEN TO GO.

Four Regiments, Two Gunboats and a Supply Ship Ordered to Manila.

Washington, Jan. 9.—Secretary Long has ordered the Solace to proceed to Manila as soon as she can be made ready for the voyage. Besides the Solace, Secretary Long has ordered the gunboats Princeton and Yorktown to the same point. The Princeton is now at New York and will go via the Suez The Yorktown is at San Francisco and will cross the Pacific. Admiral Dewey has asked for supplies of various kinds and the Solace will carry a heavy load of these, sufficient to supply the fleet on the Asiatic station for six months at least. The vessel will be attached to Dewey's fleet and in all probability, if this voyage turns out successfully, she will form one of the regular line of transports which will ply between the United States and the Philippines for the special benefit of the navy. The vessel is now at the New York navy yard and is expected to sail for Manila, via the Mediterranean and Suez, in about two weeks. The navy department is now making up the details of her officers. Secretary Alger has decided to send four regiments of infantry to the Philippines. The Fourth, Twelfth and Seventeenth have been designated and, in addition, the Third infantry, now at Fort Snelling, Minn., will go by the same route, across the Atlantic.

Cubans Still Dissatisfied.

Santiago de Cuba, Jan. 6.—The explanation of the war department at Washington of its intentions regarding the transfer of customs receipts from the different ports in Cuba to Havana is met here by statements from the Cubans that the plan is similar to the one adopted by the Spaniards, when requisitions on Havana obtained less than six per cent. of what the requisition called for. The merchants, business men and influential people here say Havana has grown rich and prosperous at the expense of the rest of the island, and the Cubans and governmental officials at Santiago say the Cubans of Havana are responsible for Maj. Gen. Brooke's order on this subject. The people here add that the Havana Cubans are still anxious to maintain the same system of the centralization of funds that was in force before the American occupation.

Three Suffocated in Hotel Fire.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 9.—A fire which broke out in the Hotel Richelieu Sunday morning resulted in a property loss of about $15,000, and three lives were sacrificed and five people were badly hurt. The dead are: Amos S. Landis, Grapeville, Pa.; George A. Waters, Camden, N. J.; Mrs. Katherine Boyle, Pittsburgh, Pa. The three victims were guests of the hotel, and all were suffocated by the dense smoke.

Gift to a College.

La Crosse, Wis., Jan. 10.—Henry A. Salzer, manager of the John A. Salzer Seed company, of this city, sent the Charles City (Ia.) college a New Year's gift of $3,000 in gold. Although a very busy man, Mr. Salzer devotes time and money to the encouragement of educational and benevolent enterprises.

Is Epidemic.

Pana, Ill., Jan. 10.—Russian la grippe has become a serious epidemic in central Illinois cities. Over 300 cases are reported in Taylorville, a similar number in Shelbyville, while fully 20 per cent. of the population of Pana are likewise afflicted. In many instances the epidemic is proving fatal.

Safe Blown to Pieces.

Ashburnham, Mass., Jan. 10.—The safe of the First national bank of Ashburnham was blown to pieces by dynamite about two o'clock Monday morning. The interior of the bank was badly wrecked and all windows were blown in. A sum of money estimated at $1,500 to $2,000 is missing.

Death of William Peak.

New York, Jan. 10.—The death is announced in Brooklyn of William Peak, the famous bell ringer, aged 94 years. Previous to the civil war the Peak family, seven in number, toured the United States, giving performances in bell ringing, a form of entertainment much in vogue at that time.

HE WAS THE REAL THING.

How a Territorial Committee with Long Guns Tamed a Contrary Senator.

"I represented the territory in congress then," laughed the man who has returned to the east that he may spend his declining years among the friends of his youth.

"In one of the frontier towns where I happened to visit they were trying to raise funds for a charitable purpose, and I was invited to attend an entertainment given with a view to helping the cause. I was scarcely inside when a committee of three with long hair, long faces and long guns, invited me to a little tent at one side of the hall.

"'Now, giner'l,' said one of them who had no definite idea as to the propriety of titles, 'you'll jest set where you are. This here thing has got ter win, fur what few wimin folks we has is into it, and we can't disapp'int 'em. I'll tell you as a frien' to stay right here and look pleasant. Don't pay no pa'ticulair 'tention to the galoot outside.'

"Then I heard: 'Step right inside, ladies and gents, an' see the only live sinator ever brought to these here diggins. He's imported at big expense from the wiles of Sagebrush county an' has been tamed by a committee of our bravest citizens app'inted fur that special purpose. He's the real thing, an' all others is base imertations which none of us would take fur the givin'. He speaks our lang'age perfeck an' is as harmless as a pet lam'.'

"I drew like a porous plaster, and I never in my life exerted myself harder to be agreeable. Some of you might think you would have done differently, but you never saw that special committee."—Detroit Free Press.

A CHILD.

Old signs are written in thy tender face,
Desires, regrets that thou hast never known;
Thou art the heir of thy aspiring race,
Heir of a troubled throne;

Of hope that hardly dost portend the morn,
And sadness, that hast scarcely guessed at pain.
God takes the characters of fate outworn,
And writes them fair again.

Those little feet that scarce the light turf press,
Those little hands, so brown with wind and sun,
God grant they tremble not for weariness
Before thy course be done.

And thou shalt love, and learn what love is worth,
And thou shalt trust and learn to value men,
And all the sudden mysteries of earth
Shall open to thy ken.

What, wilt be flying? Am I, then, too staid?
Can I not smoothe the meditative brow,
Flash through the sun and flutter through the shade,
As birds from bough to bough?

What, dost thou linger? Ah, my dear, how much
Thou givest, couldst thou only understand!
The kiss of childish pity, and the touch
Of thine absolving hand.

JIMMIE'S AMBITION.

By LESTER L. LOCKWOOD.

"HELLO, Jim! What's up now?"

"Chicken coop—that is, it will be when I manage to get a few more nails in."

Sam Simmins vaulted the low fence, and, standing with his hands in his pockets, watched Jim a few moments. Then he gave an amused whistle. "I say, Jim, there's nothing like having conveniences to work with. Now, if I were to build a chicken coop I should be silly enough to use new wire eight-pennies and a steel-tipped hammer; but I daresay I'm quite behind the times, and that assorted sizes of bent and rusty nails and a slippery stone to drive them in with are the latest improved implements—a sort of renaissance in carpentry, eh?"

"Not exactly," replied Jim, laughing, "but it gives you a chance to air that French pronunciation that you had to stay after school for last night. So there's some good comes from my improvised resources; after all, that was the phrase I stuck on yesterday."

"Don't Miss Lamb put us through the definitions and pronunciations for all they are worth, though? Father says if this thing keeps up he'll have to buy a new dictionary before the year is out—such wear on it, you know. But, to 'resume the original theme,' what are you going to put in your coop when it is done?"

"That is also Miss Lamb's doing. You see, she knows all about my poultry craze—knows I'm saving up to go into the chicken business, I mean—and yesterday she showed me a chance to begin. The folks where she boards are regular chicken cranks, you know—fine stock, incubators, and all that. Well, yesterday she heard Mrs. Jansen say that she had a hen so determined to set that she couldn't break her up, and that she'd sell her very cheap to get rid of her. So Miss Lamb told her about me, and she offered to sell me the hen and a setting of 15 eggs—all good stock, too, mind you—for one dollar. Don't you call that a layout, now?"

"'Tis, for a fact. And you happened to have the dollar?"

"Yes, I've saved up $1.15, and if I can get the coop done I'm going after school to-night for the hen."

"And I suppose you will buy a bicycle with the proceeds? But that doesn't explain why you are using rusty nails and a stone hammer."

"Why, you see, our hammer is lost, as usual. Some of the children are always getting away with it, and I can't afford to spend my extra 15 cents on nails. That has to go for chicken feed, and I don't know when I'll have a chance to earn any more. So I'm drawing these nails out of the boxes on the kindling pile. They are really mine, you know. I worked for them at Mr. Lake's grocery last vacation."

"Going into business on a strictly cash basis, eh?"

"Yes, sir-ee! That's my ticket, every time."

"Been reading the life of Rockefeller and all those penniless-boy millionaires, I suppose?"

Jim flushed.

"Well, that's the right way to begin, anyhow," he said, sturdily, wrenching at a stubborn nail with the cold chisel: "but I do wish they wouldn't always lose the hammer."

"Why don't you wait till it turns up?"

"Too much risk. You must 'make hay while the sun shines,' you know—in other words, set hens while they're in the notion."

"Going into the poultry business with one hen is too slow for me. I'm going to Klondike as soon as school is out, and when I strike it rich in mines you'll be puttering away with an old clucking hen and a half dozen scrawny chickens."

"All right," responded Jim, cheerily. "It may be slow, but 'a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush.'"

"Which, being translated, means 'a hen in the coop is worth two mines in the ground,' I suppose?"

"That's about the size of it. But I say, Sam, before you start for Klondike won't you please hand me that stone lying at your feet—the smooth one that looks like a petrified potato? This loose granite chips off so."

"It does look like a potato—the white elephant variety," said Sam, tossing the stone to Jim.

"Thank you. This will make a fine hammer—so hard and smooth."

"Ha! ha! ha! I should say so!" for at the first stroke on the rusty nail head the stone broke in two, one-half falling to the ground and the nail head grazing Jim's hand. As he turned his hand over to examine the scratch the broken surface of the stone caught his eye. He gave a loud whistle.

With that keen interest in "specimens" which is the natural birthright of every Rocky mountain boy Sam stepped eagerly forward.

"Geode?"

"Not much! Nothing so common as that. I never saw anything like it."

"What do you reckon it is?"

Jim shook his head, turning the stone from side to side and letting the sunlight play over its surface and reveal its delicate beauty, for in the heart of the common brown stone lay a circular-ribbed hollow lined with mother-of-pearl and in one side of this polished nest was a cluster of crystals.

"It must be the impression of a fossil shell," said Sam, eying it intently.

"Why, yes—of course."

"Yes, here it is. Did you ever see anything so perfect? Some spiral thing that seems to go way down into the stone. Just look at the coloring, will you? Rainbow tints, every one! And—see?—here is the hole where that little bunch of crystals was broken out, and the inside of the shell, or animal—whichever it is—is lined with crystals as far down as you can see."

"No, I shall give it to Miss Lamb for her cabinet. I owe her something for her starting me in business."

"I do believe, Jim, you'd give away your head if it was not well fastened on your shoulders. But come, there's the first bell and we must hurry."

Miss Lamb's admiration of the fossil was all that he could have desired.

"I cannot tell you what it is," she said, "but I am sure it is something too rare for you to give away. It ought to have a considerable money value. I cannot accept it from you until I have ascertained its worth."

"All right, then," said Jim, winking at Sam. "You may sell it if you wish, and all above five dollars that it brings you may give to me for my chicken house."

"It's a bargain," said Miss Lamb, laughing, "and the five dollars shall go to the Children's Fresh-Air fund."

"A turrilite!" he exclaimed, excitedly. "Where did you find it?"

Miss Lamb told him the story.

"Well, well, well! Now I might go on breaking open stones with my geologist's hammer till the end of time and get nothing for my pains, while this unlettered boy, by a chance blow—why, this is really the finest specimen of its kind I ever saw! Such a perfect fracture—the whole thing so complete! See how perfectly the two pieces fit together—not a fragment gone!

"There you are. Just a common stone again. You can scarcely see the crack. Why, Miss Lamb, if I had that in my cabinet I would not take $100 for it."

"Will you give that for it?"

"You don't mean to say it is for sale!"

"Yes, the finder is a poor boy, and would make excellent use of the money. He is going into the chicken business, and that sum would give him a good start—buildings and all. I tell you, professor, Jim Jones has real pluck and principle."

"I judge so from the novel way in which he was using this stone," giving it affectionate, professional little taps.

"Yes, I will give you $100 for it, and thank you very much besides."

The professor wrote his check, gave it to Miss Lamb and locked the turrilite in his choicest cabinet.

Of course, Jim could hardly believe his good luck, but you may be sure he was quite reconciled to it. By the time his modest chicken house was finished and a dozen glossy black Langshans strutted proudly in their grassy run the old Brahma was off with ten healthy chicks and was given the most comfortable quarters and the choicest food that the yard afforded. Miss Lamb and Sam Simmins were invited on a special Saturday to inspect the new buildings and stock. They both smiled when they saw a neat arch over the gateway upon which was painted:

TURRILITE CHICKEN RANCH,
JAMES CONN,
PROPRIETOR.

"Did you drive all these nails with stones?" queried Sam.

"No, indeed," laughed Jim, shaking a new steel-faced hammer perilously near Sam's nose, "but I shall never be sorry that I drove the first ones so."

"Providence helps those who help themselves, you see, Sam," said Miss Lamb.

"Yes," sighed Sam. "Jim struck it rich before I even got started for Klondike, and if I don't get some sort of a move on me he will beat me getting a bicycle yet."

"Struck it rich—that's pretty good, Sam. Yes, it was literally a rich strike, that of the turrilite on the rusty nail."

BISMARCK'S PEASANT LOVE.

A Tyrolese Girl Whom He Offered to Marry and Live with in the Tyrol.

A story is just now going the round of the journals concerning Bismarck which I give for what it is worth, says a Vienna correspondent of the London Post. We are told that Bismarck, while still a raw university student, was staying in the mountain regions of the Tyrol, near Ultenthal, and fell deeply in love with a beautiful young peasant girl. He offered to make her his wife, and in order that his marriage should not take her from her beloved mountains, he promised to give up his own country and stay in the Tyrol. The parents of the girl, simple peasant folk, objected, however, to the child, who had been brought up as a devout Catholic, being married to a Prussian Junker, who was a Protestant to boot. So the romance which threatened to lose a Bismarck for Prussia came to a sudden end, and the hero of it returned to his alma mater at Berlin. In a hall at Ultenthal there is still to be seen a picture of Bismarck in the uniform of his younger days. The heroine of the romance died many years ago as the well-to-do widow of an Austrian landed proprietor.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Fish and Game Report.

In its biennial report to the governor the state board of game and fish commissioners makes an extensive review of the conditions that prevailed during the past two years and recommends some changes in the game laws that will serve further to protect the fish and game in the state. It is cited that public sentiment—without which no law can be enforced—has grown largely in favor of affording additional protection, and the citizens of the state have seemed to realize the importance and value of this bountiful gift of nature.

The legislature is asked to do nothing that will impair the efficiency of the laws now on the statute books, but to endeavor to strengthen them wherever they may seem weak. It is emphasized that the game laws have been sustained in every instance, that all the thirty-four important cases have been won for the state. The suggestions made for improvement in the laws are absolute prohibition of all spring shooting; a license of $25 for non-resident hunters and a nominal license for Minnesota hunters; the entire prohibition of nets in the Mississippi river; the purchase of the land on which the fish hatchery stands and the construction of a car especially for the distribution, and the enlargement of the Itasca state park.

Indians Go East.

Indian Commissioner Jones directed Agent Sutherland at White Earth to have five Indians each from White Earth, Leech Lake and Red Lake bands, and three Mille Lacs Indians prepare for a trip to Washington. The secretary will undoubtedly grant the necessary authority and the delegation should start soon. It is said that the principal object of the Indians going to Washington at this time is to urge a change in the law requiring the estimation of their timber before it is sold. They want the Menominee system established, and will try to impress the secretary with the fact that a majority of the Chippewas are opposed to the continuance of the present system. It is also said that they will have a conference with Land Commissioner Hermann relative to dead and down timber operations.

Temporarily Abandoned.

It is believed that Fort Snelling will be temporarily abandoned after the Third infantry leaves it for Manilla. The regiment will be off some time this month, it is expected. The matter of abandoning this fort, together with those at Jefferson Barracks, Mo., Fort Columbus, Ohio, and Fort Crook, Neb., has been under consideration for some time by the war department and it is understood to have been favorably acted upon. The only reason which can be assigned is that it is Uncle Sam's desire to keep his soldiers near the seacoast. With the expansion of the territory of the United States it will be necessary to employ many regulars. To have them at hand, it will be a good plan to keep them near the coast, so that in times of need they can hurriedly depart for the colonies.

Killed.

The most shocking and distressing accident in the history of St. Paul occurred in the Dovetail Shoe Packing Box factory, resulting in the instant death of an employe, Joseph Pocker, aged 17 years, and serious injury to Gudor Haugh. The machinery was running at its usual rapid speed, when it was discovered that a belt needed repairs. Without stopping the revolving pulley, Haugh started to remedy the defect and Pocker went to his assistance. This pulley, located three feet from the ceiling, ran at the speed of eighteen revolutions a second. Having a piece of lacing in his hand, Pocker reached for the belt near the pulley when the sleeve of his garment was caught by the wheel and he was instantly drawn into the revolutions of the machine.

If the appropriation of $397,357 asked for Minneapolis and St. Paul lock and dam No. 2 is granted by congress in the short session, the work on the Meeker island coffer dam and the lock will be completed by next winter, before the freeze comes. Work on the dam proper will then be pushed through the winter. It is thought that the lock and dam will be completed by 1900. When congress convenes for the long session, it will probably be asked to appropriate another $200,000 for lock and dam No. 1, which will be more expensive than the one now building. There is every indication, however, that both dams will be completed within the estimated cost of $1,500,000.

The Rosebrock building at Owatonna, occupied by the Salvation army, and two adjoining buildings were destroyed by fire.

Minneapolis bank clearings for 1898 have broken all previous records. The figures for 1898 foot up to $460,000,000, against $414,000,000 for 1897. This exceeds the largest previous year by $46,000,000.

The number of deaths in Winona for the year 1898 was 258. Among the number dying were two who had completed a century, Mrs. Frederick Behr, aged 100 years and 20 days, and Joseph Cobieszinski.

W. H. Kiese, whose home is at Sauk Center, either fell or jumped off the Tenth avenue bridge in Minneapolis, and was pulled out of the Mississippi river by the police, who took him to the South Side police station to dry and get warm.

W. W. Paulin's grocery store at Mankato caught fire and nearly $10,000 worth of goods were destroyed.

Private Wm. J. Mathes, Co. B, and Thorwald G. Peterson, Co. I, Third infantry, Fort Snelling, are ordered discharged.

The report of Special Agent Crain on the proposition to establish tea inspection at Minneapolis or St. Paul has been received at the treasury department. Officials of the department say they have not had time to take the matter up, but the report will be considered next week.

Duff P. Ross, a private of Co. C, Third United States infantry, swallowed two coins, a 50-cent and a 25-cent piece, in a glass of beer in a saloon in Minneapolis. He was at once taken to a hospital.

MINNESOTA LEGISLATURE.

The Transactions of the Lawmakers at St. Paul.---A Short Summary of the Regular Routine.

St. Paul, Jan. 4.—The simple ceremony by which John Lind was installed as governor of the State of Minnesota was performed by the house of representatives this morning. In attendance were all the representatives and senators and a body of visitors, which occupied all the available space on the lower floor and crowded the gallery.

The joint session was taken up promptly at 10 o'clock, with Speaker Dare in the chair, Lieutenant Governor Lyndon A. Smith occupying a seat at his right.

Speaker Dare, who presided over the joint session, introduced Gov. Clough, and the retiring executive, without any further ceremony, engaged in the reading of his message.

The administration of the oath of inauguration to Governor Lind followed this. Mr. Lind stepped before the clerk's desk, and turned partly to the left, facing Chief Justice Start, of the supreme court, with his right hand upraised in anticipation of the solemn pledge by which he was to bind himself. The form of the oath, spoken by Chief Justice Start, was thus set forth in the constitution of the state, requiring adhesion to the constitution of the United States and of the state of Minnsota, and a faithful discharge of the duties of the office according to the best abilities of the incumbent. While administering the oath, Chief Justice Start's voice broke, but he composed himself and proceeded without any very noticeable interruption.

Mr. Lind was pale and unmoved. Instead of assenting vocally, he inclined his head at the conclusion of the spoken form. That simple act initiated the beginning of his term as governor of the great commonwealth of Minnesota.

Gov. Lind at once delivered his initial message, which was listened to with marked attention.

St. Paul, Jan. 5.—Gov. Lind announced the following appointments, which the senate confirmed without objection:

Labor Commissioner—Martin McHale, of Hennepin.

Dairy and Food Commissioner—J. M. Bowler, of Renville.

Railroad and Warehouse Commissioner—P. M. Ringdal, of Polk county.

Senator Stockwell, of Hennepin, introduced a resolution in the senate providing for an investigation of the state institutions by a special joint committee, to which shall be confided the duty of looking into the matter of the advisability of a state board of control.

Both houses passed the bill appropriating $150,000 for legislative expenses.

Adjournment was taken until Monday.

In the house the following bills were introduced:

To provide for the mode, execution and place of infliction of the death penalty; judiciary when appointed.

To govern the sale of binding twine manufactured in the state prison; binding twine.

Fosnes—To give the county board of equalization additional powers; taxes and taxation when appointed.

Roberts—To amend the primary election law; elections.

Dwinnell—To provide for the revision of statutes relative to taxation of corporations other than municipal; taxes and tax laws.

Wallace—To protect bicycle paths and bicyclists by making any act of injury toward such paths a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of $50, or imprisonment for not more than 30 days or both, and also punish the deposit of glass, etc., on such path; judiciary.

Constitutional amendment, reserving to the people the right to propose measures to the legislative body and also to require the submission of certain general laws to popular vote, the initiative and referendum to be invoked in any case by application of five per cent of the qualified electors. But the executive shall not have the veto power on measures referred to the people; judiciary.

Plowman—To amend laws relative to the assessment and collection of taxes; taxes and tax laws.

St. Paul, Jan. 10.—The session of the senate last night was, as anticipated, a very abbreviated affair, and lasted just 15 minutes. Three bills and two resolutions were introduced. The bills were properly referred, and the resolutions went over under notice of debate.

Senator McGowan, Hennepin, introduced the most important resolution. It calls for the preparation of a bill by the attorney general introducing what is known as the "Torrens system" of land tax titles into this state.

After what amounted to four days' rest, the lower branch of the Minnesota legislature did not find it in its heart to hold a long session. The session lasted something like 40 minutes, but the time sufficed to prevent a violation of the constitution and to allow the introduction of nine bills, two or three of which will have a tendency to stir up the animals when the committees report them back.

By no means all the members were in their seats at 8 o'clock, but Speaker Dare had no trouble in counting a quorum. By this morning, however, the chamber should contain its usual population.

MAY BURN ILOILO.

Filipinos Threaten to Use the Torch If the Town Is Bombarded—Troops May Land Soon.

Manila, Jan. 9.—Col. Potter, the special emissary of Gen. Otis between Manila and Iloilo, arrived Sunday afternoon with dispatches from the latter point. The situation when he left there was practically unchanged. The streets were barricaded and it was reported that the principal buildings had been "kerosened," the insurgents having threatened to destroy the whole business section by fire at the first shot of bombardment. The banks were shipping their treasure to the United States transport Newport and other vessels. The family of the American vice consul had gone on board the Newport.

Col. Potter reports that President McKinley's proclamation had to be typewritten aboard ship as the printers on shore declined to do the work and when the text of the proclamation was read to them ridiculed the notion that conciliation was possible.

The United States gunboat Petrel arrived at Iloilo on Friday and Col. Potter reports that the United States troops will probably land on Guiamaras island, about midway between the island of Panay and the island of Negros, where a camp will be established.

UNITED MINE WORKERS.

Their Tenth Annual National Convention Opened at Pittsburgh with a Big Attendance.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 10.—The delegates to the tenth annual national convention of the United Mine Workers of America were slow in arriving at Old City hall Monday and it was nearly 11 o'clock before National President Ratchford rapped for order and delivered his annual address. About 500 delegates from 13 states were then in their seats and about 100 more were expected.

Among the important questions to be considered during the convention are an advance in wages, an eight hour work day and the general adoption of the run-of-mine system. These questions will be decided upon for presentation for adoption at the joint interstate convention of coal operators and miners to be held here next week to arrange the interstate wage agreement for the ensuing year, beginning April 1, 1899.

PROTESTS INNOCENCE.

Dreyfus Denies That He Is Guilty of Charges Against Him, or That He Ever Confessed.

Paris, Jan. 10.—A telegram from Cayenne, capital of French Guiana, has been communicated to the court of cassation embodying the reply of Dreyfus to questions put to him by the public prosecutor there. Dreyfus energetically denies that he ever confessed that he was guilty to Capt. Le Brun-Renault, in whose charge he was placed at the Edole Militaire at the time of his condemnation and degradation, and he reprotests his innocence.

Has 10,000 Creditors.

New York, Jan. 7.—Albert B. Hilton, who formerly carried on a large dry goods business on Broadway and now a real estate broker, filed a petition in bankruptcy Friday. The schedules include the names of about 10,000 creditors, most all for small amounts. The total liabilities are $2,539,907, all unsecured. He has no assets except clothing valued at $200, for which he claims exemption. Mr. Hilton made an assignment on August 25, 1896, to George N. Wright, whose schedules showed liabilities of $1,891,576, nominal assets of $1,600,342. Up to April 26, 1898, the assignee had realized $896,826 from the assets. The assignee has paid off a portion of the liabilities, but the estate was not sufficient to pay all the liabilities in full.

Winter in Earnest.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 10.—It was 44 degrees below zero during Sunday night at Winnipeg and 36 below at the weather bureau in that city at seven o'clock Monday morning. Minus temperature were generally reported elsewhere in the northwest, ranging from zero at that hour in this city to 8 below at Duluth, 12 below at Moorhead, 14 below at Bismarck, 26 below at Minnedosa and 38 below at Prince Albert, but at that hour Montana temperature ranged from 16 to 30 above zero.

Ex-Chief of Police Harrigan Dead.

St. Louis, Jan. 9.—Laurence Harrigan, who for many years was one of the best known chiefs of police in this country, died as the result of a complication of diseases, aged 65 years. The deceased was born in Ireland June 15, 1834. He came to New York when 14 years old. After learning the shoemaker's trade, young Harrigan came to St. Louis, and on the recommendation of Hon. Frank P. Blair he was appointed to the police force in 1857.

Gift of a Graduate.

Princeton, N. J., Jan. 9.—It is announced that George A. Armour, of the class of '77, has given $10,000 to Princeton university to found a classical department in the university library. Noted Pythian Dead.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 9.—Frederick Silberg, one of the most famous Knights of Pythias in the country, died at his home here Sunday. Silberg was six feet five inches tall and weighed 310 pounds. He was one of the axmen known as "The Big Five," and he had for years led the parade at the national encampment.

Appropriation Bill Passed.

Washington, Jan. 9.—At a brief session of the senate Saturday the first of the regular appropriation bills to be reported to that body, the District of Columbia, was passed. It carried a trifle over $7,000,000 and was passed practically without debate.

Railway President Bankrupt.

Boston, Jan. 9.—Charles Odell Salem, president of the Newburyport & Amesbury Horse Railway company, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with total liabilities scheduled at $233,833. Of this amount $129,000 is secured and $100,003 unsecured. The assets are $45

A Double Crop of Apples.

On a Long Island farm is an apple tree which bore two crops of fruit the past year, and the farmers are taking unusual interest in this peculiarity of nature. Just as much interest has been shown in Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which has the peculiarity of curing dyspepsia, indigestion, constipation and blood disorders that other remedies fail to benefit. In chronic cases it rarely fails, and it cures whenever a cure is possible.

His Motto.

A New York merchant recently advertised for an office boy. The first lad that went to try for the position was asked what his motto in life was.

"The same as yours, sir," answered the lad.

"How do you know my motto?" asked the manager.

"It tells you on the door, sir; it says push!"

The boy was employed at once.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

THEY WANT TO TELL

These Grateful Women Who Have Been Helped by Mrs. Pinkham.

Women who have suffered severely and been relieved of their ills by Mrs. Pinkham's advice and medicine are constantly urging publication of their statements for the benefit of other women. Here are two such letters:

Mrs. LIZZIE BEVERLY, 258 Merrimac St., Lowell, Mass., writes:

"It affords me great pleasure to tell all suffering women of the benefit I have received from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I can hardly find words to express my gratitude for what she has done for me. My trouble was ulceration of the womb. I was under the doctor's care. Upon examination he found fifteen very large ulcers, but he failed to do me good. I took several bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, also used the Sanative Wash, and am cured. Mrs. Pinkham's medicine saved my life, and I would recommend it to all suffering women."

Mrs. AMOS TROMBLEAY, Ellenburgh Ctr., N. Y., writes:

"I took cold at the time my baby was born, causing me to have milk legs, and was sick in bed for eight weeks. Doctors did me no good. I surely thought I would die. I was also troubled with falling of the womb. I could not eat, had faint spells as often as ten times a day. One day a lady came to see me and told me of the benefit she had derived from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine, and advised me to try it. I did so, and had taken only half a bottle before I was able to sit in a chair. After taking three bottles I could do my own work. I am now in perfect health."

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, Jan. 13, 1899.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

The Delano Camp M. W. A. will give a masquerade ball on Tuesday, Feb. 7th. full particulars later.

—Mrs Casper Janikula has moved her family into Miss Anna Quinn's residence on S. Third St.

—The Detroit Free Press Year Book and Cyclopoedia for 1899 is a nice one and full of information. We received one this week.

—Some of the young people of Delano gave a reception at the City Hall, Friday evening, in honor of Harry Young, who was home on a visit.

—Since midwinter has arrived wood and hay begin to seek markets. Prices were a trifle stiff, but now the buyer, can get them reasonably cheap.

—Rain, sleet, snow, wind and a general variety of weather has been with us. Most everybody ought to find satisfaction with at least a part of it.

—Delano High School opened after Christmas vacation, on Monday last. Several of the rooms are said to have about as many scholars as can well be taken care of.

—Mr. Orison's family is occupying a potion of Miss White's house. He moved in from the farm to allow the children to attend school. Mr. O is keeping bachelors hall at the Lanway farm, in Independence.

—We have received from R. C. Dunn, State Auditor, a nicely bound copyy of the State Auditor's report for the last two years. There are things in it people generally like to know. Mr. D keeps his books up in shape it seems.

—One of our Independence readers made his appearance at our sanctum yesterday morning, with a bundle under his arm. It proved to be a fine Democratic rooster, and was to help us over the Grippe. Thanks. It struck the spot.

—The Eagle's pictorial write up of Delano was nearly as howling a success as was that of several years ago. Copies furnished subscribers to send away have not been sent, and some say they would not send out such a thing. People ought to learn that the old Bird often gets bit; or allows her patrons to -Expansionists in Delano when asked "How about John Sherman, Senator Hoar and others favoring no expansion of the U. S ?" Say: "Oh! but they are too old, they are out of date." Then how about Mason of Illinois? "Oh! he's too young." When too old and too young are agreed against it, it must be there is too much expansion.

—Tuesday the Health Officer discovered a case of measles, Miss Neta Gunn on 4th street being down with the desease. Her two sisters exhibited symptoms of coming down soon. They think they contracted it at Montrose where they spent part of the Christmas holidays, and where they were told children had been having it all winter So many have been exposed, and the desease has not been epidemic here for so long, that the chances are that most families in town with young children will have a case or two at home soon. The first symptoms are those of an unusually severe cold, huskiness of voice, watery eyes, loss of appetite and fever for about four days before the eruption appears.

—White's hill, long the coasting ground for Delano's lovers of the fun has been put into fine condition. Big sled loads of people big and little pile onto sleds and enjoy a ride across Third, Second and River streets, and the bridge across the Crow. This is fine, only for the fact that it is dangerous. The three streets and the bridge crossed and Bridge street on which the flighty ride is made all being much used for teams and ohter travel. Accidents often happen to those sliding down hill to the best advantage, but when it comes to taking the chances here encountered it is simply wonderful that there has not been a collision, and a bill of damage for the town to settle for some runaway team, or a lot of broken bones of people clearly entitled to the right of way. One of the drunken drivers in town fair days often, would be apt to clear the track.

A LIBRARY IN TWO BOOKS.—It has been said that the Bible and WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY constitute a good library; and while this seems to be a strong statement it is in a great degree true, for these two books constitute a source of knowledge that no single intellect can exhaust in a lifetime, and a fountain head from which all can drink and daily grow wiser and better. At any rate these books from the best foundation for every library, and in reading, as in building, a good foundation is essential. They are also authoritive guides, each in its sphere, the one, that the heart and life may not offend against God, and the other, that the tongue and pen may not offend against man.

Personal.

Grandmas Stanley and Kespohl have been sick the past week.

Mr. Cassel, of Lyndale, was a Delano business visitor yesterday.

Mr. Patterson, of Minneapolis, is visiting with his nephew Scot Gunn and family this week.

Dr. Wright, of Maple Plain, Was up visiting this week. He has re-located at our neighboring village.

Mrs. John Sturman visited her mother-in-law, Mrs. Wm Sturman last Surday. She says she is quite sick.

Mr. and Mrs. Bela Babb, of, Benson, are spending the cold snap with their son Elmer S. and family of Delano.

John Cunningham went to Minneapolis Wednesday, on business. He said he was up soon enough, but J. J. Hill's train was three hours late getting here.

County Cullings.

Recently the wife of Joseph Boxell is said to have sent for Rev. Murray of this place, who was formerly located at Howard Lake, and confessed that her husband had come home on the night of the murder all out of breath and with his coat covered with blood which she washed out for him. As a result a warrant was sworn out for his arrest and he was taken into custody, Wednesday.—Annandale Post.

On account of the County Attorney C. A. Pidgeon having LaGripp, the hearing of the Joe Boxell case has been postponed till the 18th. Joe is carefully guarded by Constable Eppler.

Tax gatherers will be at Rockford' Monday, Janv. 16; Delano, January 17. 18; Montrose, 19; Waverly, 20, 21; at Howard Lake, Monday 23, 24; Smith Lake 25; Cokato, 26, 27; Stockholm, 28. Other places later.

Special terms of District Court will be held at the Court House, in Buffalo, on the first Monday in Febuary, March, May, August, September, October, and November. Court to open at 10 A. M. There seems no excuse for a man not having his papers so that he can vote under this plan.

County Commissioner's Proceedings.

The full board of County Commissioners met Janv. 3, at the Auditor's office. New members filed their oath of office.

THE time to use water, cold water, icy cold if you like, on the face, is in the morning, just after getting up. Dash any amount of it over the face and throat then. Massage the face in cold water if you have time and rub the skin dry with a Turkish towel.

Rain does not hurt the complexion unless it is a very bleak rain. Rain falling on the face, except very cold or blown with force, actually acts like a cosmetic.—From "Health and Beauty," by Esther Buckingham, in Demorist's Magazine for December.

Independence.

We are in need of more snow to make first class sleighing.

Our new drug store is now in running order, would say Mr. Anderson has quite an assortment of drugs.

If Maple Plain had a grist mill and her creamery was running things would be complete, but these things will come along in time.

Some say we are having an old fashoned winter like those way back in the fifties when it did not thaw any for three months.

Old settlers meeting at State Capital building at St. Paul 12th of this month all are old settlers who came here prior to May 1858. Make up a party and go.

Quite a good many have been on the sick list of late. There seems to be a goodeal of LaGrippe.

John Sherman of Ohio has a letter going the rounds of some of the papers his opinion of the Philippine Islands and expansion.

He says this expansion policy will ruin the country and the Republican party. In his letter he says I tried to prevent this foolish war with Spain. President McKinley will tell you that I could have done it as a matter of fact.

Negotations were already in progress to purchase Cuba from Spain when the war feeling suddenly rose and swept everething before it. And Spain would have accepted the terms. He says this is a matter of secret history.

I do not hesitate to say, he says: this expansion business will ruin the American people and the extravogence of the administration will ruin the republican party. He says what have we got to show for all of our expenses some Islands worth to us about $200,000 a year and increased indebtedness of $200, 000,000 Islands inhabited some of them by man eaters. And then we will be called upon to pay Spain $20.000,000 for territory we could have taken without expending a dollar He says, I had hoped to live to see the entire civil war debt of $600,000,000 wiped out, but I have no hope of that now.

Everybody knows that John Sherman has been a long life republican and connected with the affairs of the country for nearly 40 years, has been in the House, in the Senate, been Secretary of the Treasury and Secretary of State, and has always been looked up to by his party as a leader, and a long life of experience with government affairs his judgement at this time of life should be worth something.

It seems that in this Cubian affair the United States set out to do the charity act or play good samaritan.

"A certain man went down from Jurusalem to Jerico, and fell among thieves which stripped him of his raiment and wounded him and departed leaving him half dead." If the United States wanted to help the Cubans and the reconcentrados, why did they not buy it as Sherman says they could have done? There was a lot of hot heads that wanted war, little caring how many lives it cost us, better have paid Spain her price less the battleship Maine. JOHN.

Republican Resolutions.

The Eagle has at last concluded to notice "Those familiar resolutions of an old time Republican county convention," as she calls them, which we have been running in the GAZETTE. The Old Bird is mistaken though about their being in our columns for "lo! these many years." They are the freshest they have got. They are the very resolutions on which the Repub's. elected nearly their full ticket; on which the Senator and Representatives were sent to St. Paul, and they bind the vote of our Senator to C. K. Davis but not to Knute Nelson. The Hon Mr. Nelson's friends may deem it proper to look after their own interests just a little bit, and if they do these resolutions may come in handy by way of argument for knocking the props from under the once great lecturer on Feudalism but now corporation admirer. It seems now-a-day to be a kind of tree for all fight, every man for himself, and Old Knute is known to be up to snuff in that kind of a scramble for office.

C. A. French read a resolution which was adopted as follows:

RESOLVED: That we commend the course of Senator C. K. Davis the senior senator from this state, and earnestly urge that the nominees of this Senatorial Convention give him their undivided support, if elected to again return him to the United States senate at the close of his present term.

E. D. Washburn presented the following resolution, which was also passed:

WE, the republicans of Wright County in convention assembled, renew our allegiance to the principles of the republican party, and pledge our loyal support to all the nominees of the party in which as voters we exercise the rights of suffrage.

Notice of Hearing of Application to Sell Intoxicating Liquors

Notice is hereby given that Fritz Wegner has made application, according to law, to the Village Council of the Village of Delano, in the county of Wright, and State of Minnesota, for a license to sell Intoxicating Liquors for the period of one year from the 13th day of January 1899.

The place where the said business is to be carried on is designated as follows: On the first floor in the front room, of the two story brick building situated on Lot 23, Block 8 Original Townsite of Delano.

Said applicant prays that such License be granted to him pursuant to the ordinance of said village of Delono and the Statutes of said state of Minnesota in such case made and provdvide.

The above application will be heard at a special meeting of the Village Council, in the council room at the City Hall, in Delano at 8 o'clock, Friday evening January 13, 1899.

ROMAN WEALTH AND WASTE

Pearls Dissolved In Wine and a Relay of Dinners For Mark Antony.

E. H. House, writing on "Bright Sides of History" in St. Nicholas, tells this story of ancient extravagance:

"The pearl which Cleopatra drank to Antony's health was valued at nearly $400,000, so at one mouthful she disposed of as much as the cost of Caligula's supper. I suppose that was the most valuable pearl we have any knowledge of. Though Julius Cæsar owned one worth $250,000, which he gave to the mother of Brutus—the same Brutus who afterward helped to kill Cæsar. Pearls seem to have held out particular temptations to people who took pleasure in wasteful follies, perhaps because no other jewel could be so easily swallowed.

"Cleopatra's prank was not the first of its kind. The same absurdity had been committed by a silly fellow in Rome named Æsop—not your favorite fable teller, for he lived centuries earlier, and was a very wise man. The Roman Æsop was the son of a rich netter, and, just to make himself talked about, he took a pearl from the eardrop of Cæcilia, the wife of the tyrant Sylla, and, according to writers of that age, drank it in vinegar. I believe that the possibility of dissolving this kind of gem is disputed by many modern authorities, but the ancients appear to have had no doubt on the subject, for the instances recorded by them were numerous and were attested by men of scientific standing. A Japanese naturalist, who has studied pearls minutely, states that he has found them of such various quality and structure that the existence of specimens which might be melted does not seem to him inconceivable. But whether Æsop liquefied his pearl or not the performance certainly cost him a sum equivalent to $40,000—quite enough, though nothing in comparison with what Cleopatra squandered. Hers was the wildest piece of extravagance that I can recall.

"It was the fashion to be extravagant then. Mary Antony was not far behind the Egyptian queen in that respect, though his fancy was not for beverages flavored by trinkets. Substantial food was more in his line. A visitor who once went into the kitchen of his palace in Alexandria saw eight wild boars roasting at the same time and thought there must be an immense number of guests expected, but the cook told him only 12 persons would dine that day, and the reason of the extensive preparations was that no one could say exactly when Antony would go to the table. But whenever he gave the signal the meat must be just in proper condition at that moment. So it was the rule to get ready a series of dinners, overlapping one another, you might say, at intervals of 15 or 20 minutes. Only one could be eaten, and the rest were wasted, but the waste did not matter. Antony was never kept waiting, and that, in his opinion, was the thing to be considered."

MY LADY NICOTINE.

The Alleged Effects of Tobacco and Its Enormous Consumption.

Probably no pleasure of life has had its praises so much sung as smoking.

Palpitation of the heart, muscular tremblings, weakness and paralysis of the legs, dizziness of the head, noises in the ears, cold perspiration all over the body, colicky pains in the stomach, inability to exert the mind, congested and sore throat, burning of the tongue, dry and parched mouth, tartar and blackness of the teeth, confusion of sight, catarrh of the stomach, catarrh of the throat and nose, sallow complexion, very bad dyspepsia, lopsided mouth, nervous anxiety, cancer of the lips, diminished appetite, pale and anæmic gums, loss of memory, omission of every fifth pulse beat, ruin of the will power, irritability of temper, extreme and incurable melancholy, restlessness and sleeplessness, blindness and deafness, apoplexy and paralysis, convulsions and death.

In the case of children it stunts their growth, when a person is consumptive it hastens his death, when the heart is weak it almost completely stops the beating, when you have a cough tobacco keeps it going for weeks, and it interferes with singing and swallowing.

Yet about 1,500,000,000 pounds of it are smoked every year.—New York World

Worthy of Whistler.

As an artist Jack Gamble is considered as independent as he is successful. He possesses an unlimited quantity of candor, upon the expression of which he places no restraint. He is much liked notwithstanding, and was not long ago offered a commission to paint the portrait of a certain wealthy man, whose features are more remarkable for their bloom than for their refinement. Jack critically scanned the broad features of his proposed subject.

"Upon one condition will I paint you," he declared dramatically.

"What!" gasped the amazed Croesus, speechless at the effrontery of this poverty stricken artist.

"Yes," pursued Gamble, with easy grace. "Upon condition that I shall be allowed to put in a little intelligence."

And the funny part of it was that Jack got the commission.—San Francisco News Letter.

Tacking.

"What do they mean by 'tacking?'" asked a young woman on her first sail of a young woman who was on her second.

"Why," said the wise one in a careful whisper, "tacking is just—just sailing on the bias, Helen."—Exchange.

HAVE FAITH IN THE BOY.

Have faith in the boy, not believing
That he is the worst of his kind,
In league with the army of Satan,
And only to evil inclined:
But daily to guide and control him
Your wisdom and patience employ
And daily, despite disappointment
And sorrow, have faith in the boy.
Have faith to believe that some moment
In life's strangely checkered career,
Convicted, subdued and repentant,
The prodigal son will appear;
The gold in his nature rejecting
The dark and debasing alloy,
Illuming your spirit with gladness
Because you have faith in the boy.
Though now he is wayward and stubborn,
And keeps himself sadly aloof
From those who are anxious and fearful
And ready with words of reproof:
Have faith that the prayers that a mother
His wandering feet will arrest,
And turn him away from his follies
To weep out his tears on her breast.
The brook that goes dashing and dancing
We may not direct from its course,
Until the wild, turbulent spirit
Has somewhat expended its force.
The brook is the life of the river,
And if we the future might scan
We'd find that a boisterous boyhood
Gave vigor and life to the man.
Ah, many a boy has been driven
Away from home by the thought
That no one believed in his goodness
Or dreamed of the battle he fought:
So if you would help him to conquer
The foes that are prone to annoy,
Encourage him often with kindness
And show you have faith in the boy.
Have faith in his good resolutions,
Believe that at last he'll prevail,
Though now he's forgetful and heedless,
Though day after day he may fail;
Your doubts and suspicious misgivings
His hope and his courage destroy;
So if you'd secure a brave manhood
'Tis well to have faith in the boy.

—Elmira Facts.

SOME fellow down in Kansas City wants to run Mr. Cockrell, of Mo. for President. The gold bugs are trying terribly hard to switch William Jennings Bryan off the track. But Mr. Bryan has the right of way; and while the politicians are trying to get rid of him the people are breaking down platforms to hear him speak and to shake his hand. It's no use, the people are for W. J. Bryan.

HENRY WATTERSON in a heavy editorial in the Louisville Courier Journal, attempts to switch his readers off from the regular Democratic platform again. During the last campaign he was gold bug, and though with loud and frequent pretentions that he prefers Democracy, he goes to work to hoist a ticket entirely his own and asks Democrats to fall in and help him demolish the chances of William Jennings Bryan who, he himself speaks of, as "a clean attractive young Democrat," Mr. Watterson says: "If they can induce the great Admiral and the gallant General to accept, here is the card to win with:

For President,
GEORGE DEWEY,
of Vermont.
For Vice President,
FITZHUE LEE,
of Virginia.

Platform—The Stars and Stripes God bless them!"

No one has a word to say against the men Mr. Watterson proposes. They are so far as the world knows good men; and doing their work well. But does anybody grant Mr. W. permission to say that Col. Bryan is not as well adapted to run on the platform—"The Stars and Stripes God bless them!" as any other live man? Or does he claim there is an American citizen who would not give the Stars and Stripes preference over even the Anglo American alliance rag proposed by some. Now Mr. W. if you are a genuine old fashioned democrat as you claim to be, you must believe in the "dollars of the daddies," money of the Constitution, and the greatest good to the greatest number, equal rights for all and special privileges for none. If you do, quit your growling and climb onto the good old Democratic wagon and quit your mulish pulling back.

Congress Makes Money.

We have always understood that it was a Constitutional right of Congress to coin gold and silver money, and to regulate the value thereof and of foreign coin. But it seems this plan has, lately dropped into innocuous disuetude, while the President of the United States himself takes the Spanish bull by the horns and declares that the Spanish Alphonsinos which have been worth $5.30 in Cuba shall now be taken for only $4 82 Louis (20 france pieces) formaly $4 24 must now be worth only $3 86. When, we would like to know, did anybody authorize the President of the United States to take money matters into his own hands, like that. And if that settles the financial destiny of Cuba, what is the use of going to all the trouble and expense of maintaining a Congress in this country? Can't the President issue an edict much more easily than Congress can come to a conclusion concerning coin?

Gov. Lind's Message.

Gov. John Lind's first message to the Legislature was a good one. He first deals with state revenues, taxes. He favors an equitable system; one that will not tax the poor man's tools alone while the rich man's wealth, hidden from view escapes entirely. He believes in having railroads and corporations generally defray their shares of public expenses He gives some pertinent comparisons of Minnesota taxing systems with those of neighboring states.

He speaks well of our educational progress, and thinks money properly expended in education well spent.

He favors a system of State textbooks in preference to the system now in vogue. He thinks by the state doing its own printing much money could be saved to taxpayers, as all the text book concerns but one doing business in the state are in combine.

State institutions are handled with care. Binding twine is made at the State Prison. The plant might profitably be enlarged, as 5,000,000 pounds per annium is its present capacity whereas the state uses 17,000,000 pounds.

The inmates of the state reformatory and other institutions could be profitably employed in the raising of sugar beets, if the industry proves a paying investment in our state.

A better system of running all our state institutions could be had. So that it could be ascertained at the capitol just what each was doing in the months last past from reports properly arranged.

Agriculture, Forestry and other industries and interists were not forgotten.

The system of roilroad passes for state officials and others should be abolished. The Legislative lobby should be broken up. We have no use for a "Third House."

Many other subjects of interest were handled by the Gov.

The new state capitol should be pushed to completion as rapidly as possible. The Gov. closes by saying that cordial co-operation between the executive and legislature is essental to the best interests of the state.

The Cloven Foot.

Although we did not advocate the nominating of C. A. Towne for U. S. Senator against C. K. Davis, it was not because we did not believe him, honest, competent and deserving. But if it was to be but an empty honor Mr. Towne did not need it. And if it was not to be an empty honor another man would be more likely, at present, to win with less friction. But, if the placing of Mr. Towne in nomination, serves no other purpose than that of discovering to public gaze the cloven foot of the would be democracy, of which the St. Paul Globe is spokesman, it has, indeed, been a master piece of political sagacity and foresight.

The Globe of Thursday morning has one of its bitterest tirades against the Senators and Representatives, among whom are men with more brains if not so much money than the Globe can boast, because they dared vote for Mr. Towne, who represents the principle issue of Democracy in its purity today.

The Globe heads its article "Cut Off the Dog's Tail." Most sensible democrats will work for and vote for their honest convictions even though they are called by the Globe "the Tail" In this instance, at least the tail appears to have its share of brains, and even to have the votes of our State Senators and Representatives. It looks as if the Globe might be designated the tail, in the near future, if her subscribers, inveigled into believing that it intended to be honest have supported it during the campaign past, leave its lists in such numbers as they did before when it took up the Gold Standard cause so strongly. In this enlightened and civilized country people are not proud of daily papers that seek to be sensational by the use of such lines as the one used by the Globe in winding up its screed, "Tell with Town and the silver Republicans, anyway." Now, that isn't a bit pretty and doesn't sound nice.

The idea of the young advocate of gold bugs ideas that runs the Globe setting up such an article against editors John A. Johnson, Senator from Nicollet, and H. C. Stivers, member of the House from Crow Wing county, and many others who have brains entirely their own, is laughable, ridiculous in the extreme. We would't wonder if he would feel like apolgizing to them if he should ever get an opportunity.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(Fromour Regular Correspondent.)
WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 13, 1899.

Signs are plentiful that Mr. McKinley is alarmed by the extent of the Senatorial sentiment against our permanent ownership of the Philippines that has been brought out this week. Senator Foraker tried to answer the Constitutional argument made by Senator Hoar against our right to own the islands, and Senator Mason's speech in favor of his resolution declaring that the U. S. will not attempt to control any other people without their consent, but the administration would doubtless have preferred another and abler champion. Other disturbing elements to the expansion or bust men were a resolution for the recognition of Filipino independence, offered by Senator Bacon, and another that any aggressive action against the Filipinos on the part of the administration would be an exercise of Constitutional power vested exclusively in Congress, offered by Senator Allen. In addition to these, a number of Senators, by questions interjected in the debate, made it plain that they are opposed to our retaining the Philippines. That things are getting warm in the vicinity of the White House was shown by the giving out of a semi official statement that Mr. McKinley had never expressed himself in favor of permanent ownership of the Philippines, and that his intentions had gone no further than to give the islands a military government similar to that now in Cuba. The statement intimates, without saying, that if the Filipinos show themselves capable of maintaining a stable government Mr. McKinley would doubtless favor their independence in time. Such statements are not binding on Mr. Mckinley, even if they were explicit. He had an opportunity to say just what his intentions are, when he sent the treaty to the Senate, but he didn't do it.

The democrats on the Committee on Foreign Relations interposed no objections and the treaty of peace was reported to the Senate this week. The treaty will be ratified, but how soon will depend upon whether its opponents, who are more numerous than they were at first supposed to be, will be satisfied merely to go on record against it with their votes.

Mr. Andrew Carnegie is in Washington, openly working against the ratification of the treaty of peace. He thinks that if Col. Bryan would revise his advice and try to get democratic Senators to vote against the treaty, instead of voting for the treaty and afterwards against expansion, its rejection would follow. He said: "All that I hear indicates the increase of opposition, and I am quite encouraged to believe that the ratification of the treaty can be defeated. According to my opinion, this is the opportune time for those who oppose expansion to do their work. Only a one-third vote is required to defeat the treaty, whereas with the treaty ratified, we will have to secure a majority to make our views effective. Hence, I say that this is the time for Mr. Bryan and other anta-expansionists to make the fight. Hereafter we will not enjoy the advantage over our opponents that we now do, having then to meet them in the open field."

Senator Morgan secured the consent of the Senate to vote upon his Nicaragua Canal bill, next Tuesday, and he is confident that it will pass, with amendments acceptable to him. The House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce is unanimonsly in favor of the canal, but divided on how it shall be built.

The sword that Congress had made for Dewey is on exhibition in Washington; also the sword which the Royal Arcanum had made at a cost of $1,500 for Schley, but nobody is exhibiting a sword that anybody intends for Simpson, who not being able to pull a presentation sword will have to be content wite having pulled more promotion than he was entitled to from the Navy Department.

Mr. McKinley did not consult any of the leaders of his party before promoting Charlemagne Tower, of Pa., from the Austrian Minister to be Ambassador to Russia, and appointing Addison C. Harris, of Ind., who isn't personally known by hardly anybody in Washington, outside of the Indiana delegation in Congress, Minister to Austria. Both are regarded as personal appointments. The nomination of Joseph H. Choate, of New York, to be Ambassador to England was a Platt deal.

The democratic and populist Senators are preparing to make a warm fight against the Hull army bill, which has been delayed in the House by the illness of Representative Hull, when it reaches the Senate after being jammed through the House by administration influence, and it begins to look as though the bill would fail at this session of Congress, adding another to the numerous things that will increase the probabilities of a spring extra session of the next Congress.

Gen. Leonard Wood, the fortunate gentleman who jumped from an army surgeon with the rank of Captain to act as the McKinley family physician, to be a Major General, during the scrap with Spain, and who is now military commander of the Santiago district, in Cuba, is in Washington, under orders. It is believed that Gen. Wood was sent for by Mr. McKinley in connection with some of the troubles that have already cropped out among the army officers who form the military government of Cuba. He is going right back.

A WRECK OF THE STAGE.

IT WAS long past midnight, and the theater had been closed for hours. As I reached it on my way down the avenue I found an old man standing at the doors and looking about him in a bewildered way. I halted that he might question me if in trouble, and after a moment I made out his identity. He was a character "old man" one night the week before. As I had seen him in the play so I saw him now under the gaslights—old and feeble and wrinkled. He had played his part without a make-up. He did not have to affect the tremor of the voice or the faltering step.

"Sir!" he began after we had looked at each other for a moment in silence—"how did he play the part—how did the audience take his work?"

"Is it about the play to-night?" I asked.

"Yes, sir. I didn't come down. I couldn't, you know. I went to bed early and tried to sleep, but sleep would not come. I knew the play was over and the theater closed, but I had to come down. Tell me, sir—did he make a hit in the part?"

"I did not see the play."

"Ah—too bad! I wanted to find some one who could tell me. They said—they said, sir, that he would excel me, but I couldn't—I can't believe it. Why, the papers have said a hundred times over that I looked the part—that I just fitted in—that as 'Old Abraham' I really carried the piece. You must have seen it—must have heard the applause and the curtain calls. A curtain call at every performance, sir—at every performance. Who could do better than that?"

"Yes, I saw you play the part not long ago," I said.

"And wasn't I up in it, sir—wasn't it a hit?" he asked as he leaned forward to peer into my face. "Come, now, but you are a theater-goer. You know whether a thing is good or bad. As 'Old Abraham' wasn't I garrulous, irritable, childish? Wasn't my laugh and my gait dead-perfect, old man? In that scene where I discovered that my daughter was in love with the son of the man I had hated for half a century I was great, wasn't I? My raving and cursing—the speech in which I cast her off and disowned her—wasn't it true to life?"

"Thank you, sir—thank you!" he feelingly exclaimed as he shook my hand. "I am glad I came down—glad I met you. Yes, it does me good to hear your words. Applause all through the play, sir, and a curtain call at the proper moment—always a curtain call. It was meant for me, but 'Rosa' and 'Tom' always shared in it and I wasn't jealous. The public demanded no change—the papers hadn't roasted me. It was jealousy, sir—nothing but jealousy."

"What has happened?"

He took my arm and turned me to face a billboard, and with his cane pointed to the third line of the cast.

"Then you are no longer playing 'Old Abraham?'"

"N-no, sir. See? They have cast another for the part, and this was his first night with it. A young man, he is—a young man who must make up for it. Maybe he played it after a fashion, but he didn't look it, sir—he couldn't have looked it. And the feeling—the feeling, sir. He can pretend, but in his cursing can he feel rage in his heart—in his wailings can he bring tears to roll down his wrinkled cheeks?"

"And why did they let you go?" I asked after a silence.

"Jealousy, sir—jealousy!" he whispered as he put his face close to mine. "You outsiders don't know the bitter feeling behind the footlights. I played 'Old Abraham' too well—too true to life. As a character I made him outshine the leads, and the leads won't stand that, you know—not for long. And the character 'old woman'—she was down on me, too. And the soubrette—why, she even made a wrong entrance the other night to spoil my revery and get me guyed from the gallery. Jealousy, sir—pure jealousy, and they took the part away from me."

"But the stage director—the manager?"

"They were in the plot with the rest!" he whispered. "Ah! but they were cunning—very cunning. They had to move softly, because the public had identified me with 'Old Abraham' and might kick, but they were cunning. They got a dramatic critic to announce that I had passed my sixty-fifth birthday, and another to say that I was about to retire on my laurels, and another to say that there was too much stiffness—too much old age—in my trick of falling downstairs. And then, sir—and then they came to me—the director and the manager—with smiles on their faces and hands extended, and they said, sir—they said—"

"What did they say?" I asked as he choked up and hesitated.

"You won't believe it, sir—you won't credit such a wicked conspiracy to wreck and destroy a career of 40 years—but they told me I had grown too old and feeble for the stage! Yes, sir, they did, sir, and they handed me two weeks' salary and closed me out. Think of it! Why, sir, can you find the first sign of old age in my face—in my voice—in my gait? I am 65, as they say, but no one takes me for over 40. As for feebleness—look here!"

He tried to walk up and down with the step of a man of 30, but his limbs dragged and his feet scuffed.

"And you have been playing character 'old man' for 40 years?" I queried as he came to a halt and looked at me for an encouraging word.

"For 40 years, sir, and every character and every season a great success. Forty years, and I'm good for 20 more. I've got newspaper notices by the thousand, and I've got invitations to banquets and dinners and all that, and three different presidents of the United States have seen me act in 'Old Abraham' and praised every point in the character. And the idea that they should get jealous of me now and throw me over and seek to spoil my future! Did you ever hear of such an iniquity!"

I shook my head, but I could not find a word to utter in consolation.

"And the man who took the part to-night, sir," continued the old man as he turned to the billboard to trace the name again—"how impudent and independent. He wanted no coaching from me. He even told me to my face that he could better my strongest scene—better a scene which has brought hundreds of thousands of people to their feet to applaud! I won't say I hope he made a failure, but—but if the people applauded—if he got a curtain call and went back into the wings to be congratulated on his success—"

He turned away and tapped a pillar with his cane, and I heard him sobbing in his throat.

"And the papers—in the morning?" he continued, almost pleadingly. "Suppose the critics, knowing all about the play, were not there, but say that in his character of 'Old Abraham' David Greeve carried off the honors, as usual? Suppose the critics were present to see the new east, and when I open my paper I read: 'The public will agree with us that the change in 'Old Abraham' is for the better, and that the character was played last night in a way to surprise and delight.' God, sir, but suppose they put it that way!"

"But they won't," I answered.

"Don't let them!" he begged as he took my hand and held it. "You—you must have influence with the press—you may be a newspaper man. Go to 'em—go to 'em and tell 'em that it was only fairly played—that no one can play the part like David Greeve. And, sir, good friend, they shouldn't say that I am 65, and that I have become stiff in the joints, and that my voice has grown so feeble that people beyond the orchestra can't catch my words. It can't be true, sir—it isn't true. Isn't my voice strong and resonant as I say: 'From this hour you are no daughter of mine—no kindred—not of my blood, and I drive you forth as I would a poisonous snake which had crawled under the door!' See, sir—the policeman down at the corner hears my every word. Don't the critics lie when they say I have lost my voice?"

"I wish they hadn't done it."

"Jealousy, sir—nothing but jealousy, and it is foolish in me to worry over it. Only—only—it's a new sight to see—to see—"

"Old Abraham.....Henry Day."

"But they can't triumph over me, sir—no! no! I'm a character 'old man.' I shall get another engagement right away. I shall take another character and make him famous, and I will stand at the head again. You—you will come and see me and applaud and help me to get a good send-off? First night, you know. After that it will go of itself. I feel better sir—much better. It was a plot to down me, but it shall fail and redound on their own heads."

'And have you got lodgings—a bed—something to eat?" I asked.

He drew himself up stiffly, but shivered in the night air as he did so. His garments were thin and worn—his face pinched and troubled—his hat and shoes dilapidated. I was sure that he had not a nickel in his pockets.

"Sir! I am David Greeve, the actor!" he said.

"Excuse me, but—"

"But if you need it won't you—?"

And he moved slowly and feebly down the street, leaning heavily on his cane, and he passed out of sight without halting or looking back. I had met his kind before. He had entered upon his last character. He would play 'old man' to poverty and despair for a few months, and then—. Then the undertaker would ring down the curtain on his drama of life.

Great Financial Record.

"When I came to this town, 19 years ago," said the man with the red nose, "I had just half a dollar in the world."

"You don't look as if you had much morn'n that now," replied the man with the tobacco-stained chin.

"You can't judge a man by his looks,' retorted the other. "I've got $250,000 in judgments hangin' over me."—Chicago Tribune.

Now that you have that new leaf for the year fairly turned over, put a good heavy weight on it to prevent its blowing back.

Joseph H. Choate, of New York, who has been chosen ambassador to England, took part in 24 public debates while at Harvard and won them all.

The normal human body has in it enough iron to make seven large nails. Some people are so sharp that it is said the iron would make tacks instead of nails.

Lord Curzon, who married Miss Leiter, of Chicago, has assumed the rule of India as its viceroy. This elevates an American woman to a position of power second only to that of Queen Victoria.

A manuscript treatise on the tides, written by Galileo's own hand, has been discovered in Rome. Its date is the year of Shakspeare's death. But there is little hope that any such relic of England's great poet will ever be found.

The execution of Joseph Vacher, the French "Jack the Ripper," by Mr. Deibler, was the last act of that kind performed by him. Deibler has held the post of public executioner in France for 38 years, during which time he has executed 53 people, and he now relinquishes the work to his son.

It was the late Senator Morrill who drew up the educational land grant bill passed in 1862 and signed by President Lincoln. The total grant to all the states was 9,597,840 acres. New York's share was 989,920 acres, and it brought $661,473. Cornell university is one of the numerous monuments of the law.

The doorkeeper of a Boston theater, who died recently, held his place 33 years, and in all that time never witnessed a play there or anywhere else. On only one occasion he asked for a holiday, and that was to attend a clambake down the harbor. He missed the boat, and was in his place at the theater door at the regular hour.

An electrician in Lockport, N. Y., who was shocked by a current of 900 volts, says he felt no sensation whatever. He saw a blinding flash and was thrown violently to the floor. After staggering to his feet he fainted. He says his brain seemed to be partially paralyzed, and everything around was dreamlike, but he felt no pain, though his hands and ankles were badly burned.

The Baldwin locomotive works, in Philadelphia, which received a large order for locomotives for the Imperial railway of China some months ago, has received another large order from that road. "Made in U. S. A." is what we are thrusting under the noses of all foreign nations, and we are doing so much of it that a number of them are getting sulky.

Senator Daniel, of Virginia, who was in Havana on Evacuation day, says the spectacle was the most impressive he ever witnessed. "The American army," he says, "showed at its best, and as the sturdy columns swept through the streets of Havana there was no eye that looked upon them that was not indelibly impressed with the simple dignity of it."

There were 66,073 deaths in Greater New York in 1898—one death for every nine minutes in the year. So says a New York correspondent, and he added that 36,294 of the deaths were in tenement houses, and that 25,325 of the whole number were of children under five years of age—more than half in tenement houses and nearly half children under five years of age. The death rate was 19.21, on an estimated population of 2,948,830.

Official figures by the director of the mint show that the gold product in the United States in 1898 amounted to $65,782,677, or more than $8,000,000 in excess of the total for 1897. Of this total Alaska furnished only a little over $2,000,000, or less than the output in Colorado, California, South Dakota, Montana, Arizona, Nevada, Idaho or Utah. Further investigation may place Alaska high up in the list of gold-producing states and territories, but at present it is of relatively small importance. The Klondike region is on the Canadian side of the border.

According to statistics there were 28 trains and 7 stages held up during 1898, five passengers and trainmen were killed by the robbers and four seriously injured. The past nine years there have been 246 robberies of this sort, and the robbers have killed 88 and wounded 77 people. In view of the fact that in Mexico, where train robbery or attempted train robbery is punishable with instant death, there has not been even an attempt for over a year, it would seem that a little legislation of that sort in this country would not be out of place. Let's try it.

The postal station established at Chickamauga Park last June for the convenience of Uncle Sam's boys in blue has just been closed. The office sold $21,154 worth of postage stamps, and the soldiers bought $101,189 worth of money orders to send home. The soldiers received 10,119,100 letters, and sent 6,258,900, received 2,848,100 newspapers and sent 835,200. The mere fact that this post office, during its brief existence at a military camp, handled 20,061,300 pieces of mail, is good evidence that it was an army of intelligence—a type of American people.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

In executive session on the 12th the United States senate discussed a motion providing for the consideration of the resolution of ratification of the peace treaty in open session, but no decision was reached. The Indian appropriation bill was reported. The house passed the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill without amendment. It carries $1,705,533.

In the United States senate on the 13th Senator McLaurin (S. C.) spoke against a policy of expansion by this country. Senator Allen (Neb.) asked for the appointment of a committee to make full inquiry into the conduct of the late war between the United States and Spain. Senator Grey (Del.) introduced a joint resolution recognizing the patriotic devotion and bounteous benevolence of Miss Helen Gould to the soldiers of the army of the United States during the war with Spain. A bill was passed providing for the adjustment of the swamp land grant to the state of Wisconsin. In the house the session was mostly devoted to a discussion of the bill to promote the efficiency of the navy and increase the personnel. A joint resolution was introduced to recognize the patriotic devotion and unremitting attention as nurse of Miss Annie Farly Wheeler, daughter of Gen. Wheeler.

Senator Hoar introduced a resolution in the United States senate on the 14th declaring that the people of the Philippine islands of right ought to be free and independent. A favorable report was made on a bill appropriating $1,000,000 for the erection of a building in Washington for the department of justice. Early adjournment was taken out of respect to the memory of Congressman Dingley. In the house no business was transacted because of the death of Nelson Dingley, of Maine.

FROM WASHINGTON.

The interstate commerce commission in their annual report to congress say that the interstate commerce law, in its present condition, cannot be enforced.

For the month of December the value of the principal articles of domestic export was $93,273,506, an increase of $5,642,960 over the same month in 1897.

The death of Nelson Dingley, Jr., governor of Maine 1874-75, and member of congress from the Second congressional district of Maine since 1881, occurred in Washington of heart failure, aged 67 years. His home was at Lewiston, where his remains will be buried.

The president has decided to send a commission to the Philippines to make a thorough study of the situation and advise him as to what the policy of the United States should be regarding those islands.

In Washington the war investigating commission passed a resolution of censure of Gen. Eagan for the language he used concerning Gen. Miles.

THE EAST.

Gen. J. W. Clous, secretary of the Cuban evacuation commission, arrived in New York from Havana. He says that up to January 1, 71,816 Spaniards had left the island.

Chewing gum manufacturers of the United States have formed a trust in New York with a capital of $15,000,000.

In the United States there were 318 business failures in the seven days ended on the 13th, against 243 the week previous and 349 in the corresponding period of 1898.

LAST TRIBUTE PAID.

All Washington Does Honor to the Dead Maine Statesman.

Funeral of Nelson Dingley a Most Impressive One—Remains Lie in State in the Hall of the House.

Washington, Jan. 17.—A state funeral, almost majestic in its impressiveness, was given the late Representative Nelson Dingley at noon Monday in the house of representatives, where he has so long been such a commanding figure. The president, his cabinet, distinguished members of the diplomatic corps, members of the supreme court, senate and house and distinguished men in military and civil life were ranged about his bier on the floor of the hall, while the galleries, to which admission could be obtained only by card, were occupied by the families of those who sat upon the floor and prominent persons invited to be present.

Remains Lie in State.

The remains were taken from the Hotel Hamilton to the capitol in the morning at ten o'clock and were borne into the hall of representatives by a squad of capitol police under the direction of Sergeant-at-Arms Russell. The casket was placed on a bier in the area in front of the marble rostrum of the speaker and for an hour the public, which would have no opportunity to witness the official ceremonies later, was allowed to view the remains as they lay in state.

Thousands of people streamed through the main door down past the casket and gazed upon the calm, serene features of the dead during that hour. Some could with difficulty be induced by the police to move away from the casket.

The services were conducted by Rev. S. M. Newman, of the First Congregational church of this city, assisted by Rev. Dr. Couden, chaplain of the house.

When Rev. Newman delivered the benediction the entire assemblage arose, the galleries as well as those on the floor. The distinguished company departed in the order in which they had come, all passing down by the casket.

Leave for Maine.

The body lay in state in the hall of the house until shortly before the time for the departure of the special train which conveyed the remains and the party to Lewiston. It was then conveyed to the Pennsylvania station, whence the train departed at 4:10 p. m. over the Pennsylvania road as the section of the congressional limited. The train consisted of four Pullmans and a baggage car. One of the cars was occupied by the family and the others by the remainder of the party.

Washington, Jan. 14.—Hon. Nelson Dingley, of Maine, leader of the republican side on the floor of the house of representatives and representing the Second congressional district of Maine in that body, died here last night at half past ten of heart failure resulting from extreme weakness due to pneumonia.

His Public Career.

Nelson Dingley, Jr., governor of Maine, 1874-75, and member of congress from the Second congressional district of Maine since 1881, was born in Durham, Androscoggin county, Me., in a farmhouse on the banks of the Androscoggin river, February 15, 1832.

He began his political career in 1861, being elected to the state legislature from Auburn. He was reelected in 1862 and chosen speaker of the house at the session of 1863. In 1863 he removed to Lewiston, where a few months after he was elected to the legislature, and with the opening of the legislative session of 1864 was unanimously reelected speaker. At the state election of 1864 he was elected to the house a fourth time, and with the session of 1865 was again tendered the position of speaker, which he declined, preferring to take his place on the floor. He was also a representative in the legislature from Lewiston in 1868 and 1873.

In 1873 Mr. Dingley was nominated as the republican candidate for governor of Maine by a vote of two to one against two popular opponents and was elected by about 10,000 majority. In 1874 he was reelected by over 11,000 majority, declining a third nomination in 1875.

In 1881 Mr. Dingley was nominated by the republicans of the Second congressional district of Maine to fill the vacancy in congress caused by the resignation of Hon. William P. Frye. He was elected by a majority of over 5,000, nearly twice as large as ever before given to any candidate in that district, and he has served continuously ever since.

In forming his cabinet prior to entering on the duties of chief executive March 4, 1897, President McKinley tendered the position of secretary of the treasury to Mr. Dingley, but he declined the offer, preferring to remain in his position as chairman of the ways and means committee and floor leader of the republican majority of the house. Under his lead the house, within 16 days after the Fifty-fifth congress was convened in extraordinary session on the 15th of March, 1897, by President McKinley, passed a bill revising the tariff.

A FINE SHOWING.

Recent Call for Statement of Condition of National Banks Produces Encouraging Results.

Washington, Jan. 13.—Charles G. Dawes, comptroller of the currency, in commenting upon the abstract of reports of national banks under the call of December 1, 1898, says that it was the most notable statement in the history of the national banking system. The reports show a large increase over the reports of September 20, 1898, the date of the preceding call. The total of the resources of September 20, 1898, was $4,003,511,044, which was the largest sum reached in the history of the system up to that time. The total resources shown by the report of December 1, 1898, was $4,313,394,519, an increase in resources over the showing of September 20, 1898, of $309,883,474. The increase in individual deposits over the September 20 statement is $193,815,272, and they reach a total of $2,225,269,813. In loans and discounts the increase is $58,433,210, and the aggregate $2,214,394,838. The cash in banks shows an increase, while notes and bills rediscounted and bills payable show a decrease as compared with the September statement.

Nineteen Are Drowned.

Tacoma, Wash., Jan. 16.—The British bark Andelina, 2,395 tons, of Nova Scotia, Capt. G. W. Stailing, sank in 22 fathoms of water in front of the St. Paul mill wharf some time Friday night and the captain, mate and 17 of the crew were drowned. No one witnessed the accident.

Actress Goes Into Bankruptcy.

THE MISSING YACHT.

Little Cause for Hope That the Paul Jones and Her Passengers Are Safe.

St. Louis, Jan. 17.—A special to the Republic from Biloxi, Miss., says: After a thorough and fruitless search of the coast, inside and outside, Chandeleur, Ship and Horn islands, there seems to be little cause for hopes that the naphtha launch Paul Jones is afloat, and every reason to believe that the persons aboard of her have perished. Additional light is thrown on the movements of the launch after she passed out of the Mississippi river by Capt. O. Nielsen, of the steamer Georgia, plying as a passenger towboat between here and Ship island, who gives a description of a launch which he passed on the morning of January 4 while on a trip from Scranton to Biloxi, tallying in every particular with that of the missing craft. Capt. Nielsen says that the launch was about 50 feet in length, with strongly built houses on deck, finished in a dark wood, probably mahogany, and attracted his attention because she was much larger than any of the launches usually seen on the coast. When the Georgia passed her she was about half-way between Ship island and the mainland and was heading for Grant's pass. This is the regular route taken by pleasure craft, keeping inshore. In the ordinary course of events the launch should have reached Mobile next day. This is the last information obtainable concerning her.

RECORDS ARE DESTROYED.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan 13. — When the fourth day's session of the United Mine Workers' convention was called to order, the chairman of the investigating committee reported that the committee had worked on the books all night and would not be ready to report to the convention for several hours. A recess was then taken until one o'clock in the afternoon.

Prior to the resumption of the session a sensation was sprung by the discovery that during the absence of the investigating committee at breakfast, unknown persons had entered the committee room in the St. Charles hotel and mutilated the records. Eighteen pages were torn from the ledger and carried away, while many other pages were blotted and blurred. The thief or thieves left no clew and the announcement of the outrage caused intense indignation. The miners' officials believe that the object of the person who mutilated the books was to destroy the records from Illinois. This state had been gone over by the investigating committee and no objections were found to seating any of the delegates represented by the committee on credentials. Another object the thief may have had, it is claimed, was to make it necessary to send for the cash books, it having been decided by the convention Wednesday afternoon not to send for them.

BALANCE OF TRADE.

Our Exports for 1898 Exceeded the Imports by More Than $612,260,000.

Washington, Jan. 17.—During the calendar year 1898 the United States exported $621,260,535 more of merchandise of all sorts than it imported, or a gain in excess of exports over 1897 of $264,146,719. These enormous figures represent the balance in our favor shown by the official figures issued by the bureau of statistics for the year 1898. The bureau's statement covers the month of December and the year 1898. It shows that our exports for 1898 were $1,254,925,169 and our imports $633,664,634, of which $267,797,915 came in free of duty. The statement makes comparisons with our trade for the five years immediately preceding the past, the largest exports for any of these years being $1,099,709,045 in 1897, and the smallest $824,860,136 in 1895. The only other billion export year was in 1896, when we exported $1,005,837,241. The imports for 1898 were the smallest in any of the six years compared, being $633,664,634, against $742,595,229 in 1897 and $801,669,347 in 1895, when the imports were the largest for the past six years.

A DESPERATE BATTLE.

Turks and Arabian Insurgents in Fierce Conflict—Thousands Killed and Wounded.

The Turkish troops stormed and captured the insurgent position at Shanel on November 30.

About 4,000 insurgents and 2,000 Turks were killed or wounded.

London, Jan. 13.—Special dispatches from Constantinople say that after the battle at Shanel, a further Turkish advance was ordered. Abdullah Pasha, commanding the Turkish troops, was directed to capture Sasbeh, the headquarters of an important insurgent leader, 150 miles northwest of Sana. All the commanding positions in that vicinity are occupied by rebels and as the Turkish troops are deserting the operations are likely to be prolonged and difficult. The trouble in Yemen is one of old standing and the rebellion against Turkish rule has spread throughout Hadschin and other districts.

College Burned.

Digby, N. S., Jan. 17.—St. Anne's college, conducted by Eridist fathers, was totally burned early Monday morning, and in their labors to secure safety for all the inmates of the dormitory Fathers Ladore, Chaisson and Canon were seriously injured. The 110 pupils and 13 professors escaped without the slightest confusion. The college cost about $75,000 and the furniture and personal property was worth probably $25,000 more. The college will be rebuilt.

Americans in Absolute Control.

Manila, Jan. 14.—The situation here is undoubtedly critical, but Maj. Gen. Otis has it well in hand and there is no such certainty of trouble as many believe. The rebels are concentrated on the outskirts of the town and their leaders have issued strict orders that they shall act only on the defensive. An accident might precipitate trouble, but the idea of a rebel attack upon Manila is ridiculous, as the Americans absolutely control the position.

TAKING ASTOR DOWN.

The Ex-American Citizen Gets Badly Snubbed in His Intercouse with the English.

William Waldorf Astor, the expatriated American millionaire, who now resides in London, is the subject of a lengthy biographical sketch in Tit-Bits, a publication issued in the British capital. Incidental to the sketch it is related how the duchess of Cleveland gently set him down on one occasion. When his grand estate offices on the Thames embankment were finished he gave a magnificent banquet to a number of swells. Showing one of the staircases in the building to the duchess, Mr. Astor is alleged to have asked:

"Isn't that handsome, your grace?"

"Yes, it certainly is," replied the duchess. "Isn't it more so than any other staircase you ever saw?" Mr. Astor is reported to have persisted.

At this the duchess' back very naturally got up.

"Yes," she said, gently, "I admire it very much. It is much finer than our old staircase at Battle abbey, which has been spoiled these 200 or 300 years by the spurs of those stupid old knights."

Battle abbey is probably the grandest old place in England and compared with Cliveden, Mr. Astor's country house, is like a battleship to a torpedo boat.

Another story with a similar point is related in the same sketch. Mr. Astor, it is averred, was lost in admiration of the duke of Westminster's lawn at Cliveden when he first saw it and, it is said, asked the gardener:

"How do you grow turf like that?"

"Well, sir," says the gardener, rubbing his chin and looking very innocent, "you jest sows yer seed and then 'as it rolled every day for 100 years or so, sir."—Chicago Chronicle.

A Better Thing.

"No, sah, it wasn't no fault of mine dat I quit runnin' a sleepin' cah," explained the ex-porter when asked how he came to lose his job. "Dey jest went to work and made a mistake."

"What sort of a mistake?"

"Why, one day when I got my silk hat and dimun pin and lavender trousers on to go into Chicago in good style dey took me fur de president of the road, and de president dun got jealous about it and bounced me off. Reckon it was a good thing fur me, though."

"You hit another job?"

"I did, sah. I jest went to bein' a preacher, and I'ze found out dat de pulpit lays way over a sleepin' cah fur showin' off dimuns and stoh clothes. In de one place you's bein' sawn all de time; in de odder, you's only sawn when you's makin' up de beds or breshin' somebody's back!'"—Boston Globe.

TWO GRATEFUL WOMEN

"Can Do My Own Work."

Mrs. PATRICK DANEHY,
West Winsted, Conn., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—It is with pleasure that I write to you of the benefit I have derived from using your wonderful Vegetable Compound. I was very ill, suffered with female weakness and displacement of the womb.

"I could not sleep at night, had to walk the floor, I suffered so with pain in my side and small of my back. Was troubled with bloating, and at times would faint away; had a terrible pain in my heart, a bad taste in my mouth all the time and would vomit; but now, thanks to Mrs. Pinkham and her Vegetable Compound, I feel well and sleep well, can do my work without feeling tired; do not bloat or have any trouble whatever.

"I sincerely thank you for the good advice you gave me and for what your medicine has done for me."

"Cannot Praise It Enough."

Miss GERTIE DUNKIN,
Franklin, Neb., writes:

"I suffered for some time with painful and irregular menstruation, falling of the womb and pain in the back. I tried physicians, but found no relief.

"I was at last persuaded to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and cannot praise it enough for what it has done for me. I feel like a new person, and would not part with your medicine. I have recommended it to several of my friends."

Georgie's Raise.

There are several children in the family, and they were talking of their garden.

"I am going to plant the seeds Uncle John gave me," said one, "and raise the most beautiful flowers."

"I am going to raise pinks and violets," said another.

"And I'm going to raise tube roses," said the third.

But the little boy said nothing.

He had no seeds to plant.

And presently his mother noticed that he took no part in the chatter, and her heart smote her.

"And what is Georgie going to raise?" she asked.

"O," he said, stoutly, "I guess I can raise a worm or two."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

And It Was Different.

"If you were not an heiress," he said as a wind-up to his impassioned appeal—"if you hadn't hundreds of thousands of dollars, while I am poor, the case would be different. You would know then that I loved you for yourself alone."

"Haven't you seen the evening papers?" she calmly asked.

"No, darling."

"Better get one. My bank has busted and I haven't got a dollar. However, as you love me for myself alone—"

"As I was saying, Miss French," he interrupted as he rose up, "I called to see your father about that coalyard, and will trespass no further on your valuable time. Thanks for your kindness—good evening!"—Philadelphia Press.

LEGISLATIVE GOSSIP

Our Special Correspondent Tells of the Solons' Doings.

The Usual Scramble for Office. The Appointment of the Committees Sets the Whole Legislative Machinery in Motion.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 11.—Between the scramble for the legislative offices, and the fact that the first Democratic governor in 40 years has just taken his seat, with a large amount of patronage to dispense, the actual legislation of the session has, as yet, been given almost no consideration. The legislature has had its usual vacation to go home and consult its constituents, but is now again in the saddle and the Senate committees announced will start that branch in working order, while in the House, Speaker Dare is expected to announce his committees to-day and then both bodies will be wound up for business.

It is too early to decide whether the Senate committees will give satisfaction or not, but there are undoubtedly the usual heart-burnings resulting from disappointments, as committee positions are frequently the stepping stones for some much desired higher place. Lieut. Gov. Smith took the peculiar position that men who had heretofore occupied prominent positions in the state should not be given previous recognition owing to their previous honors, and we therefore find Senator McGill, one of our ex-Governors, made chairman of the insignificant Library committee and senator Geo. P. Wilson, who was attorney general when Senator Davis was governor, and as a member of the lower house over twenty-five years ago chairman of the House Judiciary committee, is relegated to the chairmanship of Retrenchment and Reform, while the Judiciary, Railroads and other important committees have less prominent men for chairmen. If Mr. Smith had had an ex-United States senator to pass upon, he would probaly have made him chairman of the Engrossment committee. Perhaps, later on, Smith may serve in one of the legislative branches and realize that he has established a precedent which may come home to roost.

As usual at the beginning of the session, all kinds of reforms are in the air. The Governor has recommended that several fat fee offices be made salaried; and Senator Ryder has already presented the usual bill to make the railroad commissioners, the dairy commissioner, the insurance commissioner, superintendent of public instruction and the labor commissioner elective by direct vote of the people to hold the office for two years each. After the reform move has spent its force the regular business will be given attention.

Senator McGill introduced an important bill yesterday, bringing the grain inspection officials under the civil service. If this should become a law it would remove the grain inspector from the football of politics. Thirty-one bills have already been launched in the Senate.

Representative Jacobson had his innings early on the grain commission, as he offered a resolution calling for an investigation in the Republican caucus the evening before the session began and yesterday they formally passed the house. It also includes an investigation of the charge that the state prison management sold twine to the trust instead of to the farmer. Mr. Jacobson also prepares to raise the tax on railroads from three to four per cent. on the gross earnings.

The House always leads the Senate in the number of bills introduced and the number reached 38 when the House adjourned yesterday afternoon. The indications are that the sesion will be productive of a large amount of attempted legislation. As to its value, four months later will be a better time to decide.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 12.—Only once before during the history of the state has there been a year when a United States Senator was to be elected that the whole attention of the members of the legislature was not devoted to that subject during the early part of the session, instead of legislation. It is peculiar that that year was when Sentaor Davis was first elected. That election took place with great unanimity, though there was a slight effort made in Senator McMillan's behalf. Senator McMillan had had two terms and it was only a few warm personal friends who had any idea he could secure a third term, but an early caucus disposed of that hope so that the legislature was ready to begin work at once. When Senator Davis was given his second term there was an element of doubt until the absolute roll call in the legislature. It is certainly a curious condition of political affairs, which enables Senator Davis, not only to break the record by securing a third term, but to do so with absolute unanimity, when he had so hard a fight to secure his second lease of the place. The caucus the second day of this session having nominated him, the question of the election, which takes place on the 17th, is little thought of and scarcely mentioned, so that whatever energy the legislature has is being devoted to regular work, and the usual lobby, which is on hand when a senator is to be elected, is this time conspicuous by its absence.

The senate yesterday did not have a great deal of business on hand, only four bills being offered, and none of those of much importance. Representative Jacobson's resolutions for a joint committee to investigate the state grain department and binding twine management in the penitentiary went to a committee, but this is no indication of hostility and it will undoubtedly pass today.

The house was too much engrossed with listening to Speaker Dare's announcement of the committees, and studying them over after they were announced, to do a great deal of business. Judging from the talk on the outside, the house committees give more satisfaction than the senate's, for while there is no open grumbling relative to the senate committees, there is a good deal of suppressed feeling which may show itself later in the session.

Thirteen bills were added to the house calender, and, strange as it may seem, none of them were of a reform character or aimed at corporations and trusts. It must not be supposed, however, that that class of measures will not come to the front in due time.

Both branches, having their committees, are now in full working order, and if they do not feel obliged to go home today to consult with their constituents again, the week will prove an industrious one.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 13.—As was expected the Senate promptly and with unanimity passed the joint resolution for investigating the grain inspection department. The officers at whom it is aimed express a desire, equal to that of the legislature, for an investigation. They say that there has been so much talk in the newspapers and on the stump concerning something wrong in the department that they want an opportunity to vindicate themselves. It is not often that both sides are anxious for an investigation, but the officers really seem to be in earnest in their statements.

It is only a little while ago that the regular medical practitioners were trying to drive the Osteopaths from the state by legal process, but they have not only remained, but Senator Grindeland presented a bill yesterday, which gives them legal recognition. His bill provides for a state board of examiners before whom anyone wishing to practice Osteopathy must go for a license. If such a bill becomes a law it will place the Osteopaths in the field as a regularly legal class of practitioners, much to the chagrin of the old schools.

A considerable portion of the Senate session yesterday was devoted to discussing the propriety of attempting to offer the Torrens' Land System bill. The matter was finally referred to the Attorney General to ascertain if he could frame such a bill.

The House was not as industrious as the Senate and really did almost nothing of interest. The bills are coming in rather slowly, but 59 having been introduced up to date as against 48 in the Senate. The House usually gets in between one and two hundred bills the week the committees are announced. One bill, which is pending, provides for a general mixture of the candidates, when printed on the Australian ballot. If it should pass the scramble as to which party heads the ticket would be abolished, as the various political parties would be so jumbled up that it would actually require intelligence to vote correctly. How any one could expect that a bill requiring intelligence in the voter would be popular, passes understanding.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 14.—Notwithstanding the St. Paul Jobbers' Union and Chamber of Commerce, as well as many other commercial bodies throughout the country, have decided that the bill of Senator Cullom, giving the Interstate Commerce Commission authority to fix the maximum rate for railroads, is inexpedient, Senator Miller offered a joint resolution yesterday urging its passage. He also offers a bill declaring sleeping car companies common carriers and amenable to the railroad and warehouse commission. A similar bill has cropped up in many previous legislatures without becoming a law.

The next most important matter considered was a resolution providing for a commission to present a bill which will result in taxing securities and other personal property which is not found, at present, by the assessors. There is no doubt that a large amount of personal property escapes taxation, but whether a law can be passed that the owner of such property cannot evade, is a good deal of a conundrum.

Three more newspaper reporters were given committee clerkships. At no previous session have so many newspaper men been provided in this manner.

The cost of Minnesota's investment in the Omaha exposition was definitely fixed by a bill offered by Senator McGill, appropriating $24,500.

Some members of the house appear to be agitated, and perhaps insulted, by the statement of a Minneapolis paper that only three members, which it named, amounted to anything, and a burlesque resolution was offered that the rest of the legislature go home. Perhaps the mover of the resolution did not want to be taken literally. A motion to expel the reporters of the offending newspaper was indefinitely postponed, so that probably both the paper and the legislature will survive the session.

No bill of especial importance was offered in the house yesterday, unless it may be a civil rights bill presented by Mr. Wheaton, the colored representative from Minneapolis, giving colored citizens the same rights accorded to white people in public places. There is already such a law upon the statute book, but in its enforcement it has not proved very practical, and Mr. Wheaton evidently wishes to make it more binding.

Two years ago the state bought $5,000 worth of sugar beet seed from Germany and offered it for sale to the farmers at cost. The farmers have only bought one-fourth of the amount, and now a bill comes in proposing to give the balance to them without charge. Perhaps as an additional inducement, in the reverse direction, to interest the farmers in sugar beets, Senator Batz presented a bill repealing the bounty which was offered in 1897 to those who would raise these beets.

This is the stage of the session when the average legislator having been away from home so long, desires to talk with his constituents to ascertain, if possible, what he is here for, and it is therefore no surprise to announce that both branches of the legislature adjourned till next Tuesday.

Government Aid.

Minnesota's interests have been well cared for in the river and harbor bill before congress, which will probably be ready in a few days. For the reconstruction of the Leech Lake and Winnebagoshish reservoirs $200,000 is asked; for surveying lands that will be overflowed, $30,000. For a portion of these lands the Indians have already been paid. It is the intention of the government to throw open a portion of the purchased lands which have become valuable.

A strong effort is being made to put the work of locks and dams between Minneapolis and St. Paul under continuous contract system.

Gets a Verdict.

In the breach of promise case of Miss Emma C. Shultz vs. Peter Harmann, at Hastings, the jury rendered a verdict of $1,500 in favor of the plaintiff. Both parties reside in Empire, and are respected young people. It appears that after a marriage license had been issued, invitations sent out, and arrangements for the wedding made, the defendant changed his mind and decided that the plaintiff would not be his idol or future life companion.

It is expected that Winona's fine new public library, the gift to the city of Wm. H. Jaird, will be dedicated within the next two weeks.

DENOUNCES GEN. MILES.

Washington, Jan. 13.—Commissary General Eagan, in the course of his testimony before the war investigating committee, called Maj. Gen. Miles, commanding the army, a "liar who lied in his throat, lied in his heart, lied in every part of his body," who "perpetrated a gross scandal and who should be drummed out of the service and imprisoned," "and should be avoided by every honest man and barred by every club." He characterized his interviews as "filth."

The subject in controversy was Gen Miles' already famous "embalmed beef" testimony and the letters and documents supporting it. Gen. Miles had charged that the canned and refrigerated meats sent to the army in Cuba and Porto Rico were unfit for use, that they were preserved by the use of chemicals and that they had "been bought and sent to the army under pretense of an experiment." This reflection upon both the ability and honesty of the commissary department had angered Gen. Eagan and caused him to request to be recalled to reply to Gen. Miles' charges. That his statements concerning the commanding general were not the result of a sudden outburst of passion was clearly shown by the fact that Gen. Eagan read his remarks from a carefully prepared typewritten copy.

Washington, Jan. 14.—The war investigating commission Friday passed a resolution of censure of Gen. Eagan for the language he used Thursday when he appeared to answer the charges made against the commissary branch of the army by Maj. Gen. Miles and returned to him the carefully prepared typewritten statement which he left with the commission after reading it to that body. With its return was sent a letter explaining the reasons for this action and a copy of the resolution passed.

The following is the text of the letter ordered by the war inquiry commission to be sent to Gen. Eagan:

"Washington, D. C., Jan. 13, 1899.—Brig. Gen. C. P. Eagan, Commissary General, War Department: We respectfully inform you that after your testimony was read yesterday the following resolution was unanimously passed:

"Moved, That the commission receive Gen. Eagan's testimony without comment, that it be not printed at once, but held for the consideration of the commission. Carried.

"Having now considered the questions involved we have determined that in many instances the vituperative language used by you was not such as ought to have been addressed as a witness to this board. We think that the personal attacks and irrelevant statements contained in the papers submitted should be eliminated, and before receiving it as testimony we request that you will revise its language and if you choose resubmit it for our consideration. We herewith return your papers. Very respectfully,

(Signed) "CHARLES DENBY, "Vice President."

Washington, Jan. 17.—Commissary General Eagan Monday sent to the war investigating commission a revised statement in place of that originally made in response to Gen. Miles' charges The revised statement is about 33 per cent. shorter than that which was ordered withdrawn because of its violent and abusive character.

A PHILIPPINE COMMISSION.

The President Will Send One to Study the Situation and Obtain Facts.

Washington, Jan. 16.—President McKinley has decided to send a commission to the Philippines to make a thorough study of the situation and advise him as to what the policy of the United States should be regarding those islands. The commission will not be subject to the confirmation of the senate, but will be named under reserved authority of the president and its expenses will be paid out of the war appropriations. It is not expected to commit the United States government to recognition of the independence of the natives nor is it to frame a scheme of government for the islands, as was the case with the Hawaiian commission. Undoubtedly, however, the commissioners will unofficially confer with the natives and advise with the military authorities, it being felt here that men of their experience and qualifications will be valuable counselors in the conditions now existing.

The members of the commission will in all probability include Admiral Dewey, Gen. Otis, President Schurman of Cornell university, Prof. Worcester of Ann Arbor, and Col. Charles Denby former minister to China.

A QUEER FINDING.

Said Court of Cassation Will Find Dreyfus Probably Guilty But That He Should Be Released.

Paris, Jan. 16.—The Matin and the Gaulois say they understand that the inquiry of the court of cassation into the Dreyfus case is on the point of terminating, and that the court will probably report that acts of treason actually occurred, but that sufficient proof of the guilt of Dreyfus does not exist and that his sentence, therefore, is quashed. The papers add that there will be a fresh court-martial. Dreyfus, it appears, was informed of the revision proceedings some time ago but he is under the impression that they are due to the initiative of the general staff, and in his letter the prisoner thanks Gen. Boisdoffre, the former chief of the general staff, and his comrades of the army for the action taken.

St. Louis Banks to Consolidate.

St. Louis, Jan. 13.—The Post-Dispatch says: St. Louis is to have a new national bank, which will result from the consolidation of the State Bank of St. Louis and the Commercial bank. All arrangements have not been completed, but the stockholders of both banks have consented to the merging of the institutions into one. The new bank will be known as the State national bank. It will have a capital of $2,000,000 and a surplus of $400,000. Both banks are among the oldest and most important of St. Louis financial institutions.

Chewing Gum Combine.

New York, Jan. 13.—A combination of chewing gum manufacturers of the United States was practically consummated Thursday when the last contracts necessary to amalgamation were executed in this city. The capital involved in this combination amounts to about $15.000.000.

LEGISLATIVE SUMMARY.

The Transactions of the Lawmakers at St. Paul.—A Short Summary of the Regular Routine.

St. Paul, Jan. 11.—The following senate bills were introduced yesterday:

To provide for teachers' pension in cities having 10,000 population and upwards.

St. Paul, Jan. 12.—The senate was in session about 40 minutes yesterday and adjourned until Thursday morning. But few bills were introduced and none of them important.

Early in the session Lieut.-Gov. Smith announced the following committee, authorized by the Potter resolution relating to the matter of an investigation of the subject of the advisability of establishing a state board of control: Messrs. Potter, Greer, Shell, Everitt, McGill, Baldwin and Young.

In the house but little business was transacted beyond the announcement of committees. Bills were introduced as follows:

To amend existing laws relating to the regulation of employment bureaus, etc.

To provide for the payment of persons who came to Camp Ramsey in April or May, 1898, and who afterwards enlisted in other regiments.

To amend existing laws relating to examination of persons accused of crime.

St. Paul, Jan. 13.—The session of the senate Thursday was very brief, but one or two very important matters were considered and disposed of in short order.

The Jacobson-Jones resolution for the appointment of a committee of four from the senate and five from the house to investigate the charges made against the conduct of the grain inspection department, and the sale of prison binding twine, was reported from the committee on agriculture, and adopted unanimously. It was the expressed sense of the senate that if there were evils to correct, the investigation should be made, and if the charges were groundless it should be so shown to the people of the state.

With the same unanimity the senate adopted the resolution offered by Mr. Daly, Otter Tail, instructing the Minnesota congressional delegation to support the bill now before the congress of the United States senators by direct vote of the people.

The house was in session but a few moments. Bills were introduced, viz:

Relating to care and custody of property of patients confined in state hospitals.

Providing for the reimbursement of counties sending non-resident patients to asylums.

To reduce the rate of interest to four per cent. on all state lands, commencing June 1, 1899.

To legalize the foreclosure of mortgages under certain conditions.

An informal caucus of the minority members of both houses was held yesterday at the capitol, and although no decisive action was taken, the result of the final ballot—Towne 22; Canty 10; Schiffman 2.

St. Paul, Jan. 14.—Governor Lind yesterday sent the following nominations to the senate:

J. J. Heinrich, of Minneapolis, to be state oil inspector.

F. W. Johnson, of New Ulm, to be state librarian.

George H. Goodrich, of Anoka, to be member of the state board of pharmacy.

The nominations were at once confirmed.

In the legislature no very important business was transacted. Sessions were held, lasting something more than an hour, when both houses adjourned until next Tuesday morning. Eight new bills were introduced in the house and nine in the senate, making the score now 67 to 57 in favor of the house.

Brief Minnesota Items.

At the recent meeting of the National Farmers' Alliance and Industrial union it was decided to introduce the business agency feature of the organization into the Northwest. J. C. Hanley, who has been state secretary, was elected general business agent, with headquarters in St. Paul.

Andrew Johnson, of Red Wing, was fined $25 for attempting to ship two barrels of fish out of the state.

Wm. O'Meary, also known as Wm. Burke, committed suicide at Nickerson.

TOLD OF THE WOMEN.

In Maryland in 1820 women who were property holders and had no husbands were entitled to vote.

Miss Sallie Faulkner, daughter of Senator Faulkner, of West Virginia, recently paid a visit to her brother, a lieutenant in the army, now stationed in Wyoming. While there she rode a bronco which only one man at the fort could master.

Woman is constantly encroaching upon man's domain. Nevada has a female jockey, who is already famous. At the Nevada state fair she won three out of five mounts, appearing in a natty jockey costume and riding astride. She is Mrs. Bogwell, of Carson City. Her age is 24 years and her weight 101 pounds.

Women are running men closely in professional competition in the United States. There are 4,000 actresses and 35,000 female vocalists; 11,000 follow art as a profession, 2,800 literature and 800 journalism. The women also try their hand at dramatic authorship and managing theaters. The number so employed is 600.

She Was Taking No Chances.

The fast-flying elevator in a huge downtown office building hovered for an instant at the third floor, like an impatient and monstrous bird, then, with a clang of the iron gates, flew upward and out of sight.

"What made you hold me back, mother?"

"Why, Eben Dilly, who are you talking to? Don't you stand there and jaw me!"

"Well, you make me feel so foolish."

"Foolish, eh? Foolish! That's all the thanks a woman gits for bein' careful. You come down here to git your life insured, didn't ye?"

"Course I did."

"Ye ain't done it yet, hev ye?"

"Goin' to do it jest as soon as I kin git to that 'leventh floor."

"Yes! Well, when ye've done it ye can ride on all the elevators in creation if ye want to, but not till then."

And the prudent wife began the long and weary assent of the marble stairs, followed by her humble spouse.—N. Y. Herald.

Germany and Asia Minor.

It is inevitable that Asia Minor shall eventually pass from the possession of Mohammedanism, and whether Germany accomplishes the task or not, the Sultan must yield to a Christian nation. It is just as inevitable that diseases of the digestive organs must yield to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The disorders of this kind are usually called dyspepsia, constipation and biliousness. The Bitters are equally good for all such complaints, regardless of the name.

A Young Philosopher.

"Now, Gladys," said a mother, "if you wake up early Sunday be a good girl and lie still. Perhaps you'll go to sleep again." But early Sunday morning the child was out of bed as usual and came pattering into her mother's room. "Gladys," cried mamma, reproachfully, "you're a naughty girl. Now go right back to bed again. Here, I'll tuck you in." So the mother arose and escorted the wakeful child back to her bed. Gladys crawled under the covers, and her mother made her as comfortable as possible. "Now," said the child, "give me something to read, please.' Her mother turned to the bookshelves "What do you want?" she said. "Give me 'Aesop's Fables,' said Gladys. She took the book with a happy smile and held it tightly in her arms. "Now," she said, with a long-drawn sigh, "I'll read till you call me. And I know what I'll read—I'll read 'The Contented Ass.'" And the little philosopher opened the magic book.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases of of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

"That's another agent," said Mrs. Waples as she heard the bell ring. Now, I'm going to open the door myself and give him a freeze-out he'll remember."

She went to the door with a stony look of determination on her face, and confronted a man carrying a satchel, and before he had time to speak she snapped out: "Well, what do you want?"

For the first time in his experience that agent lost his cue. He had intended to ask her if her eldest sister was at home, and was ready to address her as "My dear young lady," that being his formula for any woman under 50, but one look into that frozen countenance made him forget his own name. He cast his eyes on the doormat, and they took in a gray and black tabby reposing there. He was saved.

"Beautiful cat!" he murmured, stooping to caress it. "Marked like a tiger. Never saw one just like it!"

"You did not call to see the cat, did you?" asked Mrs. W—— in a petrified voice.

"My dear lady, I did not know that you had a cat, much less such a magnificent feline specimen as that! May I ask its age?"

Mrs. W—— gave the first sign of a thaw. "I think Marc is three years old now; he was a kitten when he came to us."

"Oh, have you his pedigree?"

"No, indeed, he is only an ordinary cat. We love him for his gentleness and because we raised him."

"Noble creature! Beautiful cat! Excuse me, but you have a treasure there, and he should have a historic pedigree," and he smoothed down the old doorstep loafer and said he reminded him of his home far away in Maine.

Then he sold Mrs. Waples four bottles of a new kind of silver polish, and asked her permission to call some day with a kodak to take a picture of the beautiful cat, and she has been heard to say that the freezing-out process was a dead failure.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Sure Cure for Colds

When the children get their feet wet and take cold give them a hot foot bath, a bowl of hot drink, a dose of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and put them to bed. The chances are they will be all right in the morning. Continue the Cherry Pectoral a few days, until all cough has disappeared.

Old coughs are also cured; we mean the coughs of bronchitis, weak throats and irritable lungs. Even the hard coughs of consumption are always made easy and frequently cured by the continued use of

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

Every doctor knows that wild cherry bark is the best remedy known to medical science for soothing and healing inflamed throats and lungs.

Hundreds of the Boys of '63 have testified to the efficacy of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People in driving out malaria, rheumatism and other diseases contracted during their days of hardship and privation in the army. These pills are the best tonic in the world.

Asa Robinson, of Mt. Sterling, Ill., is a veteran of the Civil war, having served in the 83rd Pennsylvania Volunteers. He went to the war a vigorous farmer's boy and came back broken in health, a victim of sciatic rheumatism. Most of the time he was unfitted for manual labor of any kind, and his sufferings were at all times intense. He says: "Nothing seemed to give me permanent relief until three years ago, when my attention was called to some of the wonderful cures effected by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I had not taken more than half a box when I noticed an improvement in my condition, and I keep on improving steadily. To them I owe my restoration to health. They are a grand remedy."—*Mt. DELANO, FRIDAY, Jan. 20, 1899.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—The A. F. Mrocozk & Co. fine threshing outfit has been shipped back to the firm from which it was bought.

—Several fine loads of live hogs found a market in Delano last week. Delano seems to get her share of this kind of animals now.

—The 25th State convention of Minnesota Y. M. C. A. will be held at Association Building in Minneapolis, Feby 9-11. Write to State Committee for full particulars.

—Baled hay is being shipped from Delano. This is as it should be. Hay and straw might be made to yield quite a sum to this part of the country by baling and shipping it where it is needed.

—A January thaw struck us on Friday last. For several days the snow and ice actually melted in the sun. But on Monday evening it was again cold enough to congeal all the water in sight.

—There is talk among members of the Delano Board of Education, of hiring another teacher in the High School. It is claimed that some of the rooms have more than one teacher can properly attend to. But, "How about some of the other rooms?" is asked.

—Through the kindness of Mrs. E. McNoughton we have been presented with a copy of the Iola Register, lately received from her son Charley, who is in that country, Iola is situated in the natural gas region of Kansas, and is represented as an unusually thriving little city.

—The St. Paul Dispatch is gladly received occasionally, at the depot. Several citizens though have wearied of having it fail to put in an appearance, as outside mail as it is sent, and appearing in the Postoffice next morning. There seems no need of these strange escapades of the Dispatch.

—"Making ice" is one of the principle industries of the place at present. Several individuals are preparing a supply for next summer. It looks as if it might pay for sombody to put up enough so that it will not be necessary for some of our merchants to send to the City as they did last year, for a carload or so.

—Ed Zebarth is to have a new bridge across Crow river at his place, about half a mile above the Ruckoldt bridge. This is placing them pretty thick. The county is quite liberal also giving three fourths while Rockford and Franklin are to contribute the other fourth. Nothing like having an accommodating Board of County Commissioners when a fellow wants a bridge.

—E. W. Ferrell was around Monday interviewing those he thought might want a grave stone for friends recently dead. Mr. F. sells for a Minneapolis house, and lives near Montrose. He is well known hereabouts, and those needing anything in his line will find him reliable. It is best to buy of an agent you are aquainted with, and if things are not right you have a chance to have them righted —Rather a laughable occurrance took place on the First day of the week, as six young men who had promenaded around the block several times came whistling up Third street toward Bridge, they found that about half a hundred young men, of most all sizes and ages, had congregated there at the coasting grounds, and were preparing to open up with snow balls, as soon as the sextette were in easy range. Concluding that discretion was the better part of valor, and in order to save their Sunday clothes, etc, the six filed off from the sidewalk and made a rapid flight across lots toward a back alley. The young Americans in hot pursuit. 'Twos lots of fun for the little fellows, and bystanders enjoyed it.

A LIBRARY IN TWO BOOKS.—It has been said that the Bible and WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY constitute a good library; and while this seems to be a strong statement it is in a great degree true, for these two books constitute a source of knowledge that no single intellect can exhaust in a lifetime, and a fountain head from which all can drink and daily grow wiser and better. At any rate these books from the best foundation for every library, and in reading, as in building, a good foundation is essential. They are also authoritive guides, each in its sphere, the one, that the heart and life may not offend against God, and the other, that the tongue and pen may not offend against man.

The events of the literary year will be, undoubtedly, the great novel upon which Count Tolstoy has been laboring in order that he may devote the proceeds to the transportation to Canada of three thousand Russian Quakers. It is generally believed by his friends that this work will probably mark the conclusion of Count Tolstoy's literary career. Not merely on this account, but because of the subject treated, it will attract the widest attention, the world over. It is a profound study of the life of man and woman, and treats of the three phases of love—that of youth, that of the young man, and that of the man in mature age. THE COSMOPOLITAN MAGAZINE announces that it has secured the sole right of publication.

Personal.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Bolton visited Rockford friends Sunday.

Mrs. Tillie McCormac, of Smith Lake was in town this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Wolfendon Fred Peters and his dog were in town early this week.

Rev. Farber has been holding a series of meetings at Montrose this week.

Dr. Soper drove to Howard Lake Saturday evening returning home Sunday.

Miss Julia Cunningham and her niece Grace, came up from Minneapolis Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wash Baker have returned from Illinois. They say there is no place like home.

Rev. Thompson, brother of Mrs. E. S. Babb, preached at the Presbyterian church Sunday afternoon.

C. D. Fredericks, of Rockford, was in town Saturday getting his bottles filled. He says Grippe is a great thing.

C. J. Buckley and O. L. Billings went to Howard Lake, Wednesday, to attend the examination of Joe Boxell.

Miss Maud Sherry who has been teaching at Brooklin Center left Saturday for California to find a warmer atmosphere.

K. P. Resolutions on Death of Chris Gast.

WHEREAS, It has pleased a most merciful and Alwise God, the Author, Creator and Preserver of our being—our common Father—to remove from our midst our beloved brother C. Gast,

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED that Delano Lodge, No. 124 Knights of Pythias tender to Mrs. C. Gast and her bereaved family its most sincere sympathy and condolence. Recognizing the Supreme wisdom and love of our Heavenly Commander, we do point our beloved brother's companion through life to Him for comfort and solace.

RESOLVED, further, that a copy of these resolutions be handed our beloved brother's family, and that they be spread upon the minutes of this lodge, and that a copy be furnished each of the local papers for publication.

Dated Delano, Minn., Jan. 10th, 1899.

County Cullings.

Taxes are yet to be gathered at Howard Lake, Jan. 23, 24; Smith Lake, 25; Cokato, 26, 27; Stockholm, 28; French Lake Corners, 30; Albion, 31: Maple Lake, Feby. 1; Annandale, Feby. 2, 3; South Haven, Feb'y. 4.

The hearing of Joe Boxell, charged with the murder of his father and step-mother last spring, was begun at Howard Lake Tuesday afternoon and completed Wednesday. Joe, it was claimed, had told different stories about blood found on his coat; also several witnesses testified to having seen blood on his ear and that he had a rag on his hand the next morning after the murder. He was bound over, by Justice Carter, to await the action of the Grand Jury next June. He was taken to the Hennepin County jail.

Eleven bids ranging from $920. to $1675. for putting steam heat in the Court house were received and rejected. The Board then proceeded to let the contract to McGaffey & Ellis for the sum of $1529.

It was then resolved that the Board will aid the towns of Rockford and Franklin, in building a bridge across Crow River in Sec. 26, T. 119, R. 25. The towns to pay one fourth and the County three fourths of the cost.

A Delightful Companion.

Imagine a friend who would listen to a recital of your troubles, give you help and encouragement, and never tell a sole; who would visit you regularly without waiting for you to return the call, and who would always leave you feeling brighter and happier than when she came; who would give you the cream of the late news in a few words, and never forget to bring a budget of helpful suggestions to make your work easier. What would you not give for such a friend! How eagerly would you look forward to her coming, and how disappointed would you be should she fail to put in an appearance at the customary time!

"Like semi-monthly visits from a dear friend!"

That is what is said of "THE HOUSEKEEPER" by all its readers, and the lady who has not had this most delightful home companion has missed a treat. It is a loss for which there is no good reason, for none need be deprived of its visits since the subscription price is only fifty cents a year, and they who have not that amount of money can earn the magazine in an afternoon by persuading two friends to subscribe.

The progressive housekeeper will find this magazine invaluable, for it tells the best and easiest way to do all necessary work, and helps her to economize not only in money, but in time and strength as well. It keeps her informed as to the most important news of the day, and furnishes interesting reading for her entertainment when she is too tired to care for anything except fiction. The serial story in the present volume is from the pen of John Strange Winter, and is considered one of the best of the many good stories written by this bright author.

Many of the short stories are furnished by well known writers, and all are far above the stories usually found in domestic magazines. The departments of Fashions, Fancy Work, Household Helps, Economy Club, Home Talk, Mothers' Council, Entertainments, The Dooryard, Floriculture, Our Young Folks, and News and Comment are all up to date. There is, besides, the page contributed by the new club, "The Progressive Woman of America," which is deserving of special attention. It will be remembered that this club was organized only last September; now it has circles in thirteen different states, and every month there are additions to its number. At the regular monthly meetings these circles discuss topics outlined by the Club Director and send a synopsis of the decisions arrived at to the Director for publication. It is thus made possible for each circle to know the opinions expressed by all the other circles, and for the readers of the journal selected for the official publication to keep up with the work of this club without themselves becoming members.

THE HOUSEKEEPER is published twice a month, and comprises twenty pages, handsomely illustrated and printed. Taking into consideration its size, character and frequency of publication, it is the lowest priced woman's magazine in the world.

Father:

I received your letter the other day, but did not think to answer it at once; because my time was occupied or else I was asleep, but at present I am at liberty and thought I would write; but there is very little I can say. * * *

All the boys from Delano are well as far as I know But I haven't been over to North Dakota for sometime. and Perry and Orley have not been over to see me.

I am very anxious to see my Christmas box, to see what it contains. I have an invitation to dinner, and have had for two months.

A large percentage of the natives are printers, book binders, lithographers and carvers. Some of my friends want me to stay but I haven't money enough to entertain the idea at present.

Some of the reports are strange around here. A report has come that Hon. John Lind has been elected, but of course not being a very enthusiastic politician at present, I thought I would rest at ease until the newspapers arrived with the plain truth in it.

There seems to be a rumor of a war between France and England, but that cuts no ice with us. because the boats here are resuming their peice color white.

There will certainly be a large opening for some young man with a little money to invest here, in a year or so.

Eight of our company went to the mountains for eight days. They report a good time and returned in the best of health.

Sergeant Law has resigned his stripes leaving a promotion to some of the older members of the company Frank Campbell, formerly of Litchfield, and who practiced law in Minneapolis, is now on special duty.

Dr. Skidmore, dentist, is running an office near the quarters.

Three of the enterprising boys of H. and B. Companies have started a laundry. They turn out first class work.

I have not received a paper for two or three months, somehow. I suppose you must have sent them and they got on some boat that did not come here. As long as they came I did not miss one number, but they stopped all of a sudden.

Supper being ready I will close for present.

P. S. Dec. 15. Last night one regiment from Dakota and some of the Colorado Companies went out to reinforce the outposts, about 9 P. M., so as to be prepared to see that the insurgent flag was pulled down to no more fly in this province. I don't believe there will be any trouble. We will not be in it anyway on account of policing the city.

The Astor battery leaves today, and I think this will go on the same boat.

News comes from Montrose that some thoughtless people were so boisterous and unruly as to break up the meeting of the Epworth League, a few evenings ago. This is a very poor advertisement for one of the temperance towns of the county. Young people should have more respect for Christianity, for their town, their family, and themselves than to disturb others in their devotional exercises. There is a strict law concerning such things, and if the rowdyism is repeated, it might be well to call in the strong arm of the law, and send a few who need it, to the Reform school.

Among Our Exchanges.

Aitkin Age:—A man named Johnson died of pneumonia Monday morning at the county jail, on the hands of the village. He was thought to be mentally unbalanced when found on the streets by Marshal Kane last Friday, but was instead suffering from the above disease.

Aitkin Age:—There is no question but what the gross earnings tax of the railroad companies should be raised to four per cent but it will be necessary, as in the case of the attempt to tax their lands, for the country papers, of the state to agitate the matter and create a strong sentiment among the people in favor of it.

COPYRIGHT 1899 BY COSMOPOLITAN MAGAZINE

THE delights of an evening spent around a well-lighted reading table are not half understood. An illustrated magazine with its wealth of illustrations, its stories of adventure and love, its descriptions of travel which carry you to the remotest ends of the earth, and its instructive articles for young and old—these are the first requisites for your own enjoyment and the entertainment and proper education of your children.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal,

Both Together One Year for Only $1.80

In this way you secure your own home paper and an illustrated magazine at a price that is only about a fourth of what some of the illustrated magazines sell for. For three years The Cosmopolitan has undisputedly claimed that it reached the largest clientele possessed by any periodical, daily, weekly or monthly, in the world. It was The Cosmopolitan which sent Julian Hawthorne to India to let the world know the real horrors of famine and plague. It was The Cosmopolitan which established at its own cost a great Free Correspondence University which now has over 20,000 students on its rolls. It was The Cosmopolitan which offered a prize of $3,000 for the best horseless carriage and prizes for best plans for public baths, and best arrangement of sewer and pipe systems for cities. It was The Cosmopolitan which set the presidents of great schools and universities seriously discussing the defects of existing educational systems. It is The Cosmopolitan whose enterprise is always in the lead in advancing the world's civilization.

We have also succeeded in arranging for two additional offers in connection with this journal and The Cosmopolitan.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $1.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

All Three Together for Only $2.25

One other opportunity we offer you. You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine

Three Together One Year for Only $2.35

Entered as Second-Class Mail Matter at the Post Office in Delano, Minn

NEARLY every Republican orator and several gold bug papers, formerly democratic, are howling like hounds at every opportunity, that the "Free silver craze is dead." They seem determined that everybody shall be made aware of it. Some of them even tell why it is dead, and suggest various plans for the adoption of the defunct democracy. True democracy flows as steadily on. "Men may come and men may go" But Democracy flows on forever.

WHEN William Henry Eustis used to come around making stump speeches for C. K. Davis, Dave Clough and other of the faithful, he generally told his audience that over at Stillwater were a lot of Democrats. A vote taken in the States Prison was Democratic by a large majority. We begin to think from the tone of the Prison Mirror lately that there are actually some Democrats there, and some of their ideas are escaping every week. Are the officials becoming lax, or getting converted?

MINNESOTA has had a Governor elected on the Fusion ticket, for nearly a month now, and still the Republican papers don't claim that our credit has been ruined. They are still insisting that Prosperity is here. They claim that money is plenty, times good, and people happy. Who would have believed, when they were shouting so loudly last fall to look out for the consequences of electing a free silver or fusion Governor that they would in a few short months be trying to claim him as a good Republican?

THE 13th Reg. Minn. Vol. is expected home from Manila in a couple of months or so. The Auxilary at Minneapolis is using all its powers to have President McKinley there to meet the Reg. when it arives. And to have the biggest time the City ever saw. It may be all right but why should President McKinley come away out here to meet the 13th more than he should go to Dakota, Tenn. Col. or any other state to welcome home the regiments from there? But if the President wants to come let him. For our part we had sooner see the boys.

IMPERIALISM don't seem to settle well in our Congress. There are too many incompatibilities Sturdy New Englanders, of whatever party, can't down the patriotic rememberance of the "Boston Tea Party" and can't see their way clear to helping place upon the necks of others what their forefathers so strenuously opposed more than a hundred years back for our country. True Democracy don't want to subjugate other nations and peoples and impose upon them what they have given the world to understand they would not submit to themselves.

THE idea of establishing pensions for school teachers who have taught a number of years don't seem to meet with much favor even among Republican legislators. Though they favor protection of many interests they draw the line at old maid school marms. Why should teachers be given a pension any more than people who labor for a living? They are the very people who talk about giving a child an education, so it can make its own way in the world; then why do they ask a pension for themselves? Has their education been neglected; or don't education do what they claim for it? Or is it a part of education to procure a pension after you have spent good wages for a long lifetime?

NEWSPAPERS and legislators don't seem to agree on some parts of Gov. Lind's message. He recommended doing away with railroad passes, and the Legislators have already turned two proposed bills on that line to the wall. They don't feel inclined to pay for their rides so long as the R. R.s are willing to give them free, for the chances of influencing votes when they are needed. A fellow that is willing to uncermoniously accept favors from Rail Roads are apt to incline to their side of most questions coming before the legislature. Legislators should not lay themselves liable to charges of being influenced in favor of Railroads or other corporations by accepting free everything they have to offer. People and not corporations are supposed to elect legislators. And they should be free to serve the people.

THE peace treaty is having a hard time in the Senate. C. K. Davis has finally got an agreement to have it voted on, Feb. 6.

KNUTE Nelson told the Senate a few days ago that he was not representing Norway. Now news comes from Christiana that he has been made a Knight of St. Olaf.

DAIRY COMMISSIONER Bowler no doubt, while parading with Minnesota butter makers who captured the banner at the Sioux City meeting a few days ago, stepped as prim as when he used to turn out with the gallant 3d Minn. Vol., back in the sixties.

FOR one, we can't believe with those who claim that Gov. Lind allows Mike Doran, the St. Paul Globe, and such, to dictate his appointments. Gov. Lind knows men and politics in Minnesota himself, and he knows enough not to allow such dictators to run his business for him.

MINNESOTA won the banner for butter at the Butter Maker's convention at Sioux Falls, S. D. this week. The banner is a fine one and represents a great deal to the state carrying it off. Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin, Kansas, and South Dakota were represented but Minnnesota captured the banner, on 169 entries with an average of 88 2.

LATEST rumors are that Aguinaldo and his followers are demanding liberty for the Filipinos and claiming that it was promised them before the battle of Manila. In case an agreement can,t be reached the volnnteers may be obliged to remain there for awhile and help the regulars that are being hurried over to relieve them, to conquer the natives.

Now that the friends of C. K. Davis have succeeded in getting him back to the U. S. Senate without opposition in their own ranks showing itself to the public, he will, doubtless, loom up in 1900 as the strongest opponent of Mc Kinley his party will furnish. He has had Presidential asperations for years, and as he has dropped the people and grasped the corporation his chances for a nomination have become more and more favorable. Now he might trot with Hanna; Davis and Hanna.

IT seems a little strange that some of the gold bugs are so troubled about imperialism just now. Are they simply trying to down Mr Bryan by springing another issue, and in order to make a showing have to get onto the drivers seat themselves. For instance there is Burt Cochrane the loudest mouthed of them all, then Andrew Carnagie the man who offers to pay the $20,000,000 to Spain for the freedom of the Filepinos. Why are such men so much exercised all at once; perfectly willing to join hands even with Bryan if he would, to down the treaty with Spain? They may be honest in their assertions: they may believe this the leading issue in the next campaign; if so, they will probably support Bryan as opposed to Imperialism, thus adding to his free silver strength: and by this double header, this bi issue method, succeed in seating W. J. Bryan in the Presidential chair.

HAD Gov. Lind's recommendation to abolish root and branch the system of free railroad passes been favorably acted upon it might be possible to get a reduction in the rate per mile for passenger travel. So long as those in office, or who are wealthy, ride on passes costing them nothing, so long will the balance of the traveling public be obliged to pay higher rates than they otherwise would, when they ride. When so many passengers are hauled, it costs the road so much, and somebody has to foot the bills. If the rich ride free the poor must pay enough more to make it up, for everybody knows the railroads are not hauling people just for fun; that is the average people. Gov. Lind's recommendation to abolish the system of passes is in accord with the sentiment of the people and should have been properly heeded. But unfortunatily, when he was elected there was not a majority of legislators of his way of thinking sent along to help him make some good laws. We will simply have to take his recommendations as an evidence of his good will, and let Republican legislators ride free, while we pay the bills.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(Fromour Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 23, 1899.

No man deserves any credit for doing the proper thing under compulsion, and there never was a clearer case of official action under compulsion than Mr. McKinley's order for court-martial of Commissary General Egan, for his filthy abuse of Gen. Miles. Mr. McKinley was disposed to allow Secretary Alger to try to hush it up in his own way, which would not have hushed it up at all, until he began to hear from influential men of his party, in Congress and all over the country Therefore he deserves no credit for doing when he found it absolutely necessary what should have been done the day that Eagan's filth was dumped upon the public. Although he has been turned down Alger has not resigned, and those who know him best do not believe that he will, unless forced by Mr. McKinley to do so. The court martial is bound to find Eagan guilty, and the punishment is dismissal from the army. Whether Mr McKinley will dare to modify that sentence, is yet to be seen.

Senator Gorman has taken charge of the democratic opposition to the ratification of the treaty, unless it is so amended as to make it impossible for this country to permanently govern the Philippines. At a meeting presided over by Mr. Gorman all the democratic Senators, except six, were present, and decided to work together.

Senator Bacon made a strong speech in favor of his resolution declairing the policy of this government to be against controlling the Filipinos by force. The keynote of his speech was the following: "Of all the great powers of the government of the U. S. is the only one that contends for the right in all people of self-government. When they abandon in practice this principle, when they impose their dominion on an unwilling people, in the majestic march of free institutions, the hand upon the great dial of the clock of the world will have been set back an hundred years."

Senator Butler, of N. C., got the Schley-Samson controversy before the Senate for a few minutes by offering a resolution when the nomination of those two officers to be Rear Admirals were reached, in executive session, calling upon the President for his reasons for making the promotions. It was a very diplomatic discussion, especial care being taken by the friends of each of the officers to avoid offending those of the other. Action on the resolutions was deferred on the Naval committee. The object of the resolution is to show that Samoson and Schley were both promoted, because Sampson could not be promoted for what was done by Schley, if Schley was not also moved up. According to all the official reports, Schley did nothing to be promoted for.

Senator Sullivan's amendment to the Nicaragua Canal, limiting to $5,000,000 the amount to be paid to the Maritime Canal Company, as compensation for its concession or reimbursement for its work, struck the Senate as being so sensible and timely that it was adopted without a division, before the bill was passed.

It is difficult to point out defects in the naval bill passed by the House this week. Some of them, notably the premium that will be offered for retirement on three quarters pay of officers, were pointed out by Representative Bailey, but the order to jam the bill through was obeyed, as usual, by the majority. The best feature about the bill is that which will put an end to the clashing between the two classes of naval officers the line, and the engineer officers by putting them all in one class. The bill increases the pay of naval officers, on the plea of equalizing them with army officers; it increases the Marine Corps by 1,300 men adding $1,500,00 to the annual cost of its maintenance; it creates a Judge Advocate's Corps; it prohibits the payment of prize money, and it provides for the retirement of enlisted men and petty officers after thirty years service in the navy. Mr. Bailey charged the majority with the intention to follow the premium scheme for retirement of naval officers with a similar one for army officers, and he might also have said that the retirement of privates and non-commissioned officers of the army would be likely to follow, as a part of the grand scheme of imperialism that is being nursed by the republicans.

Czar Reed can plead precedent with the air of a man who really believes therein when it suits his purpose, just as he topples over a long line of precedents when they stand in the way of his accomplishing something he has set out to do. When the Illinois delegation asked him to make Representative Hopkins Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, and consequently leader of the republicans, he told them he felt bound by precedent to give the place to representative Payne, of N Y., much as he admired Mr. Hopkins, etc. Reed's admiration for Hopkins is much that of his Satanic majesty for a certain kind of water. As the principal duty of the republican leader of the House is to carry out the orders of Czar Reed, Mr. Payne will fill the bill much better, from the Reed point of view, than a man who has occasional bursts of independence, such as Hopkins does.

Willmar Tribune: In case the anti-expansionist sentiment grows very much longer, do not be surprised if the administration discoveres that its intention always has been the independence of the islands.

LOVE SONG.

If all the laurel wreaths of fame
Were twined for my unworthy head,
What were they worth unless you came
To see your lover garlanded?

If all the sovereignty of earth
In one sole scepter wooed my grasp,
What would its heavy gold be worth
Unless your hand were mine to clasp?

If all the roses summer knows
By pleasure's hand were plucked and strown,
Should I raise up one single rose
If I must drink its scent alone?

There is no kingdom but your heart,
There is no laurel but your praise,
The rose is but your counterpart,
You dear delight of all my days.

Yet would I had the scepter gold,
The laurel fine, the roses rare:
The scepter for your hands to hold,
The rose and laurel for your hair!
—E. Nesbit, in Black and White.

Winning an Heiress

"I TELL you what, old man," said Jack Russell to me, confidentially, the other day, "this thing of trying to win an heiress is a precarious business. I speak from experience. Since the other day I have given up the thing in disgust, and I shall never try again in this city.

"You see, I haven't anything myself but what I can make by the sweat of my brow, and that's precious little, and somehow or other I got the notion that Miss Van Boodle was in love with me. Of course, I made a fool of myself—quite naturally—anyone else would have done the same—and made up my mind that I would try to win the girl and the $300,000 which she is said to possess in her own name.

"I had never gone much into society, owing to my accursed poverty, but I went in then with a vengeance. I saved up almost all my earnings, and invested the coin in flowers, cabs, candy and anything else you please, for Miss Van Boodle. She knew pretty well that I was after the money, though I, like a fool, did not realize my lack of sense until a week ago.

"I had taken her to every dancing party during the week, and, as she had no 'tea' to attend that particular afternoon, I took her to the matinee. We chose the matinee because we had another engagement for the evening.

"I put all my available cash in flowers, carriage and box, and when I finished my preparations I had left just $7.50. I didn't mind that, however, for I imagined myself in sight of $300,000. We had a good time at the performance, and at its close I was foolhardy enough to propose a little luncheon, with the accent on the 'little' in my mind. I even urged her, but urging was unnecessary, despite the lateness of the hour, and with alacrity she took me up.

"I took her to the swellest cafe in town, sadly fumbling the pittance in my trousers pocket, and thinking grimly of that tailor bill, and wondering what was going to happen.

"She was equal to the occasion. She took the bill of fare daintily in her fingers and proceeded to make a bill of another kind for me.

"It makes me sick to think about it, but my memory was active all the time, and I can reproduce the whole terrible thing as easily as an actor can recall his lines."

"How did you get out of the hole without detection?" I gasped.

"O, it was trying on my nerves, and I haven't got over it yet, but I made my exit without a complete showdown," he replied. "You see, the bill amounted to $23.75, and I had only a third of that amount in my ill-fated trousers pocket.

"I rushed to the cashier's desk, pretending to find out about my carriage, and hastily explained that I could not pay them until the next day. The cashier coldly replied that she did not know me. I had no watch, for I had left my timepiece at the jeweler's, and, as you know, I never wear any precious baubles. What to do? as the Frenchman would say.

"I quietly handed over Miss Van Boodle's $50 pair of opera glasses and told the cashier to keep them till the next morning, when I would return with the money. And with that I hurried my charge to the carriage.

"On the way she recalled having lost her opera glasses, but I assured her that it wasn't worth while hunting for them at the time; I had a notion, I said, where they were left, and I would see that they were recovered safely.

"The day following I borrowed from my brother sufficient to get me out of the dilemma, and since then I haven't even been to call on the young lady for whose hand and fortune I had such aspirations.

"A poor man can't expect to win a rich wife easily. These girls are too worldly wise."

"I have always declaimed against a man being in a hurry," said West Side to me the other day, "but somehow or other I have never profited by my own doctrines.

"I left the office for lunch the other day feeling tired and having those sensations as one might have were he shot out of a 13-inch breech-loader.

"'High ball?' said the waiter—clever fellow that waiter.

"'No,' I answered, and directed him to get me some writing paper. I was suffering from mental troubles.

"How would you do under the circumstances? Here's the case in a nutshell: I am making desperate love to a gay, bright-eyed society girl. I make her believe that I have all sorts of money. She likes me, of course. What girl who thinks a fellow has money could fail to like him? Ill bred if she does. Well, where am I? O yes, she thinks I have money in my own name—mark that, in my own name. I had an engagement to take her out and wanted to take her out that evening, when I hadn't a cent.

"There was nothing to do but to write a note to her and make the engagement. Furthermore, to pen another to West Side, Sr., who is interested in church work, and get some money with which to keep it.

"I sat down at the desk and wrote the two epistles, sealed them, and stuck them in my pocket—to mail.

"The first letter was something like this: 'My Dear Father—Sorry to bother you, but I spent my last cent at the charity bazar last week. Brother Jones wants me to contribute to the new charity enterprise he is forming. Wants me to pay him this afternoon. Kindly remit 50 on my account and oblige your own West.' Note No. 2: 'My Adorable Helen—Can't you come with me to the show to-night? We'll go afterwards and have a little luncheon. Now, my dear, you will not fail me. I'll meet you with cab at 7:45 sharp. Your eternally devoted West.'

"I walked up to the desk after my meal and excitedly addressed and mailed them. I then returned to my place of business and sat down nervously, to await the issue. The letters were mailed with special delivery stamps, and I thought I'd get some word by four o'clock.

"Then a notion suddenly struck me. Were those notes addressed correctly?

"I bolted into a car and fairly ran up Helen's steps. I burst through the door as the astonished maid opened it and was about to announce my presence by a shout, when Helen met me on the stairs.

"'Did you get your note?' I cried.

"I darted out again.

"I got to the door of my house, breathless and gasping, just as father was opening the door. He had been out calling on some of his friends.

"I slipped past him and grabbed that letter just as his fingers were about to close on it. I told him that I could make my meaning plainer by a verbal explanation.

"Well, I saved myself from having my little affair found out, but ever since then Helen has been joking with me about that money I was going to invest in charity, and has made all manner of sport on the subject of that sum I possessed in my own name."—Chicago Tribune.

QUEER WEDDING CUSTOMS.

The Chinese have an elaborate wedding ceremonial. It begins with presents and the reports of astrologers. The parents then correspond. The girl's father offers his "ugly and ill-favored child"—for such is oriental etiquette. The father of the boy, not to be outdone in politeness, describes his son as "slothful, indigent and weak in intellect." The bride's procession, for which even a mandarin must make way, goes to the bridegroom's house and is carried over the threshold.

Japanese politeness is like the Chinese; female subjection is the same, but the national good humor makes it more tolerable. There is a beautiful symbolism in the lighting of torches, when the bride's and bridegroom's lights are permitted to mingle.

The Persian wedding includes a torchlight procession of the bridegroom and his friends to the bride's house, where the groom and his companions secure her, and then return to the beating of drums.

An Arab wedding lasts seven days. The husband sees his wife's face after the ceremony is over. It is then proper for him to cry out in delight at its loveliness, and then, as in the Bible, "the friend of the bridegroom, who standeth and heareth him, rejoicing greatly because of the bridegroom's voice"—the people outside the tent raise an answering cry.

In Turkey the bride stands behind a screen during a part of the ceremony, and is first seen at its conclusion. A Moorish wedding is also a seven-days' affair.

There is a clever custom sometimes followed in Persia. A crowd of young men rush into the feasting crowd, capture the guests and shut them up in a dark room. They pay ransom to get out, and the money is added to the bride's dowry, a naive way of enriching the young couple.—London Mail.

Anxious to Agree.

"The idea!" exclaimed Mr. Meekton's wife, "of sending a man with three wives to congress! It's preposterous."

"That's what I think," answered Mr. Meekton, incautiously "He probably has all the trouble he can attend to at home without bothering about his country."—Washington Star.

Doing Good.

"Let us," said the exhorter, "go about doing our fellow-men good."

"And plenty," added the man with the horrible tie.—Cincinnati Enquirer

The sultan of Turkey has added a fortune of $400,000 to his bank account by providing speedy and painless death for his favorite eunuch.

Perfecto Lacoste, selected as mayor of Havana by Gen. Ludlow, while a native of Cuba, is an American citizen, having been naturalized in Cincinnati.

If it be true, as claimed in musical circles, that we stole "Yankee Doodle" from the Spaniards, we have certainly made the amend honorable by giving them "Hail Columbia."

The director of the mint says the United States holds more gold than was ever possessed by any other nation in the history of the world. It amounts to $910,000,000 and is fast increasing.

A New Yorker who has just attempted to secure a world-wide patent on a simple invention finds that it will cost him $14,000. There are 64 countries in which an invention may be protected by patent.

Col. George Parmelee Webster, who died a few days ago in New York, cast the deciding vote in the Kentucky legislature at the beginning of the civil war, which kept that state in the union. He was the last to vote on the motion to secede and the vote when it came to him stood a tie.

Although totally blind, Chaplain Milarn, of the United States senate, knows every senator and can recognize him by his voice. After the morning prayer he passes around among the senators, shaking their hands, and occasionally he stops to chat with men whom he has long known.

This is the way in which a Kansas editor answers a question propounded by a stock raiser: "A rural subscriber asks: 'Do hogs pay?' We know that a good many don't. They take the paper several years and have the postmaster send it back marked 'refused.' Such a breed is usually two-legged and unprofitable."

The gifts of colleges in the United States last year amounted to $13,086,150, and libraries received $1,166,500. Museums and art galleries, whose object is partly educational, were generously remembered to the extent of $1,472,000. For these various institutions the aggregate of gifts was $15,724,650, in a total for all purposes of $23,984,900.

Ambassador Choate is credited with saying many pleasant and clever things. Once at a dinner party he was asked whom he would like to be if he could not be himself. He paused a few seconds, as if thinking over the list of world's celebrites, and then his eyes rested upon his wife. "If," he answered, "I could not be myself, I should like to be Mrs. Choat's second husband."

The dowager empress' sweeping press law is at hand. It affects 56 Chinese esteemed contemporaries and runs as follows:

Since the newspapers only serve to stir up the masses and to overthrow the existing order of things, and since newspaper writers are the dregs of the literary class, the continuance of such dangerous implements can result in no good. We hereby order, therefore, the complete suppression and cessation of all newspapers that have hitherto appeared in the empire.

William Condon died recently at East Bloomfield, N. Y., of the grip, at the age of 111 years, as attested by records in the possession of his family. In early life he was a soldier in the British army. He used tobacco all his life and boasted that he had "made more smoke than the battle of Waterloo." On the same day a woman died in Brooklyn at the age of 101 years who had never used tobacco. So there you are.

Basing his computations on values shown by records of real estate, building, merchandise and railways, Mulhall, the statistician, shows that the United States is now the richest nation on the globe. His figures are: United States, $81,750,000,000; Great Britain, $59,030,000,000; France, $47,950,000,000; Germany, $40,260,000,000; Russia, $32,125,000,000; Austria, $22,560,000,000; Italy, $15,800,000,000; Spain, $11,300,000,000. And we are just beginning to "get a move."

The police of Brussels have unearthed a manufactory of fake masterpieces of art, where imitation pictures by famous masters have been made and passed upon an unsuspecting public. Pictures, claimed to be genuine Millets, Baudrys and Puvis du Chavannes, were seized, and it was evident that the sharpers have been doing business on a large scale. They have made a fortune of a million francs, and the dispatch telling of the matter says that "most of the pictures have been palmed off on wealthy and aristocratic but unknowing Americans."

There is but one person living of all the party of John Brown that went to Harper's Ferry in 1859. She is Mrs. Annie Brown Adams, daughter of the old abolitionist leader. She was housekeeper for the men in the hills of Maryland from early July to the September 29 preceding the raid. She is now old and feeble and very poor. She has resisted all attempts to help her through public subscription, and when personal friends paid off a mortgage on her little property she at first declined to consent to the arrangement. She lives at Petrolia, Humboldt county, Cal.

The young people in Ohio are going to be in need of sympathy before the year is ended, for a state law has gone into effect regulating the issuance of marriage licenses, and according to that measure a young man who applies for a license must be equipped with all kinds of information regarding himself, his bride, their respective antecedents and their family histories. He must tell his bride's mother's maiden name and be able to give accurate information all around as to birthplace, places of residence, occupation, previous matrimonial relations, etc.

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

Serious complications are threatened by a clash between the German consul in Samoa and the representatives of the United States and Great Britain. The cruiser Philadelphia has been ordered to proceed to Samoa at once to represent the United States' interests there.

Manila advices say that American soldiers had landed on the island of Guimaras, about three miles from Iloilo. The landing was effected without opposition.

The United States and Great Britain have been informed by Germany that if her consul in Samoa acted in the manner described by the American and British representatives he acted without authority and she will disavow his action.

Near Genoa a man named Ferrarini and his wife and four children jumped into the sea from the steamer Oriene and all were drowned.

LATER NEWS.

According to a dispatch received from Manila the Filipino congress at Malolos has authorized the release of the Spanish naval prisoners and will shortly liberate the military prisoners.

Lieut. Col. Ray, who is in command at Guantanamo, cables to headquarters at Santiago that a second attempt has been made by disaffected Cubans to burn the cane on the Romoli plantation but that little damage was done owing to the promptitude of the United States soldiers on guard in extinguishing the fires.

Gen. Brooke has been called on by the war department to advise headquarters whether or not more volunteers will be required in Cuba. The The 15th Minnesota, if not sent to Cuba by February 1, will probably be mustered out.

The United States authorities refuse to confirm or deny the rumors that a band of men have been committing murders and robberies in the Mayari district of Cuba, but the reports are persistent. Col. Vaiente, chief of gen d'armerie, has been instructed to raise an extra company to police that part of the province.

The British battleship Collingwood collided with the British cruiser Curacoa, driving a hole in the cruiser below the water line. She began to sink, but was assisted to harbor by tugs.

The advices from Manila which have reached the war department, are far from reasuring. It is understood that Gen. Otis reports an expectation on his part that the insurgents are about to force the issue, and if this should be so the result cannot be forseen. Manilla itself and not Iloilo, as might at first be suspected, is regarded as the danger point just now. Officials at Washington, however, have no fears of the result should a collision take place.

The seismic disturbances which began on Sunday in the provinces of Peloponesus, Greece, still continue, but are much slighter. The latest reports from the earthquake district show that the town of Nisi, in the department of Messinia, seven miles west of Kalamata, has been greatly damaged. In the province of Kyparissia five villages have been completely destroyed.

Attorney General Griggs has recommended to congress that $750.000 be appropriated in the sundry civil bill for a United States penitentary at Atlanta, Ga.

PROCLAIMS A REPUBLIC.

Aguinaldo Declares That a Government Has Been Established in the Philippines.

Washington, Jan. 24. — The government was notified late Monday night that Aguinaldo has taken a decisive step and publicly proclaimed the republic of the Philippines. The ceremony took place at Malolos Monday, and was witnessed by the members of his cabinet. This news comes from Manila, where the tidings of Aguinaldo's proceedings were received with public demonstrations of a mild sort. All is not plain sailing for the insurgents, as it is said the rival authorities at Cebu are fighting. The trouble has not yet reached an acute state, but the safety of the town and surrounding country is in danger. The northern provinces have recently given indications that they are not in accord with Aguinaldo, and should Monday's rash step on his part lead to hostilities with the Americans he may have a revolution as well as a war of conquest on his hands. Another serious feature, according to the dispatches, is that the interior of Luzon is in a ferment. Native officers have been murdered and no effort made to punish the criminals.

Madrid, Jan. 24.—The premier, Senor Sagasta, declares that Aguinaldo has made the liberation of the Spanish prisoners in the Philippine islands conditional upon Spain's recognizing the Philippine republic and allying herself thereto. Aguinaldo, it is added, has similarly demanded the vatican's recognition of the Philippine republic.

WILLIAM WILL YIELD.

Assures the United States and Great Britian He Will Not Uphold Wrong in Samoa.

Washington, Jan. 23.—Germany has informed the United States and Great Britain that if her consul in Samoa acted in the manner described by the American and British representatives he acted without authority and she will disavow his action, but that she can do nothing until a full report has been received. Germany does not mean it to be understood that she disavows in advance of knowledge of all the facts the course pursued by her consul. She may uphold him. And, furthermore, she may call upon the United States for an explanation of the decision of Chief Justice Chambers, and in any event will urge its revision. It is admitted in all quarters that a blunder has been made. If the German consul is responsible his government will remove him, but if Mr. Chambers' decision was not proper then a demand will be made by the German government for his relief.

MAKES ITS REPORT.

Cuban Evacuation Commission Dissolved—No Reference Made to Future Government of the Island.

Washington, Jan. 20.—The Cuban evacuation commission was dissolved Thursday and its members submitted to the president, secretary of state and the secretary of war a report on their labors. The report makes no reference to the future government of the islands and embodies no political recommendations whatsoever, consisting practically of a record of its proceedings with the voluminous correspondence passing mainly between it, the Spanish commission and the administration at Washington. Secretary Alger and the president warmly congratulated the commission on its successful and expeditious work.

Held for Killing His Squaw.

Chadron, Neb., Jan. 24.—A mounted Indian policeman in patrolling the Pine Ridge Indian reservation recently discovered the body of a woman. It was horribly mutiliated and showed that a murder had been committed. Indications pointed to the guilt of the woman's husband, Good Shot. He was taken before a United States commissioner and the evidence wassufficiently strong to warrant the commissioner in binding him over to the United States court. This is the first instance on record of an Indian killing his squaw.

Testimonial to Schley.

New York, Jan. 21.—Rear Admiral Schley was presented Friday night with a jeweled sword by his brother members of the Royal Arcanum at Carnegie music hall in the presence of 4,000 persons. Gov. Lowndes, of Maryland, with a party, and a large number of naval officers were present. After receiving the sword with a graceful speech Admiral Schley buckled it to his side and shook hands with about 3,000 men, women and children. Supreme Regent Edson M. Schryver, of Baltimore, who presided, made the presentation.

Charges Against Gen. Eagan.

Washington, Jan. 20, — The charges and specifications in the court-martial of Commissary Gen. Eagan have been drafted and are now in the hands of the president. The charges are conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman and conduct prejudicial to good order and military discipline. The specifications quote largely from Gen. Eagan's statement attacking Gen. Miles before the war investigating commission.

Elected Senator.

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 21.—Porter J. McCumber, of Richland county, was elected United States senator in the joint assembly of the North Dakota legislature at noon for the six years following the term of William N. Roach (dem.). On the formal ballot McCumber received 77 votes; M. N. Johnson, 1, and Thomas Kleinogel received the fusion vote of 13.

Rev. Dr. Hillis Accepts.

New York, Jan. 23.—Rev. Newell Dwight Hillis has accepted the pastorate of Plymouth church, Brooklyn, to succeed Dr. Lyman Abbott. Dr. Hillis' acceptance telegraphed from Chicago, was read at the morning service at Plymouth church Sunday. Dr. Abbott will take final leave of his congregation in the latter part of February.

Col. Sexton Still Very Ill.

Washington, Jan. 23.—The condition of Col. James A. Sexton, the commander in chief of the Grand Army of the Republic who is critically ill here, shows no material change. At a late hour he was reported resting easily. Col. Sexton is suffering with an aggravated attack of Bright's disease.

THE NICARAGUA CANAL.

Synopsis of the Measure as Passed by the Senate—Only Six Votes in Opposition.

Washington, Jan. 23.—The senate on Saturday passed the Nicaragua canal bill, decided to make the anti-scalping bill the unfinished business, and continued without the completion of the consideration of the Indian appropriation bill. A number of amendments were made to the Nicaragua canal bill, and there were many short speeches during the day. There was, however, no opposition to a vote when the time came, and a roll call on it developed only six votes in opposition to final passage.

The Nicaragua canal bill as it passed continues the name of the Maritime Canal company. It provides for the issuance of 1,000,000 shares of stock of $100 each. The canal company is required to call in all the stock issued except that held by the Nicaragua and Costa Rica governments.

The company is also required to redeem and cancel all bonds and scrip heretofore issued by the company and to satisfy all cash liabilities. To enable the company to comply with this requirement treasury warrants to the amount of $5,000,000 are authorized, with a proviso to the effect that only so much of the amount shall be paid as shall be required to pay the actual cash value of the rights, privileges, franchises and property at the time of the payment, the value to be determined by commissioners to be appointed by the president.

This being done, the secretary of the treasury is authorized to subscribe for 925,000 shares of the company's stock for the government of the United States. The present members of the board of directors are then to resign and a board of seven is to be appointed in their stead, consisting of five on behalf of the United States and one each on behalf of Nicaragua and Costa Rica.

The directors on behalf of the United States are to be appointed by the president and confirmed by the senate. No two of them are to be residents of any one state and no person who has heretofore been interested in the canal company is to be appointed to this office. They are also prohibited from being interested in contracts on the canal.

Each of the directors except the president is to receive a salary of $5,000 per year and the president is to have $6,000. All traveling expenses are to be paid. Annual reports are required. There is a provision against declaring a dividend except upon the net earnings. The company is authorized to contract for the completion of the canal within six years. The payments are restricted to $20,000,000 annually.

The canal is to be large enough "for the use of the largest sea going vessels at a cost not to exceed the estimate of the engineers and not to exceed $115,000,000." This amount is made a permanent appropriation for the work, to be used as occasion may require.

The bill gives the government a lien upon the property to secure the repayment of the moneys advanced, and the president is empowered to declare forfeiture of the property to the United States without the necessity of judicial or other ascertainment. Thereafter full titles to rest in the government of the United States. The president is authorized to suspend payments at any time. The president is also authorized to secure any change in or modification of the terms of the concession either from the concessionaries or from Nicaragua and Costa Rica.

In case of failure in such negotiation the president is also empowered to negotiate for another route across the isthmus. He is further requested to open negotiations for the abrogation of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, or any other treaty found to be in existence and standing in the way of the construction of the canal.

The neutrality of the canal is guaranteed, but the right to protect it against the interruptions of business between the Atlantic and Pacific coasts of the United States is reserved.

AN AWFUL DEED.

Demented Woman in Toledo Commits Suicide After Trying to Kill Her Children.

Toledo, O., Jan. 23.—Mrs. S. J. McCollough, wife of a well-known man of this city, suicided Saturday and attempted to kill her family of three children before she took the drug. The woman was undoubtedly insane. Four of the children were taken violently ill Saturday, caused by eating diseased meat. One child died Saturday afternoon, and the mother attempted to give the living children, all of whom are in a critical condition, a dose of carbolic acid. She was prevented by the people in the house, but she slipped away and was found later in a dying condition. She survived but a few minutes.

To Bar Polygamists.

Washington, Jan. 24.—Representative Clark, of Iowa, Monday introduced a bill "providing that no polygamist shall be senator or representative." It provides that "no person living in or practicing polygamy shall be eligible to be a member of either of the houses of congress, nor shall such person be permitted to hold a seat therein." It is further provided that the evidence of polygamy shall be of "whatever nature that establishes the fact." Another provision makes this act take immediate effect.

High Prices Paid.

New York, Jan. 20.—The extraordinary activity in the New York stock exchange has been reflected in steadily increased prices for membership seats. The action of the governors in purchasing connecting properties on the north and south side of the Broad street entrance, with a view of enlarging the scope of its operations, also stimulated the inquiry for seats. A sale Thursday was made at $35,000, which was the record price. Subsequently $38,000 was bid, with an offer at $40,000.

Congress of Mothers.

Washington, Jan. 24.—The National Congress of Mothers will hold its third annual meeting in Washington in February, from the 14th to the 17th, inclusive, and will include on its programme speakers who are authorities of wide reputation on the subjects which they will present. The meetings of the congress will be held in the First Baptist church, Sixteenth and O streets, where the first congress was held.

Favorable Report Ordered.

Washington, Jan. 22.—The house coinage, weights and measures committee by a strict party vote ordered a favorable report on the substitute for Representative Hill's bill to fix the standard of value in the United States and for other purposes. The bill is supplementary to the currency reform bill, which is still being fought over in the committee on banking and currency.

No Peanut Trust.

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 20.—The heavily-capitalized peanut combination which ex-Gov. Campbell, of Ohio, attempted to form has failed to close up its options secured on many of the mills of this section. In view of the collapse of the new enterprise, the rise in the price of peanuts in the last few days is little short of phenomenal. A jump of one cent in the best grades has startled the trade.

EARTHQUAKE SHOCKS.

Cause Great Damage in Greece—Entire Towns and Many Lives Believed to Have Been Lost.

Athens, Jan. 23.—Entire towns were destroyed and many lives are believed to have been lost by a series of terrible earthquakes that shocked the Peloponnessus, or peninsula of lower Greece, Sunday. The center of the agitation has been the western coast, in the vicinity of the Gulf of Arcadia. The loss of life and property cannot yet be estimated, nor is there any feeling of assurance that the earthquakes that have lasted since early morning are at an end. Many thousands of men, women and children who fled from their homes in terror are camping on the open hills, hungry and miserable. A frightful shock early Sunday morning drove people from their houses and made public buildings and churches totter. Following at irregular intervals came shock after shock of varied severity.

Kyparissia, a town of 3,000 population and a place of great antiquity, is completely destroyed. So is Philiatra, near by. Pyrgos, a town of 10,000 population, has been terribly shaken, as have Andrusa, Kutiphari, Gargaliani, Tavia and numerous others. It is reported in Staso and several other towns not a single habitable house is left.

NEW NAVAL STATION.

Washington, Jan. 20.—The president has issued an executive order setting apart what is known as Mission rock, in San Francisco bay, as a naval reservation. The purpose is to use it as a coaling station, and the department's experts report that it will be the best station that can be had in San Francisco bay. Lying just opposite the Union iron works, in very deep water, this little island is seven miles nearer the entrance to the bay than is Mare island, and will save a great deal of time and some risk to the largest naval vessels in taking on coal. The navy department sent out instructions to the commandant of Mare island to take possession of the Rock in the name of the United States. It is claimed by private parties under a grant from the state of California, but the government insists that its title is good. The place is valued at a quarter of a million dollars.

HOME AGAIN.

The Famous Astor Battery Arrives in New York After Months of Service at Manila.

New York, Jan. 23.—After an absence of more than seven months the Astor battery arrived in New York Sunday. During their absence the men have traveled to and from the Philippine islands and have seen active service against the Spaniards under Gen. McArthur at Manila. They marched from the city June 13, with three officers and 99 men. They returned with one officer and 82 men. Their loss from death was five—three died in action and two from sickness. Six men were sent home invalids and six were discharged for one cause or another. Two officers remained behind with the regiments from which they had been detailed for service with the battery, one in Manila and one at Rock Island arsenal.

Honor for Roosevelt.

Washington, Jan. 20.—Gov. Theodore Roosevelt, of New York, formerly colonel of the First United States volunteer cavalry (rough riders), will receive the brevet of brigadier general of volunteers for gallant and meritorious conduct in the Santiago campaign, provided the senate confirms his nomination by the president. Gov. Roosevelt's name is included in a long list of nearly 500 officers who have been recommended by the army brevet board, of which Gen. Schwan is president, for brevet appointments for distinguished conduct in Cuba.

Gold from Klondike.

Victoria, B. C., Jan. 20.—The steamer Danube, which arrived from the north Thursday, brought about 60 men from Dawson and Atlin, with about $400,000 in gold dust. The Dawson men say the Upper Dominion creek is panning out well, running from $2.50 to four dollars a pan. There are still 15 tons of Canadian and American mail at Tagish awaiting to be forwarded. A great deal of typhoid fever is reported at Dawson—some say fully 800 cases. Seven men have been frozen to death in the Klondike this winter.

Still in Deadlock.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 24.—The republican senatorial deadlock continues. Three ballots were taken in caucus Monday night, making 25 in all. The only change was that of Assemblyman Dresser, of St. Croix county, who went from Cook to Stephenson. The last ballot stood: Quarles, 41; Stephenson, 24; Cook, 17; Babcock, 15; Webb, 10. Balloting will be resumed this morning. The caucus committee will meet at nine a. m. Balloting for senator will begin in both houses in separate session.

Ex-Convict Elected Mayor.

Dublin, Jan. 24.—John Daly, the Irish political prisoner who was released from Portland prison in 1896, after having been sentenced to penal servitude for life in 1884 for complicity in an alleged plot to blow up the house of commons while in session, by throwing dynamite bombs from the strangers' gallery, has been elected mayor of Limerick, by a unanimous vote, under the new Irish local government act.

His Lips Unsealed.

Paris, Jan. 23.—Maj. Comte Ferdinand Wilsin Esterhazy, the reputed author of the Dreyfus bordereau, who arrived here Wednesday evening from Rotterdam to testify before the court of cassation, wrote Saturday to M. de Freycinet, the minister of war, asking to be released from his oath of professional secrecy. M. de Freycinet has acceded to his request.

Payne Is Named.

Washington, Jan. 21.—Speaker Reed Friday put an end to the speculation regarding the chairmanship of the ways and means committee by appointing Mr. Payne (rep., N. Y.) to the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Dingley. This carries with it the floor leadership of the majority.

One on the Rector.

The little daughter of a local clergyman has reached the age where big words are apt to floor her, and where she is very sensitive to the remarks of an older brother.

Not long ago she came running to her father.

"Papa, papa, George called me names."

"Why, what did George say?"

"Oh," said the little girl with a strong expression of disgust, "he said I practiced what I preached. I don't, do I?"

"Well, my child, I—"

"But I don't, do I, papa? I don't any more than you do, do I?"

And then the rector choked up. But he took a half hour from his sermon and explained the meaning of the obnoxious expression to the best of his ability.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

What does it do?

It causes the oil glands in the skin to become more active, making the hair soft and glossy, precisely as nature intended.

It Prevents and It Cures Baldness

Ayer's Hair Vigor will surely make hair grow on bald heads, provided only there is any life remaining in the hair bulbs.

It restores color to gray or white hair. It does not do this in a moment, as will a hair dye; but in a short time the gray color of age gradually disappears and the darker color of youth takes its place.

Would you like a copy of our book on the Hair and Scalp? It is free.

If you do not obtain all the benefits you expected from the use of the Vigor write the Doctor about it.

Address, DR. J. C. AYER, Lowell, Mass.

LEGISLATIVE GOSSIP

Our Special Correspondent Tells of the Solons' Doings.

A Bill in the House Proposes an Increase in the Capacity of the Binding Twine Plant in the Penitentiary.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 19.—The formality of concluding the election of United States senator by reading the result of the vote in the respective houses taken Tuesday, was gone through with in joint session of the legislature yesterday and Speaker Dare formally announced that Cushman K. Davis had been elected to succeed himself for the term of six years commencing March 4th next.

Senator Davis sent the following graceful telegram of acknowledgement to the legislature which was read to that body.

"Washington, Jan. 18.—Hon. Lyndon A. Smith, Lieutenant Governor, St. Paul, Minn.

"I most respectfully request that you will communicate to the senate of the state of Minnesota this expression of my appreciation of the honor conferred upon me by my election as senator of the United States. It has been usual, and it is in every way most proper, that the person chosen to that high office should appear upon the occasion of his election, and in either a public manner, or by personal intercourse, express his acknowledgements. Duties of the most imperative nature have withheld me from gratifying my great desire to be now in St. Paul. I am certain that my action in this respect will be approved. During my term of nearly 12 years in the service of the senate, I have endeavored to serve the interests of my state and country to the best of my ability. The people of Minnesota have been lenient respecting my errors, and most appreciative of such of my official actions as they have pleased to approve.

"Events have placed me during the past two years in trying and responsible relations to some of the most momentous questions in our history as a nation. In dealing with these questions of doubt and perplexity, intensified by the necessity for immediate and irrevocable action, I have always felt sustained and strengthened by the moral and intellectual force of a great, wise and patriotic constituency. To that constituency and to their legislative representatives I now tender my thanks.

"Every good citizen desires in times like the present to be of service to his country, to raise it to a higher plane, to increase its power and just influence in the affairs of nations and its security in its domestic concerns. I claim only a part of this common desire and am proud beyond expression that the people of Minnesota have delegated me to represent in part their judgment, will and conscience. It may be thought that the expression of sentiment, purely personal, should have no place in such a communication as this, but be this as it may, I cannot refrain from saying to my personal friends who for so many years have sustained me with unfaltering trust, that I am most deeply sensitive of their devotion.

"It is, I think, most eminently fitting that I should tender to those with whom I differ most widely in principles of domestic policies my sentiments of high appreciation of their approval of my actions respecting our foreign relations. It has always been cardinal in our politics that while the American people may differ strenuously concerning their national affairs, they are nevertheless a unit when they are confronted by foreign complications. In this unity we are all as one man, and so may we always be. I have the honor to be yours sincerely,

"CUSHMAN K. DAVIS."

A bill that will interest about as many people in the state as any which is likely to be introduced this session was offered by Senator Wilson regulating the cause for divorce and repealing the divorce law of 1895. Senator Wilson's bill limits causes for divorce to adultery, impotency, cruelty, sentence to state prison, habitual drunkenness for one year and wilful desertion for three years. The law of '95 allowed a divorce for one year's desertion. The proposed law, if it becomes an act, will not be as popular as the old one owing to its more stringent features.

The first bill to be killed was one forbidding stealing rides on railroad trains. Apparently the Senate is tenderly inclined towards tramps.

The House indulged in a war episode and gave its members a chance to indulge in some patriotic talk by considering some resolutions urging the United States Senate to ratify the peace treaty. The resolutions were passed with only four negative votes. An effort was made to put through the bill appropriating $24,500 for the expense of Minnesota's display at the Omaha Exposition, but the effort failed. This money was raised by our citizens because the legislature of 1897 refused to make an appropriation and this bill is designed to reimburse the citizens.

A bill amending the tax laws of 1878 was killed after a sharp debate. It is claimed that the present law compels both the owner and giver of a mortgage to pay taxes on the amount and the amendment proposed to limit the taxation to the owner of the mortgage. Apparently the majority of the House have no mortgages outstanding.

The sessions of both branches were brief, owing to the joint session for the senatorial election, but now that that incident is entirely out of the way, both branches will doubtless settle down to regular business hours.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 20.—Thirteen new bills were introduced in the Senate yesterday and one of minor importance passed. One of the bills appropriates five thousand dollars for education in butter making. It is very doubtful whether such a bill can run the gauntlet of both houses, as it opens the door for many expenditures in behalf of private interests, but it will test the strength of the farmers, at least.

There was a long debate in committee of the whole concerning the bill allowing children's home societies to take charge of homeless waifs, but no results were reached. The possibility of abuses growing up owing to the abondoning of children and their being relegated to the tender mercies of irresponsible societies where they would not receive proper treatment or training was exploited to the disadvantage of the bill.

The House is not keeping up its record in the introduction of bills, but six being offered yesterday, the whole session lasting but an hour. It should not be understood, however, that short sessions necessarily indicate that the legislature is not industrious, for, as a matter of fact, the real deliberate work of the legislature is done in the committees and of the thousand bills that are liable to be offered before the session closes perhaps not more than half a dozen will be fought out at any length in the open session.

In the committee of the whole the chief measure considered was a bill to reduce the interest on land bought from the state. School lands are now sold on long time, the deferred payments drawing five per cent interest and the pending bill proposes to reduce this interest four per cent. One of the members argued that five per cent compelled the purchasers to pay faster than they should, thus putting more money in the school fund than could be used to advantage and that the state officers could not find safe investment for the surplus money at a higher rate than three per cent, and it was better for our own people to keep the money in their pocket and pay four per cent on deferred payments. It is a novelty to have to legislate to keep people from paying their debts in order to save interest.

St. Paul, Jan. 21.—National affairs were prominent in the Senate yesterday. It did not take a great while for that body to vote down Senator Stockwell's anti-expansion resolutions, but when it came to passing the joint resolution sent in from the House urging the United States Senate to promptly ratify the peace treaty there was a good deal of Republican opposition manifested. Not that they were opposed to the treaty, but they were opposed to thrusting national affairs into the legislature and giving their advice to the United States Senate. The resolutions passed 35 to 16, but a good many who voted for them did so with the explanation that they did not want to be understood as against the treaty and simply supported them to avoid being put in a false position.

A bill was offered creating one more office, that of custodian of documents in the Secretary of State's office, with a salary attachment of $1,200. This really is not a bad idea, for as at present, after the first call for a new document is over the surplus copies are shunted into a dark corner in the basement and it is scarcely possible to find them again when wanted. It would be well to either print fewer documents or else have some one take care of them.

There were a couple of interesting bills presented in the House one by Mr. Wheaton making the value of human life $10,000 instead of $5,000, as at present. As it stands now, it is cheaper for a railroad or other corporation to kill a man outright than it is to maim him, for if he is dead only five thousand dollars can be collected, but if he has his leg cut off he may get a much larger sum.

The other bill was also aimed at railroads, as it forbids black listing of employes, the minimum penalty for doing so being a fine of five hundred dollars.

Two years ago an effort was made to abolish the office of state fire warden, and according to a bill offered yesterday the attempt is to be renewed this year. If the majority of the legislature lives in a prairie country the bill may pass, but those who inhabit woods are pretty likely to oppose it.

A large portion of the House wanted to adjourn until Monday or Tuesday, but Jacobson said no and the noes carried, so there will be a session today.

St. Paul, Jan. 23.—Considering that the House was the only branch of the legislature in session Saturday, a good deal of business was done. As a rule when one branch has adjourned over Saturday the other branch does not feel like working much, but this time was an exception. A large portion of the time was occupied in discussing bills in committee of the whole. The bill reimbursing the citizens who furnished the money to make the state exhibit at Omaha elicited a good deal of opposition, but was finally recommended to pass. Minnesota would have had a poor representative at the World's Fair, as well as at Omaha, if the matter had been left entirely to the legislature. The necessary money was first pledged by citizens for the World's Fair and then the legislature shouldered the burden.

The bill reducing the rate of interest on school lands purchased of the state from 5 to 4 per cent and extending the time of payment to fifty years, had another airing and was made the special order for Wednesday. The argument for the bill was that if the interest was reduced people would not hurry to pay the principal, and if the state received 4 per cent from the deferred payments it would be more than it would obtain if the principal was paid in and reinvested by the state. The argument against the bill was that purchasers would not pay any faster to relieve themselves of 5 per cent interest than of 4 per cent, and that the state would merely lose one per cent interest by passing the bill.

The committee reported in favor of indefinitely postponing the bill forbidding state officers from receiving railroad passes. There will be a fight on this bill a little later, but it is not likely to pass, as it would set a precedent which would prevent members of the legislature from having passes. They are very convenient in going home to consult their constituents.

The anti-black listing bill was held up for amendment, one member jokingly saying that they ought to delay passing it until they had received all their own railroad transportation.

The usual bills taxing the express companies have received an early start, and three of them are under consideration in the House. The plea of the express companies against the proposed taxation, is that they pay large rentals to the railroad companies and that the tax paid by railroads on their earnings largely covers the express business as well. A public hearing on these bills was set for next Friday night.

If a pending bill passes, country merchants who ship produce to the commission houses of the Twin Cities for sale, will have some protection. It provides that all commission men must secure a license from the grain and warehouse commission and give a bond, in proportion to the amount of business they do, guaranteeing settlement with their customers.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 24.—The attempt of the House to be industrious has not amounted to much just because the Senate adjourned from Saturday till Tuesday. Neither Saturday nor yesterday was anything especial accomplished.

Only two bills were offered yesterday and one of them proposed to increase the capacity of the binding twine plant in the penitentiary. The committee has not begun its investigation yet as to the management of the present binding twine plant, so that this bill will probably rest in the hands of the committee until something official is known as to what happened last year.

The greater portion of the session was occupied in discussing the bill for the election of the railroad commissioners by the people. There did not seem to be so much controversy as to whether the commissioners should be elected instead of appointed by the governor, as there was to determine the term of office and the debate was almost entirely as to whether the commissioners should hold two, four or six years. After a four years term amendment was lost the House concluded to suspend business and report progress. Four bills were passed but none of them affecting anything more than local interests.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

An Enlarged Plant.

The enlargement of the Minnesota Iron and Steel company's establishment at Minneapolis by the addition of a large open hearth steel plant has been completed. The building is entirely finished, the open hearth furnace and other machinery have been put in place and the fires have been started.

It will take about ten days to heat the furnaces to the proper temperature for use, and at the end of that time the crews which are being engaged will be put at work. The force of men now employed will be augmented by about 100 more men when the manufacture of steel is commenced.

The new department will have a capacity of 20,000 tons of finished steel per year, making the total tonnage capacity of the mill about 40,000 tons of iron and steel a year. In addition to the production of steel, the company will continue to turn out bar iron from the old part of the factory. The rolling mills will be able to cover practically all the requirements of the Northwest, the output now consisting of bar iron and soft steel bars, flats, plates, wagon and buggy tires, steel castings, nuts, bolts, harrow teeth, drift pins, spikes, etc.

The mill has now been running night and day since last April, and the pay roll has averaged over 300 men. The steel plant will require an addition to the force of over 100 men.

Forest Preservation.

Under this head the state auditor (and forest commissioner) in his annual report says: "The law for preventing and extinguishing forest and prairie fires has been in operation practically for four years, and has met reasonable expectations. During this period Minnesota has been free from such serious forest fires as have occurred in neighboring states. Of course it needs no law to make people turn out to save their own or neighbors' property from fire, but the benefit of the fire warden is especially apparent in cases where a forest fire may have been set in a remote or a sparsely settled locality, in a dry season, and which, but for the prompt attention of fire wardens, might prove disastrous. The leading object of the law also is to prevent dangerous forest or prairie fires from being set. Prevention, indeed, is its leading principle. Not only does the fire warden law tend to prevent such a catastrophe as occurred at Hinckley in 1894, but by helping to save the younger growth of timber, it tends to prolong our important lumber industry."

To Survey the Forests.

A. B. Ayres, of Carlton, Minn., has been granted a commission from the national bureau of forestry at Washington to make a forest survey of Minnesota. The work will be begun at once, and will be done in a thorough manner, the object being to procure data for the publication of an accurate forestry and geological map of the state, the geological facts, of course, being taken from the state surveys already existing.

Wherever possible, Mr. Ayres will obtain his information from the owners of the various timber tracts, but when this is impractical he will himself visit the districts in question and will ascertain what regions have been cut over, what burned over, what restocked, and what are still in their primeval condition.

Telephone Companies.

State Auditor Dunn made drafts on the telephone companies in Minnesota for the 3 per cent gross earnings tax provided for by the law of 1897. The draft was made in accordance with the signed statement presented by the officers of the telephone companies as to the amount of their earnings for the year. The Northwestern Telephone company heads the list with a tax of $12,730.53, the Duluth Telephone company will pay $875.35, the Winona company pays as its share $373.35, the Blue Earth Valley Telephone company contributes $221.17.

Orphans' Home Burned.

The main building of the Orphans' Home at Vasa, 12 miles from Red Wing, owned by the Swedish Lutheran conference, was burned to the ground. A small boy playing with matches was the cause. There were about 65 children in the building, some of whom barely escaped with their lives. The surrounding buildings were saved by hard work. The loss is about $12,000.

A HUSTLING HOST.

He Had a Little Scheme for Making His Guests Pay for Their Dinners.

It was an apparently innocent little dinner invitation which drew a number of California street heavyweights to the handsome home of a capitalist on Pacific avenue, who is no longer popular in the Pacific Union club. After the dinner, which was elaborately planned, perfectly served and thoroughly appreciated, the host led the way to the billiard room, where he produced for the inspection of his friends a new roulette wheel which he had just purchased.

After it had been examined and duly admired monsieur proposed that his friends tempt fortune with it, announcing that he would be banker, and smilingly invited them to "break him." The guests scarcely expected this sort of diversion, but they hardly could decline the "entertainment" which had been provided for them. Having carelessly undertaken to call the turn on the black or the red, they expected to lose a trifle to their host, but they did not anticipate any such financial catastrophe as overtook each of the players.

The bank won steadily. Soon all the player guests were "broke," but the host offered, in an off-hand way, to stake one and all, guarding against a loss of the frequent loans, however, by taking the checks of his friends. For the purpose, with admirable forethought, he had provided himself with blank checks on every bank in town.

There was no escape for his victims. They were all thoroughly trapped and well scorched before they were released. The guests caught the first car home in the morning, the urbane host, with unparalleled generosity, presenting each guest with a nickel to pay his fare.—San Francisco News-Letter.

A DIFFICULT CASE.

It Was One That the Best Skill of Physicians Could Not Cope With.

"Curious case! Curious case!" exclaimed a Detroit physician who is old enough to have encountered all sorts of experiences in a professional way.

"Anything in the line of surgery?" asked the younger doctor who had been addressed.

"No; insomnia; one of the most difficult maladies with which we have to deal. Very interesting young lady. Very interesting, indeed. Nervous organism entirely too sensitive, however, and apparently proof against the remedies prescribed in the books. Her trouble began after her engagement. She evaded my questions for some time, but at last admitted that she lay awake thinking how much she loved and adored her prospective husband. No amount of will power at her command could put aside her blissful meditations to make way for sleep, and my prescriptions were equally impotent. At last the case became so critical that I consulted with the students, and they induced the young man to make an enormous sacrifice by breaking the engagement."

"You are a marvel," said the younger man, admiringly. "I think that there are often cases in which common sense can supply defects in our progressive but incomplete science of medicine; but it is not always that a doctor has the requisite fund of common sense on which to draw. Your experience is not only exceptional but truly wonderful. I must make a note of it. Of course recovery was immediate?"

"No," with hesitation. "The truth is, she now lies awake thinking how she hates him."—Detroit Free Press.

GREAT HEAD.

A Small Saleslady Who Knows a Thing or Two About Manipulating Stock.

It was just before New Year's day, and Mamie and Sadie were having a friendly chat over the counter. Mamie was a diminutive saleslgirl, not much older than Sadie, whose daily attention was given theoretically to the cry of "Cahsh!"

"Say, Mamie," remarked Sadie, "did ye see them calendars on the table two rooms over?"

"Which ones?"

"Did I see 'em?" with peculiar emphasis from Mamie as she pulled open a drawer and pointed triumphantly to two specimens of the said calendars.

"You bought two of 'em?" in awe-struck tones from Sadie.

"Well, I ain't bought 'em yet. I just picked out two of 'em and put 'em away. They'll mark the ones that's left down to five cents pretty soon. Then I'll put these here back and buy 'em, quick. See?

Sadie saw, and her mouth fell open in admiring awe. Then she recovered herself.

"Say! will ye save one for me?"

"Sure."

Sadie rushed off, and inside of two minutes a third calendar was in the drawer waiting for a drop in prices.—N. Y. Sun.

NERVOUS DEPRESSION.

[A TALK WITH MRS. PINKHAM.]

A woman with the blues is a very uncomfortable person. She is illogical, unhappy and frequently hysterical.

The condition of the mind known as "the blues," nearly always, with women, results from diseased organs of generation.

It is a source of wonder that in this age of advanced medical science, any person should still believe that mere force of will and determination will overcome depressed spirits and nervousness in women. These troubles are indications of disease.

Every woman who doesn't understand her condition should write to Lynn, Mass., to Mrs. Pinkham for her advice. Her advice is thorough common sense, and is the counsel of a learned woman of great experience. Read the story of Mrs. F. S. BENNETT, Westphalia, Kansas, as told in the following letter:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have suffered for over two years with falling, enlargement and ulceration of the womb, and this spring, being in such a weakened condition, caused me to flow for nearly six months. Some time ago, urged by friends, I wrote to you for advice. After using the treatment which you advised for a short time, that terrible flow stopped.

"I am now gaining strength and flesh, and have better health than I have had for the past ten years. I wish to say to all distressed, suffering women, do not suffer longer, when there is one so kind and willing to aid you."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a woman's remedy for woman's ills. More than a million women have been benefited by it.

Shall Porto Rico Be a State?

Our public men are trying to decide what action should be taken regarding the status of Porto Rico. We have never before had to deal with a similar condition where nearly a million people of a foreign tongue have been annexed. Neither have we ever had before such a reliable medicine for malaria, fever and ague as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It drives the poisons out of the system and establishes strength to resist future attacks.

Destined to Be Great.

The shipping clerk kept his rubber stamps in a big, deep box on a shelf near him, "where they are handy," he said. But the errand boy was looking for an opportunity to make himself invaluable, so at noon, while he was "in charge" of the works, he drove small nails into the partition in such a manner that each rubber stamp could be hung separately on two nails. An impression of the stamp was then made upon a small slip of paper, and this slip was pasted above each stamp. The appreciation of the shipping clerk was shown when he said this arrangement saved him at least an hour's work every day. Some day that errand boy will be the proprietor of a business so systematized that he will not grow prematurely old with worry.—Furniture Journal.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. A CONGRESSMAN'S LETTER.

ST. VINCENT'S ORPHAN ASYLUM, EAST MAIN ST., COLUMBUS, OHIO.

ST VINCENT'S ORPHAN ASYLUM, EAST MAIN STREET, COR ROSE AVENUE, Columbus, O.

Dr S B Hartman

"Some years ago a friend of our institution recommended to us Dr Hartman's 'Pe-ru-na' as an excellent remedy for the influenza, of which we then had several cases which threatened to be of a serious character.

"We began to use it and experienced such wonderful results that since then Pe-ru-na has become our favorite medicine for influenza, catarrh, coughs, colds, and bronchitis.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, Jan. 27, 1899.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—On Sunday night quite a snow fell making sleighing good Monday.

—The K. P's gave a grand ball at the City Hall last Friday evening.

—Some of our Woodmen attended the party for G. C. Woolley, at Howard Lake, Wednesday evening.

—Scott Gunn's three girls have recovered from measles, and are around once more. So far no new cases have been reported in our village.

—Dark does not come quite so early in the evening as it did a few weeks back. There is considerable more day light than there was a month ago.

—Some new dynamoes are being put in place at the power house. It is hoped they will furnish a better light than we have been having for some time past.

—The Rebeka's sociable held at the I. O. O. F. hall Tuesday evening was well attended. Receipts over $10. Some new carpet is to be bought for the hall soon.

—A genuine blizzard arrived in our midst, and all around us, on Thursday morning. Wind and snow poured in at every crack and crevice and people had all they could do to keep comfortable.

—Delano Creamery is running in fine shape, a 24 per cent dividend in 10 months is a paying investment. Minnesota is becoming the banner butter State in the Union, and our part of the country is keeping along with the procession.

—Dr. J. E. Soper has moved to Norwood to locate in the practice of medicine. Dr. Koch, formerly at that place recently died, leaving an opening for a new man. Some of our citizens tendered a party to Dr. S. and family Saturday evening at their residence.

—Andrew Hanseman says while in Laramore where he was recently at work, he called on Dr. A. P. Rounseville a one time Delanoite. He says the doctor is doing all right; but like the rest of us is growing old; he wears a genuine Populistic beard full length, and as white as a Patriarch's.

—At 10 o'clock Wednesday evening, the fire bell called Delano's citizens to their doors expecting to see a big fire. The wind was blowing a gale from the northwest, and with a small start a conflagration of large proportions was sure to follow. It proved to be Andrew Raider's chimney on his residence on the west side, and no harm come of it.

—Washington's birthday three weeks from next Wednesday. This is a year when people can well wax patriotic. The officers of Washington's Birthday Society of Delano should get together and arrange for the biggest celebration yet held. The society has become noted for having good celebrations, so the present officers will have to get a move on things to keep up the reputation of the Society.

—Some people having business with the Delano Cemetary Association are getting anxious to have it completed, That's right it is high time it was. But unfortately the Association has not yet received word of the recording of the plat placed in Mr. Pidgeon's hands for that purpose before election and can make no deeds to lots until the plat is recorded. It is to be hoped that the matter will soon be satisfactorily arranged, and that business can again go on.

It was generally believed that Gov. Lind would not disturb E. H. Dearth in his position of Insurance Commissioner and now that belief is made a certainty. You see Elmer is a son-in law of Michael Doran and it never would do for the governor to wipe him off the slate.—Litchfield News Ledger.

Pure Water For Hogs.

Scientific researches have demonstrated that hog cholera and diseases of hogs are due to bacteria, or germs, that gain life and thrive in the fall during the dry season. The germs collect in the shallow watering places and infect the hog troughs. Pigs are compelled to drink this water, thereby sowing the seeds of cholera, weakening their vitality and causing many to die throughout the fall and early winter. This germ life is not killed during the winter by freezing, but only remains inactive until spring, when, due to the thawing of the snow and spring rains, the germs contained in the filth of the hog yard, watering troughs and wallowing holes, again thrive and become active, producing serious results at once, the disease often continuing until the entire herd dies. This is all due to hog cholera, caused only by infected water. -The Farm, Field, and Stockman.

Mrs. Dr. Soper left on Monday afternoon for her new home at Norwood.

C. J. Buckley made a flying trip to Minneapolis Monday afternoon.

Messrs Mayer and Camp, of Watertown were GAZETTE callers Monday.

Leo Baldus, of the S. W. corner of Franklin, was a Delano visitor Wednesday.

John Sutton, of Montana, has been spending several weeks with Delano friends.

W. M. Mowatt visited his father in Minneapolis Sunday. He found him quite sick.

Mr and Mrs. Leon Frazee, of Monticello were calling on old Delano friends this week

Rev. J. W. Powell, of Spring Island, is calling on his old Delano parishoners this week.

Dr. Rutledge, of Minneapolis, came up Wednesday night to visit Mrs. William Sturman, of Franklin.

T. S. Kerr is down on the Mississippi, working at his old trade, calking steamboats, helping get them ready for spring.

Mrs. Ferdinand Japs and daughter, and her mother, Mrs. Kelgler went to St. Paul on Saturday for a visit with old friends.

Prof. Bohn visited Howard Lake Wednesday night to assist W. W. Holcome in furnishing music for the Woodman's entertainment.

County Cullings.

The County Commissioners are to hold a meeting concerning steam heat. It looks as if their work so far wont stick.

Joe Boxell, according to some paper has quarters in the insane department of the Hennepin County jail. Is that a move to plead insanity?

One of the city dailies last week had quite a roast for the Wright County Board of Commissioners on account of the way they let the contract for putting steam heat into the Court House.

The County commissioners can do most any way they please this year, and it seems, not fear a word from the Newspaper Syndicate that passes around their proceedings as paid matter.

A good many remarks are heard about how it happens that certain individuals are generally found on the Jury. It does seem that out of a chosen few some of the lot usually appear every year.

Some Wright county politicians are talking of having the Legislature do away with the 18th Judicial district. Maybe they think they could do better in with Hennepin county again. There's politics in it!

The Eagle quotes at length from Bede's Budget, which favors Page Morris for Knute Nelson's place in the U. S. Senate. Now would be a pretty good time to get in some work toward having the people instead of the Legislature elect the United States Senators.

We were not a little surprised to find the Old Bird up street the first to bite on Henry Watterson's hook baited with Dewey and Lee for President and Vice President. Politics do make strange bedfellows. Just imagine if you can, the Eagle and the Star Eyed Goddess of Liberty bunking together.

Mr. Saylor, of the Howard Lake Herald must be a "hot tamalle." He is kicking on Page Morris running for Congress again because he is so "icy". Maybe Billy Culkin would be about the temperature he would like. By the way he didnt like Belden for a legislator, because he preferred dining at the Bethel instead of with some of the other members.

The Eagle's column and a quarter item on steam heating of the Court House is about as bungling an affair as was the contract letting by the County Commissioners But the Old Bird has the printing contract. For our part judging from the bids made, as published, we think the commissioners might have done better for the county than to let the heating for $1,529 We think the present Board of Commissioners will stand considerable watching in more ways than one, and that they have backing where they ought not to have.

Although Gov. Lind put himself to considerable trouble to look into the treatment of Insane people in our neighboring state of Wisconsin, and became thoroughly convinced that their county plan was better, and cheaper, costing but $1.39 per week last year, per head, in Dane county where he visited, and recommended the adoption of that plan here, allowing every county that saw fit to do so to erect buildings and receive aid from the State at an established rate per head for patients the legislature don't seem inclined to vote it. But from present symptoms will keep the patients entirely under state control, and build an asylum at Anoka and another at Hastings to relieve the overcrowded condition of the present mammoth structures.

Of course these new buildings are to be very ordinary affairs to start with, but once started and it want take long to get other appropriations to add to the buildings till they are as big as their predecessors and cost as much or more.

One thing against the big asylums and in favor of the little ones is that as at present arranged people can hardly ever see their afflicted friends. It requires so much railroad fare to go from Wright county for instance to Fergus Falls, that few people can afford to go, and when they do only one member of a family at a time. If the county plan was in vogue people in each county could often drive with their families to the asylum and make their friends visits, and see that they were being properly cared for.

Change in Medical Examinations.

The bill to allow Osteopaths to practice medicine in Minnesota has been placed in the hands of Senator, Dr. E. Y. Chilton, of Wright. It is proposed that the requirements for passing an examination to practice medicine remain the same except that questions in Materia Medica and Therapeutics be dropped. Thus leaving the qualified physician at liberty to use whatever remedies he or she may see fit.

This may be a good thing for the new school, and for some others. But we fear it will deteriorate rather than improve the regular, who, finding he does not have to stand examinations in these two important branches shirks or neglects them in his school years. Of course the patients would be the principle sufferers when they employ these doctors who know little or nothing about remedial agents, or their actions. There has for sometime been a laxness in these branches. Many graduates of medical schools never saw samples of drugs he has been taught, parrot like, to write prescriptions for. Many, unused to seeing the drugs, would have no ideas of how big a bulk would make a dose should they be called in where the medicine was at hand. Still worse, it has become fashionable among some to practice remedies looking nice, and tasting pleasant, and put up ready for use, for this or that ailment, and the doctor prescribing them doesn't even know himself, what drugs are used in the mixture; the ordinary dose; nor how it should act, nor the bad effects to be looked for.

Instead of opening the door for a still worse state of affairs in this line, wouldn't it be safer for the public, and pleasanter for the physicians to be obliged to be more thorough in their knowledge of remedies?

Independence.

It has now been two months since the storm in November and since then we can not complain of the winter: yet many people have been troubled with colds, rheumatism, LaGrippe etc: but these things we must expect in this life. Paul says: these light affections worketh for us a far more exceedingly and eternal weight of glory."

It seems they have been holding a lovefeast at our little Court House in Minneapolis of late. The County Commissioners of Hennepin went into retrenchment and reform by cutting down the help and salaries in some of the offices, and it seems the one in the bunch that was struck the hardest was the Auditors office, and C. J. Minor, county auditor, is dealing out vengence by coloring the air blue around his sanctum, but our County Auditor could stand it a little better had he not found out that these same Commissioners were trying to get a bill through the Legislature increasing their salary from $75 00 per month to $100 00. This was too much for his christian spirit.

The state G. A. R. encampment will meet in St. Paul 23 & 24 of next month all old Vets are requested to be there

Some are trying to place the badge of honor upon Dewey and Lee and boom them for the Presidency in 1900

Andrew Jackson's policy was to the victors belong the spoils, but a mere victory in a naval fight is not always conclusive evidence that the hero is a fit subject for the presidency.

Some say times are looking up. "As Moses lifted up the Serpent in the Wilderness even so shall the Son of Man be lifted up" this passage of Scripture was of divine origin, and by looking upon the brazen serpent one might live, but this cry of "times is looking up" is only to give the fellows more courage that he may keep on whistling and while his attention is attracted from the main issue he is easily handled.

If this Country intends taking charge of the Philippine Islands and the Philippines to civilize and christianize them, this country has a job on its hands that will last them from now till eternity.

Some people think those Islands will bring us great revenue, but the ammunition will be worth more than the game. Some people are all the while fiddling a tune upon their jaw bone about Patriotism, love of country, and humanity. When a person gets to be overly patriotic better lookout for your hen roost if you have no lock on the door.

This country did not need to go into the expansion business, from Ocean to Ocean and from the North to the Rio grande is territory enough for one country, better to improve what we have before acquiring more territory.

Our people are becoming full of notions. Some think we need the earth in order to make us happy but the possession of wealth does not constitute all the happiness there is. Sometimes the man with a clear conscience and an empty pocket is in more enjoyment than the Millionare, or any of the bankers of Lombard and Wall Street, yet I do not contend that poverty is a blessing and should be sought for. Many times and most of the time poverty is not a very agreeable companion.

Republican Resolutions.

C. A. French read a resolution which was adopted as follows:

RESOLVED: That we commend the course of Senator C. K. Davis the senior senator from this state, and earnestly urge that the nominees of this Senatorial Convention give him their undivided support if elected to again return him to the United States senate at the close of his present term.

E. D. Washburn presented the following resolution, which was also passed:

WE, the republicans of Wright County in convention assembled, renew our allegiance to the principles of the republican party, and pledge our loyal support to all the nominees of the party in which as voters we exercise the rights of suffrage.

ADVERTISE

THE delights of an evening spent around a well-lighted reading table are not half understood. An illustrated magazine with its wealth of illustrations, its stories of adventure and love, its descriptions of travel which carry you to the remotest ends of the earth, and its instructive articles for young and old—these are the first requisites for your own enjoyment and the entertainment and proper education of your children.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal,

In this way you secure your own home paper and an illustrated magazine at a price that is only about a fourth of what some of the illustrated magazines sell for. For three years The Cosmopolitan has undisputedly claimed that it reached the largest clientele possessed by any periodical, daily, weekly or monthly, in the world. It was The Cosmopolitan which sent Julian Hawthorne to India to let the world know the real horrors of famine and plague. It was The Cosmopolitan which established at its own cost a great Free Correspondence University which now has over 20,000 students on its rolls. It was The Cosmopolitan which offered a prize of $3,000 for the best horseless carriage and prizes for best plans for public baths, and best arrangement of sewer and pipe systems for cities. It was The Cosmopolitan which set the presidents of great schools and universities seriously discussing the defects of existing educational systems. It is The Cosmopolitan whose enterprise is always in the lead in advancing the world's civilization.

We have also succeeded in arranging for two additional offers in connection with this journal and The Cosmopolitan.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $1.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

One other opportunity we offer you. You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine

Three Together One Year for Only $ 2.35

Entered as Second-Class Mail Matter at the Post Office in Delano, Minn

IT is claimed there are 532 cases of leprosy in the United States. An asylum for them is talked of. If the lepers in the new possessions are counted there probably is many more than 532.

GOMEZ, it is claimed, wants only about $60,000,000 to pay his soldiers before they disband; $20,000,000 to Spain for the Philippines, and millions more for our own expanded army, navy and other expenses connected with the new idea. Expansion appears to be expensive.

MCKINLEY has the happy faculty of having things come out to suit him, no matter how they go. Now he never meant to rule the Philippines. But what else could be expected of a man of destiny but to be contented with whatever comes? No matter how the politicians wriggle, McKinley's destiny is ahead.

WE this week received a mammoth newspaper, the midwinter number of the Los Angeles Times. It gives a good idea of that part of the country and its industries and possibilities. It is a paper worth having. Send to the Los Angeles Times, Cal., and get 80 pages of reading about the country for 10 cts. You will learn more than you would on a short trip there.

THE St. Paul Globe of course has a right to criticise the action of the Legislature and the chief Executive of the state if it has a case. But we think when the Globe jumped onto the legislature for voting for Chas. A. Towne for Senator, it missed its mark. And when it hopped onto Gov. Lind for superseding Mr. Obrien, of Stillwater on the Prison board with a man of his choice, it hit the bulls eye where it missed it before, as the Irishman had it. The Globe tries to lead its readers to believe that Mr. O'Brien was fired from the Prison Board because he voted for an Episcopal chaplain for the prison. We don't believe it, and we don't believe the Globe's readers believe it, neither do we believe that the Globe itself believes there is any truth in its insinuation. If the Globe would tell its readers that it is a Gold Bug and therefore opposed to Towne and in favor of J. S. O'Brien we might believe it was telling the truth.

THE Pioneer Press, of Jan. 31, has a cartoon of McKinley riding the G. O. P. elephant, drawing the peace treaty engine off to the Philippines. Perched on behind appears to be a parrot, possibly indicative of Senators, who like Page Morris would make, are at the president's back. Uncle Sam is left behind in charge of the Democratic mule, which has kicked himself as clear of the expansion harness as did our revolutionary fathers from English expansion when, lead by Patrick Henry they said: "As for me, give me liberty or give me death."

Uncle Sam is a heap bigger man than McKinley and so long as he has the mule by the bits they can do more good for humanity than the G. O. P. elephant and its rider and parrot followers ever dreamed of.

Uncle Sam can manage matters about right if he can get hold of even the bits. But with party leaders doing the driving in the interest of party rather than people it may look for awhile as if things were going on the wrong road. It is likely to come out all right sometime.

Towne Acknowledges

Hon. Chas. A. Towne, who is now in Washington, supplements the acknowledgement he made by telegram for the courtesy of the minority senatorial nomination, by an expression by letter to this bureau, which bears directly upon the statement made regarding that action, that it was not to be taken as extending beyond the present, or binding on a future action. Mr. Towne says:

"I do not desire anybody to consider that I regard this vote as in any sense a mortgage upon the perfect freedom of action of all our friends at any time hereafter when an actual opportunity for the senatorship shall present itself. Any personal ambition of my own will always be held in strict subordination to the general good, and of this fact I desire all our friends to be fully apprised." - Reform Press Bureau.

Among Our Exchanges.

St. Cloud Times: The frequency with which charges of bribery or attempted bribery have recently been brought against candidates for the United States Senate, is additional cause for the election of Senators by direct vote of the people.

James H. Karmany of Mankato has brought suit against Dr. J. G. Cross of Rochester for $25,000 damages, for injuries alleged to have been received from X-ray treatment. He claims to have been badly burned while a photograph was being made of the internal organs of his body.—St. Peter Journal.

The World: Representative Johnson, a Republican from Indiana, denounced the President's policy of "forcible annexation" as "an unspeakable crime that should bring the blush of shame to the cheek of every free born American." Mr. Johnson cannot expect to control post office appointments, but he will have the compensation of being on good terms with his conscience.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 27, 1899.

A sensational speech against the Hull bill for the increase of the regular army, which will be voted upon next Tuesday, was made in the House by Representative Johnson, of Ind., a republican. He said of Mr. McKinley: "If William McKinley ever changes his policy regarding the Philippines he will bend to the weight of popular opinion, to which he bows, right or wrong." Identically the same sentiment, in slightly different words, had been expressed the day before by Jerry Simpson. Being interrupted by applause from the Democratic side, Mr. Johnson asked that it be not repeated until he had finished, when Representative Henderson of Iowa, sneeringly remarked: "You ought to be able to stand democratic applause". Quick as a flash Mr. Johnson retorted: "I am ready to stand the applause of broadminded, honest men everywhere, just as I am ready to stand the criticism of narrow minded republicans". Speaking of the treaty of peace, Mr. Johnson said: "If I were in the Senate, I would not in my seat before I would consent to that treaty".

The most carefully prepared speech against the Hull bill was made by Representative Hay, of Va., the ranking democratic member of the Military Committee, who said that the bill provided for too small an army to carry out an imperial policy and too large a one if we are not to have an imperial policy.

The absurdity of the charge that the anti-imperialists are holding up the treaty of peace became fully apparent in the debate on the treaty, this week. Senator Gorman told the supporters of the treaty that its opponents were ready to join them in disposing of the treaty at any time, and twitted them by doubting their earnestness about taking a vote on the treaty. Senator Vest spoke even plainer. He said: "We want it understood distinctly that we are not holding the treaty up at all. Name the day. We will agree to any date that will suit you. If you have the votes you can ratify the treaty; if not, it will be defeated; the question will be disposed of, and the Senate can proceed with other business." Under these taunts Senator Davis asked that the treaty be voted on Feb. 6, and it was agreed to.

Senator Clay, of Ga., who favors ratification of the treaty but opposes expansion, did some common sense talking this week, in the Senate. For instance, he said of the failure of the administration to announce a policy toward the Philippines: "If it be wise and statesmanlike to outline our policy as to Cuba before the adoption of the peace treaty, what reason or logic can the friends of expansion give for silence as to the policy of our government in dealing with our other territorial acquisitions," and of retention of the Philippines: "In my judgement, the acquisition and retention of the Philippines means an army of 150,000. It means that the annual expenses of the army will increase from $20,000,000 to $200,000,000. And a large standing army means that the pension list will increase from $5,000,000, to $10,000,000 annually."

That there is something rotten about the War Department is every day becoming more apparent, in spite of the efforts made to keep down the truth. The War Investigating Commission seems especially determined to save the contractors who furnished the bad beef, both refrigerated and canned, to our soldiers, by insisting that the beef was good, in the face of positive evidence to the contrary. Another proof of the rottenness of the War Department methods is furnished by the assertions made by Gen. Eagan's friends, that he is willing to accept a nominal punishment as a result of his court martial for blackguarding Gen. Miles, and keep his mouth shut, but that if Mr. McKinley fails to set aside enough of the finding of the court martial to make his punishment nominal, he will raise such a scandal as Washington has not had for many years, by telling everything he knows about war contracts and those who profited thereby. Eagan's plea before the court martial, of not guilty, although acknowledging the use of the dirty and disgusting language toward Gen. Miles, and his claim for protection under Mr. McKinley's promise, is believed to be the result of an understanding, and the belief is strengthened by his confident and nonchalent bearing during the trial. A sportingly inclined army officer offered to bet ten to one that a verdict of guilty would not result in Eagan's dismissal from the army.

Senator Lodge, in a speech in favor of the ratification of the treaty, did not go quite as far as Tim Campbell, who is said to have once remarked to Mr. Cleveland, "What's the Constitution between friends," but he must have felt about the same as Tim did when the Constitution stood in his way, when he said: "Constitutions do not make a people; people make constitutions." Like many other epigrams, that of Mr. Lodge is not strictly true. He does not read history aright who does not recognize the powerful part played by the Constitution in making the people of the U. S. what they are today.

Two Wall Street Stories.

The story of young Talcott, the Wall street broker who has made a million dollars out of the rise in stocks in the past six months, and who is going to retire—perhaps—is full of encouragement to the ambitious and the enthusiastic.

And man can make money in Wall street if he will only buy stocks when they are down and sell them when they are up. All that is needed is to know, as Mr. Talcott did, when to begin and when to quit.

There is, however, another Wall street story of the man who boasted that he had known when to quit, and that was when he had enough money left to pay his railroad fare home and 50 cents to give the porter for carrying his trunk up to his father in law's house.

Both stories are true, only the latter story is true a hundred times where the Talcott story is true once.—Thrice a week World.

Oregon and the Willamette Valley.

Some Fruit Pointers.

TO THE EDITOR:

Dear Sir: Perhaps toward no section of of country in the far west has nature been more generous. As nearly everyone knows, the Willamette Valley has a national reputation as a fruit and a grain raising district. Our fruit compares favorably with the best of Eastern growth, capturing first prize on apples at the World's Fair and that in competition with the World. Yet there are some Eastern people, and we are happy to say they are few who are either so prejudiced or ignorant in this respect as to insist that Oregon apples resemble pumpkins in flavor etc. This dog-in the manger principle, if indeed they have any principle, is extremely amusing. A little investigation will prove the hollowness of all such statements. The fruit industry during the last few years has assumed mammoth proportions, more green and dried fruit being shipped last season than ever before in the history of the state.

Improved methods in handling the crop, thereby lessening the cost of production, together with a reduction in freight rates, and an active market all combine to make fruit raising a most profitable undertaking.

The opening of the Nicaragua Canal will mark an epoch in Pacific coast history never to be forgotten, establishing a market for everything we have to dispose of. We can but dimly see the bright future in store upon the completion of this vast undertaking. Surely then will an era of prosperity have dawned.

In my next letter I will give some of the advantages of Oregon in grain and stock raising.

Respectfully Yours,
ROLLA BAKER
177 Court St., SALEM, Oregon.

Beneath the brilliant Spanish sky a tower,
Lofty and lovely, rears its graceful height
Near the fair palace where by royal right
The noble Arcos ruled in feudal power;
Here Ponce de Leon, of his race the flower,
Set forth upon his quest in all men's sight
To seek but never find—oh, happy knight—
A more than kingly, more than mortal dower.

Above the vegas still the palace stands;
Vast olive orchards sweep about, and fields
Of waving grain where poppies bloom in flame.
Here pilgrims come from distant western lands,
And of the vital joy that beauty yields
Quaff youth renewed in Ponce de Leon's name.

How Polly Saved the Scout

By Mrs. Moses P. Handy

POLLY CUNNINGHAM lived in a quiet country neighborhood and nourished on Walter Scott's stories from the time she could read, had always longed for excitement and adventures; now she had a great deal more of them than she wanted. Her home in Culpeper county, Va., was near the very center of the battleground between the union and confederate armies; so near Brandy Station that the roar of the cannon echoed through the house and the smoke of the battle was plainly to be seen.

Her father and her brothers were in the southern army. But she and her mother remained in the old homestead. A few of their old slaves still clung to them, notably Polly's "mammy" and her husband, who, trusted and confidential house servants, had never felt the yoke of slavery as galling. What they could have done without mammy Polly never dared to think.

She came into the dining-room, where Polly was washing the dishes after the frugal dinner, a meal which her mother, suffering with an acute attack of neuralgia, was too ill to share.

"Well, honey," she said, "yo' ma 'pears to be easy now. I gave her a hot foot bath an' a mustard plarster, an' she went to sleep, so I put the bell whar she could tech it an' crep' out. I reckon I mout as well take my ole man his dinner." Mammy went to the window and looked out, craning her neck to catch a glimpse of the drive leading to the front of the house. "Great Marster," said she, "here's a Yankee officer ridin' up to the do'. Yo' keep still, chile, while I go an' sees what he wants."

In a moment she was back, smiling, followed by a young man in the uniform of a United States lieutenant, whose "Hello, Polly!" startled her so that she dropped the cup she was wiping on the floor. She looked at it ruefully, then her face lit up.

"Why, Frank!" she exclaimed, "where did you come from?"

"Stuart's headquarters, of course; I want to find out what Sheridan is doing. I've a letter for your mother from the major. Can you get me a mouthful to eat?"

"It won't be much more," said Polly,

POLLY HIDING THE SCOUT

as she set out the remains of the dinner as quickly as possible. "Mamma has one of her bad streaks of neuralgia. Oh, Frank, how are papa and brother Ned, and Jack?"

"All well and flourishing two days ago; why, this does famously, Polly," and he set to work at bread and butter, beef and potatoes with the hearty relish of a hungry traveler.

Mammy had taken the letter upstairs, sure that no other medicine would do Mrs. Cunningham so much good. Now she rushed back, ashy with fright. "For de Lawd's sake, Mars Frank, run out de back do'! Here comes a whole troop of Yankees."

"No, Frank!" said Polly, who had flown to the back window as he started up, and, seizing hat and overcoat, made for the door. "They are coming that way, too. Quick! here! upstairs! I can hide you!"

The rear of the house was one and a half stories high, with sloping roof; and where the newer two-storied front joined it on either side were closets in the wall. They had been wainscoted, instead of plastered, and one of them had been given to Polly in her babyhood for a doll house. After reaching Woodstock Polly had begged her father for a sliding panel in this closet, opening into the cuddy under the eaves of the old house.

Mrs. Cunningham had protested, saying it would only be a rat hole and do Polly no good, but the husband had laughed and yielded. "It was as good as any other top," he said, and under Polly's supervision a country carpenter had done the job so cleverly that no one not in the secret would have suspected the existence of the panel or found the spot, looking like a knot in the wood, which concealed the spring.

Frank, visiting the house as a boy, had often teased Polly about her secret chamber, and, like her brothers, had begged vainly to be shown the spring; but it had passed from his mind until now, when, opening the closet, she pressed back the panel and showed him the cuddy as a place of refuge. A moment more and the panel shot back into place; the closet door was shut, and he heard her quick footsteps flying downstairs.

Polly found two United States officers in the hall downstairs talking to mammy, who was barefacedly declaring that there was no one in the house but her mistress, her young mistress and herself.

As Polly entered the lieutenant in command of the squad turned to her. "Good afternoon, missy. We have reason to believe that the notorious scout and spy, Twyneman, is in this house. We captured his horse down there in the bushes, and we must search the house.

Polly paled, but she answered, steadily: "Of course you can do so if you choose, but you will find nobody here! May I ask you to make no unnecessary noise; my mother is ill, and I don't want her frightened. Mammy, go stay with her, please."

But mammy stood her ground. "No, chile, I tole her dey was comin', an' she tole me to stay wid you."

The searching party indoors looked in every room, in wardrobes, closets, under beds, everywhere that a cat might hide, while outside their comrades kept guard over doors and windows. Polly's closet was opened wide, among the others, but the presence of the panel was not suspected, and she kept her face as immovable as that of the sphinx. Once she flared up. "This is an outrage, sir!" she said, when she found that her mother's room was to be searched. "Our orders are imperative," answered the lieutenant, calmly. "Boys, stay outside. Excuse me, madam, but we are looking for Twyneman, and cannot leave any possible hiding place unsearched."

"Very well," answered Mrs. Cunningham, rising to her feet in spite of the blinding pain. "When you are sure that he is not on the lounge I should like to lie down again. Be quiet, Polly; don't you know they are only doing their duty?" and so the soldiers withdrew, baffled and disappointed.

"He has got off, somehow, boys; but I believe he was in the house, all the same. He's as slippery as an eel, that fellow," said the lieutenant, as they walked to their horses. But they rode away, going in two or three different directions, as though to pursue the fugitive.

When they were out of sight Polly released the imprisoned scout, and led him to her mother's room, where Mrs. Cunningham, in spite of her aching nerves, insisted upon seeing him, and hearing in person all he could tell of her loved ones.

They were still talking together, and Polly was writing a letter to her father, when Mrs. Cunningham's ears, sharpened by pain, heard horses' feet and voices outside. "Hark!" she said, and almost on the instant the soldiers were inside the house.

There was no time to get to the closet; whether or no the searching party had left one of their number behind, who had noiselessly admitted them, they never knew, but it was plain that the soldiers were coming upstairs. Twyneman took a package from his pocket and was handing it to Polly. "Dispatches," he whispered.

"No, no," she breathed; "quick—my room, back there—the roof."

He understood her. It was the old part of the house, and the roof of the veranda came up under the eaves of the sloping roof. There was a wooden trough at the edge which did duty as a gutter, and eaves and gutter together extended out for perhaps 12 inches. He had used it as a hiding place many a time in games of hide and seek. He was slender and it was dusk now; any way, the chance was worth trying, and, in less time than it takes to tell it, he had darted across the hall, into Polly's room and out of the window, before the enemy had reached the head of the staircase; luckily the front one.

Mammy was heard protesting as they came up. "Dat Frank Twyneman? Yes, sah, I don't like him nohow; I never did, an' I wish you could ketch him, so I does, but he ain' here as I knows on, 'deed he ain't."

Polly met them as they came up, candle in hand, holding the light so that her shadow fell darkly along the hall, and stood directly in front of them. "Well?" she asked, sharply.

"We must search this house again. One of our men saw Twyneman enter, and he cannot have escaped."

"As you please. He is not in the house, however," she answered. "Come on" and once more she went with them through every room, while they explored every nook and corner. Her heart came into her mouth when the lieutenant raised the window in her room and leaned out, looking on the veranda roof. The wind blew fresh, and she held her hand to shade the candle, so contriving that its feeble ray made the outside darkness blacker.

"No, he isn't here; where has he gone?"

They kept watch on the house all night, and Polly in her mother's chamber had but little sleep. In the first gray dawn she stole to peep at Frank's hiding place, but he was gone, and though they heard that he had made his escape it was not until many weeks afterward that she learned how he had slid down the rain spout within ten feet of a sentinel, and stolen away in the darkness.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Couldn't See It.

Judge—Take your hat off; it annoys me!

Prisoner—Thank you; but it doesn't annoy me.

Judge (with rage, loud)—It annoys me!

Prisoner—But, Judge, how can it annoy you? It isn't on your head.—N. Y. World.

If It's Worth Printing the Twice-a-Week Courier-Journal Will Print It.

And Every Democrat, Every Republican, Every Man, Woman or Child who can read will want to read it.

* * * * "Meantime we prefer to take our chance with the conservative Democrats, fighting within the party, to reform it of its excesses, and to restore it to its better uses, than to pursue an Ignis Fatuus which, if it had been more real, would have resulted in the election, instead of the defeat, of the Free Silver Fusion in 1896, and which with singular unanimity, the voters have refused to follow. * * * The Courier-Journal is a Democrat, not a Republican; and it will under no circumstances or conditions pursue a policy whose only effect is to continue the Republican party in power."

With 35 state legislatures in session there is no reason why the crop of resolutions should not be larger this year than ever before.

The United States no longer needs consular representatives in Cuba, Porto Rico and Hawaii, and a saving of $43,000 a year in salaries is the result.

A Chicago court is having trouble to find a receiver for a Klondike railroad. The receiver will probably have just as hard a time to find the railroad.

There is a man in Illinois who has started 153 newspapers and is still in pursuit of a long-felt want. It would probably destroy his happiness to overtake it.

American furniture was exported last year to the extent of $3,700,000, and the amount imported was almost nominal. Our machinery has turned the scale in this as in many other lines of manufacture.

Mrs. Mary Sawyer Peters, of Henderson, N. H., celebrated her one hundredth birthday by taking a sleigh ride with the thermometer standing at 20 below zero. When will these girls get over their foolish and dangerous habits?

For 20 years Missouri has been represented in the national senate by the same two men, Senators Cockrell and Vest, the former having been first elected in 1875 and the latter in 1879. Senator Cockrell has just been elected for his sixth term.

Miss Mary Gregg, of St. Louis, being desirous of marrying Joseph H. Dillon, and being heiress to a considerable fortune, left her by an uncle on condition that she does not change her name, the difficulty has been neatly solved by the changing by legal process of the name of the prospective husband to Joseph H. Dillon Gregg.

There died the other day at New York an inventor named Bisel, who supplied several ideas from which others have acquired wealth. He invented the revolving bookrack, from which he got a few thousands while others got fortunes. He invented concrete for pavements, for which he received $6,000, while the company that took it up made $6,000,000.

A cablegram from Dublin says that John Daly, the famous Irish political prisoner, who was released from Portland prison in 1896, after having been sentenced to life in 1884 for complicity in the alleged plot to blow up the house of commons while in session by throwing a dynamite bomb from the visitor's gallery, has been elected mayor of Limerick under the new Irish local government act. Daly was elected by an unanimous vote.

There is a remarkable condition of affairs in New Jersey. Without any direct state tax there is a surplus of over $1,000,000 in the state treasury, and this is increasing so steadily that Gov. Voorhees finds it proper to call the attention of the legislature to the matter. The receipts last year were $2,354,622, almost all of which came from the taxes on corporations, the collateral inheritance tax and the fees turned into the state treasury.

Another tradition has been swept away. In a train accident it has been supposed for years that "on seeing danger the engineer whistled 'down brakes,' reversed the lever and jumped off." But now comes an iconoclast who says the engineer does not do this, and has not for many years. What he does do is to "shut off steam, apply the air brakes, open the sand box, and jump." If he is afraid to jump he is either killed or becomes a hero.

Dr. Alfred Russel Wallace, writer, philosopher and traveler, says that the tropics are more conducive to health than the temperate regions. He attributes his own long-continued good health, and he is now 76, to 12 years' residence in the tropics when he was a young man and threatened with lung disease. He says European soldiers in India have better health than the sedentary native classes. But work, he adds, is necessary to health there as elsewhere. It is safe to say that a man can live anywhere provided he keeps busy, cheerful, clean, fearless and free.

There are many stories connected with the awful wreck on the Lehigh Valley railroad the other day, but one of the saddest is that which tells of the fate of George Josephs and Mary Sminkey, of Shamokin, Pa. The parents had objected to their proposed marriage because of their youth, but they were determined to marry and finally decided to elope. Boarding the fatal train with the intention of going to New York city and being married there, they took seats in the first coach. There was a roar, crash and the elopement ended in death. Both were under 18 years of age.

What will scientists and doctors next discover as a menace to public health. The unsuspecting public is at present kept on the jump dodging all kinds of germs, and now comes the announcement that the telephones we use are full of germs. Dr. E. John Kauffman, an eminent physician and scientist, who would show even greater knowledge if he did not part his name in the middle, declares: "More cases of grip have been coughed and sneezed into the telephone, to be contracted by the next user of the phone, than have proceeded from all other sources combined.

EAGAN FOUND GUILTY

No Mercy Is Recommended—President May Institute an Inquiry Into the Mental Condition of the Officer.

Washington, Jan. 28.—Dismissal from the military service of the United States without any recommendation for clemency is the verdict passed by the court-martial upon Commissary General Eagan for his recent virulent attack upon Maj. Gen. Miles. The verdict was reached within 45 minutes after the trial ended Friday. Gen. Eagan, according to the verdict, is guilty, on account of his vile language before the war investigating commission, of conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman and conduct prejudicial to good order and military discipline.

Notwithstanding the nature of the court's conclusions, the president can exercise clemency if he so desires, and Gen. Eagan's friends will urge that his punishment be confined to relieving him from the duties of commissary general of subsistence and to a detail to garrison duty, instead of putting upon him the disgrace of dismissal from the military service.

Prompt Action to Be Taken.

Formal announcement of the decision will reach the president to-day, and on account of the high rank of the accused the verdict will be given the distinction of immediate attention by the president as commander in chief of the army. Before he takes final action, though, there are certain prescribed forms to be followed. The record in the case must be examined by a reviewing officer in the office of the judge advocate general and then must go to Secretary Alger for indorsement. The delay in the present case, however, will be as short as possible.

Prospect of Medical Inquiry.

The president combines both the pardoning power and the reviewing power in his own person. He may take into consideration, and it is generally believed he will, Gen. Eagan's mental condition at the time he committed the offense which the court-martial has found of so serious a character as to justify his dismissal from the service. With this in view the president may have good cause to initiate further proceedings, which would be in all probability to convene a medical board to examine into his condition of health. On their finding of a serious mental condition the president could, and possibly will, order Gen. Eagan placed upon the retired list as being physically incapacitated for duty.

Family Lost in Lake Erie.

Toledo, O., Jan. 30.—The loss of an entire family in Lake Erie is reported here. On one of the islands in the Bass group lived a family named Robson. The family consisted of the father, mother, a daughter of 20, a son of five, and a hired man, Henry M. Martel. The little boy was sick, and before aid could be secured from the mainland or other islands he died. His parents did not want to bury him on the island, so they determined to take the body back to Canada, whence they came. A clinker boat was used, as the lake had not frozen sufficiently to warrant a trip across the ice. The entire family started on the perilous journey. Just how the family met death will perhaps never be fully known, but it is presumed they were overtaken in a snowstorm.

Will Meet in Atlanta.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 30.—The local committee having in charge the arrangements for the ninth triennial international Sunday school convention which is to be held here in April next, met in the Y. M. C. A. parlors Sunday and took up the work of caring for the big gathering and other details. The convention will meet April 27, 28 and 29, and about 2,000 delegates from all parts of the United States, several South American countries, Canada, Mexico, England, and possibly India, will be here. Several days before the convention the Clark Wins in Montana.

Helena, Mont., Jan. 30.—The republican members of the legislature jumped their party lines Saturday and as a result William A. Clark, the 30-times millionaire, was elected to succeed Lee Mantle as the United States senator from Montana. The result came as a surprise to all but a select few. It took but two ballots Saturday to end the contest, which has lasted for 17 days.

Five Drowned.

South Norwalk, Conn., Jan. 28.—Disabled by an accident to her steering gear during a trip up the sound Thursday night the steam canal boat J. C. Austin, of New York, ran on the rocks off Norwalk early Friday and sank. Accompanying her was the consort David B. Fisk, loaded with coal consigned to Westport. Five of the persons aboard the two vessels lost their lives.

The Iron Output.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 31.—It has been ascertained that already more than half of next season's output of the Lake Superior iron mines has been contracted for. It is not at all improbable that all of it will be disposed of before the end of the week. This is a condition of affairs entirely unprecedented.

Big Price Is Paid.

New York, Jan. 30.—The sale of a seat on the stock exchange for $38,000 was reported in Wall street Saturday. This beats the record.

FURIOUS SNOWSTORMS.

Denver, Col., Jan. 31.—Snow began falling on the mountains shortly after midnight, and the storm which has been raging since a week ago, with an occasional let up, is again in full blast. Fuel and provisians are getting very low at Breckinridge, Col., and much suffering from the lack of necessities must surely result. Not a wheel has moved out of Como, on the South Park, for two days, and reports from there tell of great losses to range stock. No trains have moved west of Leadville on the Colorado Midland for several days. Should the storm keep up its present fury great suffering and loss of life will result. The storm extends along the mountains of Wyoming, and already the loss to cattle has been great.

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 31.—Unusually cold weather prevails throughout western Missouri and the state of Kansas. In Kansas City, where the mercury registered zero at nine o'clock Monday morning, the temperature steadily fell until one o'clock in the afternoon, when the government weather bureau officials recorded four degrees below zero. This is the coldest weather experienced in western Missouri since February, 1895.

Omaha, Neb., Jan. 31.—The present storm is the severest of the season in this state. For 48 hours the mercury has been 15 degrees below zero, and in the northwestern part of the state the weather has been even worse. Stock has suffered severely. No estimate can be made of the individual losses of range cattle, as no herder could go out for an hour on the open range with any prospect of ever returning alive.

Dubuque, Ia., Jan. 31.—Severe weather continues. The government thermometer marked 17 below, others 18 to 23. The streets are deserted, and business is at a standstill. Reports show the severest weather of the season throughout northern Iowa, and much suffering among stock.

Chicago, Jan. 31.—Ten degrees below zero at ten o'clock Monday night marked the lowest notch reached by the mercury this winter in Chicago. The cold is growing more intense and it is probable that 15 or 18 degrees below zero will be reached. The intense cold has caused great suffering among the poor, but although frozen hands, feet and faces have been numerous, no deaths attributable to the cold have occurred as yet.

STILL PROTESTING.

Attitude of Our Goverament Toward the Filipino "Republic" Not Pleasing to Agoncillo.

Washington, Jan. 31.—Sixto Lopez, secretary to Agoncillo, the Philippine representative here, called at the state department about three o'clock Monday afternoon and left with the chief clerk another communication addressed to the secretary of state protesting against the attitude of our government toward the Filipino "republic." The terms of the protest do not go as far as an ultimatum. The same fate awaits this communication as that which befell its predecessor—it will be diplomatically ignored.

It is believed that a refusal of recognition to this appeal will be the signal for an attack by Aguinaldo on the American troops, Aguinaldo having been invested with full authority to declare war against the United States. It is understood also that Agoncillo will remain but a few days in this country if he be again ignored by the state department.

Ambassador from Mexico.

City of Mexico, Jan. 28.—President Diaz has appointed Manuel Aspiraz, assistant secretary of foreign relations, to be ambassador to Washington. The appointment is well merited. Senor Aspiraz has been in constant touch with the late Ambassador Romero and knows all the details of Mexico's relations with the United States. He is a very able and courteous diplomat. He speaks English and has a charming family who will adorn Washington society. He is a native of Puebla, is 55 years of age and was prominent in the liberal party during Juarez' administration.

Derby Hat Trust.

Danbury, Conn., Jan. 30.—The manufacturers of the lower-priced derby hats have effected a combination, to go into effect February 1. The firms represent practically all the large manufacturers of this class of goods. The combination was formed for the purpose of regulating the output and all the goods will be disposed of through a New York firm, who will have the control, it is estimated, of $2,000,000 worth of hats annually. There will be no combination of capital by the different firms.

Need for Prompt Action.

Washington, Jan. 27.—The president talked with a number of callers from congress Thursday about the peace treaty. He expressed his satisfaction that an agreement had been reached for a vote and expressed confidence in the result. The president told his callers there was need for prompt action, and said that the present situation was one that should not be prolonged.

Death of Alonzo C. Yates.

Syracuse, N. Y., Jan. 31.—Alonzo C. Yates, of this city, who spent much of his time about New York, died at Nice, France, Monday, of heart failure. Yates inherited $4,000,000 by the death of his father in 1880, and lost no time in beginning to enjoy life. He spent practically all the money in less than five years, most of it going in dissipation.

Paul Jones Was Blown Up.

Washington, Jan. 27.—Capt. J. B. Moore, of the revenue cutter Winona, which made a search of the gulf coast for the yacht Paul Jones, has reported to the treasury department that he made a thorough search and believes that the vessel was blown to pieces in the vicinity of Breton island by an explosion of naphtha.

Reward of $20,000 Offered.

A wealthy lady recently lost a satchel containing jewels worth $150,000, and now offers a reward of $20,000 cash to the finder. The loss of health is far more serious than the loss of jewels, and yet it can be recovered without paying big rewards. A little money invested in Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will restore strength to the weak, purify the blood, establish regularity of the bowels and help the stomach to properly digest the food taken into it.

A Harmless Stimulant.

Warwick—I read that a French physician has been conducting some very elaborate investigations to discover the most healthful form of amusement or diversion.

Wickwire—Ah, and what did he finally conclude was the most conducive to longevity?

"Dueling."—Judge.

WESTERN CANADA IS ALL RIGHT.

Delegates representing a number of neighboring farmers in Clay county, Minn., who visited the Edmonton district of western Canada last summer are evidently very well satisfied with the result of their trip. They think so well of the country that, in addition to the privilege of obtaining a free homestead of 160 acres of land, they have also purchased land. In a recent interview on the subject, Messrs. C. E. and A. Hughes, of Barnesville, Clay county, say:

"We are well pleased with western Canada. It is far ahead of what we expected. As for the crops, we have never seen anything that can compete with them. We have lived in Minnesota and have farmed some of what they count the best lands in the Red River valley for ten years, and have done very well in that part of the country, and have farms there at present free of all encumbrance, but believe that this country (western Canada) is so much better that we have bought from the Canadian Pacific Railway company one section of land northeast of Edmonton, in the Beaver Hill district. We have traveled through that part of the country, and have seen the grain in the granaries and the amount of land that it was taken off, and find that they have grown as much as 50 bushels and over to the acre, and they say that this has not been a good year, and very little if any grain has been touched by the frost. Hay seems to be plentiful, and if you wish to put up log buildings you can get the logs within a few miles. Coal can be had at the mines for 75 cents per ton, or you can dig it yourself. Nearly all kinds of garden truck can be grown in abundance. We find everything that can be grown in good demand. The farmers tell us that they can get four and a half live weight per hundred for hogs, and for three-year-old steers from $50 to $60 per head, providing they are good. We will move into that part of the country next summer. All the people in that part of the country seem satisfied, and we do not see any reason why they should not be so."

Messrs. Hughes also stated that they would be very glad to afford anyone desiring particulars about the country they had visited the fullest information, on receiving inquiries at Barnesville, Clay county, before the first of June next, when it is understood they propose to return to the Edmonton district.

After-Effects of the GRIP

Grip is a treacherous disease. You think it is cured and the slightest cold brings on a relapse.

Its victims are always left in a weakened condition—blood impure and impoverished; nerves shattered. Pneumonia, heart disease and nervous prostration are often the result.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People will drive every trace of the poisonous germs from the system, build up and enrich the blood and strengthen the nerves. A trial will prove this. Read the evidence:

When the grip last visited this section Herman H. Eveler, of 311 W. Main St., Jefferson, Mo., a well-known contractor and builder, was one of the victims, and he has since been troubled with the after-effects of the disease. A year ago his health began to fail, and he was obliged to discontinue work. That he lives to-day is almost a miracle. He says:

"I was troubled with shortness of breath, palpitation of the heart and a general debility. My back also pained me severely.

"I tried one doctor after another and numerous remedies suggested by my friends, but without apparent benefit, and began to give up hope. Then I saw Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People extolled in a St. Louis paper, and after investigation decided to give them a trial.

"After using the first box I felt wonderfully relieved and was satisfied that the pills were putting me on the road to recovery. I bought two more boxes and continued taking them.

"After taking four boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People I am restored to good health. I feel like a new man, and having the will and energy of my former days returned, I am capable of transacting my business with increased ambition.

"Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are a wonderful medicine, and any one suffering from the after-effects of the grip will find that these pills are the specific." H. H. EVELER.

Fast Mail to Seattle.

The widespread public interest in the contest for the fast mail contract between Chicago and Omaha has caused one to temporarily overlook the similar achievement of the Great Northern railway in establishing quick mail communication from New York via Chicago and St. Paul to Seattle, and thence to the Orient. The fast Pacific mail service by way of St. Paul to the Puget Sound country is now quite as remarkable as that via Omaha to San Francisco. On January 3 the Great Northern placed in service a fast through mail and passenger train from Chicago to Seattle, on which the mail pouches never once leave the car after the transfer at St. Paul.

From New York to Seattle the time by this Northern route is just four days. East of St. Paul the mails are carried on several roads, but west of that city—on a run exceeding the eastern portion by 500 miles—the mail goes through without change across five great states on the tracks of the Great Northern. Forty-five minutes are consumed in transfering the mails in Chicago and thirty minutes in St. Paul. After that the Northern Oriental flyer does the rest without a pause until the Asiatic mails go on board the steamer of the Japan Mail Steamship Company. Both the importance of Seattle as an Oriental shipping point and the speed of the Great Northern transcontinental mail service make the achievement a noteworthy feature of American railway progress.

The Puget Sound cities have already become formidible rivals of San Francisco as regards the freight and passenger traffic for Japan, China and Asiatic ports. The steamer route from Seattle to the Orient seems to be more free from storms than that from San Francisco, and as a large proportion of the Oriental exports are products of the Northwest, the freight traffic has naturally taken this course. The fact that the full capacity of the Japan Mail Steamship company's boats is engaged as far ahead as next August, is in itself a striking proof of the growing importance of the Oriental trade that has its outlet at Seattle.

For these, and other reasons, the fast mail to the Pacific coast, for which the Great Northern holds the government contract, is fully as important as that which daily rushes across the plains and mountains to San Francisco. The Great Northern has been as much alive to the keen rivalry for speed and honors as have the Northwestern, Rock Island and Burlington, and it is but fair that the achievements of its fast daily transcontinental mail should be included in the new chapter of railway advancement now being written by the Western railroads.—Chicago Tribune, Jan. 14, 1899.

USELESS STRATAGEM.

A Smart Trick That Failed to Work Upon Some Fearless Stage Robbers.

"Yep, th' road agents used t' be purty reckless w'en I wuz drivin' stage way back in th' 70's," remarked Tank Wilson, reminiscently, "an' all kinds of schemes was put up t' throw them off'n the scent.

"Time was changed on all the stage routes, an' dummy mail bags an' express boxes were carried, but 'twan't no use.

"Th' wust case 'of hold-up I ever experiences wuz durin' th' smallpox scare. We wuz full of passengers, inside an' out, an' every one 'f them carried a belt 'f gold dust. We had heerd that a new indevidooal had taken to th' road, an' tharfore makes our precautions.

"Of course, if six or seven men holds up a stage it ain't no use to fight, 'cause only one shows hisself an' all th' rest ambushes an' gits th' drop on you. Then they comes forrard an' takes your wealth.

"So we gets up a scheme. We knows road agents is purty much askeered 'f smallpox, so we takes along an ole tramp, wraps him up in bandages an' hangs out a yaller flag from th' roof 'f the stage.

"Jest as we wuz pullin' out 'f a canyon we hears a familyar hail, an', of course, pulls up.

"'Wat's that yeller flag for?' asks a feller, with his Winchester at his cheek, a powerful big feller with a mask on.

"'Passenger's got th' smallpox!' I answers, in a warnin' tone.

"'Wal, all you passengers git out an' hol' your han's up!' was the answer. 'Throw down them mail bags, an' that there express box!'

"Them villins took ev'ry bit 'f dust that wuz carried on the stage, an' then th' head villin thought a moment to hisself, an' then pulls th' band'ges off'n th' tramp. Then he grins, an' says somethin' t' one 'f his pardners, who pulls a small box out'n his pocket.

"Th' head villin then ranges his men where they could shoot us down ef we moved, an' he dips his knife point in th' box an' then jabs it a half inch inter th' tramp's arm. He does th' same t' each an' ev'ry one 'f us an' then sez:

"'Now, there's no danger, gen'l'men. You're all vaccynated. As fer me an' my fren's, we ain't askeered 'f no smallpox. Ef we wuz t' remove these yere masks you would see we is all pockmarked.'"—Cincinnati Enquirer.

FOR PODUNK'S HOTEL.

Some Valuable Points About Putting Up a Cheap But Attractive Menu.

He winked familiarly at the landlord as he paid his bill and in a confidential tone remarked:

"I don't mind telling you that I am thinking of going into the hotel business myself for a change. Yes, sir, that's so! I've bought the biggest place for sale in Podunk, and mebbe you wouldn't mind telling me a few things about keeping a hotel—seein' you're right in the business. There's the menu, now; some little points on that might work. We don't know everything down in Podunk."

"There's chicken croquettes," he said; "chicken comes high this time of year."

"I see."

"Not one in a thousand can tell the difference between veal and chicken."

"Geewhillikens! There's a pointer to start with."

"Golly, I'm gettin' rich already."

"Quail on toast reads fine on the menu. You don't suppose we folks in the city pamper our guests on real quail? Baby owls taste so much like quail you can't tell one from t'other. And out your way owls must be thick as pumpkins. Then there's beef. Of course you've heard of the hippophagous theory?"

"T-h-e—the w-h-a-t?"

"Click! click! Yes, old racers. You can buy them by the bunch of a hundred for a song."

The man from Podunk turned pale. "I guess I've got all the points I can remember at once, and if you ever come our way give me a call. Good day. Fried rabbit? Owls on toast! H-i-pp-op. I reckon I'll call the line there. Great business, this hotel-keeping, anyhow."—Chicago Times-Herald.

THANKFUL TO MRS. PINKHAM.

Earnest Words From Women Who Have Been Relieved of Backache

—Mrs. Pinkham Warns Against Neglect.

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have been thankful a thousand times, since I wrote you, for what your Vegetable Compound has done for me. I followed your advice carefully, and now I feel like a different person. My troubles were backache, headache, nervous tired feeling, painful menstruation and leucorrhœa.

I took four bottles of Vegetable Compound, one box of Liver Pills, and used one package of Sanative Wash, and am now well. I thank you again for the good you have done for me.—ELLA E. BRENNER, East Rochester, Ohio.

Great numbers of such letters as the above are constantly being received by Mrs. Pinkham from women who owe their health and happiness to her advice and medicine.

Mrs. Pinkham's address is Lynn, Mass. Her advice is offered free to all suffering women who are puzzled about themselves.

If you have backache don't neglect it, or try heroically to "work it down," you must reach the root of the trouble, and nothing will do this so safely and surely as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Backache is accompanied by a lot of other aches and wearying sensations, but they nearly always come from the same source. Remove the cause of these distressing things, and you become well and strong. Mrs. S. J. SWANSON, of Gibson City, Ill., tells her experience in the following letter:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Before using your medicine I was troubled with headache and my back ached so that I could not rest. Your medicine is the best I have ever used; it has relieved me of my troubles, and I feel like myself again. Thanks to Lydia E. Pinkham.

"I would advise any one troubled with female weakness to take your medicine. I shall also recommend it wherever I can as a great reliever of pain."

LEGISLATIVE GOSSIP

Our Special Correspondent Tells of the Solons' Doings.

The Work of Introducing Bills, Both Public and Private Goes Merrily On. As Yet but Few Measures Have Received Final Action.

St. Paul, Jan. 25.—Both houses of the legislature were in session yesterday, but the senate session was very brief. Senator Wilson introduced his second divorce bill for this session, this later bill providing that the court cannot allow the wife more than one-third of the husband's real estate, but is permitted to go to that extent unless the wife has committed adultery.

Wheelmen will, perhaps, be interested in hearing that the senate passed the bill exempting bicycles from execution for debt. Another bill of some importance was one offered by Senator McGill, which allows banks having one million or more capital to establish branches. The strength of the English and Canadian banking system lies in the fact that the great banks, with large capital, establish branches giving the smaller places banking advantages they could not hope to secure if dependent upon the local field.

The old school of physicians seem inclined to recognize Osteopathy as a profession and have announced that they do not propose to fight the pending bill recognizing Osteopathy but will seek, instead, to secure some amendments.

It has been generally supposed that the private secretary of the governor received about $7,000 per year salary, including fees, the salary itself is but $1,500, but the secretary receives $5 for every notary commission issued as his personal perquisite. When Gen. Jennison was Gov. Hubbard's secretary, he and his friends engineered the bill which extended the term of notaries and increased the fee from two to five dollars and at that time it brought the secretaryship up to an income of seven or eight thousand dollars. Mr. Rosing, Gov. Lind's secretary, however, sent a report to the senate to-day showing that his predecessor in 1898 only secured $4,600 salary and all.

If the action of the house to-day can be taken as a criterion the bill making the railroad commissioners elective, instead of appointive, will pass, as it was unanimously recommended by the committee of the whole. There was more contention upon the length of the term than upon the bill itself and it was finally decided to make it a two years office.

The bill reimbursing citizens who advanced $24,500 for Minnesota's exhibit at Omaha was passed by a large majority.

One of the bills introduced to-day provides that the state shall pay the surety company for the four hundred thousand dollar bond of the state treasurer. Heretofore the state treasurer has been in the habit of getting bankers to go on his bond thus placing himself under obligation to divide the deposits among his sureties. This was liable to place the state money in weak banks, but where a surety company is used it becomes a pure matter of commission and the treasurer is under obligation to no one.

An important resolution was offered by Mr. Donohue in favor of a Northwestern International Exposition in 1902. If such an exposition should be held it would doubtless be located between the Twin Cities. The resolution went over under notice of debate.

Fifteen new bills were introduced in the house, bringing the total up to date to 148.

St. Paul, Minn.—Jan. 26.—The session of the Senate yesterday was chiefly after that body adjourned. The official meeting was very brief, after which the Osteopaths were given a hearing in the Senate chamber. While it was nominally for the benefit of the judiciary committee, a large portion of the Senators remained and the ladies and gentlemen spectators completely filled the chamber. There appear to be two branches of Osteopathy and they were both represented. While both desire recognition, they were more hostile to each other than to the old school of physicians. No decision was reached after all the talk.

Senator Horton offered an amendment to the new capitol bill of much importance. The original bill allowed a tax of two-tenths of a mill to be levied for ten years for the new capitol, the entire sum expected to be raised being $2,000,000. Since the bill was passed valuations have been so reduced that that tax will not raise the necessary sum and the pending bill proposes to allow the levy to continue more than ten years, in order to raise two millions, but expressly forbids allowing the building to cost more than that sum, which was the original figure named.

The death of Senator Young's father was announced.

Yesterday was the liveliest the House has seen since the session began. The bill in controversy was the one which reduces the rate of interest on school lands from five to four per cent and the entire session was devoted to discussing the measure. The advocates of the bill argued that if the purchasers of these lands only had to pay four per cent interest, they would not hasten to pay the principal before it became due, and as the lands are sold on long time the state would be getting four per cent interest on the deferred payments, instead of having the money paid into the treasury and being reinvested for the benefit of the school fund at even a lower rate than four per cent. The opponents of the bill claimed that the land would be paid for at four per cent just as rapidly as at five and that the measure simply gave the purchasers a reduction of one per cent on the interest. They were in a minority however, and the bill passed by 70 to 43.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 27.—The senate spent a good deal of time yesterday in endeavoring to kill the house bill appropriating $24,500 to re-emburse the citizens who advanced that sum to the Omaha exposition. While it will probably pass, it was laid over for another debate.

Ten bills were introduced in the senate, among them one appropriating $10,000 for making roads in the inter-state park. It costs something to investigate, as was shown by the presentation of a bill appropriating $1,500 to pay the expenses of the binding twine investigating committee.

The judiciary committee evidently favors keeping the divorce laws as they are, as they have recommended both of Senator Wilson's bills for indefinite postponement.

The prominent feature in the house was the discussion of the bill abolishing the payment of taxes on mortgages by the parties giving the mortgage. The committee had reported in favor of indefinite postponement, but after a vigorous speech by Mr. Foss the bill was sent to committee of the whole for further consideration. A little later in the session, after having refused to turn down the railroad committee report, some one moved to reconsider the action whereby Mr. Foss' bill was sent to committee of the whole. The mover said he had been so carried away by Mr. Foss' eloquence that he voted against his more sober convictions. The result was that the motion was re-considered and the committee report indefinitely postponing adopted.

An attempt was made to repudiate the report of the railroad committee on the bill regulating railroad fares and forbidding public officials from receiving railroad passes. The committee recommended its indefinite postponment and after a lively debate the committee report was adopted and the bill goes to the bone yard.

One of the bills offered in the House appropriates $19,975 to the Minnesota Sugar Co. in payment of beet sugar bounties.

A good deal of interest is being taken in the bill pending in the Senate regulating commission merchants, and at a public hearing in the Senate chamber this afternoon large delegations of commission men were present from the Twin Cities to protest against it. Judging from the outside talk of Senators the bill will not pass.

St. Paul, Jan. 28.—Senator Miller offered the most important bill of the day in the form of an anti-trust measure which makes it a felony, punishable by a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $1,000, to issue or own a stock certificate in a trust. It also provides that a debtor, if sued by a trust can set that fact up in defense and the plaintiff cannot collect. This is a pretty vigorous measure but is similar to a law which has been adopted in several states.

The bone of contention of the session was Senator Snyder's bill allowing the children's homes societies to take charge of children up to the age of fourteen years. It was almost defeated several times but finally got a place on the calendar and if it can obtain as many votes as it did yesterday will pass.

The agricultural committee having the commission bill in charge sent the bill back to its author, Mr. Grindeland, to be amended to eliminate the objections raised by the commission men. If this bill is pushed it will develop one of the liveliest contests of the winter.

The Senate adhered to the custom which it has so far followed this session and adjourned until ten o'clock Tuesday.

The House passed the bill yesterday for the collection of the Railroad and Warehouse Commission by the people, the incumbents to hold office for four years. There was quite a contest as to whether the term should be two or six years, and four was finally agreed upon as a compromise. The bill will undoubtedly pass the Senate, and while this result might have been accomplished anyway, it seems to have been accelerated by the fact that the governor, who now does the appointing, is not of the same political persuasion as the legislature.

A few months ago the newspapers forced an investigation into the conduct of Deputy Warden Lemon, of the state prison, and now a bill is offered to reimburse him for his expenses. Perhaps, as he was acquitted, this is fair, but the result would have been the same if he had been convicted, for in the end, when the state investigates a man it pays its own and his expenses as well.

Mr. Jackobson concluded to let the House follow the example of the Senate this week and an adjournment was taken until ten o'clock Tuesday.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS.

Well Rewarded.

The gratitude of James J. Hill, the railroad magnate, towards his old-time employes has again been shown. It is reported that during the fatal illness of the veteran superintendent, Judson B. Rice, of St. Cloud, he expressed regret that his departure would leave his family in straightened circumstances. He had been incapacitated for some years from active railroad work, but President Hill had regularly kept his name on the payroll of the company and he had each month received a substantial check. Mr. Rice's one haunting thought in his last days was that this would cease with his death. A mutual friend of him and of Mr. Hill called to see the sick man one day, and to him Mr. Rice told his fears. This man went straightway to President Hill and told him the situation. Mr. Hill promptly instructed him to assure Mr. Rice that his wife would be cared for, and shortly after the sick man passed away and was buried his widow received Mr. Hill's personal check for $10,000.

Minnesota Wins.

At the Buttermakers' convention at Sioux Falls the attendance was large and the competition strong. The first prize in the gathered creameries was won by Herman Brock, of Lake Park, Minn., score 91; second by M. M. Magnusen, Bee, Minn., score 90. The prize banner was won by Minnesota, the states and scores being as follows: Minnesota, 169 entries, average 88.2; Illinois, 40 entries, average 88.1; Iowa, 170 entries, average 87.8; Wisconsin, 69 entries, average 86.9; Kansas, 44 entries, average 86.7; South Dakota, 48 entries, average 86.6.

Narrow Escape.

Mrs. John Connery, wife of a farmer who lives near Fertile, had a narrow escape from being severely burned one day last week. She was on her way to Fertile, and before starting had placed a hot stone in the bottom of the cutter for a foot warmer. All went well until she was near town, when she discovered her dress and skirts to be on fire. She threw off the lap robes and immediately was enveloped in flames and a cloud of smoke, but her presence of mind saved her, as she leaped from the cutter into the loose snow and succeeded in extinguishing the flames.

DEADLOCK BROKEN.

Republicans of Wisconsin Unite on Joseph V. Quarles for United States Senator.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 31.—The senatorial deadlock was broken Monday night, according to the arranged programme of the Milwaukee conference, and Joseph V. Quarles, of Milwaukee, was nominated in the republican cau-

[Joseph Very Quarles, who received the republican nomination for United States senator to succeed John L. Mitchell, is one of the foremost lawyers and orators of Wisconsin. He is a native of Wisconsin, having been born in Kenosha 55 years ago. He graduated from the high school of Kenosha at the age of 17. In 1862 he entered the University of Michigan as a freshman, but left his studies during the rebellion and enlisted in the Thirty-ninth Wisconsin infantry, being made first lieutenant of company C. At the expiration of his service he returned to the university and was graduated with the class of 1866 with a degree of A. B. Later he studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1868. Mr. Quarles was elected district attorney of Kenosha county and mayor of Kenosha and also represented his district in the legislature as assemblyman and senator. He practiced law in Racine a number of years and removed to Milwaukee in 1888, since which time he has carried on a successful law practice at the head of the firm of Quarles, Spence & Quarles. Mr. Quarles was married in 1868 to Miss Carrie A. Saunders, of Chicago, and they have three sons.]

IRELAND IN ROME

The Famous American Prelate Will Not Represent America at the Disarmament Conference.

Rome, Jan. 30.—Archbishop Ireland went to the vatican Sunday, where he had a conference with Cardinal Rampolla, papal secretary of state. Many cardinal and other high ecclesiastics visited the archbishop at the Hotel Bristol, where he is staying. In the course of an interview he declared that there was absolutely no foundation for the statement that he had been urged to represent the United States at the forthcoming conference regarding the limitation of armaments. The United States, he said, had not yet nominated a delegate. The archbishop was very reserved in his replies to questions respecting religious problems in America, on the ground that it was necessary for him to wait for the holy see to pass upon such matters.

EX-ATTORNEY-GENERAL DEAD.

Augustus H. Garland Stricken with Apoplexy in Washington—Sketch of His Life.

Washington, Jan. 27.—Former Attorney-General Augustus H. Garland was stricken with apoplexy while addressing the United States supreme court at 12:15 o'clock Thursday afternoon, and died within ten minutes.

After the death of the former attorney-general became known the supreme court adjourned for the day. The news of Gen. Garland's death produced profound sadness in the senate, where he had served for many years as one of a galaxy of distinguished men.

Two Men Killed.

Altoona, Pa., Jan. 30.—A gang of 26 track repair men were working on the railroad at the western opening of the Gallitzin tunnel at three o'clock Sunday afternoon when they heard the approach of a locomotive which was running west through the tunnel. The workmen all stepped from the north track, on which west-bound trains move, to the south track. The smoke in the tunnel prevented them from seeing the approaching locomotive, which, in order to avoid obstructions on the north track, was running on the south track. One man was instantly killed, one died in the Altoona hospital and 16 were more or less seriously injured. None escaped without injury.

Body Found.

Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 30.—A pair of human legs that were sticking up through the ice that covered the surface of the water in one of the slips in the harbor attracted the attention of some men on the steamer Walter L. Frost, Sunday morning. An ax was secured and the body chopped out. It was found to be that of William Dormer, a deckhand on the Frost. He had evidently fallen headforemost from the gangplank of the boat and gone half way through the ice and been held in that position until dead.

Drowned.

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 30.—A special to the Post-Intelligencer from Kayukok river, Alaska, says: John G. Tait, of Chicago, was drowned September 27, 1898, eight miles north of Peavey, by the capsizing of his canoe. The body floated under the ice and was not recovered. Mr. Tait was general manager of the Alaska Union Mining company, of Chicago. He carried a life insurance of $100,000, and was a large dealer in building stone at Joliet and Chicago.

To Become an Editress.

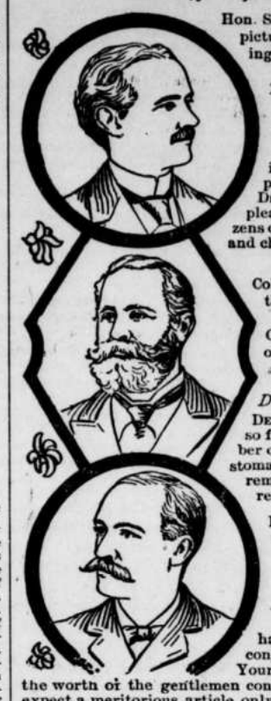
London, Jan. 31.—The Paris correspondent of the Daily Mail says: Lady Randolph Churchill, formerly Miss Jerome, of New York, is about to start a magazine on new lines. It will be sumptuously bound and sold at a guinea per copy. Her son, Herbert Churchill, will assist her in constructing it and the list of contributors will include Emperor William and other royal personages.

Supreme Court Recess.

Washington, Jan. 31.—The United States supreme court adjourned Monday until Monday, February 20. The recess is the usual one taken at this season of the year, in order to allow time to the court to prepare opinions in the cases already argued.

To Whom It May Concern.

Strong words of indorsement for Pe-ru-na, and for the manufacturers of Pe-ru-na, from prominent officials of its home city.



Hon. Samuel L. Black, Mayor of Columbus, O., whose picture adjoins this paragraph, writes the following letter:

EXECUTIVE DEPT., CITY OF COLUMBUS.

To whom it may concern:

I can most cheerfully recommend Pe-ru-na as of the very greatest possible benefit in cases of catarrh and other diseases of the mucous membrane. This remedy has established itself in the minds of the people as of the greatest possible worth and genuineness. I have known Dr. Hartman for a number of years, and am pleased to say that he is one of the leading citizens of this city, a man of the very highest standing and character in the community.

Respectfully, SAMUEL L. BLACK.

COLUMBUS, O., May 18, 1897.

Dr. S. B. Hartman.

DEAR SIR:—Besides having the merits of Pe-ru-na so fully demonstrated in my family, I have a number of friends who have taken it for catarrh and stomach trouble, and all unite in praising it. As a remedy for summer and winter catarrh I can fully recommend it. ARTHUR L. HAMILTON.

From the Hon. Samuel J. Swartz, Police Judge, Columbus, O.

STATE OF OHIO,
SUPREME COURT LAW LIBRARY,
COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 12, 1897.

Pe-ru-na Medicine Co., Columbus, O.

Gentlemen:—The result of using Pe-ru-na has been so gratifying to me that I cannot but congratulate you on the success of your remedy. Your high standing in the business community, and the worth of the gentlemen conducting this great enterprise, prepared me to expect a meritorious article only, from your establishment, but its real worth is best demonstrated by its use.

Respectfully, SAMUEL J. SWARTZ.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY Feb 3. 1899

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO

DELANO DIARY

—The Eagle threw out some ugly insinuations about the GAZETTE this week. It is naughty Eagle, you shouldn't do so.

—Frank T. Zaun has become proprietor of the Delano furniture store. Nick Frank has retired from the business. So 'tis rumored.

—O. L. Billings sprained his ankle Wednesday. He had rheumatism in one leg and while favoring that he slipped, resulting in the accident.

—Miss Mamie Van Eman, a former Delanoite, captured the lady's prize, and Rev. Sellie the gentleman's prize at a poverty sociable, at Buffalo, lately.

—A meeting of Washington's Birthday Association, of Delano, will be held at Dr. Catlin's office, on Tuesday, Feby. 7, to arrange for the celebration on the 22nd. Interested parties are requested to be present.

—The Eagle whines more to the square inch this week than usual. Nothing seems to suit her. She has a nice plant and turns out some very good work. There must be some other reason for people not patronizing her.

—Some of the ugly tobacco stains along on the clean white snow on the sidewalks look like Chinese hieroglyphics. Some of the young ladies might interpret them: "He is a hog." and say "How would that look on my clean kitchen floor?

—Cement sidewalks give more trouble during cold weather than boards do. The ice forms on them so that skates are needed for rapid travel. In summer the rain stands on them so that people get their feet wet when they can travel dry on boards. Boards are best any way you take it.

—Robert Reichel, feeder in the Eagle office, met with a painful accident Wednesday forenoon. He undertook to make a roller turn on one of the presses and got his finger caught, crushing and tearing the end nearly off. A couple of stitches made it look better; and Robbie is taking a vacation.

—From the Willmar Tribune we learn that James A. Wharton led in a discussion on "Expansion" at that place. Six speakers took part and things were lively. The Judges decision was "that the affirmative had proved that it would be to the best interest of the Philippines, but as the question was to be the interests of the United States they would render a judgement in favor of the negative." Jim should have confined his remarks more to "America for Americans".

—Litchfield Independent: J. J. Hill made a contract with the village of Morris for water for the engines, at $35 per month. The village laid an extra block of mains to accomodate the road, and now the railroad company has decided not to take the water. The citizens are somewhat put out about it. The price to be paid is nearly double that charged here. It is safe to say that the contract with Litchfield will not be renewed at its expiration, that is to say, not at the price now paid.

—The law requires that the Health officer in the Village be notified of all births and deaths within ten days from their occurrence. There is a penalty for neglect to notify. There are some now liable to this fine. Read from the law:

SEC. 2.—Parents shall give notice to such Clerk or Health Officer, of the births and deaths of their children; every householder shall give like notice of every birth and death happening in his house; the oldest person, next of kin, shall give such notice of the death of his kindred, the keeper or other proper officer, of every work house, poorhouse, reformschool, jail, prison, hospital, asylum, or other public or charitable institution, shall give like notice of any birth or death happening among the persons under his charge. Whoever neglects or refuses to give such notice for the period of ten (10) days after the occurrence of a birth or death, shall forfeit a sum not exceeding twenty (20) dollars, to be collected as other fines are collected by law.

SEC. 3— * * * * * *

If any physician or midwife neglects to make such certificate, he shall forfeit the sum of twenty-five (25) dollars, to be collected as other fines are collected by law.

Card of Thanks.

We hereby extend our heartfelt thanks to kind friends who aided and sympathized with us in the late sickness and death of our beloved wife and mother.

CHARLES A. CUNNINGHAM AND DAUGHTER GRACE.

Notice.

A meeting of the Washington's Birthday Association of Delano, will be held at Dr. Catlin's office Tuesday, Feb. 7, at 2 P. M. to arrange for celebrating on the 22nd. Interested parties take notice.

County Cullings.

If anybody has anything they want to sell to the county officials they must now apply to Purchasing agent S. W. Junken. He is given full power by the Board of County Commissioners to buy where he pleases. Aint it funny?

The Delano Eagle criticises us for condemning the County Commissioners for their dishonorable course in wasting $120 per year in the hiring of a janitor. Have the Eagle's eggs been addled with a little free silver (or gold)? —Annandale Post.

From "Gossip and Opinions Gathered in the Capitol City," published in the Buffalo Standard we read: "It is apparent that Mr. Lind and his party intend to devote every moment from now until election to undermine the republican party, with hopes of carrying this state for Lind and Bryan in 1900." What did the Standard expect Mr. Lind and his party would do? Resurrect William Henry? Or work for the machine which Republican papers so freely announced after election, that no candidate of their party for Governor, would ever again dare to buck?

The County Commissioners at their meeting, Jan. 25 laid over till the next meeting, claims of F. B. Lamson and H. S. Saylor, and of the Eagle Printing Company. Possibly they will, at their next meeting, rescind the contract for county printing.

The bond of the State Bank of Cokato as a county depository was approved: whether or not for keeps remains to be seen.

All requests for abatements were laid over to the next meeting.

It was resolved to advertise for bids for steam heat for Court House; bids to be opened Feb. 21 at 1 o'clock P. M.

Board adjourned to hold special session, Feb. 20.

From reading the County Commissioner's proceedings, and from information otherwise obtained, it seems the Board is not very clear as to what it wants, or as to what it has a right to do. At all events it cuts up some terrible funny capers. For instance, a short time ago it received bids for heating the Court House by steam; rejected them all, then made a contract with McGaffey & Ellis, the highest bidders, for $100 less than their bid. Then at another meeting declared that bargain off. What right had they to declare a contract properly made void? Or if the Board can't make a proper contract we ought to have a board that can. And now they are asking for bids again, for heating the Court House by steam. The claim of S. W. Junken for extra work in the Auditor's office allowed Jan. 7, withdrawn and rejected Jan. 26. Then they appointed S. W. Junken purchasing agent for the county officers. Where did they get such a right; and from what funds will they pay him? Or will they allow his bill at one meeting and reject it later just for amusement, or to make business for so much per diem and mileage for the Board members? If the board don't proceed to get down to business they will soon be the laughing stock of the comunity acquainted with their style of doing and undoing business.

Money Matters.

MAPLE PLAIN, Jan. 28 h. 1899.
Editor GAZETTE

Dear Sir. As I can do nothing this cold weather, I thought I would write you a few lines in regard to money as everybody is after it. The love of money is said to be the root of all evil, in Divine Writ. There is no question but that the love of money and its use is productive of much harm to people. At this day and age of the world the great bulk of money is falling into the hands of a few people who are using every effort possible, monopolizing every means in their power to manipulate all business to build their moneyed oligarchy.

The great writer Woolpohl? who has written the great work called "The Great Red Dragon," says in it that there has been four eras that the money power has been at work in which it has made wonderful strides. The money power started its business firstly in the East India Co. and made its varied evolutions to this present time and now its power is world wide. That money at this time controls all business that they can extract any money out of. It is a terrible power, and I think there are but a few people who know what that money power is doing for them. That money power is now vested in the Rothschilds of London, England; and the English and Rothschilds are enslaving all the Eastern continent, and will, ere long, enslave the western continent if the people do not wake up to the situation. There is no country in the world where millionairs have increased so fast as they have in America in the last few years. Money is all right if properly used. But I see plainly that syndicates of money are destroying all business but the business in those trusts and combines and when that power gets control of all business then the people will be in the same condition that the people in Ireland are, nothing but serfs and slaves to the money power. See what England did to India; subjugated them and made them work for 5cts per day and starved five million of them to death. Do we want to follow in the footsteps of John Bull? God forbid! I think, as are things at this time, we, as a people, are on the verge of calling Queen Victoria over to dictate our business here. We seem to be courting the offices of John Bull. What are the people thinking about? We whipped J. B. twice, when we were only a handful of us. What are we doing now? We are asking Britain to dictate what kind of money we shall use. Our constitution says we shall make our own money and regulate the value thereof. Such imbecility as is being enacted in our country at this time is enough to make a child strike his daddy.

Well Mr. Editor, for fear I will be tedious, I will close these remarks by saying that the people must rise in their might and put down these trusts and combines or short will be our race as a nation of free men. Democracy says the people shall rule so that we may have a government of, for, and by the people. But we can't have that unless we make a long pull and a strong pull and a pull altogether. Come farmers and laborers who produce the wealth of the world, put on your thinking caps and know what you are voting ere it is too late and we will be swallowed up in the vortex of serfdom and menial slavery. SOLDIER.

BORN.

KNOLL.—In Delano, Monday, January 9, to Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Knoll, a daughter

DIED.

CUNNINGHAM.—In Minneapolis, Tuesday, January 30, Mrs. Maud, wife of Charles Cunningham, aged 26 yrs. 8 mo and 6 days.

The funeral was held from the M. E. church in Delano, and was conducted by Rev Fielder, of Minneapolis, of whose church deceased was a probationer. The remains were laid at rest in the Delano cemetery. Her husband and daughter, three brothers and a nephew and other friends from a distance attended the funeral. Several very fine floral offerings were sent from neighbors and from Pillsbury A mill where her husband works. Her aged mother from Pennsylvania was with her in her last hours. She was a loving mother and wife, and beloved by a host of friends who sympathize with her relatives in their great affliction.

Republican Resolutions.

C. A. French read a resolution which was adopted as follows:

RESOLVED: That we commend the course of Senator C. K. Davis the senior senator from this state, and earnestly urge that the nominees of this Senatorial Convention give him their undivided support, if elected to again return him to the United States senate at the close of his present term.

E. D. Washburn presented the following resolution, which was also passed:

WE, the republicans of Wright County in convention assembled, renew our allegiance to the principles of the republican party, and pledge our loyal support to all the nominees of the party in which as voters we exercise the rights of suffrage.

WANTED—SEVERAL TRUSTWORTHY PERSONS in this state to manage our business in their own and nearby counties. It is mainly office work conducted at home. THE delights of an evening spent around a well-lighted reading table are not half understood. An illustrated magazine with its wealth of illustrations, its stories of adventure and love, its descriptions of travel which carry you to the remotest ends of the earth, and its instructive articles for young and old—these are the first requisites for your own enjoyment and the entertainment and proper education of your children.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal,

Both Together One Year for Only $ 1.80

In this way you secure your own home paper and an illustrated magazine at a price that is only about a fourth of what some of the illustrated magazines sell for. For three years The Cosmopolitan has undisputedly claimed that it reached the largest clientele possessed by any periodical, daily, weekly or monthly, in the world. It was The Cosmopolitan which sent Julian Hawthorne to India to let the world know the real horrors of famine and plague. It was The Cosmopolitan which established at its own cost a great Free Correspondence University which now has over 20,000 students on its rolls. It was The Cosmopolitan which offered a prize of $3,000 for the best horseless carriage and prizes for best plans for public baths, and best arrangement of sewer and pipe systems for cities. It was The Cosmopolitan which set the presidents of great schools and universities seriously discussing the defects of existing educational systems. It is The Cosmopolitan whose enterprise is always in the lead in advancing the world's civilization.

We have also succeeded in arranging for two additional offers in connection with this journal and The Cosmopolitan.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $1.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

One other opportunity we offer you. You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine

Entered as Second-Class Mail Matter at the Post Office in Delano, Minn

GEN. EGAN was found guilty. The President has commuted his sentence to six years suspension from the army.

A BILL is, we understand, to be presented to the Legislature asking that $1,000 be appropriated to each High School in the state, that conforms to the requirements asked for a High School. This would be an inducement to comply with the requirements.

IT looks like cruelty to animals when train loads of horses, cattle and smaller stock pass through town in ordinary summer stock cars, open on all sides, at a rate of about a mile a minute, with the mercury down to about 30 below zero. Where is the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals Society when this is going on? Can't closed cars that will keep the wind out be provided?

THANKS to the Hon. Knute Nelson for a copy of the Annual Report of the Secretary of War for the year 1898. It is gratifying to have the official reports at hand, to know just what each officer officially claims as his honors in the war with Spain; also to be officially posted as to the number of men in the U. S. army and their distribution and the part taken by each regiment.

THE news is given out by the Globe that at a meeting of the State Prison board, B. F. Nelson of Minneapolis was chosen President of the board and David Bronson, of Stillwater was recognized as member of the board in place of J. S. O'Brien, retired by Gov. Lind; and that the prices for binding twine to farmers was fixed at 8 cents for all Manila twine 650 feet to the pound, and 7½ cents for half Manila and half sisal, 600 feet to the pound.

THE peace treaty has been ratified. It was necessary to have two thirds of the members in favor of ratifying in order to pass the motion. There being two Senators from each state and 45 states, the whole number of senators is 90. In order to ratify the treaty it would be necessary to have 61 votes. When the vote was taken 57 voted for it, and 27 against. There were six absentees, 4 being for and 2 against ratification of the treaty. Had all been present and voted it is claimed the vote would have stood 61 for and 29 against ratification. It was a close shave.

GREAT pains has been taken to circulate the news that Ex-Gov. Merriam and his wife are no longer to be frowned down upon by Mrs Senator Davis. That now Mr. Merriam can have an office if he wants one. But Mr. M it seems, has accepted a position in some concern at Superior, where he can take out a living and possibly have some political pull, which more than likely, is the real cause for the Mrs. Davis countenance changing from frown to smile, when she thinks of the candidacy of Cushman K for President and now "Billy's" influence might be a stumbling block of sufficient proportions, backed up by Mrs. M. to completely bar to Minnesota's favorite son and his wife, the door to the White House. Who says women ar'nt in politics?.

FROM appearances up to date our state affairs have suffered none from a change of administration. State Examiner Pope has done some good work, and made some wise suggestions for changes in laws connected with his business. Dairy Commissioner Bowler took a trip with his phalanx of butter makers over to Sioux City and captured the banner in as glorious a style as could any of the G. O. P. appointees have possibly done. Mr. Bronson who superseded Mr. O'Brien as head of the State Prison Board, will surely do things in no worse a manner than has been customary, and farmers will expect binding twine at bottom figures. The Anoka Hastings asylum fight seems about settled by allowing each a little asylum of its own. Schools seem in a fair way to be much improved. Things look a little brighter all along the line, even though the Legislators couldn't refuse to accept R. R. free passes, and couldn't refuse to pay a few city paper reporters good salaries. The dawn is here let us hope, for the clear day of good state government.

A GREAT deal of bluster has been made by those who are seeking to crowd William Jennings Bryan out of the race for president by saying he was an anti-expansionist. He favored ratifying the treaty; and it was ratified.

Political Pointers.

It starts out with: "There is another row in the Democratic camp which threatens to assume gigantic proportions. Gov. Lind has removed J. S. O'Brien," etc. etc. Of course Mr. O'Brien being a Gold Bug the standard will stand up for him. The row then is not a new one by any means, but the same determination of the people to have their party pure.

Next "There can be little doubt that the Fusionists are quietly planning to elect a Fusion Legislature two years hence."

And the Republican Legislature, now in session, by voting down Gov. Lind's wise suggestions for purifying politics, by getting rid of R R passes and other things that look like bribing are materially encouraging to people in their hopes of electing a Fusion Legislature next time. Wright county Republicans while resolving in favor of C. K. Davis last fall, neglected to mention Knute Nelson. Page Morris must be promoted to give "Billy" Culkin a chance, and J. Adam Bede, the gold bug, can outjaw "Billy" a long ways. Things do look interesting. Looks as if Hon. C. A. Towne might get a bigger majority next time than any Congressman who ever ran in the Sixth Minnesota district before then.

The Standard letter tries to make capital out of the coming report of the Twine Investigating committee. How they know beforehand what the report will be, don't appear, but it says: "The whole trouble seems to have been that farmers neglected to order in time." ! !

"Lo! the poor" farmer "whose untutored mind"
Allows him to be so easily entwined.

But there has been a change in the Prison Board and twine prices have been fixed for the coming season at 7½ and 8 cents per pound. Let no farmer be too late in ordering this year, if he wants prison twine.

The Standard's letter says: "Republicans who slept during the last campaign or who voted for Lind because he was 'a good man' had better wake up". Don't it look as if they were awake to their own interests just this once and as if they had been good judges of "a good man", and voted with their eyes wide open, and as if they are going to keep their eyes open too.

Another point cited is that Gov. Lind appointed two new members of the State Normal School Board before there were vacancies and then recalling them. If Gov. Lind makes no bigger mistake than that during his term of office he will have done well.

A pretty hard knock is given the Gov. for appointing Prof. Lewis, a former Wright county boy, now of Hastings, State Superintendent of Public Instruction. It is claimed he was only getting a salary of $1,400 a year. The size of a man's pocket book seems to be taken into consideration as a qualification for State Superintendent of Schools, by our contemporary at Buffalo.

Then the Standard's letter tries to make out that the laborers are not in favor of having the state print its own text books and save to taxpayers thousands of dollars. It finally winds up by saying the "Investigation proves that if the state should print its own text books it could be done cheaper and more satisfactorily by receiving bids from responsible publishers." Wonder if the Standard thinks the Wright County Printing Syndicate that gets the county printing, at legal rates, would stand a show of getting the text book printing?

Abusing Democrats

"The Democratic crowd have an unpleasant habit of abusing a man after he is dead Jackson and Jefferson are regularly insulted every year; and the same herd of short horn Americans that are bellowing about the Declaration of Independence, are in the same breath comparing Aguinaldo to George Washington! Poor George! He can't help himself any more than Jack an Jeff." -Duluth News Tribune.

The News Tribune talks about Democrats abusing Jackson and Jefferson, and then by alluding to George Washington, the Father of our country, as "Poor George!" and the other two patriots mentioned as "Jack and Jeff" it tries to convince its readers that Aguinaldo should not be compared with George Washington in his earnest efforts to gain the freedom of his country. Even though their premises were well taken, such means of arguing is in awful poor taste. Even dead Democratic patriots deserve to be spoken respectfully of, and not lightly, frivulously mentioned as above, by patriotic American citizens.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(Fromour Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 3. 1899.

Gen. Miles has stirred up the adm'n istration menagerie and frightened the War Investigating Commission, by again charging that embalmed beef was issued to our soldiers. Secretary Alger would like to have Miles court-martialed, but he is afraid to do so, even if Mr. McKinley would consent, because he knows that would give Miles an opportunity to proye his charge, and that is just what Miles wants. The positive assertion of Miles that he has abundant proof that the beef was embalmed has greatly disturbed the War Investigating Commission, which had about completed its report declaring that no embalmed beef was furnished the army. It is now a little bit afraid to make its report so strong in favor of the beef contractors. This thing isn't over by a jugfull.

It is now believed that a sufficient number of Senators who were inclined to vote against the treaty will content themselves with the adoption of the resolution declaring that the treaty does not commit us to retention of the Philippines to result in the ratification of the treaty, Monday. Nobody had any cause to be surprised when the bill authorizing the increase of the regular army to 100,000 men was passed by the House by a vote of 168 to 125. Four democrats and one populist voted for the bill and six republicans voted against it. The humbuggery of the amendment giving the President authority, in his discretion, to reduce the army to 50,000 men was fully exposed by the democrats before the bill was jammed throug under orders from the White House. It is Mr. McKinley who is clamoring for a standing army of 100,000; consequently nobody will expect him to voluntarily make the number smaller. Just before the bill was passed a shrewd move was made to add to its strength in the Senate, by the adoption of an amendment for the abolishment of the army "canteen". For several years the temperance and reform organizations of the country have been asking Congress to do away with the "canteen", but their requests have been ignored until now, when their influence is needed to get the Senate to agree to a standing army of 100,000 men. The republican leaders are about as slick as they make them, when it comes to manipulating legislation.

The Hull bill for the perpetuation of the gold standard, the retirement of the greenbacks, and other purposes, has been favorably reported to the House from the Comage committee, under pressure from the gold standard men who have been demanding financial legislation, but, easy as it ought to be for the republicans to put the bill through the House, it is very doubtful whether they do it.

Representative Handy, of Del., has filed the minority committee report against the Hanna Payne shipping bill, and it is a stinger. Words are not minced, but the bounties provided for by the bill are named for just what they are, personal grabs into the peoples money. Of the cost, the report says: "By a careful and conservative estimate we find that the government will be obligated by the contracts likely to be entered into during the first twelve months under this bill to pay bounties amounting to more than $165,000,000." Its concluding words are: "This bill is the offspring of mere bounty beggars and should be repudiated by Representatives of both political parties. It is vicious in principle. It is not necessary for the rehabilitation of our merchant marine to give hundreds of millions of the people's tax money. The bill is wholly unjustifiable."

When the Ambassador of a foreign country allows himself to be interviewed for publication, it is generally to help the government of the country he represents carry out some plan. Consequently there is much curiosity in Washington since the German Ambassador declared in a published interview that Germany would not interfere with the plans of the U. S. in the Philippines, because the U. S. did not interfere with Germany's plans in China, as to what Germany's game is. Some think that the interview was intended to notify us that American non-intervention in German plans in China is the price that must be paid for German non-intervention in American plans in the Philippines.

The Samson clique are not as chipper as they were. They realize that their pull is getting weak in spots. First, the Senate refused to act on Samson's promotions until given official reasons therefor; next Secretary Long declined to assume the responsibility of deciding Sampson and the crew of the New York to be entitled to prize money for participation in the destruction of Cervera's fleet, and ordered that the claim be referred to the Court of Claims. All of which is nuts for the friends of Schley

The House passed the River and Harbor bill this week. It appropriates a little more than $30,000,000

One of the first results of the passage of the bill to provide for a standing army of 100,000 men is the announcement that the Military Appropriation bill, which will be reported to the House next week, will carry $90,000,000. Imperialism comes high.

THE FLAMING SHIELD.

Dense dome with clouds still blacker than the night
Like evil spirits stealing 'cross the sky.
Tall pines that moan to stupid owls, whose fright
Hoots at their sullenness. The cuckoo's cry,
Wind hurled, is haggled to the battling sea,
Where white the warring billows laugh with glee.

Frowns from the hill the church tower's reaching spire,
Like black arm crawling upward to the night;
When, lo, a rift above, a burst of fire!
The pale moon's sword is drawn. Down falls the light.
The cross glows white, like opal flash to wield
Strange fires that flash Christ's love, a flaming shield.

How like when passion scars, and scars the soul;
When grief and sorrow darken all our sky,
And barren seems the world of peace, life's whole
Then from above, Hope's opal shaft doth wield
Strange fires that flash Christ's love, a flaming shield.

AS HE SAW "CYRANO"

By George Ade

THE young man who claims the proud distinction of being the sporting authority of Mrs. Pollock's boarding house attended a performance of "Cyrano de Bergerac" one evening recently. Next morning at the breakfast table he was telling the bookkeeper, the clothing salesman and the young woman stenographer all about it.

"You want to go," he said. "You want to go. It's all right. Mansfield does it out of sight."

"It's something like Shakespeare, ain't it?" asked the bookkeeper.

"No, this is something new, something just off of the bat. Of course it is something like Shakespeare, beenz this fellow has a hard-luck finish, but it ain't tragedy, either. I don't know what you would call it, but it's all right at that."

"Mansfield wears a big nose, don't he?" asked the stenographer. "I should think he'd look awful funny."

"Funny? Yes, it is funny, I don't think. It's about as funny as six funerals goin' into Rose Hill cemetery all at one time. Funny!"

"Why? Does he die?" asked the clothing salesman.

"Well, yes, he does die at the finish, but that's the least of his troubles. Where he has all of his trouble is on account of this girl. You're got to admire a good many things he done, but at that I wouldn't have stood for this other fellow as long as he did."

"What other fellow?" asked the bookkeeper. "Did some other fellow love the girl?"

"Oh, murder!" exclaimed the sporting oracle, pushing away the cup of coffee. "I see right here that I'll have to make a diagram of this whole thing. Now, this is the whole business as near as I could follow it. Cyrano (Searanoh) is stuck on the girl. She's a kind of a second cousin of his. The girl likes him well enough, and that's about all. He's a sight, you know. He's got a nose on him that ain't a nose at all. It's a handle, that's what it is. Well, this Cyrano is a brainy guy, and he's ready to fight at the drop of the hat, especially if anyone goes to making any cracks about the nose. That's the one thing he won't stand for. He's a handy fellow with the sword, writes poetry and so on, you know—an elegant talker, too, and as soon as you size him up you can see that this horrible beak is his one handicap. But it's somethin', of course, that nobody can overlook.

"Well, just about the time the piece opens, this girl that he's dead stuck on comes to him and tells him that she's in love with a young soldier that's just come to join the same company that Cyrano's with. That's an awful jolt right between the eyes, but this Cyrano is game up wherever you put him, so he promises the girl that he'll help the thing along and look after the young fellow, and—oh, yes, he promises her that he won't fight with Christian."

"Who's Christian?" asked the stenographer.

"That's the name of the young fellow that the girl is stuck on. He's one of these nice looking boys, you know, good up to his limit, but a short limit. Well, he's a new soldier in this company, and some of the others have been kiddin' him and tellin' him that he didn't have any nerve. He's crazy mad, and just to prove that he's all right he decides to call down Cyrano, because he's the best man in sight. Cyrano starts to tell the soldiers a story of something that happened the night before, and this young fellow, who's sittin' off at one side, shoots in a remark about the nose. Well, everybody jumps up beenz it looks ten to one that there's goin' to be a killin'. Cyrano is right on top of this young fellow in a second, and wants to know who he is. When he hears the name he stops that quick. It's the young fellow he's promised to look after. He goes back and sits down and starts the story again. The young fellow says something more about the nose. He keeps it up, you know, and the soldiers don't know what to make of it, for it's the first time on record that anyone ever made any remarks about the nose and got away with it. Well, at last Cyrano sends the soldiers out and tells this Christian why he can't fight him, and then the young fellow weakens and apologizes and they agree to be friends.

"Now, this young fellow is a good looker, but, as he says himself, when they begin to talk it over, he's a frost when it comes to talkin' or writin' letters, so Cyrano makes a proposition that he'll write the letters and tell the young fellow what to say to the girl, and between the two of 'em they'll win her out. That's the part of the play I can't understand. This Cyrano was furnishin' the brains of the outfit, but he didn't stand to get anything out of it except the satisfaction of seein' that the girl got married to the pretty boy. I couldn't see myself pluggin' another man's game like that."

"Did it work?" asked the clothing salesman.

"Did it work? Well, I should say it did. Cyrano would write these letters to her, and she thought, of course, that they came from the young fellow and that he was just about the best ever. He got to be such an awful hit with her that he thought he didn't need any of Cyrano's help any more, and so he started to make love on his own hook, and came mighty near queerin' the whole thing. He had to call on Cyrano again. In the third act, you know, they come around under her window at night and Cyrano tells the young fellow what to say. After the talk is started Cyrano stands under the window and deals out a line of about the swellest conversation that you ever heard in your life. He was really talkin' for himself, but it was supposed to be the young fellow talkin', and of course the young fellow was gettin' stronger every minute. After Cyrano had her goin' he side-stepped and let this dummy come in and land the knock-out. The girl and the young fellow fixed it up to get married then and there. They nailed a priest, and while they were in the house bein' married, here was good old Cyrano out in front of the house standin' off the duke who was stuck on the girl himself. Talk about a man gettin' the short end of it. Cyrano didn't even get the loser's percentage.

"Well, this duke, you know, that had been stuck on the girl, he was good and sore when he found out that her and the young fellow were married, so he ordered the whole company to go to the front in some war or other. He sent Cyrano and the young fellow and the whole bunch out to a camp where it was about an even-money bet that they'd all get killed in less than a week. After they got out to this camp Cyrano keeps writin' the letters to her and she thinks all the time that they're from this Christian. Finally she can't stand it any longer. She gets through the lines and goes out to the camp and tells her husband how she's enjoyed these letters, and says that since she's come to know him so well she could love him even if he was old and ugly.

A WINNER.

The young fellow begins to see that she's really stuck on Cyrano without knowin' it. He's about to blow the whole thing when he's ordered out to fight. He goes out and takes a desperate chance on purpose, and gets his finish. His wife is there with him when he dies, and so is Cyrano to see that he don't tell anything. Then there is a battle and she escapes, and Cyrano gets through it somehow and shows up later and is a kind of friend of the family and comes to see her every day, but always very much on the dignity, understand? All this while that he's been workin' for the other fellow he's never tipped it off to her that he loves her. He's supposed to be a good friend, that's all.

"Well, you know he's a scrapper, and writes a good many things that get under the skin, and there's a lot of people layin' for him, and at last they get him. This is nearly 14 years after the young fellow died, understand? Cyrano is goin' along the street one day and somebody drops a log on his head and lays him out. They take him home and he's delirious and all done for, but he manages to get out into the garden where the girl is, but of course she's a woman now, and she's sittin' with her back to him and don't notice that there's anything the matter with him. They get to talkin' over old times, and she gives him the last letter that she got from this Christian. He reads it out loud, and then, bein' out of his head, you know, he goes an and repeats a lot of things that he used to write in these letters to her. Well, she's surprised and then she tumbles. She sees that it was him and not the young fellow that she was stuck on. But here's where Cyrano's game. He won't admit that he wrote the letters, and as long as he's got any breath he tells her that he doesn't love her, but she knows better. He gets out of his chair and makes a hard fight, and then keels over and everybody gets up and goes out on their tiptoes."

"I should say not."

DELANO, Wright Co.. - MINN.

Two American daily newspapers are being published at Manila, and the rival editors will soon be leading each other a merry chase for the county printing.

The wife of Gen. Wood is organizing at Santiago a society for the prevention of cruelty to animals. A few months ago bullfights were the fashionable sport in that vicinity.

Last year's profits of John Wanamaker's Philadelphia and New York stores are said to have been $1,000,000. He attributes his success to the generous use of newspaper advertising.

In 1898 23 people gave $11,176,000 to public institutions in this country, and these figures include only sums exceeding $100,000. Holding the lead in this form of philanthropy is another American distinction.

Mark Twain is being funny yet over in Europe. He has written an article against war, which opens: "The czar is in favor of disarmament, and so am I. There ought to be no difficulty about the rest of the world."

A North Carolina editor makes this original proposition: "We will publish a ten-column story for a load of groceries, and we will cheerfully give space to obituaries of farmer subscribers at the rate of six laying hens a column."

It is somewhat remarkable that four secretaries of the interior have been chosen from St. Louis. Carl Schurz under Hayes, John W. Noble under Harrison, David R. Francis under Cleveland and Ethan Allen Hitchcock under McKinley.

Massachusetts will hereafter kill her convicted murderers with electricity. The murderer will not know the time at which he is to die, and no press reports of the execution will be attainable. Should there be any carelessness or bungling the people will not learn of it through the newspapers.

A prize of $1,000 offered by a New York newspaper at the beginning of 1898 for the most correct prophecies of what would happen during the ensuing year was taken by a man who said there would be a successful war with Spain, a republican governor elected in New York and a bill passed to annex Hawaii.

The University of Pennsylvania will erect a handsome memorial tower at a cost of $60,000, in memory of the undergraduates and alumni who took part in the Spanish-American war. The world never before saw an army containing so many college graduates; it was an army typifying education as well as ability to fight.

A member of the Massachusetts general assembly wants to limit the deliberations of that body to the affairs of Massachusetts, and let the rest of the country take care of itself. He is a new member, however, and his suggestion will be promptly tabled, on the plea that the rest of the country is not yet prepared for such an experiment in self-government.

During the year 1898 Uncle Sam printed something like 2,500,000,000 stamps of the two-cent denomination. The fact that these stamps, if placed in a line would reach around the world and then straight through it with a few thousand miles to spare would seem to indicate that the Americans are a reading, thinking and writing people to an extent that is but wonderful.

Another commission to investigate the conduct of the war is advocated by a United States senator. He is evidently afraid that the report of the first commission will not be satisfactory to him. This is manifestly wrong, and the senator should be satisfied, at whatever cost. If Admiral Dewey was eight miles from shore on the 1st of May, flirting with a school of mermaids, instead of looking for something easy at Manila, let us have the painful facts at once.

Not long ago Secretary Long interested himself in the case of a sailor who entered the navy at the beginning of the war and now wanted his discharge. The secretary asked several officials to make out the necessary papers, but found that the man could only be discharged for cause. Finally the secretary said: "Well, make out his discharge because it rained yesterday." This appears to be a sufficient reason, for the sailor is no longer in the navy.

The recent protest of J. Sterling Morton, of Nebraska, against the cutting of Christmas trees is warmly commended in the west. In his protest he said: "The trees selected for slaughter on this anniversary are always the straightest and most symmetrical. There were last year more than 20,000,000 of Christmas trees cut down and put on the market. The absurdity of celebrating the birth of the Saviour of the world by a wanton waste and extravagance which jeopardizes the welfare of millions of human beings yet unborn is obvious to every thinking man."

In the rejoicing over the records broken in 1898 by the country's foreign trade, bank clearings, railway earnings, etc., the fact that the peanut crop was the largest ever known escaped attention. The yield is placed at 4,000,000 bushels, and it is estimated that of the 3,625,037 bushels consumed in 1898 all but the odd 37 met their fate within the confines of circus tents. In view of the large stock the commissioners of Sumter county, Fla., will have peanuts free at meetings of the board. This is a hint for office-holders elsewhere, should the taste for plums pall.

A curious attempt to raise a $1 silver certificate to the $5 denomination was discovered the other day at a Boston bank. On the face of the bill were 27 different places where changes or obliterations had been made, and on the reverse there were 14 more. No attempt had been made to change anything but the numerals and the word "one" wherever it occurred. First, the "ones" were obliterated by erasure and then "Vs" were drawn in very fine tissue paper and pasted on. About $10 worth of labor must have been expended in the perpetration of this clumsy $4 swindle.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

For more than five hours on the 3d the United States senate listened to arguments in opposition to expansion and in opposition to the ratification of the treaty of peace. The speakers were Mr. Money (Miss.) and Mr. Daniel (Va.). A joint resolution was passed appropriating $10,000 for a monument in the Colon cemetery in Havana for the sailors and marines who lost their lives by the explosion of the Maine. Most of the time of the house was consumed in filibustering against relief bills on the private calendar. The conference report on the diplomatic appropriation bill was adopted. The committee on judiciary has decided that Messrs. Wheeler, Robbins, Colson and Campbell, the members of the house who accepted commissions in the army, vacated their seats.

In the United States senate on the 4th Senator Chilton (Tex.) spoke against expansion and Senator Wolcott (Col.) in favor of it. In the house the military academy appropriation bill, carrying about $600,000, was passed and the bill providing for a corps of army nurses was favorably reported, as was also the senate bill pensioning Gen. John M. Palmer, of Illinois, the amount being reduced from $100 to $50 per month. A joint resolution was introduced authorizing the secretary of war to pay the different states the amounts expended by them in equipping and maintaining soldiers on account of the late war with Spain.

FROM WASHINGTON.

The president received the record of the court-martial in the case of Gen. Eagan for final review.

Republican members of the house of representatives met in caucus and decided that it would be futile to attempt financial legislation at this late day in the present session.

TREATY OF PEACE.

Is Ratified by the United States Senate in Executive Session.

It Is Agreed To with But One Vote More Than the Required Two-Thirds—The Vote in Detail.

Washington, Feb. 7. — The treaty of peace negotiated between the commissioners of the United States and Spain at Paris was on Monday ratified by the United States senate, the vote being 57 ayes to 27 nays, or one vote more than the two-thirds majority necessary to secure senatorial concurrence in a treaty document. The vote was taken in executive session, and until the injunction of secrecy was removed the result was supposed to be private; but the vice president had no more than announced the figures before senators rushed out of every door leading from the senate chamber, declaring that the treaty had been ratified. Some made the mistake of stating that there were three votes to spare. There was in fact only one vote more than was necessary—the balloting resulting 57 ayes to 27 nays.

In advance of the voting speeches were made by Senators Ross, Money and Fairbanks.

The Vote in Detail.

The vote in detail was as follows:

The McEnery Resolution.

After the ratification of the treaty, the senate in open session took up a joint resolution offered by Senator McEnery (dem., La.) declaring a policy for the Philippines and an effort was made to adopt it, but the debate occupied so much time that the resolution went over.

HURLED TO THEIR DEATH.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 4.—A two-horse wagon loaded with furniture and on which six persons, five men and a young woman, were riding, was struck by a fast Baltimore & Ohio freight train at the crossing at Riverton station, just above McKeesport. Four of the men were killed and the other man and the young woman were so badly injured that they died within a few hours.

The Milk Trust.

Chicago, Feb. 4.—Articles of incorporation of the Chicago milk trust, of which Joseph Leiter is the prime mover, are now on their way to New Jersey, and in a day or two the consolidation will be an accomplished fact. The capital stock will be $10,000,000. Very little of this will be in the hands of the milk dealers, the organization having in most cases bought the milk routes outright. The trust, it is said, will not alter the price of milk at present.

All Are Dead.

Little Rock, Ark., Feb. 3.—An entire family, consisting of five persons, has been entirely wiped out in the little town of Bowman within the last two days, every member dying within a few hours of each other with pneumonia. Esquire Gwynn, his son Charles, his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Nobles, and Mrs. Dot Carpenter, another daughter, were all buried at the same time in the same plot of ground.

Heavy Deposits of Gold.

Denver, Col., Feb. 3.—The deposits of gold at the Denver branch mint for the month of January reached $1,691,107, over a quarter million more than January, 1898. This in spite of the fact that the rough weather has interfered with the operation of many of the mills in the state.

Wants Place for Wheeler.

Washington, Feb. 7.—Representative Stallings (Ala.) has introduced in the house a bill to authorize the president to appoint Gen. Wheeler a major general in the regular army.

Agoncillo in Canada.

Montreal, Can., Feb. 7.—Agoncillo the Filipino representative, arrived in Montreal Monday. Accompanied by his secretary, Senor Martia, he drove to the Windsor.

WORK OF THE HOUSE

Many Bills Are Passed, Some of Importance—Appropriations for Public Buildings.

Washington, Feb. 7.—Monday was suspension day in the house and quite a number of bills were passed, several of them of importance. The census bill prepared by the house committee went through by a vote of 147 to 42.

A bill was passed to extend the anti-contract labor laws over the Hawaiian islands. Mr. Grow (rep., Pa.) offered a resolution for a constitutional amendment providing that peace treaties shall be ratified by a majority of the senate. With the simple statement that it was very singular that a majority of the two houses could make war while two-thirds of the senate were required to make peace, he asked that the resolution be referred to the committee on judiciary. It was so referred.

Washington, Feb. 7. — The sundry civil appropriation bill completed Monday noon by the house committee on appropriations carries $20,000,000 "to carry out the obligations of the treaty between the United States and Spain." Outside of this the bill appropriated $42,927,301.

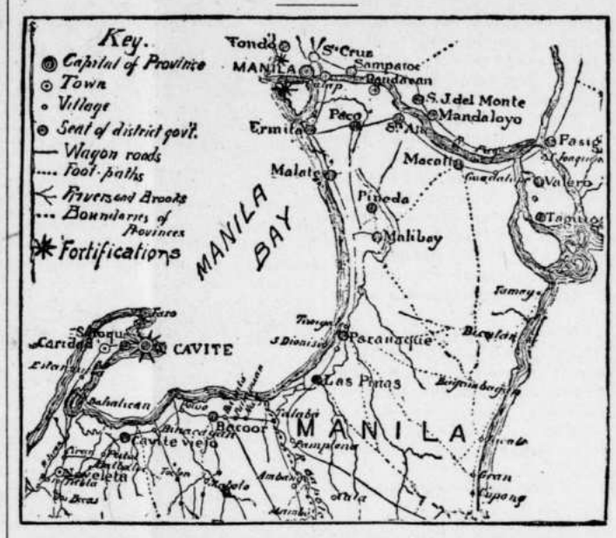
The provision for the payment of $20,000,000 is as follows:

"For the purpose of carrying out the obligations of the treaty between the United States and Spain, concluded at Paris on the 10th of December, 1898, to become immediately available on the exchange of ratifications of said treaty, $20,000,000."

Washington, Feb. 7.—A large number of favorable reports on public buildings throughout the country were made Monday by the house committee on public buildings and grounds. They will be taken up to-day, two days having been assigned. The bills include:

Indianapolis, $1,200,000; Joliet, Ill., $100,000; Brunswick, Ga., $50,000; Cleveland, O., $2,200,000; Dubuque, Ia., $100,000; Omaha, Neb., increase limit of cost to $1,800,000; Elgin, Ill., $100,000; Creston, Ia., $50,000; Janesville, Wis., $50,000; Fergus Falls, Minn., $75,000; Clinton, Ia., $75,000; Blair, Neb., $43,000; Aberdeen, S. D., $87,000; Menominee, Mich., $50,000; St. Cloud, Minn., $50,000; Streator, Ill., $50,000; Eau Claire, Wis., $50,000; Green Bay, Wis., $50,000; Freeport, Ill., $50,000.

MAP OF MANILA AND VICINITY.



The above map shows the eastern and southern suburbs of Manila. The rebels have been encamped in a semicircle around the city, extending from Malabon on the north to Malate on the south. Their main strength, however, is west of the city, in and around Santa Ana and Mandaloyo, their forces near the shores of the bay being smaller through fear of shells from Dewey's ships should trouble ensue. It was the force to the southeast of Manila which forced the recent fighting.

SCENES OF HORROR.

Awful Sights During Burning of a Hungarian Village—Men Literally Ablaze Run About the Streets.

London, Feb. 6.—The Daily Telegraph publishes the following dispatch from Vienna: Terrible scenes were witnessed in the conflagration last Tuesday night which destroyed the whole village of Nagyprobroez, in the Liptau district of Hungary. Twenty men, literally in flames, ran about the streets until they dropped insensible. Many were trodden down by maddened animals. Others were frozen to death in the open fields. Twenty charred bodies have been recovered and 90 of the survivors are suffering from dreadful burns, several being blinded. The flames destroyed 600 head of cattle.

A SERIOUS CHARGE.

Two Chicago Attorneys, One Quite Prominent, Indicted for Complicity in a Bold Robbery.

Chicago, Feb. 4.—As a result of indictments returned secretly Thursday by the grand jury, W. C. Hoyer, a lawyer, and Peter Casey, a street foreman, were arrested Friday charged with complicity in the robbery in March, 1896, of $55,000 in bonds of Christopher Schrage, a miser. Allen C. Story, a prominent attorney, is also under indictment on the same charge, and a warrant is out for his arrest. All three men are charged with having negotiated a number of the stolen bonds.

Favor Pension for Palmer.

Washington, Feb. 6.—The house committee on invalid pensions reported favorably the senate bill pensioning Gen. John M. Palmer, of Illinois, the amount being reduced from $100 to $50. The report refers to Mr. Palmer's service at the head of the senate pension committee, his liberal treatment of the old soldiers and yet his opposition to "large sentimental pensions based on social positions and political pull." Under such circumstances, the report states, $50 per month is all that Gen. Palmer himself will approve.

Spain Wants Warships.

Madrid, Feb. 6.—A large meeting of the Commercial club has passed a resolution demanding that the government use part of the $20,000,000 to be paid by the United States as an indemnity for the cession of the Philippine islands in the construction of three warships for the defense of the coasts of Spain.

Mrs. Botkin Sentenced.

San Francisco, Feb. 6.—Mrs. Cordelia Borkin on Saturday was sentenced to serve the term of her natural life in the San Quentin penitentiary for the murder of Mrs. John P. Dunning, of Dover, Del., whom she killed by means of a box of poisoned candy, sent through the mails.

ATTACKED BY INSURGENTS

American Troops in the Philippines Meet and Repulse Rebel Forces.

DEWEY'S SHIPS AID IN THE FIGHTING.

The Filipino Loss Is Estimated at 2,000 Dead, 3,500 Wounded and 5,000 Taken Prisoner—Our Loss Reported to Be 50 Killed and 150 Wounded—Story of the Battle.

Manila, Feb. 7.—Careful estimates place the Filipino losses up to date at 2,000 dead, 3,500 wounded and 5,000 taken prisoners.

Our Losses.

Washington, Feb. 7.—The latest reports from Manila put the American loss at 50 killed and 150 wounded.

Story of the Fight.

Manila, Feb. 6.—The long-expected rupture between the Americans and the Filipinos has come at last. The former are now engaged in solving the Philippine problem with the utmost expedition possible. The clash came at 8:40 Saturday evening, when three daring Filipinos darted past the Nebraska regiment pickets at Santa Mesa, but retired when challenged. They repeated the experiment without drawing the sentries' fire. But the third time Corporal Greely challenged the Filipinos and then fired, killing one of them and wounding another.

The first shot from the American sentry was evidently accepted as a prearranged signal, for it was followed almost immediately by a terrific fusillade along the entire Filipino line on the north side of the Pasig river.

Filipino Fire Checked.

The American outposts returned the fire with such vigor that the Filipino fire was checked until the arrival of reenforcements.

All the troops in the vicinity were hurried out, and the Filipinos ceased firing for half an hour while their own reenforcements came up.

Firing Resumed.

At ten o'clock the firing was resumed, the American firing line consisting of the Third artillery, the Kansas and Montana regiments, the Minnesota regiment, the Pennsylvanians, the Nebraskans, the Utah battery, the Idahos, the Washingtons, the Californians, the Fourth cavalry, North Dakota volunteers, Sixth artillery and Fourteenth infantry, and the South Dakota and Colorado regiments.

Concentrated at Three Points.

The Filipinos concentrated their forces at three points, Calcacan, Santa Mesa and Galingatan, and maintained an intermittent fusillade for some hours.

They brought artillery into action at Galingatan at 10:30, but only one gun annoyed the Americans to any appreciable extent, a howitzer on the road beyond Santa Mesa. The Third artillery silenced the Galingatan battery by firing two guns simultaneously, which was followed immediately by volleys from the infantry.

At about midnight there was a lull in the firing lasting until 3:45 a. m., when the whole Filipino line reopened fire. The Americans poured a terrific fire into the darkness for 20 minutes, and then there was another lull until daylight, when the Americans generally advanced.

Good Work of Dewey's Boats.

During the night, in response to Admiral Dewey's signals flashed across from Cavite, the United States cruiser Charleston and the gunboat Concord, stationed at Malabon, poured a deadly fire from their secondary batteries into the Filipino trenches at Caloocan.

After daylight the United States double turret sea-going monitor Monadnock opened fire off Malate and kept shelling the Filipinos' left flank, while the other vessels shelled the right flank for several hours.

Americans Completely Route Enemy.

By one o'clock the Americans had apparently completely routed the enemy and had taken the villages of Pandacan, Santa Mesa, Paco, Santana, San Pedro, Macorte, Pandocan and Pasai, had destroyed hundreds of native huts, and had secured possession of the water main reservoir, a distance of over six miles. The Tennessees joined the firing line at ten o'clock on Sunday morning and assisted in capturing Santa Mesa.

Notable Event.

One of the most notable events of Sunday's work was driving the Filipinos out of their stronghold at Paco by the reserve, a few companies of Californians commanded by Col. Duboce. The main road to the village was lined by native huts full of Filipino sharpshooters. After they had been firing upon Gen. King and his staff, killing a driver, and firing on an ambulance of the Red Cross society, Col. Duboce ordered the huts to be cleared and burned.

Filipinos' Determined Stand.

The Filipinos concentrated in Paco church and convent, where they made a determined stand in the upper stories. A platoon of Californians stationed on a neighboring bridge maintained a hot fire on the Filipinos, but was unable to dislodge them. In the face of a terrible fusillade, Col. Duboce and a few volunteers dashed into the church, scattered coal oil inside of it, set fire to the oil, and retired.

In the meantime Capt. Dyer's battery of the Sixth artillery bombarded the church, dropping a dozen shells into the tower and roof. Company L, and part of company G, of the Californians, charged into the church, but were unable to ascend the single flight of steps leading to the story above.

Picked Off One at a Time.

After the incendiaries had retired, a company of the Idahos and the Washington guards, stationed on either side of the building, picked off the Filipinos as they were smoked out. Many of the rebels, however, escaped into the bush in the rear of the church. The Americans captured 53 of the rebels, and during the fighting about the church 20 of the rebels were killed.

Some 2,500 women, children and non-combatants were allowed to enter the American lines, after promising to go to the houses of friends and remain there.

A Heroic Charge.

Another intensely exciting incident occurred during the engagement. The Washingtons and Idahos and companies K and M of the Californias made charges across the rice fields between Paco and Santana in the face of a terrific fusillade. The ground over which they passed is covered with dead and wounded natives. The former are being buried in groups of five or six about where they lay, and the latter are being brought to the hospital. It was at this stage of the fighting and at Calcooan that the Filipinos suffered their heaviest losses. The Fourteenth regulars were in a particularly tight place near Singalon, and Col. Duboce was compelled to rush past them with the reserve in order to prevent the regulars from being cut off. In the last line 12 men were killed before the rebels retired.

Both sides cheered frequently during the engagement. The Americans "hurrahs" were almost invariably met by derisive "vivas." Among the natives the Ygorotes were especially noticeable for their bravery, about 700 of these naked savages facing artillery fire with their bows and arrows.

Wants It Repealed.

Washington, Feb. 3. — Representative Gaines (Tenn.) introduced a bill to repeal the law which prevents an ex-confederate soldier from sitting on a federal grand or pettit jury. This is the last relic of the laws discriminating against ex-confederates. It slipped into the revision of the law of 1862, although it had been repealed, and works now considerable hardship in the south.

Cyclone in Georgia.

Cartersville, Ga., Feb. 6.—The town of Stilesboro, nine miles from here, was nearly wiped off the earth Sunday by a cyclone. No lives were lost, but several people were injured. The Methodist church, a new structure, was completely demolished and about a dozen families made homeless.

True Greatness In Medicine

Is proved by the health of the people who have taken it. More people have been made well, more cases of disease and sickness have been cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla than by any other medicine in the world. The peculiar combination, proportion and process in its preparation make Hood's Sarsaparilla peculiar to itself and unequaled by any other.

INTERESTING TO FARMERS.

What a Former Resident of Cascia County, Idaho, Has to Say Regarding Western Canada.

Mr. T. A. Tolman, of Lacombe, Alberta, N. W. T., a former resident of Cascia county, Idaho, who moved to western Canada in July, 1894, write as follows:

"I brought here 34 head of cattle, 15 horses, two wagons, two sets of harness and $150 in cash. I homesteaded the southeast quarter of section 28, township 40, range 26, west of the fourth meridian, also purchased a quarter section of Canadian Pacific railway land. I have been farming more or less nearly all my life and I am convinced that you can raise crops 40 per cent. cheaper here than where I came from. My capital at present, counting everything, is about $5,000. The yield of my grain all round in 1897 was 60 bushels per acre. This year (1898) yield of wheat per acre 37½ bushels, oats 50 bushels, barley 35 and potatoes 400 per acre. I consider this is a much better country for a man than where I came from, provided he is industrious. You get a free homestead here and Canadian Pacific railway lands are cheap and the terms easy. I have now made my seventh payment on the land purchased by me and am much pleased with my purchase, as the land has already much more than paid for itself. School law here is decidedly ahead of where I came from, and there are schools wherever there are settlers."

More for Her Money.

"I hear that your daughter has broken off her engagement with the count. Is it true?"

"Yes; she ran across a chance to get a duke at the same figure."—Chicago Journal.

He—"I suppose you were not doing a thing in church this morning but studying that woman's bonnet in front of us?" She—"Well, you were studying the minister's style, were you not?"—Yonkers Statesman.

"She's pretty enough to bite." "Yes, but there's lead poisoning in all those face preparations."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Good Blood!

Your heart beats over one hundred thousand times each day. One hundred thousand supplies of good or bad blood to your brain.

Which is it?

If bad, impure blood, then your brain aches. You are troubled with drowsiness yet cannot sleep. You are as tired in the morning as at night. You have no nerve power. Your food does you but little good.

Stimulants, tonics, headache powders, cannot cure you; but will. It makes the liver, kidneys, skin and bowels perform their proper work. It removes all impurities from the blood. And it makes the blood rich in its life-giving properties.

To Hasten Recovery.

You will be more rapidly cured if you will take a laxative dose of Ayer's pills each night. They arouse the sluggish liver and thus cure biliousness.

LEGISLATIVE GOSSIP

Our Special Correspondent Tells of the Solons' Doings.

The Work of Introducing Bills, Both Public and Private Goes Merrily On. As Yet but Few Measures Have Received Final Action.

St. Paul, Feb. 2.—No bills passed by the senate and two by the house was the legislative record for the first day of the second month of the session. One of the bills passed by the house provides for the free distribution of what remains of the $5,000 worth of sugar beet seed purchased by the state. This comprises about three-fourths of the amount brought from Germany. When it was originally purchased there was no sugar beet factory in the state and there was not much use of purchasing any seed. As a free gift, it ought to be in demand. The second bill passed amends the act defining a legal paper and provides for a consolidation of papers without losing their legal status. This is only one of hundreds of cases in which it is necessary to burden the general status with a law, owing to the constitutional amendment forbidding special legislation. The Rochester Record and Rochester Post have consolidated. Both were legal papers but the consolidation, uniting the names, makes a difference and so a law must be passed applying to all newspaper consolidations and be handed down for all time in the general statutes. Two-thirds of the general legislation is of this specific character.

One of the bills introduced in the senate permits fishing at all season of the year, on the ground that people should not be forbidden the opportunity to secure food. Representative Hagstrom thinks we have too many holidays and so offers a bill revising the list and omitting Lincoln's birthday. He did not forget labor day, because the people who work have votes, but he forgot the birthday of the man who was largely instrumental in freeing the enslaved laborers.

The house got up to 211 bills yesterday and the senate to 181, but as yet business is not crowding.

The question of having an examining board of Osteopaths to pass upon their wishing to practice that profession is attracting about as much attention as any pending measure.

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 3.—According to the Minnesota Senate, one year's desertion is enough to secure a divorce, as that body has killed the bill increasing the limit to three years. Only four bills were introduced in the Senate yesterday and one of these was for closing theatres on Sunday. This bill has been introduced in the two last legislatures, but those bodies felt it incumbent to go to the theatres a few Sunday nights, after which they concluded that the bill should not pass. Perhaps this legislature will follow the example of its predecessors.

There was quite a lengthy debate in committee of the whole over the bill taxing foreign corporations who wish to do business in Minnesota. The bill is of the class which restricts commerce between the states and is of doubtful constitutionality. After the debate the Senate passed it over for further consideration.

Mr. Jacobson not being in favor of a Northwestern international exposition in 1902, the resolution laying the ground work for such a scheme was defeated in the House.

The colored people seem likely to get their rights, on paper, at least, as the bill presented by the only colored man in the legislature, Mr. Wheaton, has been recommended to pass. When that becomes a law the colored people can patronize the saloons and touch elbows with white folks.

Each branch of the legislature passed one bill. The Senate bill legalized deeds and mortgages defectively executed while the bill passed by the House legalized certain school bonds issued by Minneapolis. The bill providing a bounty of 50 cents per ton for all pig iron made in Minnesota from Minnesota ore is being strongly urged in the committee on manufactures by citizens of Duluth, who have apparently made a very favorable impression by their arguments.

St. Paul, Feb. 4.—The senate yesterday passed the bill refunding the citizens the $24,500 they advanced for the Omaha exposition. Nine senators were excused from voting on the ground that they had signed the notes upon which the money was raised. As the bill had previously passed the house it now goes to the governor for his signature. Senator Miller is still looking after the express companies and introduced a bill to tax them five per cent on their gross earnings. The State Agricultural society had a bill introduced appropriating $45,000 to build an agricultural hall and an amphitheater for the display of live stock.

Senator Grindeland has decided to amend his commission men bill by eliminating the requirement of a bond and the recording of the day, hour and minute when sales are made. The bill still places the commission under the charge of the railroad and warehouse commission to be investigated by them at their pleasure.

Senator Rowerud is the author of reform measures. He added to his bill forbidding Sunday theatrical entertainments by introducing another, making it a misdemeanor to sell or give away liquor on Sunday.

Notwithstanding the judiciary committee reported against the bill making the insurance, labor and dairy commissioners elective offices, and also the office of superintendent of public instruction, Senator Ryder got it sent to the committee of the whole and it may be saved by the action of the entire senate. This is one of the bills which has cropped out because the governor, who makes the appointments, differs politically from the legislature. The judiciary committee, however, recommended the bill to pass which provides for the election of railroad commissioners. It seems probable that this bill will become a law.

There was a hot contest in the house over the bill making it a misdemeanor to throw bottles, barbed wire or any other objectionable articles upon cycle paths. It was finally recommended to pass, but not until the country members had declared their hostility to the wheel. A bill introduced in the house compelling railroads to run daily trains over stub and branch lines is being strongly opposed by the railroads. They say they will tear up their tracks going to many places if such a bill becomes a law, as they cannot afford to operate them daily.

St. Paul, Feb. 6.—This time it was the House that took a Saturday recess and only the Senate was in session. The interesting feature of the session was the debate in committee of the whole over the Somerville corporation bill. This bill is aimed at foreign corporations, and requires them to pay the incorporation fees asked of domestic companies. This will amount to $525 on a million dollars capital. As this applies to insurance companies it will create quite a revenue. It also requires them maintain a business office and a resident agent. The bill is not only to apply to all foreign corporations who come into the State hereafter, but to all who have come in since 1889, when the original fee bill was enacted. The only exception made was exempting the shipping and steamboat companies who do business at Duluth. The bill was recommended so strongly to pass that it is sure of going through the Senate in a day or two.

The osteopathy bills were made debatable on Wednesday afternoon.

Ortonville, the county seat of Big Stone county, is so near the line that it has grown over into Lac qui Parle county, and a bill to take a slice off from Lac qui Parle and give it to Big Stone was offered.

Only one bill was passed and that requires that the whole head of a wolf must be presented to get the bounty, instead of the pelt alone.

St. Paul, Feb. 7.—In order to make it certain that the house did not put in the most days the senate adjourned over from Saturday to Tuesday, so that the house was the only branch in session yesterday as an offset to the senate being the only body in session on Saturday.

Three bills were passed and eight introduced. One of them passed, appropriating $19,878 to pay the sugar beet bounty of one cent per pound. Only three of the bills introduced were of a general character. One appropriates $20,000 for the Soldiers' Home and another provides for forest preserves by setting apart tracts of land from state school lands. Another bill was introduced for a board of osteopathic examiners. The osteopaths are much in evidence this winter.

The usual resolution to cut off two or three weeks from the length of the session was offered and will meet with the usual fate of being defeated. The day was in reality dull and uninteresting.

BRIEF STATE NEWS.

January receipts for the customs district of Minnesota amounted to $60,000. During the year 1898 the value of dutiable imports in the district amounted to $981,632, on which the amount of duty collected was $365,136. The value of free goods imported was $121,764. The value of domestic exports was $285,907.

Mrs. Mary Addison, of Oak Point, met with a horrible death at an early hour the other morning. While lighting the fire her clothes became ignited and before help reached her life was extinct. One of her grandchildren attempted to save her life, and in so doing was severely burned about the feet.

Engineers are at work surveying the preliminary lines of an extension or cut-off line of the Northern Pacific railway from Staples northwesterly through the reservation to Fertile. This will open up a fine hardwood timber and grain belt and will be of much benefit to settlers, besides giving the Northern Pacific company a shorter and more feasible line from Duluth to the coast and Omaha.

The legislature received a memorial from the legislature of North Dakota, requesting the Minnesota legislature to co-operate with it in a petition to congress to include Red river in the appropriation for river and harbor improvement. It is not that anybody in particular wishes to navigate Red river, but by making the river navigable, as government engineers say is possible by constructing dams and deepening the channel, the river will be prevented from overflowing and damaging the adjacent lands and their crops.

Royal Use for the Phonograph.

Nothing pleases a barbaric monarch more than some wonderful machine of European invention which seems to have a touch of magic. Menelik of Abyssinia has been enchanted by hearing the queen's message to him in her own tones interpreted by the phonograph. The delivery of the message was a most ceremonious affair, an artillery salute being fired in honor of the queen as soon as the message had been uttered.

A Doubting Thomas.

"Sound," said the pedagogue, "is something that a person can hear, but can neither see nor feel."

"Oh, I don't know!" exclaimed the boy at the foot of the class. "I think I can prove that you are off in your theory."

"Very well, Thomas," retorted the man of learning, "go ahead and prove it, then."

"Only yesterday you gave me a sound thrashing," said Thomas; "I suppose the other pupils saw it, and don't you ever think for a minute that I didn't feel it."—Chicago Evening News.

GOMEZ YIELDS.

Agrees to Aid Gen. Brooke in the Restoration of Cuba—Thanked by McKinley.

Remedios, Province of Santa Clara, Feb. 1, via Havana, Feb. 3.—Gen. Maximo Gomez, the commander-in-chief of the Cuban army, placed himself squarely in position Wednesday as an active ally of the United States government in the work of the restoration of Cuba.

As a result of the conference which Robert P. Porter, the special commissioner of President McKinley, has had with Gen. Gomez, the latter cabled to President McKinley Thursday afternoon assuring him of his cooperation in disbanding the Cuban army and in distributing among the Cuban soldiers the $3,000,000 appropriated for the purpose of enabling them to return to their homes. Gen. Gomez also telegraphed to Maj. Gen. Brooke saying he would accept the latter's invitation to go to Havana.

In brief, the compact is as follows:

First—The Cuban officers in each province shall assist the American officers in distributing the funds.

Second—That these officers shall at once meet at some convenient point and devise when and where the settlements are to be made and arrange any other details.

Third—That the sum paid to each man shall not be regarded as part payment of salary or wages due for service rendered, but to facilitate the disbandment of the army, as a relief of suffering and as an aid in getting the people to work.

Fourth—The Cubans shall surrender their arms to the Cuban assembly or to its representatives.

Fifth—The committee on distribution shall use its best endeavors to distribute it among the population so that all may secure work.

Sixth—That the $3,000,000 shall be placed subject to the order of Gen. Brooke and that action in the matter shall be immediate.

At the rate of 60 it will amount to $4,200,000, or nearly $100 for each man in the Cuban army, as estimated by the delegation from the Cuban military assembly which went to Washington in December and has recently returned to Cuba. The late Gen. Calixta Garcia told President McKinley this amount would be satisfactory.

Havana, Feb. 4.—The following message from President McKinley was received by Robert P. Porter Friday morning, and was transmitted to Gen. Maximo Gomez:

"Hon. Robert P. Porter, Havana: The president sends his hearty congratulations and thanks for your dispatch. Convey his cordiel greetings to Gen. Gomez and his garteful appreciation of the general's frank and friendly message. The cooperation of Gen. Gomez in the pacification of Cuba will be of the greatest value for both peoples.

(Signed) "JOHN HAY,
"Secretary of State."

Havana, Feb. 4.—The news of Gen. Maximo Gomez' acceptance of the proposals of President McKinley, through Robert P. Porter, the president's special commissioner, has not yet been thoroughly weighed in this city. The Cuban leaders seem uncertain for the moment whether to support Gen. Gomez or criticise him. Public opinion has been wrought up to demand and expect a larger payment. Some of the Cuban major generals who have not been consulted may strongly disapprove of an agreement which gives them a minute portion of the $20,000 each of them expected.

COL. SEXTON IS DEAD.

Washington, Feb. 6.—Col. James A. Sexton, commander in chief of the G. A. R., ex-postmaster of Chicago, and member of President McKinley's war investigating committee, died at 3:15 o'clock Sunday morning. His death occurred at Garfield hospital, where he has been sick several days. Col. James A. Sexton, soldier and successful business man, has been a lifelong resident of Chicago. He has held high government positions and was always prominent in the Grand Army of the Republic, being elected commander in chief of that organization last year.

Chicago, Feb. 7.—The body of the late Col. James A. Sexton arrived in Chicago Monday night from Washington. It was accompanied by Mrs. Sexton and her son, William Sexton. The body was met at the depot by a large number of grand army men, who escorted the remains to the Sexton home.

Car Companies Combine.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 7.—It is positively known that eight big car companies scattered over the United States have been combined under the name of the American Car & Foundry company. The new company is incorporated under the laws of New Jersey with a capital of $60,000,000. The companies beside the Michigan-Peninsular of this city entering the consolidation are as follows: Jackson & Woodin Manufacturing company, Berwick, Pa.; Missouri Car & Foundry company, St. Louis; Ohio Falls Car Manufacturing company, Jeffersonville, Ind.; Union Car company, Buffalo; St. Charles Car company, St. Charles, Mo.; Wells & French company, Chicago; Terre Haute Car & Manufacturing company, Terre Haute, Ind.

William Returns Thanks.

Berlin, Feb. 3.—The Reischanzeiger publishes an imperial decree in which the emperor thanks God for His mercy in permitting him to complete the fortieth year of his life and the tenth year of his reign. His majesty also says he esteems himself happy to have been able, through his journey to Palestine, to enhance German prestige abroad, thanks the people for their manifestations of love and devotion and assures them he will continue to strive for the maintenance of the peace of the fatherland.

From President to Pauper.

San Francisco, Feb. 4.—A local paper prints a long story detailing the fall of ex-President Gutierrez, of Salvador, from president to pauper. The article is based on letters received here from Honduras, which state that the once popular president of Salvador is now living on alms from strangers. His fall is timed from the disruption of the union of the Central American republics.

Fatal Snowslide.

Glenwood Springs, Col., Feb. 3.—A snowslide leaving death in its path came down the mountainside near Shoshone station, on the Denver & Rio rande railroad, shortly after noon Thursday, and within less than a dozen feet from the wreck of a passenger train crushed out three lives. The slide was of enormous dimensions, being 400 feet long and from seven to ten feet in depth.

LEGISLATIVE SUMMARY.

The Transactions of the Lawmakers at St. Paul.—A Short Summary of the Regular Routine.

St. Paul, Feb. 1.—The best method of enforcing the payment of taxes was the subject of a long and rather unproductive debate by the senate in committee of the whole.

The following bills on the calendar were passed:

To amend section 252, chapter 46, General Laws 1889, entitled "An act to establish a probate code." Ayes 47, noes 0.

To amend section 3, chapter 212, General Laws 1897, relating to the discharge of persons from the Minnesota hospitals for the insane. Ayes 46, noes 0.

To allow the Minnesota Valley Historical Society to erect a monument on Ft. Ridgeley reservation in honor of the Sioux Indians who remained faithful to the whites at the time of the great massacre of 1862.

The following bills were introduced:

Geer—Establishing boards of equalization in cities of less than 4,000.

Jepson—Establishing 8-hour legal day in cities of 5,000 or over.

Establishing corner stones.

Fixing pay for triers in district courts.

To relieve ex-Treasurer Bobleter's bondsmen.

The house passed the bill relating to the destruction of weeds growing on the highways.

Relating to the property of persons adjudged insane.

The following bills were introduced:

Relating to attorney's fees in foreclosing of mortgages.

To provide for payments of liquor license money to towns in which licenses are collected.

To regulate telephone and telegraph companies and classifying them as common carriers.

Relating to lien of attorneys.

To authorize municipal courts having criminal jurisdiction to accept cash bail from persons accused of misdemeanors.

Prescribing penalty for misappropriating assessments paid by holders of insurance policies.

Amending laws relating to bench warrants.

To amend laws prescribing the various senatorial and legislative districts, and providing a change in the Thirty-seventh district, St. Paul.

To encourage day schools for teaching deaf and dumb residents.

To regulate the practice of healing and the licensing of those practicing the art of healing.

St. Paul, Feb. 2.—The senate held an afternoon session yesterday for the first time.

The bill to permit the filing of mortgages with registers of deeds as well as city clerks, was passed by the senate under suspension of the rules. Ayes, 46; nays, 0.

Among the bills recommended for passage in committee of the whole during the afternoon were:

Amending section 4966, General Statutes 1894, relating to the requisites of summons issued by justices of the peace.

Amending subdivision 1, section 6662, chapter 73, General Statutes 1894, relating to witnesses and evidence.

Among the bills passed favorably upon by the senate in committee of the whole at the afternoon session were:

Amending laws relating to foreclosure of mortgages by advertisement. This provides that the interest rate on a mortgage during the year of redemption shall be the same as in the mortgage.

Authorizing counties to purchase land to be used as agricultural fair grounds upon vote of the people, refers especially to the grounds of the South Minnesota Fair association at Rochester.

Jones—Amending the statutes relating to the sale of forfeited property on tax sale.

The house passed the following bills:

Providing for the distribution of sugar beet seed, purchased by the state.

To provide for the publication of legal notices in certain consolidated newspapers.

The following bills were introduced:

To make New Year's day, Fourth of July and Christmas legal holidays.

To regulate public health by prohibiting use of decayed meats, etc.

To enable counties to purchase lands for agricultural fairs.

To prevent fraudulent voting at school elections.

Relating to the acquiring of additional territory by towns and villages.

To require construction of side tracks by railroad companies.

To consolidate election districts in certain cases.

To readjust certain judicial districts.

To prevent driving or shipping into the state of sheep having contagious diseases.

To prevent fraud in sale of garden and field seeds.

St. Paul, Feb. 3.—Both branches yesterday spent most of the time in committee of the whole. In the senate the following bills were introduced:

J. D. Jones.—To prevent fraud in the sale of garden and grass seeds.

To prohibit theatrical plays, etc., on Sunday.

To legalize and make valid certain deeds transferred by husband to wife.

Among the bills introduced in the house yesterday morning were few of importance. Mr. Martin's bill, however, H. F. 220, will prove a satisfaction to the towns of Crookston and Grand Rapids. The two towns are to be locations of state experiment farms, which will be placed under the control of the board of regents of the state university.

For Crookston the sum of $5,000 is appropriated for the year ending July 31, 1899, and for Grand Rapids the sum of $3,500 for the same period.

The sums of $10,000 for Crookston and $2,500 for Grand Rapids are appropriated for equipment of the farms.

St. Paul, Feb. 4.—The senate yesterday passed the following bills:

To amend section 13, chapter 53, General Laws 1878, relating to foreclosure of mortgages by advertisement.

To authorize counties to purchase land to be used as agricultural fair grounds on approval of electors of said county and to improve, sell and lease the same.

To amend section 1617, General Statutes 1894, relating to the sale of forfeited property on tax sale, and the disposition of the proceeds thereof.

To repeal chapter 277, General Laws 1895, entitled "An act to prevent corrupt practices in elections, etc."

Appropriating $24,000 to reimburse the guarantors of the Omaha exposition.

St. Paul, Feb. 6.—While in committee of the whole the Senate Saturday passed favorably upon S. F. No. 21, to amend sections 2 and 6, chapter 17, General Laws 1893, etc., relating to societies organized for the purpose of securing homes for orphans, etc.

One bill was taken from the Senate calendar and passed. It was S. F. 117, amending wolf bounty laws.

The following bills were introduced:

Appropriating $2,500 for Southern Minnesota Fair Association.

Amending law relating to clerk hire for county treasurers.

Amending law relating to boundaries between counties.

Substitute for S. F. No. 48—Allowing villages to issue bonds to take up judgments; passed under suspension of the rules.

Adjournment was then taken until Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock.

St. Paul, Feb. 7.—The house only was in session yesterday. The following bills were passed:

A bill for an act to fix the return day for juries in certain cases.

A bill for an act to appropriate money to meet any claim or claims made under the provisions of chapter 205, General Laws of 1895. (Beet sugar bounty bill.)

Following bills were introduced:

To create forest reserves; forestry and forest protection.

Relating to transfer of personal property and mortgages.

Amending existing laws so as to appropriate annually $20,000 for Soldiers' Home.

To regulate the practice of osteopathy and providing for a board of osteopathic examiners.

NOTES ABOUT WOMEN.

Miss Laura Smith, professor of English literature in the University of Nevada, has, by the death of a distant relative in London, just inherited a fortune of $15,000,000.

Mrs. M. J. Hain, a well-known and handsome young woman of Richmond, Va., has been placed under bond of $300 to keep the peace for being a common scold.

REDUCTION TO THE TRADE.

The Fraternal Feeling of a House Painter for an Artist Patron.

There is a saying that two of a trade can never agree, but there is reason to believe that there is more fraternity of interest than is generally supposed. An instance to prove this theory is found in the case of an artist in the suburbs who had the front of his cottage painted last week. It wasn't much of a job, but it was done very well, and the painter was told to bring in his bill.

Three days later the man of the house was told that the painter wanted to see him.

"Tell him to leave the bill and I'll send him a check," was the impatient answer.

He was informed that the painter wanted to see him in person, so there was nothing to do but to show him up.

"Well?" said the man of the house rather shortly.

"I hope you like the job," said the painter, with a mysterious smile.

He was informed that it appeared to be all right.

"I always do good work," said the painter, virtuously. "But this here house—boss, I rather throwed myself on this when I found out who you was."

"So you found out who I was, did you?"

"Yes. When I went to the drug store at the corner for putty, the clerk told me you was a painter, and one of the best in this country. I asked why you didn't paint your house, then, and he said you had got your hand out now, and didn't paint anything but pictures. So when I found you was in the trade I did my prettiest. And here is the bill—$18.60—and it ain't no more than right, as you know, but, being it's you, I'll knock off the 60 cents."

To the everlasting credit of the celebrated artist be it said that he kept his face straight and accepted the reduction in the spirit in which it was offered.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Where He Would Succeed.

"We are all qualified for some occupation," said the thoughtful man. "The trouble is we don't always know what it is, and so we make the wrong selection. Now there is Brown, the dumb man. He always is complaining that he is handicapped by his affliction, whereas it would insure him success if he only knew enough to take up the right line of business."

"What would you call the right line for him?"

"The tonsorial line, of course."—Chicago Post.

DISEASES THAT KILL

Most cases of death from consumption are the direct result of neglected catarrh.

Pe-ru-na works harmoniously with nature to eject the tubercles from the lungs, and works so successfully that if there is a cure for consumption Pe-ru-na is the remedy.

Read this letter from Mrs. H. A. Tyner, of Four Oaks, N. C., about her daughter, Mrs. L. Keene. She says:

Pe-ru-na Medicine Co., Columbus, O.

DEAR SIRS:—"My daughter had every symptom of consumption—suppression of menses, night sweats and great emaciation. She was so low that none of our neighbors thought she could live. In May Mr. C. R. Adams, of this place, who had taken Pe-ru-na, told me if anything would help her Pe-ru-na would. I got a bottle of it and some rock candy and began giving it to her. During the first few days she was so weak she could only take a half teaspoonful at a time, but I gave it to her as often as she could bear it. In less than a week she could walk two hundred yards and back without resting; she kept getting stronger, and in twelve months she seemed to be as well as she ever was in her life. I feel, and so does every one that knew about her sickness, that Pe-ru-na saved her life. My daughter's name is Mrs. L. Keene."

PERIODS OF PAIN.

Menstruation, the balance wheel of woman's life, is also the bane of existence to many because it means a time of great suffering.

While no woman is entirely free from periodical pain, it does not seem to have been nature's plan that women otherwise healthy should suffer so severely. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the most thorough female regulator known to medical science. It relieves the condition that produces so much discomfort and robs menstruation of its terrors. Here is proof:

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—How can I thank you enough for what you have done for me? When I wrote to you I was suffering untold pain at time of menstruation; was nervous, had headache all the time, no appetite, that tired feeling, and did not care for anything. I have taken three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, one of Blood Purifier, two boxes of Liver Pills, and to-day I am a well person. I would like to have those who suffer know that I am one of the many who have been cured of female complaints by your wonderful medicine and advice. —MISS JENNIE R. MILES, Leon, Wis.

If you are suffering in this way, write as Miss Miles did to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for the advice which she offers free of charge to all women.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, Feb 10, 1899.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—We were compelled to leave a number of essays from scholars in the primary department until next week.

—Quite a number of Delanoites and Peter Jamieh's orchestra visited Hanover Saturday night. They report an enjoyable occasion.

—Rev. C. C. Rolitt, well known in Delano, has been elected Diocesan Missionary by the board of Missions of the Episcopal diocese, of Minnesota. His friends are proud of his promotion.

—The Washington's Birthday Association has appointed committees and partially arranged a programme for the 22nd at the City Hall. Everybody welcome; bring along something for dinner.

—The masquerade ball given at the City Hall Tuesday evening, by the M. W. A. was well attended and enjoyed. Quite a number from neighboring villages were in attendance. One of the features was a cake walk.

—J. D. Young informs us that his wife recently wrote that she was improving in health rapidly and thought she could soon come home from the Hospital at Fergus Falls. He is receiving congratulations from many friends on the good news.

—The principle occupation of a good many of our citizens these days is cutting wood and putting it in the stove. It has been hard work to keep warm for some time back. The cold wave seems to embrace almost the entire United States, even Texas has been feeling its effects.

—In another column appears a letter from our son Alva, at Manila. It was written the day after Christmas Since then there has been a second battle of Manila. But from all accounts the 13th did not take part more than to attend strictly to their police duty in the city.

—On Tuesday two large sundogs appeared and remained for hours in the heavens, one on each side of Old Sol, as if to protect him from danger. Instead of making it warmer, when people looked up and saw them, they drew their collars up higher, their ear caps down lower, and their wraps closer about them and some even showed symptoms of shivering. The thermometer reached 32 degrees below zero during the night.

—It is wonderful how the Eagle sympathizes with the poor ignorant farmers in this vicinity who don't know any better than to want to invest their hard earned money in a farmer's elevator! She advises them that there is no money in the business for them; no dividends. Why don't she tell them about their co operative creamery paying 21 per cent on investment in 10 months: Most as good as a trust company?

—The charge that Waverly, where they have a farmers' elevator, pays more for wheat than Delano, nearer minneapolis, and with two elevators, don't seem to be denied. But the Eagle with her "business eye" remarks that the farmers' elevator at Waverly will have little or no dividend this year. What if the elevator doesn't pay a cent above running expenses, hasn't it acomplished its real object, that of securing the highest market price for grain?

—Julius Brandon, living on a few acres purchased from C. R. Carlton, near Mr. C's old home, in Independence, lost his house and contents by fire Monday morning. With his wife and several small children he had to move rapidly to save themselves with what they had on. No insurance. We understand neighbors are contributing towards building a new house, which they will much appreciate. It is a pretty bad thing to have to move so uncerimoniously when the weather is so cold as it has been for some time.

—We are now getting some of the "inwardness" of the Board of Education's doings, in the Eagle. The Eagle has, for years, been doing the printing and furnishing a large part of the supplies for the school and drawing quite a percentage of the expenses, and keeping quiet. But now, when she finds she isn't getting all there is in it, she gives out some of her old fashioned "screeches". As for the committee appointed at the school meeting to report on her bills. The report is not due until next school meeting. In the meantime the Old Bird may "screech" herself out entirely.

—Some of the towns in the state are compelling the railroads to run cars at the six miles an hour or less speed, through their limits. Why can't Delano do the same? It is fearful to see trains go through town, across the bridge, over Crow River, and run for the hill, in either direction, at about a mile a minute speed. Passengers would feel safer traveling slower over bridges when it is so cold that the rails are snapping and causing wrecks almost daily. Freight trains would not be so apt to pile up in Crow river if they observed the law while running through town and over the bridge. If one engine can't pull the extra heavy trains out of town the company might keep an extra engine here to assist. Railroads have no more business breaking the laws and ordinances of villages along their line than other people have. If the Marshal was instructed to make an example of a few cases, it would soon stop the mile a minute runs through Delano.

—A big lot of fine ice has been put up this winter by different parties in town. It looks as if there ought to be enough to supply all demands next summer, without calling on Minneapolis to help out.

—Prof. Emery Cunningham has been heard from He likes his school very much and thinks Colfax is all right. He says he is eight miles from Fort Abercombie and can see Fargo when it is lit up at night. He is on the broad prairie where he has an opportunity to expand all he pleases.

—We acknowledge a polite invitation from the Commercial Bodies of St. Paul, composing the Jobber's Union, The Commercial Club, The Chamber of Commerce and the Manufacturers Association to participate in the banquet, reception, and entertainment in honor of the Editors and Publishers Association Feb. 16 and 17.

—The Monday morning train from the west did not get through on time, being delayed by the wrecking of 15 cars of wheat and a car of barley, by a broken rail, a mile west of Montrose. The cold weather is hard on rails and other metallic substances. A telephone line in the vicinity of Litchfield couldn't stand the tension caused by the cold and parted, and had to be pieced.

—The law requires that the Health officer in the Village be notified of all births and deaths within ten days from their occurrence. There is a penalty for neglect to notify There are some now liable to this fine. Read from the law:

SEC. 2.—Parents shall give notice to such Clerk or Health Officer, of the births and deaths of their children; every householder shall give like notice of every birth and death happening in his house; the oldest person, next of kin, shall give such notice of the death of his kindred, the keeper or other proper officer, of every work house, poorhouse, reform-school, jail, prison, hospital, asylum, or other public or charitable institution, shall give like notice of any birth or death happening among the persons under his charge. Whoever neglects or refuses to give such notice for the period of ten (10) days after the occurrence of a birth or death, shall forfeit a sum not exceeding twenty (20) dollars, to be collected as other fines are collected by law

If any physician or midwife neglects to make such certificate, he shall forfeit the sum of twenty-five (25) dollars, to be collected as other fines are collected by law.

Buckley Balked.

Editor BUFFALO GAZETTE,

With your kind permission I wish to thank Bro. Buckley for the compliment payed Board of Education and more especially the purchasing committee which feel highly complimented and wish to return their sincere thanks for the same. But before doing so should like to submit a small problem in mathematics for the perusal of the tax paying public. The purchasing committee having been instructed by the Board of Education to buy a small bill of supplies for the use of the school, and after getting prices from the City, concluded that the Eagle Printing Co's percentage on the goods was more than they, as public servants were warranted in paying, therefore bought from the City. Here is the problem. We will leave the public to judge of the advisability of the transaction:

Eagle Printing Co's. price.
1 ream 10 lb High School Examination paper	$3.15.
1,000 report blanks	$2.75.
3 gallons of ink	$6.00.
Total	$11.90.
Twin City School Supply Co's. bill.
1 ream 16 lb High Seool exam. paper	$2.20.
1,000 report blanks	$3.00.
3 gallons of ink	$1.05.
Freight and express	$.50.
Total	$6.75.

Balance in favor of District $5.15. In looking over this problem please note the difference in the weight of the State High School Examination paper. Will leave the public to be the judges of the transaction and of Bro. Buckley's howl in last weeks Eagle. The committee thinks that the article in the Eagle was uncalled for, and that in the article the paper has excelled itself, if that is possible, in all its former efforts to make itself ridiculous. I have known the Eagle Editor for several years and have always regarded him as an honorable gentleman but I would suggest that a repetition of such attacks as he has made on the school in former issues of the Eagle, not only that but the ridiculousness of this last tirade should exclude him from Editorial management of the paper.

Bro. Buckley, please accept our thanks for the compliment payed us. And for pity's sake don't stop booming the town with the second class, comic almanac cartoons, and thereby make the whole people suffer because one poor mortal has gone astray.

L. M. MAXFIELD.
One of the Purchasing Committee.

Personal.

Della O'Meara, of Rockford, was a caller Saturday.

Mr. McIntyre, of Maple Plain, visited Delano this week.

Mrs. A. L. Jones visited Minneapolis last Saturday.

From Manila.

SAMPOLICK, Dist., Dec. 26, 1898,
Manila, Luzon Isl.

FATHER: I have finally received my Xmas box, and found a few little things that will certainly come handy, some ornamental, and others useful.

It was a great time some of the boys had. Captain Rowley had the cigars passed, to wind up a very good and eloquent temperance lecture. That is he left it with the men to get full or be sober but advised them to have all the fun they wanted without getting a bad name to themselves and the company. Rev. Dallam held an Xmas service in the quarters, where we have a piano, which we rented. We had a good dinner, consisting of chicken pie, peach pie, cake and American apples; all the baking being done by our company cook. The Arch Bishop did not let the natives celebrate as has been the custom at this time of the year.

This is the coldest morning we have had. You could see your breath this morning, and this is the coldest time of the year.

Nearly everybody has a cold or is just getting over it.

Bamboo is not what a person would think, to look at fish pole. It is a fact though bamboo grows very straight and erect but grows in bunches of 20 or 30 large poles in one bunch, then again they have small thorns, which are very sharp, and are offensive if you come in contact with them.

There is really so much to write about I don't know which to attack first. I had to stop and laugh at this point, because I thought of the little experience I had the other day. I knew a place where I could safely get through our lines into the insurgent lines without hitting any of our outposts and wishing to study the situation and see how they were getting along ou the rapid wheel of civilization I started; going through a rice field for about a mile, striking the outposts of the insurgents. I passed on up the road, to look over the burying ground of the countrymen of the once dead nation, but now rapidly becoming the delicious prey of the great European powers, (the Chinese) and finding a tomb with the characters good and plain very innocently thought I would play a trick on the guard who was in sight, so stopped directly in full view of him and deliberately coppied all the characters of the Chinese inscription, then took the elevated road to the Philippine grave yard, taking it for a Chinese church which was located some where near there. After thoroughly inspecting the building and expressing my opinion to a native that was cooking some fish near the door, started for the Chinese church but to my great pleasure a couple of Filipinoes whistled to me, so I went over to get acquainted. One happened to be a private and the other a corporal. (I always like to say private first because he is the man that does what somebody else tells him)

They asked me if I had seen the captain. I told them no, so they said (at least that is what I made out it was) come over and see him, he wants to meet you, so I went over to the captains quarters but never met him somehow, but met the important sergeant who wanted to know if I could talk Spanish. After telling him no, he asked me what it was I wrote. I told him I didn't know, but showed him. He laughed and told me not to do it again, then I visited another larger quarters, got a drink and came home.

The insurgents are making belts out of cloth and each man is to have about 200 rounds of brass coated bullets or cartridges when on duty. I think if we had had this island about ten years there would be a big improvement in the insurgant army.

Your son,
A. G. CATLIN.

County Cullings.

A special term of District Court convened at Buffalo last Monday; Judge Giddings presiding.

Geo. J. Sherer vs. the Estate of James Tracy, appeal from Probate Court, was called.

From a telegram in the St. Paul Dispatch we learn that at 1 o'clock, Feb. 8 a terrific explosion occurred in Monticello. People gathering on the street in the cold, found the general store of F. B. Bryant a wreck, and several neighboring buildings damaged. It is claimed that a dynamite bomb was exploded immediately in front of Bryant's, causing the damage. Rewards have been offered by the City Council for the arrest of the offender. Another good opportunity for Wright county's "best officers in the state" to show their ability in catching breakers of the peace.

We are Surprised.

We have always looked upon Farm, Stock and Home as standing upon firm ground: but in its Last issue, February 1, it asserts that the sugar bounty law (?) was wrong to start with, but since it has been a law (?) for four years it would be wrong to repeal it.

How can that be correct?

If it was wrong in its inception (and there can be no doubt of that) then its continuance is wrong.

If it be wrong to tax the printers of this state and take their money from their pockets and put into the pockets of the sugar combines, how can the wrong be made right by the lapse of time?

All these schemes for plundering the tax payers for the benefit of ship owners or builders, or for paying a bonus to manufacturers of sugar or soap, or for building up any business for the use or benefit of private persons or corporations, are not only unconstitutional and unlawful, but they are unjust robbery—worse than highway robbery—for a man is justified in shooting a highwayman, while he would be hung for shooting a taxgatherer.

Of all the combinations now existant for plundering the honest and industrious and putting their earnings into the pockets of those "who toil not neither do they spin," the state and national government combines are the worst and most defenseles.

Farm, Stock and Home better study fundamental principles before it again gives aid to the legalized thieves who plundered the people in the name of "bounty" to sugar producers.—Waseca Herald.

Among Our Exchanges.

It is reported that there is a scheme on foot to abolish the Eighteenth judicial district, allowing Sherburne county to return to the St. Cloud district, whence it came, and assigning Wright, Anoka, and Isanti to the Hennepin district, where they were for so many years. I cannot find any organized movement, however, and I do not think that any such a move can succeed. I would rather think that another county might be added to the Eighteenth instead of its being dismembered.—Legislative letter to Anoka Herald.

Ida Grove (Iowa) Era: Either newspaper space is not very valuable or else there is a lot of valuable space wasted by the newspapers of Iowa in their efforts to settle the senatorial selection which does not come up until next winter It has been a long time since that office sought the man in either this or any other state.

Anoka Herald: Judge Collins is said to be laying his wires for the gubernatorial nomination next year. He is a good politician, and it would not be surprising if the Sixth district landed the office, through his efforts.

ACTIVE SOLICITORS WANTED EVERYWHERE for "The Story of the Philippines" by Murat Halstead, commissioned by the Government as Offical Historian to the War Department. THE delights of an evening spent around a well-lighted reading table are not half understood. An illustrated magazine with its wealth of illustrations, its stories of adventure and love, its descriptions of travel which carry you to the remotest ends of the earth, and its instructive articles for young and old—these are the first requisites for your own enjoyment and the entertainment and proper education of your children.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal,

Both Together One Year for Only $1.80

In this way you secure your own home paper and an illustrated magazine at a price that is only about a fourth of what some of the illustrated magazines sell for. For three years The Cosmopolitan has undisputedly claimed that it reached the largest clientele possessed by any periodical, daily, weekly or monthly, in the world. It was The Cosmopolitan which sent Julian Hawthorne to India to let the world know the real horrors of famine and plague It was The Cosmopolitan which established at its own cost a great Free Correspondence University which now has over 20,000 students on its rolls. It was The Cosmopolitan which offered a prize of $3,000 for the best horseless carriage and prizes for best plans for public baths, and best arrangement of sewer and pipe systems for cities. It was The Cosmopolitan which set the presidents of great schools and universities seriously discussing the defects of existing educational systems. It is The Cosmopolitan whose enterprise is always in the lead in advancing the world's civilization.

THE war is supposed to be about over, is it not about time to call off the war tax?

THERE seems to be no Dearth of good material for an Insurance Commissioner; even if Michael Doran thinks there is.

THE Democratic State Central Committee at a meeting last Tuesday passed a resolution endorsing the Chicago Platform of 1896.

IT seems Gen. Egan's pay goes right on though he is suspended for six years from service. Even his place on the pay roll must be "embalmed".

THE Young Democrats of Minneapolis have given another proof of their ability to run a banquet and entertain visitors. This time in honor of a Governor and a Mayor of their way of thinking.

THOUGH C. A. Towne was snowbound, in Washington, and unable to be at the Democratic Club meetings in Minneapolis, his name was roundly cheered, and a ringing telegram, characteristic of the man, read and warmly welcomed.

GREATER AMERICA, issued by the Passenger department of the G. N. Ry. is a neat little book giving information concerning America's new territory and how to get there over the G. N. Ry. It is tastily gotten up and deserves a reading.

PRESIDENT MCKINLEY is noted for going around among the people to get at public opinion. He was up to Boston lately with a part of his cabinet. If is claimed that Secretary Alger's carriage was greeted by hisses; cries of, "Beef!" "Beef!" and "Three cheers for General Miles!" Wonder if the President got the public opinion?

WE this morning received a copy of the St. Paul Globe Year Book and Almanac for 1899. It contains names of all state officers, legislators, judges, etc., political statistics, party platforms, and much useful information. Send them 25cts and don't be around asking who is the member of the legislature from our district.

CHAIRMAN L. A. Rosing seems to be the choice of Democrats of the 3d Congressional District for candidate for Congress. Heatwole will probably swear as hard when L. A. gets on his trail as he did after C. A. Towne had wandered over into his district just before election on another occasion. Heatwole is called good looking but he can swear with an awfully ugly one, and is troubled with "caput magnus".

MR. BRYAN opened his Minneapolis speech, to which we had the pleasure of listening, with "Fellow Democrats, Fellow Free Silver Republicans, Fellow Populists and Fellow Citizens:" He is for a continued fusion of forces favoring reform and the Chicago platform of '96, and all the so called "sound money" alias "gold bug" press and penny orators in the country can't make the people who read, believe otherwise.

REPUBLICAN and Gold Bug organs may insinuate, and lie straight out, all they please concerning the views of William Jennings Bryan now without hurting his cause, or him either, for on his visit to our state, this week, he met enough of the faithful and so thoroughly impressed upon them the necessity of uniting our efforts as before in a grand effort to have the principles laid down in the Chicago Platform of 1896, as to prevent harm by enemies.

SOME of the papers complained that Gov John Lind was left to shift for himself while W. J. Bryan was escorted to the speakers stand in the Legislative hall. What of it? He only proved that a man who was capable of seeing that "my boys" of the 12th Minn. Reg't had good care, was able to look after the welfare of one poor little governor, while W. J. Bryan was delivering that masterly speech to the law makers of our state, and by taking a page's chair and sitting in the middle isle, his desire to be in the thickest of the battle. Hurrah for Gov. John Lind.

Duluth News Tribune: If Mr. O'Brien of Stillwater can find a policeman that will stop and listen, he should loose no time in relating his troubles.

Markets not Men.

The Sunday Minneapolis Tribune has "By wire from Dayton, O., Feb. 12." an account of the State Republican League meeting at which Senator C. K. Davis and Senator Foraker were the principal speakers. C. K. Davis is quoted as scoring Cleveland for "evading issues, which if he had faced them, would have kept aloof the horrors of war from the shoulders of his successor." and his pronouncement "that it was foreordained that Spain should be extirpated from both hemispheres was greeted with cheers and he added that we could not return those islands to the infernal cruelty of Spain."

"I would bring them up tenderly, but in chastisement, if we must." He emphasized his argument on expansion by dwelling on the eastward tendency of civilization and national advancement.

"We want markets" said he. "We desire and must have our share of the commerce of the east. For one I do not want to see the dismemberment of the Chinese empire. I prefer to see that ancient and immemmorial empire preserved intact and I believe it to be within the power of the United States, Great Britain, and Japan to accomplish that."

Senator Davis held that one move in this problem is the retention of the Philippines, which command the China sea. The United States is the great and consecrated evangelist of humanity, he declared.

But when we read of the United States soldiers being sent out to drive the Filipinos out onto the coast to be shot down by big guns, "mowed down like grass" or chased back into the cane brakes "like rabbits" or driven into the river and "drowned like rats", it don't sound any better than when we read about Turks killing Armenians, or any other powerful nation crushing out a weaker one. We fail to see where any stars are being added to liberties crown by such "chastising" as that. Then there are the volunteers who enlisted to help free the downtrodden Cubans, now being sent out to "kill off" Filipinos who were fighting against the same crushing hand.

Not a White Man's Country.

Gen. C. McC. Reeve, who went to the Philippines as colonel of the Thirteenth Minnesota, writes to a friend in Minneapolis as follows: "This is not a white man's country, and never will be. Any poor man who comes down here with the expectation of making his everlasting fortune will be doomed to bitter disappointment. It is all very well to shout the extension of our territory and imperial destiny, but I would like to see a few of the fellows who are staying at home and doing the shouting, come out here." And if it is not a white man's country, why should we retain possession of it?—Duluth Herald.

If the fellows conclude to go we nominate C. K. Davis for Col. of the Minnesota contingent.

Independence.

During the long spell of cold weather our news depot has not been doing a very rushing business. Everybody had all they could do to keep fires going and keep the cellars from freezing, and yet the frost has crept in a good many of the cellars, and some of the potatoes have been frozen.

The revival meetings at the M. E. church at Armstrong are in progress.

The Utah fever that has been raging at Buffalo and Monticello, Minn., has struck a portion of this public domain, and only for the plurality of wives in that country, this part of our moral vinyard would be depopulated. Nodoubt Utah is all right, but distance lends enchantment. Sometimes a fellow imagines a bills goat as big as a full grown elephant.

The Lincoln Birthday celebration at Maple Plain last Saturday was all that could be desired considering the cold weather. Many from Long Lake were in attendance, and the programme was successfully carried out. The society will hold their next one at Long Lake.

I see Senator Baker has introduced a bill in the State Legislature giving Hastings and Anoka both an Insane asylum. This I would consider a compromise, or a rake off. Do we need them, is the question. Our state has blown in a good deal of money on normal schools which prove almost worthless to the state. High schools are far better, but then there is nothing like getting rid of the money.

Money is the lever and fulcrum that moves the world. It seems to be the purchasing power of everything almost except salvation.

It creates war and sues for peace, and does many things that honesty and virtue does not do.

FARMER.

County Line: The St. Paul Globe advises Governor Lind to make a clean sweep of the present state prison officials—Wolfer and all. It is to be hoped that the governor will act in this matter as he has in everything else, independently, and turn a deaf ear to the utterances of the dailies, with their "one hundred and one" axes to grind.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 3. 1899.

The bill for the increase of the regular army is believed to be as dead as it deserves to be. It is understood that notice has been served upon the administration Senators that they will not be allowed to pass the Hull bill, or any other bill proposing to give the President authority to maintain a standing army of 100,000 men, at the present session. If a vote could be had, the administration might get its bill through, although it is by no means certain that it could; but the minority has the power to prevent a vote, and will not hesitate to exercise it. An informal offer has been made to agree to an amendment to the regular army appropriation bill, authorizing the maintenance of the war strength of the regular army-62,000-for one year from the first of next July, and, unless there are decided changes of opinion, that is about all the army legislation that will get through at this session of Congress.

Mr. McKinley has given out an edited edition of the report of the War Investigating Commission, which contains no surprises and will not convince a single individual that Alger has not been a misfit from the beginning of the war, and that beef unfit for use was not issued to the army; nor that Miles deserves censure for calling public attention to the bad meat. Great stress is laid by the administration and the friends of the gentlemen who served on the Commission on the fact that the report is in keeping with the evicence, and that it was signed by them all, except Col. Sexton, who died last week. Such a claim is unnecessary, because the facts are generally admitted. What is objected to and what makes the report so much waste paper, is that no evidence was sought, although it might have been had in abundance, except that wich would conduce to a white washing report. The money that the commission has cost, and it is a considerable sum, has been absolutely wasted; not one single good purpose has been served by its expenditure.

The sentence of six years suspension from rank and duty, which was put upon Gen. Eagan by the President, isn't half so bad as it sounds. During the next six years, or until he reaches the age for retirement, in January, 1905, Eagan may engage in any occupation that may please his fancy, go wherever the notion strikes him to go, and continue to draw the salary of a brigadier general. Had the sentence been suspension from rank, duty and pay, it might be considered a hard one, but Eagan ought to consider himself lucky, as it is, and he doubtless does, although of course, he and his friends may be expected to let out a few yowls about how severely he has been treated-given six years leave on full pay, $5,500 a year.

That men of the most economical tendencies can be kept quiet by giving their districts a slice of the public "pork" it is proposed to distribute has been often demonstrated before, but never more strikingly than when the House, in two days passed, without serious objection from a dozen members, seventy eight bills, providing for public buildings in thirty-eight states. Quite a number of those bills provide for the erection of public buildings in places where it is known that there is neither business enough to warrant such an expenditure, nor prospect that there will be for years to come. No wonder Representative Dockery referred to the proceedings as a "hog combine."

There are a number of Senators who regard Aguinaldo as about as many kinds of a fool as the late W. H. Vanderbilt did one of his sons-in-law. By his first fool attack on Manila he got his army destroyed, and has been compelled to beg a conference to make terms for himself, which Gen. Otis naturally declined to have anything to do with. And that is not all he has done. If he had not made a fool of himself, the Senate would have accompanied the ratification of the treaty with a resolution, declaring against permanent retention of the Philippines. The sentiment of the Senate is still against permanent retention of the Philippines, but, owing to the situation on the islands, it will hardly be deemed advisable to do anything now, except to leave the whole business in the hands of Dewey and Otis. It is altogether likely that the Philippines will be given a government of their own inside of a year or two, but it is certain that Aguinaldo, will not be connected with it. Had Aguinaldo been the tool of the imperialists in this country he would have earned his pay.

Czar Reed has allowed it to become known that he intends to prevent the House passing a Nicaragua Canal bill. The friends of the Canal, among whom are about four fifths of Congress, have set their wits to work to beat the Czar. One way to do it, which is now being considered, is for the Senate to put the Hepburn bill, which has been reported to the House as a substitute for the Morgan bill, passed by the Senate, in the River and Harbor bill, as an amendment.

Jack's Prisoner

"JACK!" said his father, as this fine specimen of a recent college graduate entered his private office, "Jack, I have an enemy. Lay aside your Blackstone for a time and find out who this enemy is, will you?"

Jack laughed. It was so droll; this kind-hearted, overindulgent, pocket-exhaustless father of his having an enemy.

"Where shall I look for your enemy, pater?"

"He writes from Tabatha. Here is his third demand for money received this week," and the "pater" handed Jack a crisp, neat letter that had traveled over 2,000 miles.

"Have you answered any of his demands?" asked Jack, more seriously, as he read the threat on his father's life provided the demand for money was not met.

"Of course not," replied Jack's father; "the man is nothing to me. Perhaps I had better put it into the hands of a detective, and not bother you. Give me the letter."

"No, no," said Jack; "a couple of thousand miles' run won't hurt me; I'm a little tired of boring at law, anyway. There's a train, an express, at six. I'll take that, pater, and rest assured if a man by this creature's name is still hanging out in Tabatha I'll have him in not much over a week from to-day."

Jack's father smiled.

"Don't run yourself into any special danger on account of the crank, my boy. There may be more danger about it than I at first thought."

"Not a bit of it," responded Jack. "If he'll only have the kindness to hold on in Tabatha till I get there; that's all I ask."

"He will," said the father, "for he writes that he 'awaits my check there till it is received or I'm a corpse,' and—"

"The man's a fool or crazy!" exclaimed Jack. "Still, there was Carter Harrison; there was Garfield. Better have yourself guarded, father, till I trap the game."

Mr. Whittemore shook his head. "I'm not a coward, Jack, and I should detest having a detective forever at my heels. If I seriously believed there was so much danger as that I wouldn't let you go. As it is, catch the villain if you're able and relieve me of an annoyance; an enemy, as I called him at first."

"All right, old man. Good-by. I'm off to the bank and the ticket office. I may not get home to dinner. Drop me a line every day and I'll do the same by you," and, grasping his father's hand, he was practically off on his commission, as his father knew.

Six days later Jack was quite at home in one of the leading hotels of Tabatha and preparing for his first sortie upon the game. With the letter in hand that had so threatened his father, he started for the address which the letter contained. No such address was discoverable, and he turned his steps toward the post office. As he did so a cab dashed toward him, giving him no time to get out of the way. Reaching up, he caught the horse by the bridle and forced it back from the crossing. The horse was a thin, overdriven creature, or he could not have handled it so easily.

"Let me by, sir!" shouted the cabman. "It's a matter of life and death!"

"I should say so, and my life and death, too," replied Jack. "Foot passengers have the right of way on crossings. I'll hand you over to the police."

The "cabby" turned white and made a feint to drive on, while a young woman, much agitated, looked out of the cab door and said: "Please let us go on; my father has just been hurt in an accident, the cabman says, and he is taking me to him."

Jack raised his hat and allowed the cabman to drive on, the words "the cabman says" repeating themselves in his mind. Was it peculiar or not that a cabman should inform the young woman of an accident to her father, and wasn't it rather questionable that the same cabman should now turn into that hard Whitechapel part of the city which he had just gone through in his search for the address in the letter he carried. He turned and followed the cab.

It went slowly, for the spent horse was limping now, and drew up in front of an old brick tenement that looked in the second stories completely abandoned. The young woman alighted, asked two or three quick questions of the cabman, then entered the house as the cabman fumbled the money into his pocketbook that she had given him and drove away. A tawny-haired boy was snapping marbles in the middle of the street, and, seeing Jack, ambled toward him.

"Say, mister, she war a nice-looking lady, wa'n't she? Ef I was you I'd git her out of that there. I'm not sayin' nauthin', yer know."

"No," said Jack, sternly. 'Who lives there?" and he flung the boy a quarter.

"I don't know," answered the lad, testing the quarter with his teeth to see if it was genuine, "but he's a strange old duffer; money-mad, I says. The place for him's the 'sane 'sylum, pop says."

"How long has he been living there?"

"Nigh on to a month."

"Are you sure?"

"Course I is. Don't we live next door?"

"Just stay near here in case I need you," said Jack, and, stepping boldly into the narrow passageway of the old brick tenement, he listened an instant and then went in through the half-closed door to the large, bare room at his right. A man sat at a desk littered with papers, while the young woman, at this moment more dazed than frightened, stood with her profile toward the door. Neither had heard Jack's entrance, and he dropped quickly into a chair near the door. The room was poorly lighted, but he could see that many of the papers on the desk were fresh bank checks and also billheads of many different kinds.

The man took up a blank bank check and held it, with a well-inked pen, toward the young woman.

"The cabman said your father was hurt, did he? Well, that's a mistake. Write this check to your husband's name and I will let you go."

"My husband's name," the young woman repeated; "will that do you any good?"

"Yes, certainly; be quick about it, too, as I wish to draw it and get out of town as soon as possible."

"But I can't write that check. I have no money."

"Write the order to your husband; he has plenty, to be sure—plenty."

"No, he hasn't," she replied, making a move toward the door. "He hasn't a dollar."

"You are lying," said the man, rising from his desk and backing toward the door to prevent her escape.

"Let her go!" cried Jack, springing from his chair. "You scoundrel, let her go!"

"Scoundrel!" repeated the man. "Where is my pistol? Where is my revolver?"

Jack sprung at him, held him at bay as easily as he had the cabman's jaded horse, and drew a bottle from his pocket.

"Keep quiet," he cried, "or here is something that will go off more easily than a pistol or revolver!" And he swung the bottle containing the clear fluid near the man's head.

"Heaven help me!" cried the man, collapsing into a little maudlin heap, "it's nitroglycerin! Help! help!"

Jack grasped the man still more vigorously and turned to the young woman. "Now's your time; run and tell that light-haired boy out there to bring a policeman, please."

The young woman sprung through the door, there was another scuffle and tussle with the prisoner and Jack swung the bottle over his head as if to dash it on the floor beneath him. There was a silence broken by the tread of heavy feet coming along the passageway.

"The policeman is remarkably prompt," thought Jack, not being able in his position of holding down his man to see who had entered the room.

"We're obliged to you, sir," said one man at his elbow, while another slipped a pair of handcuffs over the prisoner's hands. "This has been a very annoying case; an escaped lunatic, you know, stark mad on the subject of raising money on checks obtained on false pretenses. We have been trying to capture him for the last three weeks, but he has kept us on the wrong scent till this morning, when a cabman—"

"I would like to see that cabman," said Jack, indignantly, releasing the now handcuffed man and rising to his feet, "a man that—"

"My father will deal with him," said a bright young voice back of him, "and he will also try to thank you for saving my life with only a bottle of—of—"

"Rosewater," laughed Jack. "I carried it with me sometimes for my eyes. I should have been better armed if I had known—"

"That it was the wealthy and beautiful Mrs. Blount you were protecting!" cried the handcuffed prisoner, whom for the moment everyone had forgotten.

"Mrs. Blount," repeated the young woman, with an irresistible laugh, in the midst of her nervousness and reaction; "do you mean the Mrs. Blount who gave Tabatha the new public library? No! No! I am not that Mrs. Blount nor anyone!"

"Allow me to see you safely home," said Jack, hiding an odd look in his eyes under the severest dignity.

"If you will, please," she answered, simply. "I won't feel safe till I'm out of this dreadful part of the city."

So it came about that Jack never mentioned his complaint against the irresponsible money-seeker, and that his next letter to his father was this: "Dear Old Pater: Have found 'the enemy.' He was an escaped lunatic, and now safely reasylumed can do no more 'farther' harm. Quite accidentally, I have met Miss Julienne, the pretty daughter of your old friend, Gen. Julienne. He has lately retired from active service and will, at my earnest suggestion, spend the winter in our city. I shall stay over a few days longer as witness to charges against a cabby. Very simple affair, nothing disagreeable, so I can spend my time with Juliennes. There is also a tow-haired boy I want to do something for. You will find the daughter very attractive. Jack."

"Ha! The daughter, is it?" commented Jack's father, well-pleased.—Chicago Daily News.

From Manilla.

MANILA, LUZON, P. I. Jan. 1. 1899.

Father: I was very glad to see your letter, also one paper dated Nov. 18. It is the first paper I have received since the first of Sept. dated Aug. 12.

Last night, New Year, was celebrated in good American style.

The other day I went over to a native house to have a visit and the dog tried to detain me by catching me by the leg.

There is not a great deal to write about of interest. We get up every morning, go to bed every night, drill from 6 to 7 a. m.; breakfast about 7:00, guard mount at 9:00; the Dr. comes sometime between breakfast and dinner, which is at 12:00, supper at 4:30, and retreat at 5:20, taps at 10:00.

Every 3rd or 4th day we go on duty.

Dr. Skidmore has a good office and is practicing dentistry here. He has about all the work he needs to keep him busy.

A young lady here gave me two pretty neckties which she made.

The American soldiers laundry is doing a good business and first class work.

The insurgents are at fault somewhere and have three parties. One's principle is absolute freedom, and objects to our rule as much as Spain. Anothers is to favor the American government as a protection. The last is in favor of the American ideas, and the leader Aguinaldo is in favor of the later, and having control of the islands, and having great influence with the nation, will in all probability, succeed in bringing the islands to a peaceful submission.

The Macabables are the worst class of people to contend with. Several have been shot in the act of robbery.

The death of Dr. Reizal one year ago was celebrated on the 29th and 30th. Dr Reizal was one of the most intelligent men ever sprung from the isle of Luzon. He was a physician of great experience, and a scholar, having been able to speak several languages. I have also seen several poems with his name at the bottom. As near as I can find out he was married. One day the Spanish captured him and shot him the next.

Day before yesterday a couple of ladies went to fighting in the market and were arrested. I escorted them to the court.

Henry Foss of our company, has opened a school to teach English.

I was misinformed before joining the army. When we arrived here I weighed 170 and was nearly ready for the Hospital when pay day came, and I now have no money to spare but I hayn't been sick since I enlisted and for a long time before. I am now feeling good and weigh 193.

When I enter a street car here or leave it, I have to stoop down and walk sideways to get through the door. There are quite a number of larger men than me here in the army. We have one 6ft 4in and one 6 ft 5½in or about that; anyway I have to look pretty high when I talk to them. I guess they must get on their knees and crawl out of the cars, but in fact I never see them inside. They always ride on the platform.

The other evening there was a fire; one building burned down and two started when I arrived. The officers were crazy, some of them, especially some second Lieutenants.

I found a native who knew where there was a hose and several of the boys took it. I walked around the fence after passing the hose over. The water was suddenly turned on and hit me in the stomach. When I saw the water I started home, knowing nothing else would burn because there were no other buildings joining. I met a fire engine with about a dozen men on blowing small whistles like you get in America, one for a cent with a piece of gum. They finally arrived at the fire so they say.

We drink boiled water, eat rice, salmon, beans, bread, or at least it is issued. We get fresh meat every other day. Eggs are 5 and 6 cents apiece here, so of course we have eggs about [illegible] days.

I will close for the present on account of much business.

Your son,
A. G. CATLIN.

The proposed Nicaragua canal will shorten the present route of 14,850 miles from New York to San Francisco by way of Cape Horn to 4,928 miles across the isthmus.

An exchange says that the stains in clothes can be removed by the use of alcohol. If the use of this beverage is persisted in long enough the clothes will also be removed, and likewise the furniture in the house.

We are constantly told that the cotton king, the railroad king, the mining king et al. began life as a penniless farmhand or something. Come to think of it, if we figure back far enough, 99 per cent. of us began life with nothing.

Rev. Dr. Rainsford says that in Norway delirium tremens has fallen off 64 per cent. under the Gothenberg liquor system. The government rum is so much better that the Norwegians have to emigrate to this country to acquire the real D. T.

William T. King, member of the lower house of the Delaware legislature, is the only single man in that body. A resolution was passed ordering him to marry within 30 days or furnish an oyster supper for the members. He bought the oysters.

Thomas F. Pendel, a white house guard, has been on duty for 34 years. He let President Lincoln out of the executive mansion the last night he went out alive, and was the last to bid President Garfield good-by when the latter started for the railroad depot where he was assassinated.

It may not be generally known that Capt. John H. Surratt, whose mother was hanged for the murder of President Lincoln, is a trusted employe of a Baltimore steamship line, though still out on $25,000 bail as the result of a jury's disagreement in his own trial, which lasted 104 days in 1867.

Connecticut's blue laws have long been famous. And a great many persons will be surprised to know that, though honored more in the breach than in the observance, they are still in full force. This fact is recalled by the introduction in the legislature of a bill to repeal these ancient statutes. They are Connecticut's most curious collection of antiquities. It is a pity to disturb them.

France has now a law by which marriage may be dissolved without cost to the applicants. The Paris divorce court devotes Thursdays to gratuitous decrees. On one day recently 294 couples were divorced during a session of four hours, an average of more than one divorce a minute. The applicants belonged to the working class, in which divorces were infrequent before the passage of the new law.

Gottlob Rink, a New Brunswick (N. J.) gunsmith, claims to have a new motor that the force of gravity will operate. The weight of cars equipped with his motor will operate the motor and carry the train up any grade. Each passenger, by increasing the weight, will add to the power of the motor. Fat men will be given inducements to travel, and the heavier your freight is the less the bill. This is an age of paradoxes.

Just before Senator Morrill, of Vermont, left the senate, never to return, some one sent him a handsome silver soup tureen, which had been taken from the Spanish warship Cristobal Colon. Engraved on the dish were the ship's initials, C. C. "That stands for Charlie Clark, so I'll give the tureen to him," said the senator. So it comes that Capt. Clark, of the Oregon, now has the former soup tureen of the Cristobal Colon.

The ranks of the veterans of the civil war are being steadily depleted by death. That we are in the fourth decade since the war closed is brought to mind as the soldiers pass away, and emphasis is given in the death of so distinguished a veteran as Commander-in-Chief Sexton of the Grand Army of the Republic. Col. Sexton, who died in Washington, served in the war from the beginning to the end, and was wounded three times. The country joins with the grand army in mourning the death of this worthy comrade and commander-in-chief.

Down in the Argentine republic they have a very effective method of punishing confirmed drunkards. Every time such a man is arrested for intoxication he must sweep the streets for eight days. The tramps in the United States have learned that it is much better to lay in a good warm jail, growing fat at the expense of the tax payers' money, than to sleep in barns and beg for their food during the winter, and the result is that they deliberately commit petty crimes in the sight of officers in order that they be arrested and sent to jail for a few weeks.

After the war of 1859, when Napoleon III. crossed the Alps with his army to fight against Austria for the sake of Italian unity and independence, a fund was raised by Italy to erect a monument in his honor. Barzaghi, the Italian sculptor, modeled a magnificent equestrian statue. Political conditions changed and with them popular sentiment, and the statue was stowed in the courtyard of a palace in Milan and has remained there all these years, covered by dust and cobwebs. A movement has now been started to erect the statue and the proper site is being discussed.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

Throughout its entire session the United States senate on the 9th had under consideration the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill. In the house the sundry civil appropriation bill was under discussion, but no conclusion was reached. Before final adjournment a number of minor bills were passed by unanimous consent.

During the entire session of the United States senate on the 10th the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill was discussed. A house bill to establish a national military park at Vicksburg was passed. In the house, general debate on the sundry civil appropriation was concluded. At the night session 31 private pension bills were passed, among them being bills to pension Letitia Tyler Semple, the daughter of President Tyler, at $30 a month, and ex-Senator John M. Palmer, of Illinois, at the rate of $50 per month.

A resolution was passed in the United States senate on the 11th to reimburse the states for expenditures incurred in aiding to raise the volunteer army in the war with Spain. The legislative appropriation bill was passed and it was decided to vote on the McEnery resolution concerning the policy of the United States in the Philippines on the 14th. In the house, after the passage of a few bills of minor importance, tributes were paid to the late Nelson Dingley, of Maine.

FROM WASHINGTON.

The report of the war investigating commission is now in the hands of the president.

President McKinley has appointed Brig. Gen. Wade, Brig. Gen. Davis and Col. Gillespie a court of inquiry to examine into charges made by Gen. Miles against the administration of war affairs.

The president has signed the peace treaty.

The death of George P. Fisher, a member of congress from Delaware in 1861, occurred in Washington, aged 81 years.

The president has made public the report of the commission appointed to investigate the conduct of the war department. It finds no fault with the war department; says the beef supplied to the army was all that could be expected; that Gen. Miles' charges were unfounded; that the commissary department was well managed, and that the camps were generally good, although many of them had to be abandoned for specific causes.

THE EAST.

ANOTHER CITY TAKEN

Iloilo, Capital of Island of Panay, Captured by Gen. Miller.

Rebels Fire the Town Before Evacuating It—No Losses Among Our Troops — Fall of Malabon.

Manila, Feb. 14.—The United States forces under Brig. Gen. Miller captured Iloilo, capital of the island of Panay, and the seat of the so-called government of the Visayas federation, on Saturday last after a bombardment. The rebels set the town on fire before evacuating it, but the American troops extinguished the flames. There were no casualties on the American side.

(Iloilo is the chief city of the island of Panay, and next to Manila the largest city in the Philippines. It is 335 miles south of Manila, and it situated on a flat, sandy point of land which juts out into the water. The fortifications of the town are practically worthless. The old fort which formerly commanded the harbor has only a few guns, which were hastily mounted upon it by the insurgents. The stone breastworks extending along the beaches around the city are of little value for defensive purposes. The island of Panay has an area of 4,500 square miles. It is divided into three provinces—Capiz to the north, Iloilo to the southwest and Antique to the southwest. In general the island is wild, with very high coasts, except in the northwestern part, which is somewhat marshy. A mountain chain crosses the island.)

Pleases the President.

Washington, Feb. 14.—The dispatch announcing the capture by the Amerian troops under Gen. Miller of Iloilo, on the island of Panay, was the first news received in this city of the fall of the second largest city in the Philippines. The announcement was promptly communicated to the president at the white house and it was read with gratification. Half an hour later the official intelligence of the fall of the city came in a cable dispatch from Maj. Gen. Otis, which Adjt. Gen. Corbin promptly authorized to be made public. It was as follows:

GEN. MILLER.

"Manila, Feb. 12.—Gen. Miller reports from Iloilo that town was taken on the 11th inst., and held by troops. Insurgents given until evening of 11th to surrender, but their hostile actions brought on engagement during the morning. Insurgents fired native portion of town, but little losses occurred to property of foreign inhabitants. No casualties among the United States troops reported.

(Signed) "OTIS."

Malabon Taken.

Manila, Feb. 13.—Malabon was taken Saturday by the American troops, the insurgents setting fire to the town as they retreated. The outposts have been advanced beyond Caloocan, and Malabon, north of Caloocan, was shelled Saturday morning by the monitor Monadnock and the cruiser Charleston.

American Loss Slight.

In this attack the American arms suffered a loss of two killed and nine wounded. The insurgent loss was heavy. After the retreat of the insurgent forces plans showing a meditated attack upon Manila were discovered.

Rebels Burning Towns.

The fire at Malabon, set by the insurgents as they retreated, was also put out without great difficulty. Beyond Caloocan the railroad lines are still held by the rebels, but up to this point the American troops are in possession and have most of the road's rolling stock. Haytay and Canita have surrendered to the American advance guard.

Estimate of Losses.

It is now known that the Filipino loss is fully 2,500 killed, with wounded vastly in excess of that number, and thousands are held prisoners. All this has been achieved at the cost of 65 Americans killed and 276 wounded. There are 25 Americans missing and unaccounted for. No fewer than ten of the native villages have surrendered or been captured. Several have been destroyed because their houses harbored men, frequently disguised in female attire, who shot from windows and roof tops at the American troops. Many rifles and a ton of ammunition have been seized. As might be expected, there has been looting in the outskirts, but it has not been general, and has been done in direct violation of orders.

Losses at Caloocan.

Washington, Feb. 13.—Gen. Otis sent two cablegrams from Manila giving the names of the American soldiers killed and wounded in Friday's battle at Caloocan. Four men were killed and 46 wounded. Thousands of Filipinos were killed or wounded.

Says It Is False.

Montreal, Can., Feb. 14.—Agoncillo, the Filipino commissioner, in an interview Monday night gave an unqualified contradition to the cablegram from Gen. Otis, in which it is stated that he, Agoncillo, telegraphed advising Aguinaldo to drive the Americans out before reenforcements arrived. He then showed the first official cablegram which he had received about the situation at Manila and which came through the Hong-Kong junta. This stated that the Americans were to blame for everything and had publicly announced that they intended to exterminate the Filipinos.

He Chose Death.

Valparaiso, Feb. 10.—A dispatch received from Bolivia says that 1,000 Indians recently surrounded the Corocoro mining works, which is the property of Chilians, and ransacked all the houses. The manager of the works, his wife and an official, tried to make their escape. On the refusal of the Indians to accept their offer of $3,000 to spare their lives, the manager shot his wife and the official and then committed suicide.

Peaches and Pears Ruined.

Springfield, Mo., Feb. 14.—It is the general opinion here that southwest Missouri has lost much of its great peach and pear crop for this year. Sixteen below zero is considered fatal for peaches and pears. Apples are thought to be safe.

IN MEMORY OF LINCOLN.

New York, Feb. 14.—The Republican club Monday evening held its annual dinner in honor of Abraham Lincoln at Delmonico's. About 375 guests and members of the club were present. Among those present were Gov. Roosevelt, Horace White, Maj. Gen. Nelson A. Miles, Rear Admiral W. S. Schley and ex-Gov. Levi P. Morton. The addresses were made by Senator-elect Chauncey M. Depew, Gov. Roosevelt, Gen. Miles and Rear Admiral Schley.

Chicago, Feb. 14.—The annual banquet of the Marquette club was held Monday evening in the Auditorium. It was the fourteenth event of its kind and a large number of prominent men from all parts of the United States were present. Members of the club and other invited guests swelled the total number at the banquet to nearly 1,000. The chief speaker of the evening was Whitelaw Reid, member of the Spanish-American peace commission, who responded to the toast, "American Diplomacy." Hon. Charles G. Dawes, comptroller of the currency, spoke on "Currency Reform;" John Charlton, member of the British-American joint high commission, spoke upon "Abraham Lincoln," his remarks being warmly received; Hon. Stewart L. Woodford, of New York, ex-minister to Spain, spoke about "Greater America." Addresses were also made by several local speakers.

TRAGEDY IN TEXAS.

A Street Duel in De Kalb in Which Three Men Are Killed and One Badly Wounded.

Texarkana, Ark., Feb. 14.—At De Kalb, Bowie county, Tex., about one o'clock Monday afternoon B. F. Blocker was standing on the corner, talking to friends, when Frank Pittman passed along the street. Blocker drew his pistol, took deliberate aim and fired at Pittman. Blocker fired the second time. Pittman ran a few steps, but Blocker fired again, killing him. After the killing citizens and countrymen created a disturbance by beginning racing horses through the streets. Constables Alf Simington and Dobbins attempted to arrest two countrymen. John Hughes, one of them, drew a pistol. As Simington rushed for him he was seized by Joe Duke, who tried to take the officer's pistol from him. Then Hughes began firing at Simington, but killed Duke while in the officer's arms. Duke fell when Hughes shot him and Constable Simington turned and knocked Hughes down before he could fire again. Meanwhile Dobbins was emptying his pistol at the men, and after the fight it was found that Dobbins was himself badly wounded. Pittman, Hughes and Duke were killed. The town is filled with drunken men and the officers are having much trouble in suppressing the riot. All the men have friends who are apparently intent upon revenge.

TRADE REVIEW.

Condition of the Various Industries for a Week—Failures Have Decreased.

New York, Feb. 11.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

"The solid basis for good business has not been shaken by speculative reaction. Stocks have been slightly lowered and the market is all the safer because much unsoundness and unreason have been shaken out. Speculation in wheat, which for a time depressed prices, has also taken a turn, and with heavy exports the market tends upward again. The cotton movement is not essentially speculative, but based on reported injuries and holds its advance. Meanwhile dispatches from all parts of the country show extraordinary activity in the chief branches of trade, and a business much larger than a year ago in nearly all. The heavy excess of exports over imports continues, New York exports having been in five weeks 16 per cent. larger than last year, while imports were by nine per cent. larger. In wheat Americans are getting profits, even though prices are lower than they were some months ago.

"The iron industry is so exploited by consolidations and attempts of that nature that it is wonderful prices have not reflected distrust. Instead, there have been general advances, in pig because the demand has been larger, for Bessemer at Pittsburgh to $11.40 and gray forge to $10.75, and in finished products because nearly all are in demand beyond the capacity of the works for some time to come.

"Failures for the week have been 217 in the United States, against 295 last year, and 35 in Canada, against 43 last year."

Fatal Fire in an Asylum.

Omaha, Neb., Feb. 13.—A Bee special from Yankton, S. D., says: One of the most horrifying fires in the history of Yankton occurred Sunday morning at two o'clock at the state insane asylum when one of the cottages took fire in the basement, completely gutting the building and causing the loss of lives of 17 of the inmates confined there. The asylum in 1882, then a frame building, was destroyed and only six lives lost except for loss of property. It was in no sense an instance to this fire. Total loss on building and machinery is estimated to be $18,000. No insurance whatever.

Governor's Mansion Burned.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 11.—The governor's mansion was destroyed by fire at noon Friday. An early fire was extinguished, but it broke out again at 11:30. The firemen were so disabled by the intense cold, to which trouble was added frozen pipes, cutting off the water supply. While most of Gov. Bradley's valuable personal effects were saved, his personal loss is at least $1,500, not including the destruction of his elaborate collection of political literature.

Chicago to Lose Dr. Hirsch.

New York, Feb. 13.—James Seligman, president of the Temple Emanu 'El congregation, announced on Friday that Dr. Emil Hirsch, of Chicago, would succeed Dr. Gottheil as rabbi of the congregation. Dr. Gottheil will be made rabbi emeritus, desiring to retire on account of his advanced age. Dr. Hirsch will take up the work next fall. The salary of Dr. Hirsch will be $14,000 per annum.

Mother and Babe Burned to Death.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 13.—Mrs. Agnes Neuner, 34 years of age, and her nine-months-old baby were fatally burned at their home on Dante alley. John Neuner, the woman's husband, was badly burned about the hands and overcome by smoke and heat in trying to save his family. Two other small children were taken out of the building safely. The cause of the fire is a mystery.

Aged Woman Rides a Bicycle.

Probably the oldest living bicyclist is a woman in County Essex, England, aged 93, who is an adept rider and whose sprightliness is astonishing. Most people could enjoy health until very old age if they took proper precautions to prevent diseases of the digestive organs by taking an occasional dose of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Even after dyspepsia, indigestion, biliousness and constipation have secured a foothold and become chronic, the Bitters will afford speedy relief.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases of of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

EASYGOING PEOPLE

Those who disregard early indications of disease.

The progress of catarrh is frequently gradual. Chronic catarrh secures possession without the knowledge of its victim.

It has become so common to say, "Everybody has a little catarrh" that many easy going people pay slight attention to it. Yet no class of disease is so difficult to shake off.

Many people well advanced in years find themselves in the toils of catarrh. Mr. and Mrs. Collum, of Giddings, Tex., found help in Pe-ru-na. Mr. Collum's letter follows:

Pe-ru-na Medicine Co., Columbus, O.

DEAR SIRS:—"I think your Pe-ru-na is the best medicine I ever tried for catarrh. I have tried all the catarrh medicines that I could hear of and none of them did any good until I tried yours. I and my wife have both used the Pe-ru-na and Man-a-lin, and we are about well. I am 70 years old and my wife is 66. When we commenced to take your medicines we were not able to see after our work, but now she can tend to her work and I see after my farm. You can use this publicly if you want to."—A. P. LEGISLATIVE GOSSIP

Our Special Correspondent Tells of the Solons' Doings.

The Work of Introducing Bills, Both Public and Private Goes Merrily On. As Yet but Few Measures Have Received Final Action.

St. Paul, Feb. 8.—Yesterday was a solid working legislative day, with morning and afternoon sessions for both branches. Senator Grindeland returned his amended commission bill. He first devised his bill to apply to commission men who deal in wheat, and then he tried to include the produce commission men under the same head.

The produce commission men rose up in force and smote the bill hip and thigh. In order to save something out of the wreck the Senator changed the bill so that it applied, as originally intended, to the grain commission men and is much more mild towards the produce men. Between the two stools, however, the passage of the bill is doubtful.

So many Senate bills are still in the hands of committees that there was little opportunity to complete any legislation today. Only two bills were introduced. The afternoon session was spent in committee of the whole and every bill, which had reached that stage, was acted upon.

The House was the storm center and the chief topic was Mr. Jacobson's bill increasing the tax on railroads from three to four per cent. on their gross earnings. Mr. Jacobson was loaded and led the debate with statistics showing what is done in other states, and among other things said that unless the bill passed, the rate of taxation would have to be increased in order to carry on the state government. Representative Wheaton declared it was a party measure and should be supported by every Republican. The Democrats and Populists objected to this, saying it was a business and not a partisan proposition.

The forenoon session was not long enough to conclude the debate and it was continued at the afternoon session, finally resulting in being recommended to pass with only four dissenting votes, thus disproving Mr. Wheaton's argument. This ensures its passage in the house, and it is altogether probable it will prove nearly equally strong in the senate.

After this was out of the way, twenty new bills were introduced. Numerous committees held meetings last night at the hotels and the capitol, and legislation is being rapidly shaped.

The senate bill providing for the election of the railroad and warehouse commission by the people has been made the special order in the senate for next Tuesday.

St. Paul, Feb. 9.—The senate had a lively debate yesterday over the bill offered by Senator Greer, providing for a commission to prepare a new tax law which will be supposed to cover all the defects which have been developed by actual experience with the present tax laws. Every senator seemed to agree that the present laws are defective, the only point of controversy being whether a new tax law should not be passed this winter and not delay for the report of a tax commission two years hence. It seems probable that the tax commission bill and delay will win, though no decisive action was taken today beyond the promulgation of mind.

The bill granting telephone companies right of way privileges along railroads was passed, as was also the bill taxing foreign corporations the same fees as are required of home corporations. The bill is retroactive and compels all insurance companies who have come into the state since 1889 to pay the fees. It will net a very handsome revenue to the state and cause many groans from the corporations.

The osteopathists are getting to be chronic, and another bill in their behalf was introduced in the senate yesterday.

While the senate has been turning down a bill making three years' desertion the time required to secure a divorce, the house has been splitting the difference and passed, by a decisive vote, a bill making the period two years instead of one, as at present. The temper of the senate, as far as shown, is in favor of adhering to the present law, but it may accept the house compromise measure.

The bill for the taxing of express companies 6 per cent on their gross earnings was recommended to pass. The senate has a similar bill pending, but not so radical. Between the two houses the express companies will undoubtedly be hit fairly heavily.

If legislation can prevent it, the binding twine trust will not have an opportunity to buy any of the state prison output this year. Another bill has been introduced, making two now pending to prevent such a result.

St. Paul, Feb. 10.—"Now will you be good." This was, in effect, what a bill introduced by Secretary Barker yesterday says to Anoka and Hastings. It provides for two insane asylums, one in each town and as a guarantee of good faith adds an appropriation of $26,000 to buy the site at Hastings. As the Anoka site has already been purchased, this will put the towns on a par and love, peace, order, etc., can now reign supreme. It is generally supposed that things are "fixed" for the passage of the bill, and the war, which was a species of insanity of itself, is relegated to the tomb of the Capulets. We already have the Twin Cities and in a short time will add to our collection the "Twin Insane Cities." The bill which passed the house raising the tax on railroad gross earnings from 2 to 4 per cent. went to the railroad committee in the Senate with the understanding that it will then go to the committee on taxes. Senator Miller introduced another bill regulating railroads. It provides that the railroad commission shall investigate the railroad rates on coal, potatoes and grain and if excessive or discriminating rates are being charged within the state the commission shall fix the maximum rate.

Another bill offered, provides that that ten members of a jury can bring in a verdict after having unsuccessfully labored with the other two for six hours.

Not satisfied with the bill increasing the taxes on the gross earnings of railroads, the House passed, without a dissenting vote, the bill increasing the gross earnings tax on express companies, from three to six per cent. One of the three bills asked by the retail merchants, has appeared in the House. It requires all assignments of wages to be filed in the office of the city or town clerk. The assignment must show that it was not made to defraud creditors.

St. Paul, Feb. 11.—Eighteen bills passed and sixteen introduced was the industrious record of the senate yesterday. While it is true none of the bills were of startling importance to the world at large they help fill up the statute books and the members of the legislature are paid salaries for making books of laws. One of the bills passed provides for the reimbursement of counties when they have been buncoed into paying for the care of insane people belonging to some other county.

Another makes the juror's fees the same in justice court as in district court. If time is what is paid for there never was any reason for a different fee as it takes just as much time for a juror to serve a day in justice as it does to serve a day in district court.

One of the bills introduced is alleged to be in the interest of the Younger brothers who are serving a life sentence at Stillwater for the Northfield bank robbery and murder. It provides that a lifer who has served over twenty years can be paroled without being required to remain in the state. This would enable the Youngers to return to their old homes in Missouri. The parole law which requires a released convict to remain in the state after parole is an old affair any way. It is equivalent to saying you are a bad man but we want you with us. Another bill offered forbids attempts to change county seats oftener than once in five years.

The house indulged in a scrap over the attempt to increase the value of human life from $5,000 to $10,000, but the $5,000 men won. It came up in a bill fixing the liability of employes. As the law stands the heirs of a dead man can only get $5,000 for his remains, and the house seemed to think that was the average value. The much mooted question of traveling libraries came to the front in a bill appropriating $5,000 for such a purpose. In Michigan and many other states the peripatetic libraries are claimed to be a great success and a valuable educational feature.

Another bill offered is designed to protect farmers from speculaors at terminal markets. The bill appropriating $10,000 for roads in Itaska park was killed. Both houses adjourned until Tuesday.

IN THE DRY DOCK.

Cruiser New York Being Cleaned After Nearly a Year of Neglect —Not Very Dirty.

The cruiser New York, flying Rear Admiral Sampson's pennant, was placed in dry dock No. 2 at the Brooklyn navy yard the other morning. The admiral was not aboard during the docking process, but arrived later in the day and had dinner with Capt. Chadwick.

When it is considered that the big cruiser had not been in a dry dock since last October its bottom was in wonderfully good condition. The sailors say that the cruisers went so fast when chasing Spanish warships that the friction of the water washed off the barnacles and seaweed.

FATAL RAILWAY WRECKS.

Broken Rail Causes a Disaster Near Pittsburgh—Fate of an Engineer and His Son.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 14.—Train No. 2 on the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie railroad, which left Cleveland at 11:18 a. m., was wrecked Monday afternoon near Fleming Park, opposite Davis island. The fireman was injured so that he died and 17 passengers were badly injured. W. A. Campbell, the fireman, was found lying under the trucks of the baggage car. He died before medical aid could be summoned. The wreck was caused by a broken rail. The train was running at a high rate of speed required by the schedule and the locomotive and several cars were badly damaged.

Lancaster, Pa., Feb. 14.—A fatal railroad wreck occurred Monday afternoon at Gallagherville, three miles west of Downington. The second section of the fast line east crashed into the rear of another passenger train, supposed to be the Chicago express. Engineer Joseph Smith and Fireman Corson were killed outright. Smith is pinned down under the engine. A number of passengers were injured. It is impossible to get further particulars of the accident at this point.

Fort Ticonderoga, N. Y., Feb. 14.—Delaware & Hudson train No. 4, which left Montreal Monday morning, was derailed near Cummings station, two miles south of here, Monday afternoon. The engine turned over and the engineer, W. S. Combs, and his little boy, ten years old, were killed. The rest of the train hands and passengers escaped.

SIGNED BY THE PRESIDENT.

Treaty of Peace Now Awaits the Action of Spain—Little Formality Observed.

Washington, Feb. 11.—The official copy of the treaty of peace with Spain, bearing the signatures of the Spanish and American commissioners, which was ratified by the senate last Monday, as certified by Vice President Hobart, was signed by the president and Secretary Hay at 2:35 o'clock Friday afternoon in the library of the executive mansion. There was little formality observed, although a number of persons were present by invitation of the president. While signing the document the president and the secretary of state sat at the round table in the center of the library. The pen was an ordinary gold one, which the president frequently uses in his office work. The ceremony occupied only a few minutes, and at its conclusion Secretary Hay replaced the document in its crimson velvet case and took it to the state department for transmission to Madrid.

BAD FIRE IN CHICAGO.

Book and Stationery Firm of A. C. McClurg & Co. Suffers a Loss of $650,000.

Chicago, Feb. 13.—Fire Sunday destroyed the five-story brick building on the northwest corner of Madison street and Wabash avenue, occupied by the book and stationery firm of A. C. McClurg & Co., entailing a loss of $650,000, of which $500,000 is on stock. Mandel Bros.' dry goods store, adjoining in the rear, was damaged $10,000. The fire was caused by an explosion of gas from a leaking pipe on the third floor. Zero weather hindered the firemen, many of whom were severely frostbitten. Frozen water mains checked the supply of water. McClurg's stock was insured for $350,000.

Lord Beresford Arrives.

San Francisco, Feb. 13.—Lord Charles Beresford, admiral of the British navy and special trade commissioner of the London board of trade, who has been making a study of the trade conditions in the orient with particular reference to the maintenance of the open-door policy in China, arrived here Friday on the Japanese steamer America Maru. His present plan is to remain here a few days and then proceed to Chicago, New York and Washington. He proposes to ascertain for himself the sentiment of the American people on the "open-door" policy.

All Rescued.

Chicago, Feb. 14.—After being adrift on an ice floe in Lake Michigan for over 15 hours, the five people who were carried out Sunday evening by the breaking of the ice were rescued, and it is not expected that any of them will be much the worse for the experience. Young Arthur Fletcher, who made a heroic effort to bring them ashore in his boat, and who paddled around all night in the frail craft, did not fare so well, both his feet being badly frozen. It is expected that he will be a cripple for life.

Place for a Wisconsin Editor.

Washington, Feb. 13.—Horace A. Taylor, of Madison, Wis., editor of the Wisconsin State Journal, will probably be appointed assistant secretary of the treasury to succeed W. B. Howell, of New Jersey, who has just been appointed a member of the board of general appraisers in New York. Mr. Taylor was an applicant for the office of superintendent of the census and the office of librarian of congress.

Frozen from Shore to Shore.

Ludington, Mich., Feb. 13.—The Flint & Pere Marquette car ferry broke all records of winter navigation when it arrived here at ten o'clock Sunday, having crossed Lake Michigan in 12 hours through a field of solid unbroken ice. The distance from Manitowoc is 60 miles. Capt. Kilty positively confirms the report that Lake Michigan was frozen solid from shore to shore.

Six Men Killed.

Auburn, Cal., Feb. 10.—The reservoir at the Big Dipper mine in the Iowa Hill mining district has broken and carried away the entire mill, blacksmith shop and drying house. Five Chinese and one white man, Joseph Farber, were killed and their bodies were found several miles down the canyon. The loss of the mine is heavy and will reach upward of $20,000.

Mardi Gras Opens.

New Orleans, Feb. 14.—Rex arrived Monday, accompanied by a fine fleet, including the Detroit. The military display was creditable, despite the snow. Proteus postponed his night parade until Friday, owing to the inability of the mules to stand on the slippery streets.

Dewey to Be an Admiral.

Washington, Feb. 14.—The senate has passed a bill creating the office of admiral of the navy. Rear Admiral Dewey, it is understood, will be named for the office.

ON CANADA'S FREE HOMESTEAD LANDS.

Wetaskiwin, Alta, April 5th, 1898.
W. F. McCreary,
Govt. Immigration Commissioner, Winnipeg.

Dear Sir: I like the country very much so far; have seen a great number of farmers from the States and every one seen so far says they have done well and like it here far better than where they came from, and all claim it to be the best country for a poor man that they were ever in, and, with good crops this season, I predict a great rush. There are some nice claims to be had yet, but will not last the summer through.

I do not find it any colder than in Iowa, and am feeling much better than when I left there March 1st. I think this a great country for those who are suffering with throat and lung troubles. I have seen men that had as high as 51½ bushels of wheat per acre, and near 100 bushels of oats, but they weigh from 45 to 51 pounds per bushel, but the general run is 25 to 50 wheat, 50 to 75 oats, and stock looking fine; some cattle running out were nearly in market flesh.

I expect to return to the States late this fall for stock, etc. Will write you when I want to go. Thanking you all for past favors,

I remain,
Most respectfully yours,
(Sgd.) DR. D. E. STREVELL.

Business and Prayers.

In one of the suburbs west of Chicago is a grocer who, although a devout churchgoer and a faithful citizen, has the reputation of figuring closer in his business dealing than any other man in the village. His enemies say that he once bit a coffee bean in two to make weight, and that he stops his clock at night to save wear and tear on the wheels. The grocer lives above his store, and his home is connected with his place of business by a pair of stairs indoors. The grocer's son takes the late watch in the store, and every night at nine o'clock the good man opens the door at the top of the steps and the following conversation takes place:

"John, have you posted the books?"
"Yes, father."
"Have you set the scales light?"
"Yes, father."
"Well, come up to prayers."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Pretty Underwear.

The variety of pretty silk and woolen underwear to be had at such reasonable prices, is very tempting to dainty women, yet many refrain from purchasing such on account of their liability to injure in laundrying. If the work is properly done, this trouble may be avoided. When ready to begin fill a tub half full of warm water, in which dissolve a fourth of a bar of Ivory Soap, and wash the articles through it with the hands, rinse in warm water, and squeeze, but do not wring. Hang on the line and press while still damp.

HEALTHY MATERNITY.

Two Grateful Women Tell of the Help They Have Received From Mrs. Pinkham.

The climax of life force in woman is capable motherhood.
Health of body means health of the generative organs.

Read what Mrs. G. A. NONNAMAKER, Bluffton, Ohio, says about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and how well it prepared her for maternity:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I must say a word in praise of your Vegetable Compound. I used three bottles of it when I was pregnant, and labor was not nearly as long as it was with my other babies; and my baby is so healthy to what the others were. I think every woman should use your Compound when pregnant, it will save them so much suffering and misery. I cannot say enough in praise of it. If ever I need medicine again, I shall use your Compound."

The most successful tonic known to medicine for women approaching maternity is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is a safeguard for every woman who uses it, and the fullest benefit comes from its use with Mrs. Pinkham's advice freely offered to all woman. Her address is Lynn, Mass.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I am a great believer in your Compound. I was almost despairing of ever again being well, as I was a great sufferer, and had been for years. I suffered from womb trouble, and had terrible blind fits. After writing to you I tried your Compound. The result was astonishing. I have used it and advocated it ever since. In childbirth it is a perfect boon. I have often said that I should like to have its merits thrown on the sky with a search-light, so that all women would read, and be convinced that there is a remedy for their sufferings."

"THE CLEANER 'TIS, THE COSIER 'TIS." WHAT IS HOME WITHOUT

SAPOLIO

Locomotor Ataxia and Paralysis Can be Cured.

These extreme nervous disorders were treated with wonderful success by the discoverer of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, previous to his discovery being offered to the public generally. This remedy is the only known specific in many diseases that, until recent years, were pronounced incurable. Here is the proof:

James Crocket, a sturdy old Scotchman living in Detroit, Mich, at 88 Montcalm St., was cured of Locomotor Ataxia by these pills. For many years he has been a chief engineer of one of those big passenger palace steamers plying upon the great lakes. This is a position of great responsibility and the anxiety causes a great nervous strain. Mr. Crocket says: "For fifteen years I watched the big engines and boilers without a single accident, and only noticed that I was getting nervous. Suddenly without warning I was taken sick, and was prostrated. I had the best of physicians but grew gradually worse. At a council of doctors, they said I had nervous prostration, and had destroyed my whole nervous system and would never recover. For three years I was unable to move from my bed. The doctor said I had locomotor ataxia, and would never be able to walk again.

"The pains and suffering I experienced during those years are almost indescribable. The friends that came to see me bid me good-bye when they left me and I was given up. The doctors said nothing more could be done. My wife kept reading to me, articles about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. We finally decided to try them. The first box gave me relief. I continued to use them for about two years before I could get strength enough to walk. I am nearly seventy-five years old and there is not a man in this city that can kick higher or walk further than I can and to-day I owe my present good health to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People for they saved my life."—Detroit Evening News.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, Feb 17. 1899.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Don't forget the programme for the 22nd, Washington's birthday.

—The Eagle intimates that "mothing's to good for the school board.

—The east bound morning train Saturday, was bulletined 3½ hours late.

—Thermometer, Saturday, Feb. 11. at 7 a. m. registered 30 degrees below zero

—John Leudasher has moved into his new home in N. Delano, lately purchased of Nick Franzin.

—Grippe grabbed onto several of our citizens this week, among them William Lewis and Charles L. Belt.

—A poverty ball was given at the City Hall Monday evening, and a dance in honor of Joe Kuchenmeister, on Tuesday evening.

—Mrs. Roosen gave a kindergarden dance to a number of the very young people of Delano, Tuesday evening. in the Swedeback building.

—After the cold spell a good many new and repaired pumps are to be seen. People don't like to carry water longer than they have to.

—A war for places on the school board is already being waged. It was long since given out that the Eagle wants to sit on the nest, but will she?

—The thermometer managed to indicate above 32 degrees on Tuesday. Quite a change to have a small thaw after so long and severe a cold spell. People enjoy the change.

—An agent for the new style of light visited Delano this week. His visit was timely as the electric lights have been more or less under a cloud since the changes of dynamoes.

—Some of our young men think the beer in Manila must taste good to some of their former associates here, who now have to pay 25cts a glass for the beverage. Perhaps about five of them chip in, a nickle apiece, and each takes a straw; the best sucker getting the biggest beer.

—For the encouragement of the little folks at school, we, this week, give a number of essays written by them, and presented to us by their teacher, Miss Catherine Kelly, for publication. Read them, and tell them you saw what they wrote in the paper.

—If you want some good reading for the next year subscribe for the BUFFALO GAZETTE, The Thrice-a-week World, and the Cosmopolitan, all for $2.35. This gives you a home weekly and a thrice a week New York newspaper and one of the leading magazines of the country.

—Village election March 14. Delano needs good reliable men for officers. Who will you have? It is time to be making up your minds. Don't put men in office you know are unfit for the places. There are enough competent and honest men in town and it is not right to get up a hubbub over personal matters and run anybody in to spite the other fellow. Good men is what is wanted.

Washington's Birthday.

Cincinatti Cold.

CINCINATTI, Feb. 14, 1899.

The weather here has been, for the last seven days, the coldest ever known in this section, hogs and cattle in some instances perishing, any turkies, chickens, ducks and sparrows freezing to death by thousands, and quail are exterminated, thousands of people have had ears, noses, hands and feet frozen, and several people frozen to death. The temperature is rising today and I guess the cold wave is passed at least for the present.

W. D. FREEMAN.

Anoka Herald: General Eagan has been suspended by the president. In other words he has been granted leave of absence for six years at $5,500 per. Speech of the Eagan variety truly is silver.

Personal.

Fred Farber returned home yesterday; his school in Renville county being out.

Mrs. Dr. Soper was in town this week arranging to move their house hold goods to their new home at Norwood.

Among former Wright county people we met at the Democratic banquet at Minneapolis Wednesday evening were Dr Geo. C Barton, formerly of Buffalo, Joe Cramer and Thomas O' Hair formerly of Delano. All were ardent Bryan men.

Lawyer Spath, of Waverly, kindly steered us to the proper corner for securing and interurban car in Minneapolis Wednesday. He was warm in his praises of Bryan's speech to the legislature Tuesday. Thinks Mr. Bryan one of the greatest living statesmen.

Editor Wharton, of the Willmar Argus, was among the passengers on the Thursday evening train headed for the cities.

Editor and Mrs. Buckley left last evening to attend the banquet in St. Paul tendered to the Minnesota Editorial Association.

Mrs. M. A. Chance came home yesterday from Chicago where she spent the winter with her daughter, Mrs. Hopper, and family.

John Coolen, on his way home to Smith Lake, from Minneapolis, stepped off the train to see who he could see that he knew in Delano Tuesday evening.

John McGary, of Independence, was in town Monday, on business.

George P. Schaffer and daughter Mamie, who visited in Vicksburg for a number of weeks, Mr. Schaffer's home during the civil war, returned home last week. He says he had a pleasant trip and visit.

Joe Kuchenmeister left for Adrian Wis., Wednesday morning.

Mrs. Cross. who has been visiting Mrs. Bolton, went to Minneapolis yesterday to look after one of her patients. She is kept very busy nursing.

Erick Erickson and family received a visit from his married daughter and child from Minneapolis this week.

Thomas Gilmer is a guest at the Gilmer House for a few days. He hails from Graceville.

Ye editor attended the banquet at Minneapolis Wednesday evening, and pronounces it one of the most enthusiastic Democratic gatherings he ever attended. Young democracy is thriving.

County Cullings.

Wright county was represented, so far as we were able to learn, at the banquet tendered Gov. Lind and Mayor Gray by the league of Democratic clubs of Minnesota, at Minneapolis, Wednesday evening by G. A. Ruckoldt and John Walker, of Rockford, E. W. Sherwin, and J. S. Mealey, of Monticello, James E. Madigan, of Maple Lake and Dr. Catlin of Delano.

What's the matter with the Buffalo Standard? It reproduces nearly half a column from that star eyed Goddess, Henry Watterson, on politics, and evidently thinks it the kind of food its readers want. Is Watterson becoming the brains of the G. O. P. or is Editor Lamson turning Gold Democrat?

Latham and Spooner endeavored to have Joe Boxell released from jail Tuesday. But Judge Simpson didn't see it that way. So he is to await the action of the next Grand Jury, in Wright county.

District Court is in session at Howard Lake today. The district court for Wright county 18th Judicial district, is now being peddled around to suit purchasers.—Buffalo Journal.

What's the matter with Mr. Eaton now? Does he not know that this is an ugly looking assertion to make? the district court "being peddled around to suit purchasers;" "peddled around"! "to suit purchasers"! Does Mr. Eaton in his wisdon, know of any law to prevent district court being held anywhere in the county that the district Judge sees fit to hold it? If he does, isn't it his duty as an American citizen to see that the law is enforced? In many cases would not the county be saved larger sums of money by holding court where the witnesses and others live? Think it over A. Y.

Report comes that a man has been arrested for exploding a bomb at Monticell. We havn't heard who it is. Such breaches of the peace as bomb firing in people's doors should be severely punished.

The Republican school teachers of Wright county are notified by their papers that teachers examinations will be held in March. For the benefit of teachers who read the GAZETTE we will give the following:

Monticello, 1 o'clock p. m, 6th & 7th.
Delano, 9 o'clock, a. m. 8th & 9th.

Webster's International Dictionary

Successor of the "Unabridged."

Standard of the U. S. Gov't Printing Office, the U. S. Supreme Court, all the State Supreme Courts, and nearly all the schoolbooks.

Warmly Commended by State Superintendents of Schools, College Presidents, and other leaders almost without number.

Invaluable in the household, and to the teacher, scholar, professional man, and self-educator.

THE BEST FOR PRACTICAL USE.

It is easy to ascertain the pronunciation.
It is easy to trace the growth of a word.
It is easy to learn what a word means.

The Chicago Times-Herald says:—
Webster's International Dictionary in its present form is absolute authority on everything pertaining to our language in the way of orthography, orthoepy, etymology, and definition. From it there is no appeal. It is as perfect as human effort and scholarship can make it.

THE delights of an evening spent around a well-lighted reading table are not half understood. An illustrated magazine with its wealth of illustrations, its stories of adventure and love, its descriptions of travel which carry you to the remotest ends of the earth, and its instructive articles for young and old—these are the first requisites for your own enjoyment and the entertainment and proper education of your children.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal,

Both Together One Year for Only $1.80

In this way you secure your own home paper and an illustrated magazine at a price that is only about a fourth of what some of the illustrated magazines sell for. For three years The Cosmopolitan has undisputedly claimed that it reached the largest clientele possessed by any periodical, daily, weekly or monthly, in the world. It was The Cosmopolitan which sent Julian Hawthorne to India to let the world know the real horrors of famine and plague. It was The Cosmopolitan which established at its own cost a great Free Correspondence University which now has over 20,000 students on its rolls. It was The Cosmopolitan which offered a prize of $5,000 for the best horseless carriage and prizes for best plans for public baths, and best arrangement of sewer and fire systems for cities. It was The Cosmopolitan which set the presidents of great schools and universities seriously discussing the defects of existing educational systems. It is The Cosmopolitan whose enterprise is always in the lead in advancing the world's civilization.

In order to secure the benefit of this offer, subscriptions must be sent direct to this office and not to agents of The Cosmopolitan.

Just think of it! The island of Negros to furnish 100,000 men to fight the island of Luzon! And the United States to pay the bills. Couldn't they get along about as well as that without help from "The Great Evangelist of the World"?

THE Minneapolis Tribune accused Bryan, Hoar and others encouraging the Filipinos to fight How about Davis and his fellow expansionists, with their theory of a Japanese. English, American alliance to "Evangelize the world?" Isn't that a greater incentive to Aguinaldo and other lovers of liberty to fight than anything its opponents have yet said?

TALK about Aguinaldo carrying on a war of extermination! Is it worse for him to try to rid his country of foreigners than for "the great evangelist of the world" to shoot down his subjects by the hundreds? "Give me liberty or give me death" was the watchword of the American revolution, and is an appeal to civilized people that will ever be respected.

IT is being claimed for Congressman Morris that he succeeded in securing an appropriation for a public building at Little Falls. Also, that Little Falls is the smallest town in the Union to be so honored. Why didn't Mr. Morris get one for Delano while he was about it? He got quite a good vote here and should be no respector of persons in distributing the plums. Delano probably needs a public building about as badly as does Little Falls

GOV. LIND'S veto to the sugar bounty bill allowing the new sugar manufactory a bounty of nearly $20,000 was an eye opener to some of the members of our law making bodies. But if the sugar manufactory has gone back on its carrots to farmers throughout a very large part of the country as it is claimed by farmers near Delano, who were induced to raise a few beets, they did, they are not entitled to even the bounty promised them. Mr. Thede and some assistants worked up this way. They told the farmers they would furnish seed, a man to show them how to plant, machinery for working at the business, etc, then buy the beets in the fall even if they were frozen, it made no difference, they would make just as good sugar and would be paid for the same as if they were not. Charles Eppel, Anthony Dramalla, Erick Erickson and others planted some, but as yet they have not been called on for the beets. Mr. Eppel says he wrote to the concern about it but could get no answer. But not long since received a bill for $3 00 for 20 pounds of seed, 10 of which he has on hand yet. He claims some of the farmers paid for the seed, but under the circumstances he thinks they ought not to have done so. If that is the fashion after which the sugar manufactory is to do business it don't look as if they ought to have a bounty from the state. Farmers are not favorable to paying people bounties to use them in that way.

Then there is Senator Keller, reported to have drawn out of the concern, and to be at work trying to establish a new plant at St. Cloud, claiming that the one at the twin cities has joined the sugar combine One point made here when trying to induce farmers to plant beets was that it was independent of the combine. If the institution belongs to the sugar trust, and can use farmers as they claim here to have been used, it surely ought not to have a bounty voted by our legislators to be paid out of taxes raised from farmers.

Then it was claimed that enough sugar could not be made by the new plant to supply customers and some was shipped in from outside the state. Does the concern collect bounty on that too? From the way the Delano farmers claim to have been treated; the beets they raised, left on their hands; their letters concerning them left unanswered; and bills for the seed, and requests to try it again sent to them, it is a fair question. And unless the sugar manufacturing company can explain these things satisfactorily they ought not to say much if they didn't receive even the bounty they were to get. And if they are really a part of the sugar trust they ought to be able to manage to exist hereafter without a bounty from the state.

Imperialist With a Big "I".

This is a free country. Our people have been rocked in the cradle of liberty. They take pride in calling this the land of the free and the home of the brave. They glory in a free press, in free speech and a free ballot. Here every man has a right to talk, write and vote for what his conscience dictates. He may think as does the majority of the people in the country; or he may have ideas entertained alone by the minority, yet he has the right to express his views wherever and whenever he sees fit to do so in a peaceable and conscientious manner.

If Senator Davis, Chairman of the Senate committee on Foreign Relations, advocates the aggrandizement of our country by possessing ourselves of the Philippine Islands, as a means of holding open the market doors of China's one third of the inhabitants of the earth, he has the right to do so.

If he wishes to call our nation, as he is reported to have done, at Chicago, "The Great Evangelist of the World," he can do so.

If he is so afraid, as his speech intimates, that the Chinese under the guidance of their partitioners, will, within 30 years, come over and capture us, he has a right to say that.

If he thinks the Chinese trade more valuable than the lives of Americans who as volunteers to fight in a war for humanity, or of soldiers in the regular army, or of drafted men to be shipped to our new possessions, and he cares for further political honors, he should rember that the independent citizens each have a vote.

If he really thinks the demonstrations we are to make, "more pretentious and important than the discovery of America by Columbus," of course he can say so. But many who read this part of the Senator's speech, somehow can't help thinking of Napoleon Bonaparte, and the time when he thought he was a man of destiny.

If, after sitting with the Peace commission, in Paris, he has learned that we "haven't a friend" among the nations on the continent of Europe. If his object is to, with the aid of Japan and England, thrash the rest of the world he might just as well come out plain and make known his wishes.

These things read big, coming from a big man, but on election day his vote counts one, the same as that of any other votdr.

As for us, we think, and thanks to Thomas Jefferson and his associates and a long list of patriots who have lived since his time, we have the right to say so, that these utterances are but dreams of an ambitious aggrandizer, an Imperialist with a big "I", a man who would, if he could, become the most powerful potentate on earth.

We are a peaceful not a warlike nation. When we war for humanity God is on our side, but when we transcend His will He takes the other side. Let us not be aggressors merely for paltry pelf. If we want the markets of the world, and are entitled to them, statesmen and not warriors should get them.

Who Is Responsible?

"Who is responsible for the recent conflict with the Philippines whereby American blood was shed and American homes made sorrowful? It was the speeches made in congress by men who call themselves Americans but who are unworthy the name. Had the treaty been ratified weeks ago the question of the government of the islands would have been settled by this time."—Willmar Argus.

Don't Editor Wharton know that Senator Davis had to be driven, by the banters of some of the opponents of his plans, to even allow a vote to be taken when it was? Were it not for that fact probably no vote would have been taken during this term of Congress. And now that the treaty has been ratified, several weeks ago, bigger preparations than ever are being made to carry on the "killing off" of the Filipinos.

We are surprised that an editor who has taught school, and is acquainted with the history of our own country, would write denouncing men for standing up for the very principles declared in our Declaration of Independence, men like Hale, of Maine, and Hoar, of Massachusetts, who have lived among the decendants of men who belonged to the "Boston Tea Party," and who have imbibed principles of freedom large enough to extend beyond the confines of their own political party; even to cross the broad Pacific's bosom and allow the downtrodden inhabitants of those southern islands, who have become imbued with a love of freedom and independence, to obtain, unmolested, the objects for which they are laying down their lives.

It does not speak very flatteringly of the patriotism of the Argus, to read in its columns that men who, on the floor of Congress, talked and worked to have other peoples enjoy the same rights and privileges we inherited from our fathers; freedom and a right to enjoy peace and prosperity unmolested, are "men who call themselves Americans but who are unworthy the name."

Was Thomas Jefferson when he wrote: "We hold these truths to be self evident that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their creator with inherent and inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness; that to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed;" a man calling himself an American but unworthy of the name?

Will Editor Wharton tell us that the patriot John Hancock who was first to sign this document, Thomas Carroll, of Carrolton, who affixed his place of residence that there could be no mistake as to which of the many men of that name was the right one if they were hunted to be hung, or Benjamin Franklin who remarked: "We must hang together or we will hang separately." and the others who wrote their names to this glorious forerunner of American Independence, were men "unworthy the name"? Does he think Patrick Henry who said: "As for me, give me liberty or give me death." or George Washington who fought for the liberty of his country, or Abe Lincoln who said: "The government of the people for the people and by the people will not perish from the earth," or any other man who entertains these sentiments unworthy the name of American citizen? Oh, Mr. Wharton, banish the thought. Is it not the determination to be a free government, that is arousing the Philippine Islanders to face the rapid fire guns and the big cannon of this great nation who once fought the same fight?

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 17, 1899.

Quite as sneaky as its attacks upon Gen. Miles is the attempt of the administration to make it appear that democratic senators are trying to force an extra session of Congress by opposing legislation for a large standing army. It is the duty of the democratic Senators to act in accord with the wishes of their constituents, and in resisting by every constitutional and parliamentary method known to them such vicious legislation they will be doing exactly that. They have nothing to do with calling an extra session of Congress; that is strictly a presidential prerogative.

A feature of the red hot debate in the House on the offering of the Hepburn Nicaragua Canal bill as an amendment to the Sundry Civil bill was a short but strong speech in favor of the bill by Representative Bailey, of Texas, who said he supported the amendment because it provided for direct ownership of the Canal by the government, instead of a partnership with a private corporation Some bitter personalities were thrown around during the debate. Czar Reed and his henchmen in the House opposed the amendment, and most of the democrats favored it. It was ruled out on a point of order, and the House under the lash of Czar Reed sustained the ruling, by a vote of 127 to 109.

The disposition of the McEnery joint resolution, which was this week adopted by the Senate by a vote of 26 to 22, by the House committee on Foreign Affairs, will speedily show whether the resolution was adopted as a part of the game by which a sufficient number of votes were obtained to ratify the treaty, or not. The vote in the Senate indicates that it was. The Bacon substitute, which was defeated by the vote of the Vice President, the Senate being a tie, really had a meaning: it pledged the the U. S. to treat the Philippines just as it is already pledged to treat Cuba. The Philippines could be held forever and a day, as the saying is, under the McEnery resolution, if it were a law.

Representative Lewis, of Washington, in the course of a short running debate on the item in the Sundry Civil bill which appropriates $20,000,000 pay Spain for the Philippines, pointed out the important and interesting historical fact that Spain is the only country on earth that has ever repudiated its treaty obligations. In 1,62, after the English had taken the Philippines, Spain made a treaty in which it agreed to pay England an amount equivalent to $10,000,000 to regain possession of the Islands, England gave up the Islands under that treaty; but Spain has never paid a cent of money promised.

Representative Grosvenor, of Ohio, chairman of the republican caucus, this week named the committee of members of the next House who are, in obedience to caucus direction to prepare a financial bill to be presented to a caucus of the republicans of the House, in the next Congress. The make up of the committee leaves no doubt that the bill it will prepare will be whatever sort of bill Mr. McKinley may wish to have jammed through. One of the shrewdest men in political life said of the probable work of this committee: "My prediction is that the financial bill that is likely to become a law at the first session of the next Congress, whether that be an extra session closely following the close of the present session or the regular session next winter, will not meet the wishes of Secretary Gage and other extreme single gold standard advocates. Next year will be Presidential year and Mr. McKinley is a very wily politician In my opinion he will try to make that financial bill a dodger, and he will have plenty of assistance from the members of the House who have a strong silver element in their districts." The average democrat in Congress would much prefer that Secretary Gage's ideas be followed in the financial bill, because that would leave no room for dodging the issue in the next campaign. But it is always the policy of the politicians to prevent a square stand up fight on plain issue, if there is any possible way in which it can be prevented.

Ex-Secretary John Sherman didn't mince words when he spoke about the attempt of the War Commission's report to whitewash Alger and his gang and to blacken Gen. Miles. Mr. Sherman said: "If McKinley were up for election today he would get in Ohio but an inconsiderable number of votes. From all that I can learn there is little enthusiasm for him there, and but very few newspapers are supporting him. There is no doubt that such a condition has been brought about by just such attacks as are being made upon Gen. Miles. What has Gen. Miles done to the President and Secretary of War that he should be treated so? He has not stood in their way. I suppose jealousy is at the bottom of it all". Mr Sherman may be very sore headed—he has reason enough to be—but that does not prevent his being able to tell the truth. The snow blockade prevented the assembling of the embryonic beef Military Court of Inquiry this week, as expected.

BILLY THE KID

A Tale of the Border

(Written for this paper)

By W. W. Williams

OF the tough characters who infested the southwest in the early days none attracted more attention or committed more desperate deeds than "Billy the Kidd." He was a young, boyish-looking fellow, with a retreating chin and a hooked nose—not of the Roman order, but more like the beak of a parrot. A stranger would never pick him out for a desperate man, but he was all that the name implies. For reckless dare-deviltry, handiness with a gun and bravery almost supernatural, he never had an equal among the many of his class who made things lively on the border in New Mexico and helped to fill the graveyards. Hundreds of times he looked death in the face with that steel-blue, cold eye of his, which did not seem to know how to flinch. When occasion seemed to demand it he shot his enemy dead in his tracks and turned upon his heel with a cool indifference, or fled to one of his strongholds, as occasion seemed to require. The shots that were fired at him by good marksmen were without number, but for years he appeared to have a charmed life, which no bullet, be it never so well aimed, could cut short. The chances which he took to escape punishment for his crimes are almost incredible when related. No jail could hold him nor could any number of guards keep him in their charge. He always found some way to escape, and in doing so usually left a trail of blood behind him.

The incident in the career of Billy the Kid, which I am about to relate, was given to me by Mr. W. H. Sammons, of Lake City, Col. Mr. Sammons' part in the affair will appear in the narrative. He said:

"In the spring of 1881 the commander of the government post at Fort Craig, N. M., received word from Fort Cummings, near Cook's Peak, that a gang of White Mountain Apaches were off the reservation, and that they were plundering and killing the settlers by way of diversion; that they were supposed to have crossed the Rio Grande and to be making their way towards the Organ or San Andree mountains, in New Mexico. A call for troops was made to go out and intercept them. Dispatches were to be carried to Fort Stanton, near the Pecos river, to this effect. Capt. Jack Crawford, the "poet scout," was then in the employ of the post as dispatch carrier. He was notified to leave at daybreak with the word that would alarm and warn the settlers in the Pecos valley and enable the officers at Fort Stanton to put cavalry in the field and drive the Indians back to their reservation west of the Rio Grande, beyond the Black Range mountains. I was stopping at the post for a few days on a visit to Capt. Jack, being an old friend and acquaintance of his years before in the Black Hills. I volunteered to accompany him upon his hard and perilous trip. We left Fort Craig shortly after daybreak, carrying our saddles and blankets across the Rio Grande in a boat and swimming our animals, which consisted of two saddle horses and a government pack mule, a very nimble-footed animal that was trained to follow and could be depended upon to be at our heels whenever camp was made. We were soon in our saddles after the river was crossed, and made for the Tucson ranch, the only place where water was to be had for a distance of 75 miles, having to cross what was known as the 'Dry Hornado,' a desert, sand and alkali waste, being about 125 miles long and from 60 to 80 wide. It lies just east of the Rio Grande river. We arrived at the ranch about nine o'clock that evening, very much fatigued from the hot and dusty ride. Remaining there until daybreak, we once more 'hit the trail' for what is known as 'Dripping Springs,' where the last water was to be had until we reached some of the tributaries of the Pecos river to the east of the mountains, which we must cross that day and which lay between the Pecos valley and the Rio Grande.

"We arrived at the springs about noon, having covered about 50 miles since daybreak. Capt. Jack advised taking a siesta of two hours. Our course from Fort Craig had been in a southeasterly direction to the Tucson ranch, where we intercepted the old trail running from Fort Stanton to Silver City, our course to the springs having been about due east. After loosening our cinches and watering and feeding our horses, we partook of our scanty dinner of hardtack and 'canned horse' and lay down to rest. We had finished our siesta and had started to get ready to renew our journey when I cast my eyes to the southeast and beheld what we supposed to be a band of Indians about a mile away coming toward us. 'Los Indios,' was my only remark, as by a wave of the hand I called the attention of Capt Jack to them. There was mighty quick work, tightening our cinches and a hurried departure from the spot. The Indians, apparently, did not see us until we were in the saddle, they then being about a half mile away and coming along on our trail. We put spurs to our horses and started for the pass, 'touching the ground only in high places,' as Capt Jack afterwards expressed it. A series of loud and demoniacal yells told us that we were discovered, and a few stray shots were heard as we rode rapidly away. The trail we were on was well worn and fairly good, so that we soon proved that distance lends enchantment to the view. After two hours of hard riding we passed the crest of the range and beheld the valley of the Pecos in the distance. We saw nothing more of our pursuers.

"As we descended into the valley Capt Jack saw a solitary horseman approaching us from a distance. As he drew near we perceived that he was a beardless boy, riding a fine black gelding. Capt. Jack turned to the right to pass him, and I took to the left as a measure of safety. With a slight motion of the hand the rider signaled that I, too, must go to the right, and he appeared to 'a heap sabe' what our movements meant. I obeyed his command. When we met all three stopped, and Capt. Jack asked him how far it was to Fort Stanton. The answer came readily enough, and the boy asked us how far it was to water. We informed him, and told him that he had best turn back, as the Indians were out. He replied: 'I am going to Grant county, and will keep on if the whole Apache tribe is in the way.' He then asked us for tobacco, and Capt. Jack gave him a supply. After rolling a big cigarette and lighting it, he demanded: 'Say, ain't you Capt. Jack Crawford, the scout?' 'I am,' was the reply. 'I thought so,' said the youth. Capt. Jack then said: 'Are you not Billy, the Kid?' 'Yes.' he frankly answered. 'I thought you were in the Lincoln county jail,' said Capt. Jack, 'under a death sentence.' 'I was,' said the Kid, 'but I bade them adieu this morning.' 'Well,' said Capt. Jack, 'I think you have not had a fair deal from what I have heard. I am glad to have met you, and I sympathize with you.' 'I know I have been tough,' replied the Kid, 'but they made out things against me that I am not guilty of.'

"About six o'clock we emerged from the salt beds, when we met a negro on horseback whom I recognized as one of Billy the Kid's band, having seen him two years before at Rincon, where he was cook for John Kinney, the famous cattle rustler. 'Say, boss,' he said, as he approached, 'have you seen anything of a young feller with a black hoss?' 'No,' replied Capt. Jack. 'Mighty strange,' said the negro, 'here's his tracks in the trail.' In the meantime I was nodding my head in the affirmative to the negro, but without Capt. Jack's knowledge. 'Sure you ain't seen him?' asked the negro. 'We have not,' was the reply of Capt. Jack. I again nodded my head in the affirmative, and a broad grin passed over the negro's face. Just then Capt. Jack turned around and caught me nodding and giving the lie to his assertions. He was angry in a moment, and started to express himself when I said: 'This man's name is Wash. He is a friend of Billy's, who would be very glad to have him with him.' This gave the negro the desired information, and then he told us of the escape of the Kid, and how it was effected.

"The Kid was in the Lincoln county jail under a sentence of death for murder. He was in charge of a sheriff by the name of Pat Garrett. Two guards, Ollinger and Bell by name, were placed in immediate charge of the Kid during the daytime. Other men were on duty at night. They were enemies of the Kid and took great delight in taunting him with his approaching fate. All their victim would say was: 'I may outlive you ducks yet,' and sure enough he did. That morning Ollinger went across the street to get the Kid his breakfast. Bell being left to guard the jail. The Kid asked Bell to get a rag and wrap it around one of his shackles, as it was chafing his leg. Bell procured the desired article, and, stooping down, was in the act of placing it around the shackle when the Kid reached over, took Bell's gun out of his hip pocket and in an instant shot him fatally, although he lived some hours and was able to relate how the affair occurred. The Kid then took the shackle key out of Bell's pocket, and in an instant was free. Ollinger heard the shot and came running across the street. The Kid, however, met him at the door with a Winchester in his hands. With an oath he said: 'Ollinger, you must go to meet your pard,' and at that shot him dead. Across the street there was a fine horse tied to a post, all saddled and ready. It belonged to one of the county officers, who said he was going out into the country to see his girl, but many believed he was a friend of the Kid and had placed the horse there for his use. Be that as it may, the Kid ran quickly across the street, untied the animal and mounted him, only to be thrown. However, he caught the end of the lariat and was in the saddle again in an instant. By this time a crowd began to gather, but the Kid stood them off with his Winchester and dashed out of town. He had the fleetest horse in the country and no pursuit was made.

"The Kid made his way in safety to the Chisholm ranch, in Grant county, where he found friends. Garrett, learning of his whereabouts, went to the ranch in the night and called on Chisholm, who denied knowing where the Kid was. 'There was no light in the room, and while they were talking some one came in and asked Chisholm if he was there. Chisholm answered in the affirmative. The Kid, for it was he, said he had come after fresh meat, but instinctively suspecting something wrong he demanded: 'Who's here?' Garrett had recognized his voice, and before Chisholm could reply he fired in the direction from whence it came, well knowing that the time had come for him to kill the Kid or to be killed by him. Fortunately his aim was well taken. The desperado fell dead in his tracks with a bullet through his heart and without a groan. Thus perished Billy the Kid, whose blood-stained career is still talked of in the southwest.

"The negro who informed us of the manner of the Kid's escape kept on in his pursuit, while we went to Fort Stanton. The next day a detachment of soldiers was sent out in pursuit of the Apaches. We accompanied them. On reaching the Dripping Springs we learned that the Indians we had seen the day before were a lot of Mescalaro Apaches in the employ of the government, and who were out after the renegade Apaches. They had fired off their guns and yelled only to have some fun with us."

FILIPINOS SHOULD BE INDEPENDENT.

Mrs. Reeve Writes.

In a letter received yesterday from Mrs. Reeve, wife of General C. McC. Reeve, who is with her husband at Manilla, she refers with evident anxiety to the threatened outbreak of hostilities between the American troops and the Filipinos. The letter was written the day following Aguinaldo's proclamation. Says Mrs. Reeve:

"There has been a council of war. Great numbers of the Spaniards are coming into the walled city, while the insurgents are leaving. It is really funny, they are so frightened. Our soldiers are in their quarters and all the guards have been doubled. Carriages are rushing in all directions, and everywhere there is an air of illy suppressed excitement. I have my own revolver and am learning how to handle a Mauser. The ladies at the fort have asked me to go to them, but I think I shall stay here, unless General Reeve insists on my going to China, a trip which I have been contemplating for some time past.

"As I have already said, the insurgents are leaving the city as fast as they can get away, and are taking their families with them. This is very significant and can only mean that they are going to attack us. No one wants to fight these people, who ask only for their liberty. They should have it. None of the officers or men here are in a position to say anything regarding the President's course, but everyone knows that Aguinaldo was furious at the nothings contained in the president's message, and that he has issued a response which augurs ill for the maintenance of peace here. Our men will fight the Filipinos with a very different grace than that employed against the Spaniard's, although they will, of course, obey orders, even though their hearts are not in the cause.

"The leaders of the insurgents are men of education and ability. Since they went into Iloilo without disorder and immediately settled down to good government and humane care of their prisoners, it looks to us, here on the scene, as though they were fully capable of taking care of themselves.

"When the people of the United States know that these natives do not want us, and that the army is very much opposed to occupying this place fit only for the 'indians' now here, we trust that the president will decide to let the Filipinos take care of themselves. Out here we are not expansionists. We know too much about the country, the people and the climate."

Continuing, Mrs. Reeve says that she has gathered from letters and copies of the home papers which have been sent her that an injustice has been done Adjutant Garcelon and Dr. Law, in that they have not received their full meed of praise for their undoubted gallantry at the battle of Manilla. Both these young men, she says, acted with dashing bravery during the entire engagement, and deserve much credit even among such examples of daring as those furnished by other members of the Thirteenth.

At the time the letter was written the general and Mrs. Reeve had as their guest Rev. Clay McCauley, a former Minneapolis pastor, who has spent the past nine years in missionary work in Japan.

Some idea of the educational influence of the British museum can be gathered from the fact that over 1,000,000 persons visited it the last year.

A bill to legalize the selling of horse meat for food is before the New York legislature. Thus the automobile has already begun to lay the steed on the table, if not on the shelf.

Some of the destitute Cubans are complaining of the hard biscuits and salt pork issued to them as rations. What they want, apparently, is a slice of American bread and butter with plenty of jelly on it.

At the last Mardi Gras festival in New Orleans a special car was devoted to the doings of Aeolus, king of winds, but it has not yet been reported which one of the large crop of pugilists now floating around the country impersonated the king.

One of the most respected citizens of Langtry, Tex., is Squire Bean, who in early days was justice of the peace, sheriff and saloon keeper. His custom was to try cases while sitting on the end of his bar. The sign outside the door read: "J. Bean, Cool Beer and Justice."

The postmastership of Pembroke, Me., is said to have been held by one family longer than that of any other town in the country. William Kilby was appointed to the office in 1800 and his direct descendants have handled the mails of the little village ever since his retirement in 1840.

America's record of coffee drinking last year was greater than ever before, the use of coffee gaining on that of tea. The United States consumes practically half the coffee produced in the world. It is not surprising that we wish to take in some coffee-producing islands. There are grounds for expansion.

On one ballot in the senatorial contest in Utah Senator D. H. Perry, of Salt Lake City, voted for Senator Martha Hughes Cannon. This, it is said, is the first time a vote has been cast for a woman for the United States senate. Martha Hughes Cannon is now a member of the upper house of the Utah legislature.

The United States military authorities in Cuba have decided to establish a sanitarium on the Isle of Pines for the care and cure of sick soldiers. Col. Hecker and a party of staff officers have made a survey of the island and arranged for hospital buildings. The Isle of Pines has several mineral springs with healing qualities and has long been regarded as a health resort.

The action of the government in establishing weather stations in Porto Rico and Cuba and furnishing the reports of the observers there to this country is to be commended. Nothing so reconciles a men to a temperature of 17 below zero as the knowledge that there are people who are sizzling under a tropical sun and pining for a lounging place on the north side of a cold storage plant.

We feed the world; we finance the whole community; the universe pays us tribute. On Uncle Sam's territory the sun may set, but he is safely to be trusted in the dark. Nothing can shake our position. This nation is the wonder of the world, and yet has only just reached stalwart manhood. The eagle should be excused for screaming now and then, since the bird has really just begun to extend its wings.

The legislatures are developing their usual crop of crank bills. In Indiana a senator proposes to abolish all the schoolhouses in the various counties and to teach the children in their own homes by telephone, each residence to be connected by wire with a central office in each county seat, where the teachers will assemble and take turns while talking into the hello-box. Some of our legislators ought to have a "gardeen."

An editor in Georgia wants the news. He says: "If your wife whips you let us know it, and we will put you right before the world. If you have company, tell us—if you are not ashamed of your visitor. If you have a party or gathering of any kind, bring around the cake, seven or eight pies and a side of ham—not necessarily to eat, but just to show your friendship and appreciation. You needn't mind inviting us, as it may be too cool for our wardrobe. We want the news—that's all."

The trolley cars made in Pittsburgh, Pa., are now to invade the land of the Pharaohs. England's sword may be the conqueror of Africa, but just the same peaceful old Uncle Sam is going to have some of the business. The trolley cars in question, numbering 14 in all, are to be part of the equipment for a new electric street railway now being built in Cairo. As soon as the natives become accustomed to managing the cars a line is to be built to the famous pyramids, and, later on, a line connecting Alexandria and Cairo is to be built.

American agricultural implements are imported into Mexico without competition from abroad. Our manufacturers have a clear field and a market to themselves. In addition the demand for United States agricultural machinery is steadily increasing. In the first place, implements for tilling the soil are better in the United States than those made in any other country. Our manufacturers have the advantage of quick transportation and moderate freight rates and all agricultural implements shipped into Mexico are entered free of duty at the custom houses.

The Naval and Military Order of the Spanish-American War was organized at the Army and Navy club in New York city with a membership of 105 and with Gov. Roosevelt as commander. The purposes of the order, as set forth in the constitution, are "to cherish the memories and associations of the war with Spain, to unite and promote the ties of fellowship formed among participants, to acquire and preserve the records of individual service and to advance the best interests of soldiers and sailors of the United States," and to enhance patriotic sentiment.

ANOTHER BATTLE.

Fifteen Filipinos Killed in a Charge Aided by Artillery—Two Americans Wounded.

Manila, Feb. 21.—Early Monday morning the insurgents, with shout and bugle call, opened fire at long range on Anderson's left. Sharpshooters across the river made the headquarters at Macati a hot place, but no one was wounded. The enemy were collecting all day at the waterworks and in front of King's brigade. They finally became so nagging in front of King's position that the general sent two companies of the First Washington infantry over the Pasig river.

They swept the country for two miles, then swung over to the river bank opposite the insurgent trenches, facing the American position at Macati, and opened a flank fire on the insurgents across the river. The guns of the Sixth artillery, under Lieut. Scott, at Macati, pounded the insurgent position while the troops from Macati charged and drove the enemy before them. Fifteen Filipino dead were found and four found wounded. Two American soldiers were wounded by the explosion of Springfield rifles.

Manila, Feb. 18. — A considerable force of insurgents attacked the American outposts near the Manila waterworks Friday, where were posted companies C and G of the First Nebraska regiment. The Filipinos met with a warm reception from the Nebraska men, who were soon reenforced, whereupon the Americans charged on the insurgent position, carried it and put the enemy to flight. The encounter was a hot one while it lasted. Fifty dead bodies of insurgents, including one officer, were found in the jungle after the fighting was over. Several prisoners were captured. The rest of the insurgents were driven some distance toward Caloocan. No deaths occurred on the side of the Americans, but Capt. Hollingworth, Lieut. Weedon and six privates were severely wounded.

SESSION IS ENDED.

Congress of Mothers Concludes a Profitable Meeting—Many Resolutions Adopted.

Washington, Feb. 20.—The third congress of mothers ended Saturday. Resolutions were adopted requesting the congress of the United States to repudiate the result of the November election in Utah, either by refusing to allow the name of Brigham H. Roberts, of Utah, to be placed upon the roll or by expelling him from his seat; indorsing the war policy of the administration; thanking Mrs. McKinley for "her especial graciousness" as shown in her reception to them and her love of children; establishing a committee of five on household economy, and urging general proper training of girls in preparation for motherhood.

The National Council of Women also held a prolonged discussion over resolutions against the seating of Representative Roberts. The resolutions adopted protest against his occupying a seat in congress. The report of the resolutions committee recommends the abolishment of the canteen system in army and navy; deprecates war; requests the influence of President McKinley to stop bullfighting in Cuba; against bird destruction for millinery purposes; in favor of physical and industrial general education as well as mental, and the larger participation of women in the work incident to our colonial acquisitions.

POTATOES FROZEN.

Thousands of Bushels Ruined During the Recent Cold Wave in Wisconsin Counties.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., Feb. 18.—More than 100,000 bushels of potatoes have been lost to the farmers of Chippewa county by freezing in the pits, owing to the continued cold weather. The absence of snow on the ground permitted the frost to work in deeper than it would otherwise have done.

Black River Falls, Wis., Feb. 18.—Farmers in this vicinity have suffered heavy losses by frost in their stores of potatoes, hidden in pits.

Fond du Lac, Wis., Feb. 18.—Thousands of bushels of potatoes stored in pits in this county have been frozen.

Four Persons Found Dead.

Philadelphia, Feb. 20.—Mrs. Charles Fahrenkamp, aged 33 years, her two children, Florence and William, aged respectively ten and nine years, and an unknown woman, aged about 35 years, were found dead Sunday in a room in Mrs. Fahrenkamp's home, 1416 North Fifty-second street. The gas was turned on and life had apparently been extinct for several days. Scattered about the first floor were remnants of cigars and cigarettes and empty beer and whisky bottles. The bodies were found by a next-door neighbor who had forced an entrance to the house.

Miller Wins.

San Francisco, Feb. 20.—The six-day bicycle race was ended at 10:15 Sunday night, 39 minutes ahead of time. It was obvious that the men could not change their relative positions by riding longer and the management concluded to call the race at an end instead of riding through until 10:54. Miller was first, with 2,192 miles to his credit; Aaronson, second, 2,146; Fredericks, third, 2,090.

To Abolish Sunday Work.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 20.—A joint meeting of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers and the Federation of Churches was held in the Bijou theater Sunday afternoon for the purpose of starting the agitation for the abolition of Sunday work in the mills. On the platform were many of the leading clergymen of the federation and officers of the association.

Gift by Phil Armour.

Chicago, Feb. 21.—P. D. Armour has presented to the Armour institute real estate and gilt-edged securities to the value of $750,000. This, with the other gifts to the institution, brings the total of Mr. Armour's donations to $2,500,000, not including the building now occupied by the institute, which was erected at a cost of $240,000.

Assigned.

Leominster, Mass., Feb. 20.—The Leominster Shirt company has made an assignment to D. Curtis Nickerson. The liabilities are $150,000, the heaviest creditors being New York parties. The company was started 18 years ago and had branch offices in Boston, Chicago and San Francisco.

TO PAY SPAIN.

The Treaty Provision for $20,000,000 Is Agreed to by the House—Troops to Be Mustered Out.

Washington, Feb. 21.—A separate bill appropriating $20,000,000 for payment to Spain under the provisions of the treaty of Paris was passed Monday by the house under suspension of the rules. No amendment was in order and an attempt to secure unanimous consent to offer an amendment declaratory of our policy not permanently to annex the islands was objected to. Mr. Wheeler (Ky.), upon whose point of order the appropriation went out of the sundry civil bill, made the only speech in open hostility to the measure, but upon the roll call 34 members —31 democrats, two populists and one silver republican—voted against it. The votes of 213 members were cast for it. The senate bill to reimburse the governors of states for expenses paid by the states in organizing volunteers for service in the war with Spain before their muster into the service of the United States also was passed under suspension of rules. The bill appropriating $500,000 for the Pan-American exposition to be held at Buffalo, N. Y., in 1901 was before the house, when absence of a quorum compelled an adjournment.

Washington, Feb. 21.—Orders issued Monday will muster out about 16,000 volunteer troops, including all such troops now in camp in the United States and the Third Georgia at Nuevitas, Two Hundred and Second New York at Guanajay and four batteries of Maine artillery now at Havana. They will be mustered out at Savannah, Ga. This will reduce the army strength to 110,000 men, of whom 30,000 are stationed in Cuba. All the volunteer troops in Porto Rico have been previously discharged, and the only volunteers still in the service are either in the Philippines or in Cuba.

THE INQUIRY OPENS.

The Board to Investigate the Beef Charges Begins Its Work—Gen. Miles the First Witness.

Washington, Feb. 21.—The Miles court of inquiry began its work of probing the beef charges of the general on Monday. Calls of ceremony on the president and the general commanding the army occupied a large part of the forenoon, and immediately thereafter Gen. Nelson A. Miles appeared as the first witness. He and three other army officers summoned as witnesses were examined and disposed of before the court closed its session at three o'clock.

During the inquiry the general denied two interviews credited to him charging that certain chemicals were used in the preservation of the army beef, but tacitly admitted that there was a good deal in them with which he agreed. Later in his testimony he said his use of the phrase "pretense of experiment," in speaking of army beef, was unfortunate. He disclaimed intending any inference of fraud, and said he should have said the refrigerated beef issue was "on the theory of an experiment," and "a very costly one."

PERISH BY FIRE.

Four Children Are Cremated in Their Burning Home Near Dubois, Pa.—Three Firemen Killed.

Dubois, Pa., Feb. 18. — A dwelling house at French Run, 35 miles east of Dubois, belonging to a woodsman named Carlson, was burned Friday. Carlson was away from home, but his wife and five little children were in the house. The mother was awakened by the noise of the crackling wood, and had just time to grasp her baby and jump from a second story window into the snow. She was then obliged to stand and witness the burning to death of her four other little ones, aged 12, seven, five and two years, respectively.

Philadelphia, Feb. 18. — At about three o'clock Friday morning while about a dozen firemen were at work in the ruins of the store of the Emerson Shoe company, which was burned out at Thursday night's big fire, a mass of iron and stone crashed down from the upper floors, burying the men beneath it. Three of the firemen were killed.

Commission Takes a Recess.

Washington, Feb. 21.—The American-Canadian joint high commission, after a session Monday, adjourned to meet at Quebec August 2, unless the chairmen of the respective commissions agree upon another date. The commission first began its labors nearly six months ago in Canada and has, with the exception of probably a month, been earnestly at work, endeavoring to accomplish the object for which it was appointed—an agreement with a view to the formulation of a treaty covering the many perplexing questions of differences affecting the business interests of the United States and Canada existing between them.

To Quit Politics.

Portland, Me., Feb. 20.—Speaker Thomas B. Reed is said by several intimate friends here to have decided to retire from politics and engage in the practice of law in New York. He is not rich, and it is argued by them that inasmuch as the presidency appears beyond his grasp he is anxious to amass a competence and settle down. Sunday a report was circulated that Mr. Reed had written a letter to a close friend in which he stated his fixed purpose to retire from congress at the close of his present term.

Famous Magazine Sold.

New York, Feb. 21.—George B. M. Harvey has bought the North American Review from Lloyd S. Bryce and David A. Monroe. The price is reported at $225,000. Mr. Harvey took possession of the property Monday and will assume editorial direction of the magazine with the May number. Mr. Harvey is a native of Vermont and 35 years old. He has been a reporter on the Springfield (Mass.) Republican, and Chicago Daily News, and reporter, managing editor and editor in chief of the New York World. He left the World in 1893.

Alaskan Railroad Completed.

Skaguay, Alaska, Feb. 16, via Seattle, Wash., Feb. 21.—The task of building a railroad along the precipitous side of the canyon from Skaguay to the summit of White pass, an elevation of nearly 4,000 feet, has been completed. From the summit to Lake Bennett the work of construction is comparatively easy and the track will be laid in a few weeks.

SUCH IS FAME.

A Small Schoolgirl Gets the Hero of Manila Into a Bad Mix Up.

One of the most popular of the young professors in the male high school tells an amusing little story on a small, up-to-date schoolgirl. She went to one of these district schools over which a cousin of the professor presides. It is usual to have visitors at the building now and then, who ask the scholars questions and see that everything is in good shape. One day not so long since a party of callers came in and requested the pupils to write the answers to several questions propounded them. One of these questions was: "Tell what you know about Admiral Dewey's great fight."

The children set to work figuring on their answers, but the teacher noticed one of the girls did not make a move to do so.

"Why don't you write your answer to the question?" she demanded of the idle pupil.

"'Taint no use," was the slow response. "I don't know nothing about it."

"But," remonstrated the teacher, "you must try, anyhow; you must not sit there idle while the others are doing the best they can. See if you cannot think of something, my dear."

"No use," protested the pupil. "All I know is that Dewey and Corbett fought, and I don't know which whipped, and I don't care either."

Such is fame, and the bold sailor who sunk Montojo's fleet must go promenading down the halls of time with a pompadoured ex-slugger for a partner.—Louisville Times.

HE DID NOT HAVE IT.

How a Joshing Judge Salted Down a Delightfully Fresh Young Man.

William Lightfoot Visscher tells this characteristic story of Hon. Isaac Parker, famous as the terrible judge at Fort Smith, Ark., who probably sentenced more men to be executed than any other judge that ever lived. This was not, however, because he was so unrelentingly severe, but because he had the hardest and most numerous lot of criminals to deal with that ever came within the jurisdiction of such an official. One day when there was an unusually large batch of culprits to be sentenced, the judge looked compassionately over his spectacles at one young scamp, and said:

"In consideration of the youth and inexperience of this prisoner I shall let him off with a fine of $50—"

Before the judge had done speaking the very fresh young man coolly stretched his right leg and ran his hand into his trousers' pocket on one side, remarking nonchalantly as he did so:

"And one year in the penitentiary," concluded the judge. Then looking over at the convict in a quizzical sort of way, he added: "Do you happen to have that in your jeans?" —Woman's Home Companion.

His Peculiar View.

"Doesn't it sometimes make you gloomy to hear the wind howling about on a wild night?"

"No," answered the man with a careworn look. "I rather like to hear it. The wind doesn't come up and ring your door bell and ask how about that bill, or tell you you'll get arrested if you don't tag your dog. It doesn't sing 'I Won't Go Home 'Till Morning' away off the key and disgrace the neighborhood. It howls because it enjoys it. But it never says anything to hurt anybody's feelings. I sometimes honestly wish that there was more wind in this life and less people."—Washington Post.

His Motto.

A New York merchant recently advertised for an office boy. The first lad that went to try for the position was asked what his motto in life was.

"The same as yours, sir," answered the lad.

"How do you know my motto?" asked the manager.

"It tells you on the door, sir; it says push!"

The boy was employed at once.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Obstacles.

"Ha, ha!" laughed Desdemona, derisively. "Do your worst!"

For, it being a one-night stand, the pillow borrowed from the hotel certainly wasn't large enough to smother anybody.

TUMOR EXPELLED.

Unqualified Success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

MRS. ELIZABETH WHEELOCK, Magnolia, Iowa, in the following letter describes her recovery from a very critical condition:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have been taking your Vegetable Compound, and am now ready to sound its praises. It has done wonders for me in relieving me of a tumor.

"My health has been poor for three years. Change of life was working upon me. I was very much bloated and was a burden to myself. Was troubled with smothering spells, also palpitation of the heart and that bearing-down feeling, and could not be on my feet much.

"I was growing worse all the time, until I took your medicine.

"After taking three boxes of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Lozenges, the tumor passed from me.

"My health has been better ever since, can now walk quite a distance and am troubled no more with palpitation of the heart or bloating. I recommend your medicine to all sufferers from female troubles."

It is hardly reasonable to suppose that any one can doubt the efficiency of Mrs. Pinkham's methods and medicine in the face of the tremendous volume of testimony.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

An Accommodating Man.

John August Brown is one of the kindliest men who ever lived. He went to the office of the clerk of courts at Minneapolis and wanted to purchase a marriage license. It was not for himself, but he was willing to pay for it, and make the necessary affidavit.

The license in question was for Stephen Heegle, a widower. Brown had not seen the man's wife die, but he knew he was a widower. Heegle is willing to be married, and Brown wanted to facilitate the match. Brown explained that Sophia Brown was the name of the woman in the case, and Heegle had fallen in love with her and she with him, while she was Brown's wife.

Brown did not go and get a gun and start on an expedition of extermination. He had another plan to get even. He allowed a divorce to be procured, and for fear the couple might forget to carry out the whole plan, he secured the license himself.

Going to Chivago.

If enough money can be procured by the board of control, the university will send a track team to Chicago in the spring that will do much to raise Minnesota's record in track events. E. C. Gaines, of the medical school is captain of the team. He has been connected with the team for three years and is well liked by his associates. All the old men except Stevenson are back; he will be missed, as he was one of the fast sprinters on the team. Page and Nelson, who did such good work last year at Chicago, are back and are sure first place winners. Vasaly, Chambers, Stoutemeyer, Lamphere, Boyer and Bernhogen are in as good condition as last year, while among the candidates mentioned for this year's team are Flynn, who has a record for putting the shot and hammer; Elder, who can clip some seconds off the mile run record; Connor, a middle distance runner; and many others not so well known, but who can distinguish themselves if they turn out and practice.

A Socialistic Colony.

A socialistic colony will probably be started during the coming summer by the Niksur Co-operative association. The secretary of the association is now out looking over a number of sites which have been offered. The most favorably considered site offered is one near Perham, Minn.

The association desires to contract for 1,000 acres of land which it will pay for as fast as it is needed, taking only 40 acres the first year. A couple of socialistic tailors will be the first colonists and they will set up a manufacturing plant for the benefit of the community. Later on the community will be modeled after the communities of Ruskin, Tenn., and Equality, Wash. The departments which have been established by the association thus far are tailoring and printing.

Nearly Killed.

The family of Adjutant General Geo. C. Lambert came near being suffocated by coal gas in their Minneapolis home. When the maid awoke early in the morning she found the house filled with gas. She tried to notify the family, but it was some time before any of them could be aroused. Finally, Mr. Lambert made his way to a window and opened it. He then went down in the cellar and turned off the furnace pipes. Had the gas not been discovered when it was, the family would have been asphyxiated soon. Investigation snowed that some plaster had fallen from the inside of the chimney and clogged it up.

Counties Liable.

Attorney General Douglas has decided that Faribault county can be sued for double liability in a case where it invested in corporation stock. The county some years ago voted bonds, the proceeds of which were devoted to the purchase of stock in a certain railway. The attorney-general has decided that the county is liable up to the 5 per cent limit of its assessed valuation, the limit of indebtedness fixed by law. If the double liability is not enough to exceed the limit, then the county is liable.

Struck with an Axe.

A cutting affray occurred three miles east of Sherburne. John Hopple and Tom Butler live on the same farm. They became intoxicated in town, and when they reached home got into a quarrel over some groceries. Hopple claimed that Butler assaulted his wife. Hopple then grabbed an axe and carved Butler in the hand, partly severing the thumb. Hopple was arrested.

Fully Identified.

Warden Wolfer has received a letter stating that the identigcation of Harry Glenn as Bill Ryan, of the old James gang at Kansas City, is complete, Glenn having been recognized as Ryan by many former associates. Glenn was sent up for burglary and was released in July, 1897. He was arrested at Norwood, Mo., for robbery of a K. C., F. S. & M. train at Macomb, Mo.

Car Heater Explodes.

The heater in the smoking car running from Duluth to Brainerd exploded and badly demolished the front end of the car. The windows were blown out and the end of the car and a portion of the roof shattered. The explosion occurred near Kimberly. No one happened to be in that end of the car, consequently no one was hurt.

Used Dynamite.

Early one morning a frightful noise was heard that awakened a large part of Monticello's population. The noise came from the central portion of Main street, and on investigation it was found had been caused by the explosion of dynamite.

The general store of F. B. Bryant was a complete wreck. The J. W. Clark store next door was more or less wrecked by the blast. Some miscreant had placed and exploded a dynamite bomb immediately in front of Bryant's. A reward has been offered for the arrest of the guilty party.

PURELY PERSONAL.

William A. Clark, the new senator from Montana, was once a clockmaker.

Rev. M. J. Buckley and Rev. P. J. Buckley, twin brothers of Newburyport, Mass., were ordained to a priesthood at Brighton the other day. They were educated at the same parochial school, college and seminary.

At the time of his death ex-Attorney General Garland had among his clients a large number of Cherokee Indians who are claiming citizenship. Herbert Mayes, his former law partner, will now represent their interests.

LEGISLATIVE SUMMARY.

The Transactions of the Lawmakers at St. Paul.—A Short Summary of the Regular Routine.

St. Paul, Feb. 16.—In the senate yesterday Senator Myran introduced a bill authorizing boards of county commissioners to appropriate money for building drainage ditches.

The following bills were introduced:

Relating to the addition of territory to all incorporated villages of 1,000 inhabitants or over.

To amend Section 1, Chapter 23, General Laws 1878, etc., relating to the rate of interest.

To fix the compensation of triers in the district court.

To legalize the execution of certain instruments authorizing attorneys to foreclose mortgages by advertisement.

To amend Section 1, Chapter 181, General Laws for 1895, relating to teachers' university certificate.

Substitute for S. F. No. 95, defining the crime of forgery in the third degree; passed under suspension of the rules; ayes, 31; nays, 0.

In the House the following bills were introduced:

Deming—to facilitate the purchase and condemnation of lands for Itasca state parks.

Pope—To provide for organization of towns by boards of county commissioners.

Jacobson—Providing for vote in counties for or against local option.

The following bills were passed:

To amend section 252 of chapter 46 of the General Laws of 1889, entitled "An act to establish a Probate Code."

To amend section 212 of the General Laws of Minnesota for 1897, relating to the discharge of persons from the Minnesota hospitals for the insane.

St. Paul, Feb. 17.—The senate yesterday passed the following bills:

Fixing terms of court in Noble county.

Authorizing the governor to designate a day to be known as Arbor and Bird day.

Amending law establishing probate code, as amended by house.

To authorize cities of more than 50,000 to issue and sell their bonds to take up their floating indebtedness, etc.

The house passed three bills relating to Hennepin county. The following bills were introduced:

To authorize managers of state prisons to purchase land for stone quarries.

To provide for care of insane by counties.

To prevent gambling in grain in Minnesota.

To prevent the use of "preservatives."

To prevent occupants from acquiring title to public streets, etc., by adverse possession.

To abolish bills of discovery and to provide for examination.

To define public stock yards.

Appropriating $2,000 annually for assistant attorney general.

Amending laws relating to state boards of equalization.

Appropriating money to build ditch in Bergan township, St. Cloud county.

St. Paul, Feb. 18.—In the senate yesterday the Wallace bill to protect bicycle paths and cyclists and Wheaton's civil rights bill were concurred in and the Wilson bill, increasing the age of consent from 14 to 16 years, was similarly fortunate.

The following bills were introduced:

Myran—To regulate the government of cities relating to water and light bonds in cities of 8,000 or less.

To provide for the issuance of bonds for sites and school houses in independent school districts.

To repeal chapter 246, laws of 1889, relating to the inspection of illuminating oils.

To regulate the incorporation of religious societies.

To amend the statutes of 1894, relating to the tax levy rate.

To provide for the care of insane in county hospitals.

Placing the state oil inspector and his deputies on a fee basis.

In the house the Layborn bill providing for a bounty on pig iron was defeated by a vote of 51 to 62. A message was received from Gov. Lind vetoing the bill providing for a bounty on beet sugar. This matter will come up again in amended form. The following bills were introduced:

Jackson — Relative to assessment of water taxes, and limiting same to five years.

Deming—Relating to property exempt from execution.

Repeal and amend certain laws relative to duties of county commissioners.

Appropriating $1,000 to Cass county for expenses of Bear island uprising.

St. Paul, Feb. 20.—The senate Saturday had a quiet session. The following bills were introduced:

Taxation of sleeping, drawing room, telephone, telegraph companies, etc.

Amending law relating to state training school.

Legalizing village bonds for erection of armories.

Providing for an investigation of Sunday labor.

Relating to vacation of streets, alleys or public buildings in cities of 10,000 or over.

Amending law relating to barbering.

Amending laws relating to life insurance.

Relating to distribution of estates of intestates.

Relating to time of commencement of actions.

The house in a very emphatic manner overrode Gov. Lind's veto of the beet sugar bounty bill, passing the measure by a vote of 84 to 22. The following bills were passed:

To authorize cities of 50,000 or more population to transfer funds heretofore accumulated for the construction of any city wagon bridge or bridges across any river within the limits of such city to any other fund for the construction, maintenance, improvements or repairing of any bridge or bridges in said city.

To repeal special laws 1889 relating to salary of county treasurer of Wright county.

Memorial to congress relating to forestry reserve on certain Indian reservations.

To provide for the assessment, taxation and collection of taxes of sleeping car companies.

St. Paul, Feb. 21.—Both branches passed yesterday mostly in committees of the whole. In the senate the following bills were introduced:

To amend law relating to records of foreign courts.

To regulate election of aldermen at large in cities of 100,000 or more.

Relating to marital liability for debt.

Giving city councils right to change grades of streets.

Relating to trials in district courts.

To prevent docking of horses' tails.

Amending laws relating to deposit trust companies.

Substitute for S. F. 338, amending mortgage foreclosure laws.

To provide for the condemnation of private rights of way by street railway companies.

In the house the following bills were introduced:

Relative to hail insurance companies.

To encourage a better condition of the public schools and providing for a state high school board.

Limiting sale of personal property in certain cases and prohibiting department stores.

Amending laws fixing powers of boards of education.

Relating to manner of drawing juries in counties of over 100,000.

Repealing laws of 1887 relating to election of county superintendent in independent school districts.

Preventing state institutions from selling cut flowers in competition with private enterprises.

THE PRATTLE OF BABES.

Little Mabel—"I wonder why babies don't have teeth?" Little Mildred—"Don't you know? 'Cause they're in their first childhood."

The other day when a pie was brought to the table with the upper crust perforated, as usual, little Helen, aged 2 years and 11 months, gravely announced: "I don't care for any pie; I only want the holes."

"Mamma," Harry asked, "who puts all the ice on the windows?" "Jack Frost," mamma replied. "I should think," said Harry, "that he'd want to keep a little breath to blow on his fingers when it's so cold."

Gertrude, aged four, wanted a piece of cake and her mamma threatened to send her to bed if she didn't quit teasing. Finally Gertrude offered to compromise, saying: "Mamma, if you'll let me have the top part with the frosting on and won't make me take off my clothes when I get into bed, go ahead and be just as cruel as you've a mind to."—Chicago Daily News.

VANITY OF GREATNESS.

One Young Man Who Found Out That He Never Would Be Missed.

"You seemed depressed this evening," said Hamblin, as Flagg, who was generally on pretty good terms with himself, lit his eighth cigarette and then threw it away, after taking two whiffs.

"Yes, I am," was the reply. "There's no use trying to be anybody in this world."

"Oh, come, brace up," Hamblin urged. "What's gone wrong? You ought to be ashamed to let yourself be cast down, after the streak of good luck you've had. Here you are on the sunny side of 30, and a firm doing a business of $1,000,000 a year has made you its chief buyer, with a salary that would keep three or four good-sized families in luxury. You've had a trip to Europe at the house's expense and you—"

"Hold on," Flagg interrupted, "you've struck the very thing that bothers me. You know Miss Dolliver—that beautiful, stately girl I introduced you to one night in the Burkwells' box?

"I called on her last evening. I used to call there every week or two, before I started across to the other side. Well, more than three months had elapsed since I had seen her last. Of course, I concluded that my trip was an apology enough for the fact that I had not called lately, so without any ado I began talking about my experiences in Paris. What do you think she said?"

"Oh, I can't guess."

"'Why, have you been out of the city?'"—Chicago Evening News.

Our Policy of Territorial Expansion.

Extreme annexationists are advocating the addition of Canada to this country, and think it can be accomplished in a peaceful manner without exciting a quarrel with England. Such grave questions call for the wisest statesmanship, just as dyspepsia, constipation, liver and kidney diseases and malaria call for a thoroughly reliable remedy like Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. No experimenting should be done with untried medicines when an old established preparation is to be had.

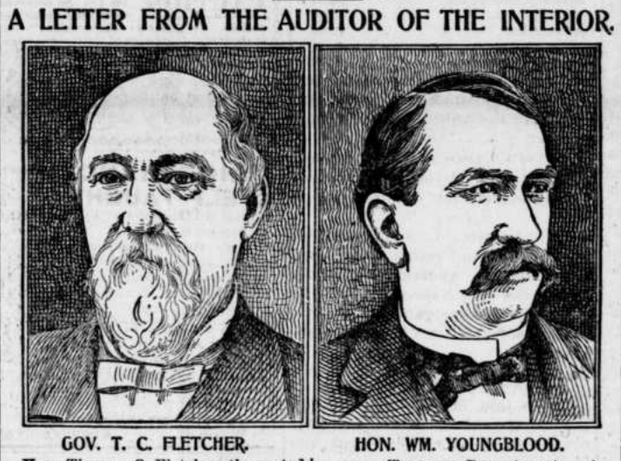
MISSOURI'S WAR GOVERNOR

Restored to Health By Pe-ru-na.

A LETTER FROM THE AUDITOR OF THE INTERIOR.



GOV. T. C. FLETCHER. HON. WM. YOUNGBLOOD.

Hon. Thomas C. Fletcher, the noted war Governor of the State of Missouri, is a great friend of Pe-ru-na. He writes:

The Pe-ru-na Drug M'f'g Co., Columbus, Ohio:

Gentlemen—For years I have been afflicted with chronic catarrh, which has gone through my whole system, and no one knows the torture and misery I have passed through. My doctor has prescribed various remedies, and I have never found any relief until I was persuaded by a friend to use Dr. Hartman's Pe-ru-na. After the use of one bottle I feel like a new man. It also cured me of a dropping I had in my throat, and built my system up generally. To those who are suffering with catarrh I take pleasure in recommending your great medicine. Very respectfully,

Thomas C. Fletcher.

Everything that affects the welfare of the people is a legitimate subject of comment to the real statesman. The statesman is not a narrow man. It is the politician who is narrow. The true statesman looks out on the world as it is, and seeks, as far as is in his power, to remedy evils and encourage the good.

Treasury Department, Office of Auditor for Interior, Washington, D. C., Dec 10, 1898.

The Pe-ru-na Drug M'f'g Co., Columbus, Ohio:

Gentlemen—I've often heard of your great medicine and have persuaded my wife, who has been much of a sufferer from catarrh, to try Pe-ru-na, and after using one bottle she has wonderfully improved. It has proved all you have claimed for it, and I take pleasure in recommending it to anyone who is afflicted with catarrh. Yours,

Wm. Youngblood, Auditor for the Interior.

Catarrh in its various forms is rapidly becoming a national curse. An undoubted remedy has been discovered by Dr. Hartman. This remedy has been thoroughly tested during the past forty years. Prominent men have come to know of its virtues and are making public utterances on the subject. To save the country we must save the people. To save the people we must protect them from disease. The disease that is at once the most prevalent and stubborn of cure is catarrh.

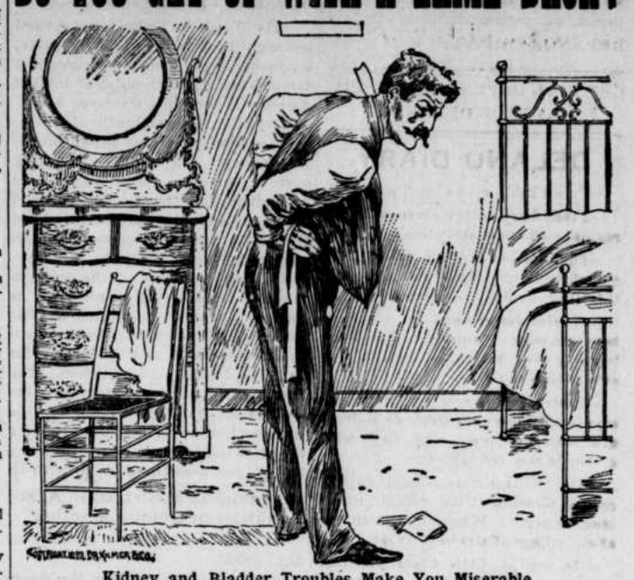
DO YOU GET UP WITH A LAME BACK?



Kidney and Bladder Troubles Make You Miserable.

Dr. Kilmer's SWAMP-ROOT is the Great Remedy for all Kidney, Bladder and Uric Acid Troubles.

By Special Arrangement, Every Reader of this Paper, to Prove for Themselves The Wonderful Merits of THIS GREAT DISCOVERY, May Have a Sample Bottle Sent Absolutely FREE by Mail.

You are in no danger of being sick if you keep your kidneys well.

They filter your blood, keep it pure and free from disease breeding germs.

Your other organs may need care, but your kidneys most, because they do most.

If you are sick, begin with your kidneys, because as soon as they are well they will help all the other organs to health.

The treatment of some diseases may be delayed without danger, not so with kidney disease.

Swamp-Root is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of untiring effort and research by the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, Dr. Kilmer, and has truly wonderful healing action on the kidneys and bladder.

It will be found by both men and women just what is needed in all cases of kidney and bladder disorders, lame back, dull pain or ache in the back, gravel, catarrh of the bladder, rheumatism, sciatica, neuralgia, uric acid troubles and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of neglected kidney trouble.

Swamp-Root corrects inability to hold water and promptly overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day and to get up many times during the night.

If your water when allowed to remain undisturbed in a glass or bottle for twenty-four hours, forms a sediment or settling or has a cloudy appearance, it is evidence that your kidneys and bladder need immediate attention.

The way to be well is to look after your kidneys:—To take Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root when you are suffering from clogged kidneys.

This prompt, mild and wonderful remedy is easy to get at the drug stores in fifty-cent and one-dollar bottles. Make a note of the name, SWAMP-ROOT, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and remember it is prepared only by Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

Swamp-Root has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work, in private practice, among the helpless too poor to purchase relief, and has proved so successful in every case that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent absolutely free by mail. Also a book telling more about Swamp-Root and containing some of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women who owe their good health, in fact their very lives, to the wonderful curative properties of Swamp-Root. Be sure and mention this paper when sending your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

DELANO, FRIDAY, Feb 24, 1899.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Finest fish for lent at Peterson's.

—Fresh dairy butter every week to regular customers at Peterson's.

—The Ladies Aid of the M. E. church will give a dime social at the City Hall, Friday eve., March 3rd.

—Charley Green and friends have been amusing themselves this week learning the combination of the new safe of Green & Co.

—Yesterday's Carver County News says Gus Halgren, Watertown's druggist who has been very sick with pneumonia is now convalescing.

—The Village council held its last regular meeting at the council rooms Monday night. Who will have charge of our village affairs next year?

—On Sunday little Clara Teichnor poked a good sized brass button up one of her nostrils. A surgeons aid was required to get rid of the foreign body.

—The slaughtering of animals and fowls should be strictly prohibited within the village limits unless it can be done in a manner not to be complained of every day.

—Rock is being accumulated about the corner of Franklin Ave. and S. River street, for a foundation for Stace Redmond's new livery barn to be built early in the spring.

—Paul E. Datko, a former Delanoite, writes: "Please send my paper addressed to Benson, to 670, E. 4th St. St. Paul." His letter head reads: "P. E. Datko, Engine Repairer and Steam Fitter."

—The snow rapidly disappeared during the last week and sleds and cutters were housed and the wagons and buggies brought out for use. We are apt to have some more snow next month.

—A number of the ladies got up a Martha Washington ball for the evening of the 22nd. The Delano orchestra furnished the music. A fair sized crowd was present and a nice time reported.

—Several good sized ponds have been formed on our streets by melted snow which could not get away. One of the most navigable is near John Brandser's tailor shop and in a stones throw of the City Hall. Provision should be made to run off surface water as promptly as possible from our village streets and alleys and from vacant lots.

Advertise in the GAZETTE.

—The large audience seemed to enjoy the Washington's Birthday Association celebration at the City Hall, Wednesday. Some seem inclined to turn the meetings into an old settlers meeting. Such was not the intention of those who organized the society. Our people are entitled to that day as a legal holiday, to learn patriotism. Let us preserve it for that purpose.

—The Sunday Times contains some letters from Manila. In one from Co. I we read that "The three Germans in the kitchen, Delano Dyer, Dutch Kissinger and Oscar Wirtensohn want to tell all their friends they aint looking for trouble, but they don't allow anyone to monkey in the kitchen." Of Co. B. "Private Catlin has lost his knife and fork and eats now with his fingers."

—A number of old settlers have talked considerably lately, and for some time back about reviving the Crow River Old Settler's Society. We would suggest that a very useful as well as interesting society could be organized of those in the territory before it became a state. To hold meetings round among the members, and record their reminescences of early days. Who will move in the matter?

—The sad news of the death of Robert L. Van Eman, son of Lee Van Eman, a former resident of Delano, was received Sunday. Rob was born in Delano, was 21 years old. He was employed in Minneapolis when he enlisted. He was a member of Co. I, 13th Minn. and died at Manila, of smallpox. He leaves a mother and two sisters, to mourn his loss. They have the sympathy of a host of Delano friends.

—Sunday noon, the Haines family, who live in the Ball House on Third street, experienced quite a scare. The cistern cover in the kitchen floor was opened for some reason, when little Beth came running in, and not noticing that the cover was off, ran into it and fell to the bottom of the cistern, some nine or ten feet, into several feet of ice and water. By the timely assistance of Mr. Haines the little girl was rescued from drowning, and both were quickly drawn up to the floor above by helping hands, none the worse for their impromptu ice water bath.

—From the Ida County Pioneer, published at Ida Grove, Iowa, the paper on which Sam and Josie Coffin, former Delanoites, are employed, we clip the following:

"The Pioneer has been laboring under difficulties this week. The water main that supplies our steam heating plant took a notion to freeze up last Sabbath, and as the ground was frozen to a depth of about four feet, we have been compelled to submit to considerable inconvenience while the pipe has been excavated. However, there are others, and we feel somewhat comforted by that thought."

—Peter Peterson says St. Valentine treated him better than most folks.

—The Woodman Lodge was surprised last night by a large and jolly party, consisting of the members wives and families and a large number of invited guests. The evening was very enjoyably spent. A nice lunch of coffee, cake, sandwiches, and other edibles was served to the party, numbering over a hundred. Mr. Kelsey, as spokesman for the Lodge, thanked their guests for their presence and bid them all a hearty welcome. He also promised Messrs. Bartlett, Brunkow, and Cooper, members of the order, a "hot time" at the next meeting, as charges had been registered against them; the first for not appearing until the ladies came, and the second for hanging around the kitchen. The latters charge was not stated by the spokesman, but his staying in the lower end of the hall and monopolizing the attentions of some of the ladies is thought had something to do with it.

Washington's Birthday Association of Delano Meeting.

CITY HALL, DELANO, Minn. Feb. 22nd, 1899.

The annual celebration of the Washington's Birthday Association, of Delano, convened, and dinner was partaken of by quite a number in the hall.

After dinner the tables gave place to chairs, and a splendid audience filled the hall.

President William Ziebarth called the meeting to order, and the following was the PROGRAMME.

Music, Delano Orchestra.
Prayer, Rev. J. L. Farber.
Election of officers by the audience: President, George Florida, Vice President, J. D. Young, Secretary. Dr. T. J. Catlin, Treasurer, William Lewis.
President's address, Wm. Ziebarth.
Song, America, audience.
Oration, "Father of Our County", F. H. Lindsley.
Song, Miss Mollie Maxfield.
Music, Delano Orchestra.
Speech, "Our Country's Future." George Florida.
Song, "It Was a Dream." G. T. Wilson, Encore, "This Little Pig went to Market".
Song, Mable Young.
Declamation, F. F. Chancellor.
Music, Delano Orchestra.
Recitations, G. T. Wilson.
Letter from W. D. Freeman, Cincinatti; read by the Secretary.
Speech, John H. McGary.
Music, Delano Orchestra.

Dr. Catlin offered a motion "That the thanks of the society be tendered W. D. Freeman for his letter to the society. Carried.

A vote of thanks was also extended the citizens of Delano and vicinity for the part taken in making the celebration a success.

T. J. CATLIN, Secretary.

County Cullings.

There might be some question about the legality of the work done by our County Commissioners on the 22nd, a legal holiday; also about their drawing pay from the County Treasury for the same. Washington's birthday is set apart as a legal holiday to be celebrated, not to work on. Maybe the commissioners want double pay for working on a legal holiday.

There seems to be considerable interest taken in the Board of County commissioners now; more than heretofore. As our county grows older, and accumulates wealth, the necessity for capable and honest men being elected becomes more and more apparent. Some of our readers favor John Turngren, of Franklin township, for a candidate from the 3rd commissioner district for that important position at the next election. John has been Chairman of the town board of Supervisors for sometime and appears to have given satisfaction. He has also held the office of Justice of the Peace, and bears the reputation of being fair. He is a horny handed farmer, well read, and, so far as we know, there is no reason why he should not be promoted to county commissioner.

Humanity's Evangelist.

The Pioneer Press had a big head line reading, "Humanity's Evangelist" under which was announced that in his speech at Dayton, Ohio, a short time ago, our Senior Senator C. K. Davis, claimed that "The United States is the great and consecrated evangelist of humanity."

How did Mr. Davis become aware of the fact? Has any one ever heard of his being in very close touch with the Maker of the Earth? Has he seen a vision, directing him to send troops into foreign lands and kill off the inhabitants thereof, and subdue the lands, and turn them over to corporate greed? or to persuade the now president to prepare the way for himself to be denominated after another term of McKinleyism: President of the United States and Chief Mogul of the islands of the seas?

Where would the Chairman of the committee on foreign relations cease his warfare and rest from his labors? When once started out on our mission as "Humanity's Evangelist" are we to have our navy sail around the Globe, and force upon the people of every land our G. O. P's idea of "freedom" whether or not the inhabitants of the various lands want it? Would C. K. have our ships, after they are through with subduing the hostile Filipinos, go for other and bigger game? Would he have us enter Europe and restore to the Polish people their once beautiful country? Would he have us break the fetters that bind the Emeral Isle to Old England? Would he have us follow in the tracks left by Kaiser William to the Holy Land and restore to the Jews Jerusalem? If so he should announce his philanthropic intentions now.

Personal.

I. H. Grafft, of Hamline, came up and spent Washington's birthday with Delano friends.

Capt. Sibel and L. K. Flanders, two veterans of the rebellion, of Montrose, attended the Washington's birthday programme at Delano, Wednesday.

Mrs. Fred Breunsaber, of Minneapolis, visited Delano relatives this week.

Mrs. C. H. Collin, of Benson, and her sister, Mrs. L. M. Maxfield, were GAZETTE callers this afternoon.

George and Carrie Florida, G. T. Wilson, and Prof. Pryor, of Rockford, celebrated the 22nd at Delano.

From Manilla.

Among Our Exchanges.

Unless Gen. Miles' statements are proven to be untrue the people of this country will be very likely to put him in McKinley's place about two years from now. It is said that he may be the Democratic nominee but that is unlikely for he is not of that political faith; however there are millions of Republicans who will willingly nominate him if he is able to make good his charges unless McKinley's attitude toward Alger should change—Annandale Post.

Willmar Argus: John Lind is showing commendable back-bone in some of his appointments and removals, notably, the removal of J. S. O'Brien as president of the prison board of managers. O'Brien thought he was not removed but he has changed his mind.

St. Cloud Times: In the appointment of Dr. P. A. Hilbert, of Melrose, to be a member of the State Medical Society, as heretofore announced, Gov. Lind honored an able and bright Stearns county physician. Dr. Hilbert, although a young man, has already won an enviable position as a physician and surgeon.

Washington.

George Washington was born in Virginia, February 22, 1732. George Washington farther and mother were very rich. When he was a small boy he went to school, he was 5 years old. His teacher's name was Hobby. One day George said to some boys, if you help me catch him I will ride him. The pony tried to throw him off the pony that he killed himself.

George's mama called breakfast, and he did not say anything for a little while. Then he said mama our pony is dead. His mother said I am sorry to lose my pony, but I am glad that you told the truth.

Once his father bought him a hatchet and he chopped the cherry tree all to pieces. LOIS KNOLL.

George Washington.

George Washington was born in Virginia, February 22.

He was a brave man. He was in a war that lasted 7 years, and his side gained.

When he was a small boy some other boys went out and they tried to catch the colt. At last they cought the colt. He was taming his mother's colt. The colt fell down dead.

And then his mother called him to breakfast. None of them said a word. And then George said: "Mother I have killed your colt".

His mother said: "I am sorry to lose my colt but I am glad you told the truth."

ACTIVE SOLICITORS WANTED EVERYWHERE for "The Story of the Philippines" by Murat Halstead, commissioned by the Government as Official Historian to the War Department. The book was written in army camps at San Francisco, on the Pacific with General Merrit, in the hospitals at Honolulu, in Hong Kong, in the American trenches at Manila, in the insurgent camps with Aguinaldo, on the deck of the Olympia with Dewey, and in the roar of battle at the fall of Manill. "OLDEST AND BEST"

With the SPECIAL CABLES OF THE NEW YORK HERALD

We have also succeeded in arranging for two additional offers in connection with this journal and The Cosmopolitan.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $1.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

One other opportunity we offer you. You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine

Three Together One Year for Only $2.35

THE delights of an evening spent around a well-lighted reading table are not half understood. An illustrated magazine with its wealth of illustrations, its stories of adventure and love, its descriptions of travel which carry you to the remotest ends of the earth, and its instructive articles for young and old—these are the first requisites for your own enjoyment and the entertainment and proper education of your children.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal,

Both Together One Year for Only $1.80

In this way you secure your own home paper and an illustrated magazine at a price that is only about a fourth of what some of the illustrated magazines sell for. For three years The Cosmopolitan has undisputedly claimed that it reached the largest clientele possessed by any periodical, daily, weekly or monthly, in the world. It was The Cosmopolitan which sent Julian Hawthorne to India to let the world know the real horrors of famine and plague. It was The Cosmopolitan which established at its own cost a great Free Correspondence University which now has over 20,000 students on its rolls. It was The Cosmopolitan which offered a prize of $3,000 for the best horseless carriage and prizes for best plans for public baths, and best arrangement of sewer and pipe systems for cities. It was The Cosmopolitan which set the presidents of great schools and universities seriously discussing the defects of existing educational systems. It is The Cosmopolitan whose enterprise is always in the lead in advancing the world's civilization.

ST. PAUL is having a small pox scare of its own. Three cases have been reported so far.

THOMAS W. Alexander, captain of the cell room of the state prison has been promoted to the place of late Deputy Warden Frank H. Lemon.

THE voters did not know they were electing L. A. Rosing governor last November, but have been finding it out ever since.—Howard Lake Herald.

But the trust fellows accuse John Lind of writing the veto.

WE can't help wondering when we hear the expansionists howl "you must stay with the flag" what they would have done had they been standing by when the herd of swine "ran violently down a steep place into the sea" if the hind hog had happened to have had a flag tied to his tail.

THE Carver County News wants all those who have not taken out citizens papers to do so at the March term of court "so as to be able to vote next fall." What 'yer goin to run for next fall Charley?

IN the St. Cloud Times appears a letter from Rev. W. D. McKinnon, chaplain of the First California Regiment. He is a Catholic priest and writes to another priest concerning the religious and other matters of the Filipinos. He claims the stories about natives being obliged to pay big prices for being married, babtised, or having friends buried are untrue. A marriage license costs $2 50, which goes into the orphan asylum fund, and people pay what they see fit for the services of the priest. We quote a few extracts from the letter.

"The monks individually are as poor as the proverbial church mouse".

"The islands have a population of over 8,000,000 Catholics, The priests number about 1,500" He says most of the priests are Spanish.

"America has a big contract on her hands to govern this place. The natives are far from being the nice, docile creatures the people at home believe them to be."

"My prejudices in their favor were when I came here about as strong as any man's could be; but now I have come to the conclusion that the Spaniards treated them about right. In In this opinion I am not alone, as I think there are but few officers in the army who think otherwise. I have been all over the country, and find no poverty anywhere. For Indians, I think them remarkably well instructed. The one who cannot read and write is an egception. There are public schools supported by the government all over the country."

IN speaking of Russia's friendship, the Pioneer Press says that the Russians in forty provinces, have taxed their subjects so severely as to cause a famine, and further says:

"Let Americans bear in mind that these relentless, destructive taxes are levied to support Russia's vast military establishment and to maintain the luxury of the court and the official class. Let them remember that by such taxation the Czar has accumulated a "war fund" of vast proportions. Let it be considered that the purpose of Russian imperialism, in maintaining this vast fund and that enormous army of over five hundred thousand men, is the extension of the system which requires such taxation over additional regions and over happier peoples. Taen with the spectacle before their eyes of the people of forty provinces being starved to promote such ends, let Americans say if they want, if they can afford to own, the "friendship" of Russia!" All this in the face of the report of our newly appointed Ambassador to Russia, Ethen Allen Hitchcock, of St. Louis.

The Pioneer Press puts it tolerably strong; but while Americans are considering whether or not they desire the friendship of such a nation let them think, also, on which road they want our own nation to enter on the same road; whether by increasing our army to one hundred thousand men, to be sent, largely, to foreign parts of the globe, they are not entering the wedge that will eventually place our government and people in the same condition relatively as they now confront that are those of Russia?

TEMPERANCE people have before the Legislature a bill creating a State Temperance commissioner and a corps of deputies to see that the liquor business is carried on according to law. The state now has its dairy commissioner, its oil inspector, boiler inspector and other like officers. Saloon men pay $500 or $1,000 for the privilege of having their business legalized. More money is spent over saloon counters than over the counters of any other business in the state. A commissioner to look after the business and see that licenses are properly made and paid for, that bondsmen are reliable, and even to see that nothing but pure, unadulterated liquors are handled, and that other laws concerning the business are enforced would be a long step in the direction of health, wealth, and happiness to many a poor unfortunate drunkard and his family.

Name 'Em.

It is not likely John Lind will be the chief executive of Minnesota two years from now. He has made numerous political mistakes already.—Aitkin Republican.

The Republican should name the political mistakes. Keep your readers posted. If they are not satisfied with John Lind's record when his term is up they have the privilege of saying so.

Law Needs Changing.

The present system of electing County Superintendents don't seem to be just the thing. Independent districts vote for him but have no use of him. From the Anoka Herald we clip the following on the subject:

"If the legislature has any spare time on its hands it might pass a law correcting the unfair system of electing county superintendents. In this county the city practically dictates to the county who shall be in charge of its schools, while it has no direct interest in them. And besides, the city is made to pay its share of the superintendent's salary, while it gets no direct return therefor. The present system is unfair to both the country and to the city, and a law remedying the evil would be appreciated by every voter and taxpayer."

Among Our Exchanges.

Duluth News Tribune: Before the St Paul Globe reads Senator Baldwin out of the Democratic party it would better "get next" itself.

Wabasha Standard Democrat: The legislature did a proper thing in refusing to vote a bounty on pig iron for the benefit of Rockefeller and Carnegie.

Minneapolis Times: Fermented beet pulp is not exactly the ideal diet for milch cows The remedy, of course is to give the gentle dairyman a bounty so that he will not be compelled to resort to that kind of fodder.

St. Cloud Times: Our experience in the Philippines recently has certainly not been encouraging to those who say our object is to civilize and christianize the natives. Our soldiers have killed a whole lot of them, but we haven't heard of any being converted.

Anoka Herald:—What with the big blizzard, the hoar frost and the Merriam boom for census superintendent, to say nothing of Mr. Alger's sub zero reception by the people on his recent trip, Washingtonians seem to be getting a little more than their share of the chilly weather.

The County Line: In answer to the question as to whether he thought the Filipinos understood the American idea of liberty, General Otis answered "No." The general is right. It is fair to presume that the Filipinos are just a little mixed as to our "ideas of liberty;" an analysis at the present time would be rather difficult.

Litchfield Independent: Lots of republican state politicians were wanting to bet that Mike Doran had a mortgage on John Lind and would see to it that his son in law Elmer Dearth was retained in office as state insurance commissioner. They proved to be false profits as on Thursday last, J. H. Shaughnessy of Stillwater was appointed to the position.

Duluth Herald:—Professor Knapp evidently knows his business. He puts together a lot of hearsay tales against Aguinaldo and the Filipinos and makes out a very good case of "manifest destiny." It is perhaps unfortunate (for Professor Knapp) that his stories are disputed by people who have had occasion to observe affairs in the Philippines for themselves.

Valley Herald:—Carnegie and Rockefeller have their lieutenants at work in the Minnesota legislature, aiming to have a measure passed giving them a bounty of fifty cents a ton on all iron mined in the state of Minnesota. If this measure should become a law it would be another instance of taxing the many for the benefit of two Shylocks. Farmers watch the vote of your legislators on this bill.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(Fromour Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 21, 1899.

The democrats in Congress stand behind the plain words of Senator Cockrell against the bill for a large standing army, which McKinley is trying to jam through the Senate, and they believe that the rank and file of the party stand behind him. Mr. Cockrell said: "We will give you every man and every officer that is necessary, but we are not willing at this short session to fasten upon the country a standing army of 100,000 men and to increase the expenses of the people by millions of dollars. We are offering everything that is fair and just and right. We have no disposition or intention to force an extra session of Congress, and we say to you that every bill that legitimately and of right ought to be a law can be passed at this session. If an extra session is called, it will be solely for the purpose of fastening upon the people a standing army of 100,000 men." That is a fair and straight-forward statement of the attitude of the democratic Senators, who are being accused of holding up the government. They are not holding up the government, except in the sense of helping it to be true to the people. The war taxes are likely to have to be paid until a democratic Congress and administration is elected, and there will either have to be more taxes or more bonds, unless the extravagant policy of the administration can be headed off or curtailed.

Col. W. J. Bryan, is in Washington, and the reception given him by the five hundred democrats, mostly men of prominence, who attended the banquet of the Virginia Democratic Association, at which he was the guest of honor, makes it certain that those who suppose that he is loosing his hold upon the party are mistaken, just as the ringing speech, bristling with Jeffersonian democracy, he made at the banquet, made it certain that he has lost none of the oratorical power that enabled him to hold the Chicago convention spellbound and to thrill the hearts of six and a half million voters. Whether Col. Bryan will ever be President, only the future can show; but that he is one of the most wonderful men of our time and that he possesses a wonderful hold upon the hearts of his fellow countrymen is as plain as that night follows day.

Senator Proctor has been credited with getting more than his share of army appointments and promotions under the present administration. Therefore it was a little surprising when he made a speech jumping all over the method by which army promotions and appointments are made on "pull", instead of merit. He knows the subject, for, in addition to getting commissions on "pull", he issued them on it when he was Secretary of War. Army officers will know how to appreciate his statement that little consideration is given to applications for promotion on merit, because the demand of some Senator or Representative for the place must be complied with. There is no doubt about the evil of the present system, not only because it puts unfit men into responsible military positions, but because it has a general demoralizing effect upon Congress. It is well known that Secretary Alger muzzled a number of Senators and Representatives with army patronage.

Senator Mitchell, of Wis., made a decided hit in his speech against the Hull army bill, by declaring that he wished to emphasize any increase in the army to "The United States proper and not extend it to the United States improper". He objected most decidedly to having U. S. soldiers engaged in shooting our ideas into an alien people.

The Alger Cuban junket, planned to start as soon as Congress adjourns, upon which a number of Senators and Representatives will be carried as guests, will go upon a government vessel and the bills will be paid with public money. It is estimated that the cost of the trip will not be less than $250,000, but the amount may be lessened if the trip has to be shortened to enable the Senators and Representatives to attend an extra session of Congress, as now seems likely. It is said that Mr McKinley has been advised to break up the Alger junket.

Every member of the committee named by Senator Jones to advise with the Democratic National Committee during the preparation for next year's campaign, is not only a staunch advocate of the renomination of Col. Bryan, but also of the readoption of the Chicago platform. Senator Jones will be chairman of the advisory committe and his associates will be the following gentlemen: Senator White, of Cal.; D. J. Campau, of Mich., Norman Mack, of N. Y., the widely known Buffalo editor; Ex-Governor Altgelt, of Ill. and Ex-Congressman George Fred Williams, of Mass. The headquarters of the advisory committee will be in Washington.

Admiral Schley having in his statement of his record during the war with Spain made it plain that the jumping of Sampson over his head was the result of dirty work, in which Sampson was the ringleader, there is a strong sentiment in Congress to compel the administration to do justice to Schley. One result of that sentiment is the introduction of a bill by Representative Lentz, of Ohio, providing that Dewey shall be made a full Admiral and Schley a Vice Admiral. There should be no doubt of the passage of the bill, but, unfortunately, there is.

LOST SILVER MINE.

Legends of the Unsuccessful Search for Hidden Treasures.

Organized Movement to Try and Locate It—Headed by a Descendant of One Who Had Seen It.

The report that Jules La Chance, of Kaskaskia, Ill., a descendant of one of the oldest French families in the Mississippi valley, is at the head of an organized movement to locate a lost silver mine, supposed to have been worked by the Kaskaskia Indians, has revived many of the old traditions of hidden treasures which are connected with the early history of Illinois. According to the tradition that has come down to Mr. La Chance, the early French pioneers who settled in the Kaskaskia valley found a tribe of Indians, a notable feature of whose dress was a profusion of silver ornaments, and it is asserted these were the only Indians north of Mexico or Yucatan to whom silver was known. The natural conclusion was that the red men had mined the white metal somewhere in the Kaskaskia bottom.

After the close of the revolutionary war one Pierre La Chance and two other soldiers set out to find the mine. They are said to have reached it, but on returning home were ambushed by Indians. His two companions were killed, and La Chance, badly wounded, was left for dead. He made his way back to the old village, and before he died left a chart showing the route he had taken, which is supposed to be the one now in the possession of Jules La Chance.

Among the stories about this mine that have been handed down is one that prior to La Chance's location of the mine a similar attempt was made by a priest, who, on gaining the confidence of the Indians, was led to it blindfolded. On the way there he dropped the beads of his rosary one by one to form a trail. He is said to have stood in a large underground chamber, the walls and floor of which were of gleaming silver ore, and, being again blindfolded, was led back to the village. On reaching home one of his guides stepped forward and handed him a handful of beads, the Indian having picked them up as he let them drop.

Mr. La Chance is at present said to be exploring the rock-ribbed cliffs along the Okaw river in the vicinity of Baldwin.

LAST OF THE YAQUIS.

Parito, Who Fought Spain in 1810, Passes Away in California—Was 108 Years Old.

Parito, believed to be the last Yaqui Indian in California, is dead at Salina, Cal. He was 108 years old, according to the record kept in pioneer days.

Parito fought with his tribe in Mexico against the Spanish in 1810, when the Mexicans rebelled against the domination of the dons. He took part in the Yaqui rebellion of 1826, and in 1827 came to California.

Parito suffered a stroke of paralysis when in his one hundredth year, and two additional strokes last week were the forerunners of the end, which was one of terrible suffering for the poor old red man, who, in his last days, was carried back to his youth, and the battles of nearly a century ago were refought in his feeble mind.

A COMPARISON.

Quantity of American Goods Hauled by Canadian Railroads During Last Two Years.

A statement has been prepared at the treasury department which shows that during the calendar year 1898 the number of cars loaded with goods shipped through the United States from one point in Canada to another was 10,966, the contents of which weighed 209,000 tons. The records of the department show that during the calendar year 1897 (the figures for 1898 not being available) the number of cars loaded with American goods shipped through Canada from one point in the United States to another was 466,269, the contents of which weighed 5,637,173 tons. It thus appears that the quantity of American goods hauled by Canadian roads was about 27 times greater than the quantity of Canadian goods hauled by American roads.

WORTHY OF IMITATION.

The Town of Wurzburg, Bavaria, to Care for Teeth of Poor Pupils Free of Cost.

The city council of Wurzburg, Bavaria, the seat of a university, has just taken action which Commercial Agent Stern at Bamberg says is worthy of imitation in the United States. In accordance with this action the teeth of the poor pupils of the public schools of Wurzburg are to be examined and cared for free of cost, provided the parents give their consent. The commercial agent says it is also intended to treat diseases of the ear and throat in a like manner, should the teeth experiment prove successful.

Code Books on Warships.

All code books carried on warships have leaded backs to make them sink if lost overboard. The letters in the book, moreover, are printed with a peculiar ink, which fades away when it comes in contact with the water, to make things still more safe the letters are changed every few months, the navy department. Every time the set's official code is changed.

A Great Meteorite.

What is known as the Bruce meteorite is now on its way to the British museum from Australia. It is said to weigh no less than four tons.

SALVATION ARMY FARMS.

Commander Booth-Tucker Tells of the Good Work Done—Colonies in Three States.

Commander Booth-Tucker, of the Salvation Army, reports that the past year on the colony farms of the army has been a prosperous one, and that the results thus far of the project of making poor people self-supporting by transplanting them to the country have been all that was hoped for. The beneficiaries of the plan take kindly to it, and the work is to be extended. To date the army has colony farms in Ohio, Colorado and California, covering 1,428 acres, and valued now at $111,000. They are tenanted by 200 colonists, and it is hoped to increase this number to 500 during this year. The largest and most ambitious of the colonies is located at Fort Amity, Col. There settlers from the slum districts of eastern cities have 640 acres of rich land which they are endeavoring to turn into 10-acre farms. Chicago and New York furnished the emigrants, a number of whom had had experience in some sort of farming, while a number were carpenters and mechanics. The ground was divided into 10-acre lots, of which each alternate lot was cultivated, but left unoccupied, with a view to the extension of each holding should 10 acres be insufficient, or a relative of a colonist desired to settle on the next farm. The plan adopted to make the colony self-supporting differs from that of most settlements, in that it involves less of the cooperative plan. Each colonist is master of his own domain of 10 acres, for which he pays a weekly rental of from $1 to $2 for 10 years, when he will own the land and house. Truck farming will be the main support of the colony. The land, however, is surrounded by thousands of acres of open prairie, which, for a time at least, will furnish free pasturage for stock.

NAVAL CANTEENS FORBIDDEN.

Secretary of the Navy Long Declares Against Liquor Selling Aboard Warships.

The canteen aboard ship is a thing of the past. It never obtained a stronghold in the service, of late the only vessels in the navy permitting the sale of even beer aboard being the New York and Indiana.

It cannot be gathered that the operation of the canteen aboard these ships has been the subject of any ill report, but even there the sales of beer have been ordered stopped in the following order, dated Feburary 3, but just published:

"After mature deliberation the department has decided that it is for the best interest of the service that the sale or issue to enlisted men of malt or other alcoholic liquors on board ships of the navy or within the limits of naval stations be prohibited.

"Therefore, after the receipt of this order, commanding officers and commandants are forbidden to allow any malt or other alcoholic liquor to be sold to, or issued to, enlisted men, either on board ship or within the limits of navy yards, naval stations or marine barracks, except in the medical department."

The order is signed by John D Long as secretary of the navy.

TO START A CRUSADE.

Coxey Will Have a Special Train from Which to Expound His Doctrines.

"Good Roads" Coxey, of Massillon, O., was in Chicago the other day, and left the city after perfecting comprehensive plans to tour the country in the interest of good roads, free silver and non-interest bearing bonds. Dressed in a dark Prince Albert suit, a high silk hat and long black overcoat, a diamond sparkling in the center of his black satin scarf, he looked anything but the leader of the army of the unemployed with whom his name is associated, or the wealthy farmer, which he is. Mr. Coxey's latest scheme is to travel over the country on a special train, expounding the theories he loves to circulate. He has engaged a sleeping-car, dining-car and baggage car in which to do his traveling.

NEW HOME FOR THE FLAG.

Detroit to Have the Honor of Caring for the Seventh Regiment's Famous Colors.

The old flag of the Seventh regiment, formerly stationed at Denver, Col., looked upon with reverence and almost as an object of worship by the members of that regiment, will be removed from headquarters at Denver, where it was left when the men were ordered to Cuba last May. To Maj. Corliss was given the distinguished honor of carrying the flag to its new quarters in Detroit.

It was first unfurled at Fort Harrison in the war of 1812-1814 with Great Britain. The name of every battle in which the "fighting regiment," as it is known, has participated, has been embroidered on its folds.

The Prosperity Swindle.

If a partisan paper finds it in the interest of the party to humbug the people, the editor takes one grain of truth, mixes it with a big quantity of chaff and feeds with this mixture, under varigated covers, the readers of his paper constantly.

At last people will actually believe that, since the reign of McKinley a wave of prosperity is blowing, and some will even feel morose, and blame their own shiftlessness that the wave did not strike them.

Actually their blows a wave of prosperity, but it blows not in the direction of the common tax payer. It blows from his pockets into those of the enormously multiplying industrial trusts fostered by the high protective tariff rates

Look at the barometer of these concerns, the exchange; how the shares of these concerns rise, some sky high, which proves that they prosper. And they can only prosper by taking inordinate profits out of your pockets, transfering these into their own.

As there will be a general kick against these trusts, of course the law makers will create a law fearful in appearance to satisfy you. But that law can and will be (as it always is) circumvented. We can only fight these trusts to go to the roofs.

We must either lower our taxes to be fairly protective for such countries who take agricultural products without taxation. Or we must alter our constitution that Congress can levy a progressive direct income tax, which would carry the inordinate profits these concerns take, into the treasury, and kill 'em that way.

INDEPENDENT.

The Way's of Imperialism.

Another way to doctor public opinion mainly used by newspapers with imperialistic inclinations is, to boldly deny facts, trusting that their readers have meanwhile forgotten these. For example! Not a year ago McKinley proclaimed solemnly that forcible annexation was after our code of morals a political crime not to be thought of. This proclamation and the glorious victory of Dewey induced the Spanish subjects in the Philippines to take up arms for their independence so successfuly that they destroyed Spanish supremacy in a few months. Then our president after interfering, bought this extinct supremacy from Spain for 20 millions, and in true, imperialistic, European style issued a proclamation to the islanders that they had to obey orders or be punished, and hastened more soldiers to the Philippines to strengthen the military power. Before these soldiers arrived the natives attacked the Americans, because they did not fight to change foreign supremacy but to be independent.

The opposition being against the principle to buy human beings like sheep who fought successfuly for their independence, people which, as Dewey declares are more able for self government than the Cubans wanted to avoid bloodshed by a promise of their ultimate independence.

Presto! In the face of these facts the imperialists try to shift the responsibility for the blood which will be spilled there, from their shoulders to those of the opposition.

Though that is exactly the contemptible way of European imperialism it is exceedingly silly here, because the people will decide that question at the next election and many republican leaders are against imperialism.

A coroner's jury in a rural district of Georgia returned the following verdict recently: "The deceased came to his death by tryin' to light his pipe with an electric light, which can't be done successfully."

Since the foundation of the Legal Aid society in New York 90,000 people, victimized by their fellows, have sought and found justice through its efforts. The society has collected and paid over to its clients a sum largely in excess of $700,000. The indirect benefits have also been felt by a far larger number of people.

Magistrate Wentworth, of New York city, has startled the community by declaring from the bench that suicide is not a crime. The statement was made when he discharged a 16-year-old boy who had attempted self-destruction. "When a man is through with life," said the magistrate, "let him shuffle it off. That's what I intend to do."

A story comes from Madrid that five Spanish officers have been rewarded for valiant and successful services as spies in this country during the war. The spies may have done good work, but the mistake that Spain made in the matter was that they were not detailed to learn the weakness of their own nation before the war rather than the strength of their foes after it was too late.

The qualities of the American volunteer at Manila continue to amaze the European powers. That men taken from fields, shops and offices can in a few months be made into soldiers so efficient gives them new views of military capacity. No European commander for the next generation at least is going to undervalue the fighting ability of American soldiers, either regulars or volunteers.

James Clarke, aged 66 years, a convict recently released from the Maryland penitentiary, holds the world's record on marriages, if the testimony of the Baltimore detective force is correct. It is claimed that Clarke has been married 55 times. In view of the fact that about half of the wives are now looking for his scalp, we should think it would have been the course of wisdom for him to have remained in prison.

Lyman Abbott says: "I have tried to interpret my own conviction that religion consists not in believing something about God or thinking about God, but in trying to live the Divine life. Religion is simply the art of living, not even the art of right living, for living that is not right living is the beginning of death. Religion means for the merchant, honesty; for the journalist, truthfulness; for the soldier, heroism; for the minister, sincerity and candor."

An impression has become current in America that the Japanese live almost exclusively upon rice. This is a mistake. In 1896 Japan produced the leading cereals in the following proportions: Rice, 180,498,855 bushels; wheat, 17,761,945 bushels; rye, 24,616,235 bushels; barley, 37,426,425 bushels; millet of all varieties, 11,017,650 bushels; rape, 3,554,760 bushels. There were also produced 3,715,170 bushels of Irish potatoes and 37,948,566 bushels of sweet potatoes.

A "personal" in a New York paper reads as follows:

"In the land of the free, in the home of the brave," is there a gentleman not under 30 years of age, refined, educated, literary and "a stranger not to honor's laws," who, for the love of letter writing, will correspond with a lady in the full bloom of womanhood, of education, literary tastes and deep sense of refinement, and whose ideal has not been "wrecked on the shores of the real," nor "sleeps like a dream, in the grave?"

A newly-discovered mineral which is of a lustrous black color and which as fuel surpasses coal and all other substances heretofore known is found on the island of Barbadoes, in the Lesser Antilles, where the natives call it "manjak." It is thought that manjak is petrified petroleum, great quantities of petroleum being found on the island. It contains only two per cent. of water and 27 per cent. of solid organic matter, thus surpassing in utility the best asphalt of Trinidad, in which 30 per cent. of water is contained, and which has been classed as the very finest fuel.

The late Gen. F. E. Spinner, who as treasurer of the United States for many years, under appointment of Abraham Lincoln, appended to the greenbacks the weirdest signature ever written by man, and who was the first to give women employment in the service of the federal government, is to have a statue erected to his memory. The cost of the tribute is borne entirely by women, who in this way seek to show in some degree their gratitude to him for courageously ignoring custom and precedent and opening to women new ways for their aspiration and occupation.

A remarkable story comes from the south to the effect that a Mississippi planter by the name of Mangum has been experimenting with monkeys as cotton pickers, and that during the entire fall of last year he had ten monkeys working in his fields. It is said they were taught to perform the work of picking cotton by a New York animal trainer, and that the same man is now training 120 monkeys for Mr. Mangum. Monkeys may yet prove of some use outside the menagerie and hand organ business, but we have no proofs concerning the cotton pickers.

THE LATEST FOREIGN DISPATCHES

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

Nearly the entire session of the United States senate on the 23d was taken up in considering the river and harbor bill and 89 pages were disposed of. A bill was passed permitting volunteer regiments to retain their colors and to deposit them in the state capitals. In the house the naval appropriation bill was passed with an amendment creating the grade of admiral of the navy. It is intended for Rear Admiral Dewey.

The river and harbor bill, with the Nicaragua canal bill attached, was passed in the United States senate on the 24th by a vote of 50 to 3, and the compromise army reorganization bill, which provides for a standing army of 65,000 men, and gives the president power to enlist 35,000 volunteers when necessary, was favorably reported. In the house the army appropriation bill was discussed, and Mr. Johnson (rep., Ind.) violently attacked the policy of the administration. Mr. Grosvenor (O.) introduced a bill directing that government publications shall bear the imprint of the International Typographical union.

The bill for increasing the efficiency of the army occupied the time in the United States senate on the 25th. In the house further consideration of the army appropriation bill took up most of the time. Eulogies upon the late Senator E. C. Walthall and Representalve W. F. Love, of Mississippi, were delivered.

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

Rear Admiral Dewey says in an interview he would not accept a nomination to the presidency and that he desired no political office.

Dispatches from China say that 2,000,000 Chinese peasants are threatened with starvation, owing to the Yellow river floods.

The Scandia, bearing American troops, arrived at Manila. Gen. Otis reports that insurgents who gained access to outskirts of the city were routed with a loss of 500 killed and wounded. American loss slight.

The rebel government has succeeded the regular Chinese authority over a vast area of Kuäng Tung and Kingsi provinces.

Foreign warships were said to have landed seamen in Manila to protect the foreign residents.

In the Spanish cortes Admiral Cervera stated that if the loss of the Spanish squadron was a crime it must be attributed to the government which sent him to the Antilles against his will.

The Spanish military commander in the Philippines, Gen. Rios, says the Americans will need 100,000 men to suppress the rebellion among the natives.

Dispatches say that Emperor Nicholas is ill, and that Imperial Grand Duke Michael is presiding over the government of Russia.

Advices from Gen. Otis announce the surrender of Cebu, capital of the island of the same name, to the United States naval forces.

LATER NEWS.

The bill for the reorganization of the army passed the United States senate.

Henry James, a traveling man from St. Paul, was held up and robbed of $620 by three women on the streets of Chicago. The women were afterwards arrested and identified.

Roland B. Molineaux, of Brooklyn, N. Y., was arrested, charged with the murder of Mrs. Katherine J. Adams, of New York. Death was caused by cyanide of mercury sent through the mails as bromo selzer to Harry Cornish, who in turn, unthinkingly, gave the bottle to Mrs. Adams.

The Spanish senate, by a vote of 130 to 7, approved of the motion of Marshal Martinez de Campos, signed by all the Spanish generals in the senate demanding a parliamentary inquiry into the conduct of the recent war.

The worst storm for ten years swept Wyoming the 27th, completely blocking all railway traffic.

A movement has been set on foot for an extensive reciprocity scheme between Newfoundland and the United States, including fish for the West Indies market, lumber, pulp, minerals, and other valuable products of American industry.

The government troops defeated the Nicaraguan rebels and General Reyes, the insurgent leader, fled for protection to the British consulate at Bluefields. He will surrender without further resistance, thus closing the revolution.

The Johnson steamer Moravia is over a month out from Falmouth, England for Boston, and much anxiety is felt on her account.

ANXIOUS FOR PEACE.

Report Says Fully 8,000 Filipinos Are Ready to Surrender.

Belief Expressed by the Spanish Commissioners That Aguinaldo Is Weakening—Casualties of the Campaign to Date.

Manila, Feb. 28.—Two Spanish commissioners, Senor Rosatio and Abogado, who were permitted to pass through our lines and confer with Aguinaldo with reference to the Spanish prisoners at Malolos, returned through our lines Monday morning, near Caloocan, with a sealed dispatch for the Spaniards. The commissioners said that Aguinaldo and Sanduiko were both at Malolos and inclined to pacific overtures. While the Filipinos are not yet prepared to surrender the Spanish prisoners, they will gladly release two Americans who have been held for six weeks, on the payment of $30, the value of food and clothing furnished to them.

Shortly afterwards, the rebels sent out a flag of truce borne by Commandant Sinforoso de la Cruz, and several hundred of the enemy left the Filipino lines crying "No quire!" "Mas Combate!" "Americanos Mucho Bueno!" The commandants said that fully 8,000 of his men had had enough, and were anxious to surrender.

Gratified at Washington.

Washington, Feb. 28. — Dispatches from Manila intimating that the insurgents contemplated a surrender have been received with satisfaction at the war department, where it has been feared the American troops would have some trouble in bringing the rebels to terms.

Asks for the Oregon.

"Manila, Feb. 24.—For political reasons, the Oregon should be sent here at once.
(Signed) "DEWEY."

The cabinet gave some attention to Dewey's cable message relative to the political importance of sending the Oregon at once to Manila. The conclusion reached was that too much importance should not be attached to it—that Dewey wants the big ship to influence the Filipinos through fear. Secretary Long said when asked for an explanation of the reference to political reasons in the dispatch: "I am sure that it has no international significance."

Its Back Is Broken.

Manila, Feb. 28.—The New York Journal correspondent cables:

"Maj. Gen. Otis has broken the back of the insurrection. One more general advance and the Tagalos will be scattered to the winds. The general in command has sent troops to Cebu, in furtherance of the broad plan of occupying the Visayas islands, detaching them from Aguinaldo's cause and localizing the war as much as possible to the island of Luzon. I was present at a parley with the enemy between the lines this morning. I saw women and children in the trenches with rifles in their hands. Some of the insurgent officers told me they hoped for peace. They said they had received messages from friends saying that an American commission was coming to treat with them, which shows that the anti-expansionists in Washington are simply encouraging the enemy. The commissioners who went to Malolos to treat for the release of the Spanish prisoners report that Aguinaldo wants money for the prisoners."

Casualties of the Campaign.

The casualties to date, by regiments, are as follows:

	Killed.	Wounded.
First California regiment	6	28
Washington regiment	14	59
Idaho regiment	6	29
Fourth cavalry	0	2

Says Iloilo Is Abandoned.

Madrid, Feb. 28.—Capt. Gen. Rios cables Gen. Correa, minister of war, that on Saturday Manila was entirely blocked on the land side and Gen. Otis called back the American troops in the Visayas islands, abandoning the city of Iloilo. The captains of the German warships disembarked their marines to protect the foreign residents. Capt. von Weise, military attache of the German embassy here, says that he does not expect a conflict between the fleets under command of Admirals Dewey and Diederichs.

Rebels Comparatively Quiet.

Manila, Feb. 28.—Except for an occasional volley and some individual firing by the rebels from the jungle near Caloocan along the river and in the vicinity of San Pedro Macati all was quiet along the entire line Sunday night.

In Manila absolute quiet prevails; the streets are deserted and the only sounds to be heard after seven o'clock in the evening are the tramp of the patrols and sentries and the occasional canter of the hoofs of an officer's horse.

Stars and Stripes Over Cuba.

Manila, Feb. 27.—Admiral Dewey and Gen. Otis on Saturday received word of the surrender of Cebu, capital of the island of the same name, to the United States naval forces. Formal possession of the city was taken by the gunboat Petrel, which was recently sent from this station for the purpose. No opposition was offered by the natives to the American move. A garrison force will at once be sent to the island by Gen. Otis, all public buildings being placed in the possession of the United States officials.

[Cebu is a city of about 35,000 inhabitants. The island is one of the most important in the Visayas group. Its area is 2,000 square miles and it has a population of more than 500,000. Although Cebu is just east of Negros and but a short distance from Panay, where the natives attempted to drive away the American forces under Gen. Miller, the insurrection never gained any strength on the island. Under the Spanish regime the capital was a city of considerable commercial and political importance.]

Col. Babcock Dead.

Chicago, Feb. 27.—Col. Amos C. Babcock, an intimate friend of Abraham Lincoln, and a prominent figure in the abolitionist movement in the early '50s, died Saturday. He was born in New York in 1828, and came to Illinois in 1846.

Big Street Railway Deal.

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 28.—The Commercial says: A stupendous business deal is nearly completed, involving $25,000,000 of capital. It is the sale of the entire street railroad system of Buffalo and a number of suburban lines.

PASSED THE SENATE.

After a Warm Contest Compromise Army Measure with Gorman Amendment Is Adopted.

Washington, Feb. 28.—After a contest that will be memorable in the history of the senate, the compromise army reorganization bill was passed Monday evening at 7:10. When the senate convened at 11 o'clock a. m., it seemed more than likely that the bill might not be passed during the day. Senator Gorman (Md.) insisted that his amendment providing that the army should not be increased permanently or beyond July 1, 1901, be incorporated in the measure. For several hours it appeared probable that his insistence at least would throw the bill over until to-day and perhaps defeat it. An agreement was reached finally, however, and Senator Gorman's amendment, in a slightly modified form, was accepted. The section covering the increase of the army reads as follows:

"That to meet the present exigencies of the military service the president is hereby authorized to maintain the regular army at a strength of not exceeding 65,000 enlisted men, to be distributed amongst the several branches of the service, according to the needs of each, and raise a force of not more than 35,000 volunteer infantry, as he may determine, from the country at large, under general law, or from the localities where their services may be required without regard to citizenship or educational qualifications, and to form the same into not more than 30 regiments organized as infantry regiments of war strength in the regular army.

"Provided, that such increase in the regular and volunteer force shall continue in service only during the necessity therefor, and not later than July 1, 1901."

Section one provides that the regular army "shall consist of three major generals, six brigadier generals, ten regiments of cavalry, seven regiments of artillery, 25 regiments of infantry." In the cavalry organization each regiment consists of 12 troops, organized into three squadrons of four troops each. The artillery regiments are fixed at 14 batteries, of which two may be organized as field artillery. The infantry regiments are fixed at 12 companies, organized into the three-battalion formation.

The senate amendment to the Hull-Hawley bill increasing the number of cadets to the extent of 100 is retained.

As soon as practicable the officers and men of the volunteer army not authorized in the bill shall be mustered out, provided that enlisted men of volunteers may be transferred to and enlisted in such of the new organizations as may be below the maximum authorized strength. Provision is made that the act is not to be construed to cause the discharge of any commissioned officer now in the service.

Other sections of the bill refer mainly to minor details.

MILLS RAISE WAGES.

Cotton Manufacturers Agree to an Advance, Which Brings Joy to 30,000 Operatives.

Fall River, Mass., Feb. 28.—The conference of the representatives of the cotton manufacturers and the labor unions on Monday resulted in the manufacturers agreeing to advance wages on April 3 at the rate of 12½ per cent. This decision carries with it joyful tidings, not only to the 30,000 mill operatives of this city, but to 125,000 more of their fellow-workers throughout New England. The decision Monday was a signal victory for the operatives, and was the culmination of a brief but sharp campaign.

New Bedford, Mass., Feb. 28.—It is generally understood that the local committee on manufactures will follow the lead of the Fall River in granting a restoration of wages to the textile operatives.

Providence, R. I., Feb. 28.—The Rhode Island cotton manufacturers are likely to follow the example of the cotton mill owners in Fall River and restore the 1898 schedule of wages.

BULGARIA SAFE IN PORT.

Ponta Delgada, Azores, Feb. 25.—The Hamburg-American liner Bulgaria, Capt. Schmidt, from New York on January 28, for Hamburg, which the British tank steamer Weehawken reported in distress 800 miles from the Azores islands, has entered this port. All on board the Bulgaria are in good health.

The Bulgaria, it appears, stopped 11 days, during which she was engaged in repairing her machinery and rudder. She lost one man durinig the operation.

During the storms and in working the cargo, etc., the passengers and crew of the Bulgaria sustained many injuries, a number of arms and legs being broken.

Fire in Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 25.—The five-story building in Fourth street, near First avenue, owned and occupied by the Tribune Publishing company, which issues evening, morning and Sunday editions, was destroyed by fire Friday night. Nothing was saved; mailing lists, files, account books, contracts and all the presses, type and linotype machines were destroyed. The building immediately adjoining the Tribune on the west and occupied by George Benz & Sons as a wholesale liquor store was almost totally destroyed. The loss will be $25,000. The Tribune company's loss is $100,000.

Loubet Favors a Dreyfusard.

London, Feb. 28.—A dispatch from Paris to a newspaper here says its correspondent hears President Loubet has already signed a decree removing Gen. Zurlinden from the post of military governor of Paris and appointing Gen. Faure Biget, commander of the Sixteenth army corps, to succeed him. The latter has been a consistent upholder of the innocence of Dreyfus. There is no confirmation of this statement from other sources.

Will Admit American Fruit.

Berlin, Feb. 28.—The officials of the German foreign office have notified the United States embassy that the government will henceforth admit American oranges, lemons and raisins without examination, and also that all American fresh and dried fruit will be allowed to pass in bond through Germany without being examined. The decisions are based on the favorable reports of the German experts sent to America.

Schley Will Be Protected.

Washington, Feb. 25.—In answer to an inquiry Secretary Long said that he had not thought of ordering a court of inquiry into the merits of the Sampson-Schley controversy, nor did he contemplate allowing Schley to be forced out of the service through any technicality, such as the failure of the senate to confirm his nomination to be rear admiral. The department in that case would see to it that he was protected.

IRELAND REPLIES.

The American Prelate Writes to the Pope Regarding His Recent Encyclical.

Rome, Feb. 25.—The Observatore Romano publishes the text of a letter from Archbishop Ireland to the pope, regarding the pontiff's letter to Cardinal Gibbons on "Americanism." The archbishop thanks the pope for this proof of his esteem and love for American Catholics, and says that now that the pope has shed light upon the situation, misunderstanding will cease, "for we are now able to determine the fault which some desire to conceal under the name of Americanism, and define true Americanism, such as understood by Americans." Continuing, the archbishop says among other things:

"With all the energy of my soul, I repudiate all the opinions the apostolic letter repudiates and condemns, those false and dangerous opinions whereto, as his holiness in brief says, certain people give the name of Americanisms. I repudiate and condemn them categorically, like his holiness, with all the more promptitude and joy, inasmuch as my Catholic faith and comprehension of the teachings and practices of the church have never permitted me to entertain such extravagances. The whole episcopate of the United States, in their own name and in the name of their flocks, are ready to repudiate and condemn them. We cannot but be indignant that such wrong is done us, our bishops, our faithful and our nation, as to designate by the name of Americanism such errors and extravagances."

"Most holy father, they are enemies of the church in America and false interpreters of the faith who imagine there exists or who desire to establish in the United States a church differing a single iota from the holy universal church, recognized by other nations as the only church Rome itself recognizes or can recognize as the infallible guardian of the revelation of Jesus Christ."

ARMY BEEF.

Enlisted Men Give Interesting Testimony Before the Court of Inquiry at Washington.

Washington, Feb. 28.—At the meeting of the court of inquiry Monday some exceedingly interesting testimony was given as to the bad effect of the canned beef rations, because it came from enlisted men. Noncommissioned officers were placed on the stand and testified that the canned roast beef made the men sick almost as soon as they had eaten it. They also presented a serious indictment against the commissary department inasmuch as they showed that the rations of coffee, sugar, salt, pepper, vinegar, candles, and other supplies were almost uniformly short.

Commissioner Gen. Eagan himself said that it was not expected the men could eat canned roast beef without pepper and salt, and now veteran noncommissioned officers testify that for days together they did not have any of these important condiments. The general tenor of the testimony Monday, as heretofore, was that on the whole the refrigerated beef was fairly good, while the canned roast beef was almost uniformly bad.

GOMEZ ENTERS HAVANA.

Havana, Feb. 25.—Gen. Maximo Gomez, the Cuban commander in chief, entered Havana Friday afternoon, escorted by Gen. Ludlow and his staff and troop I, of the Seventh United States cavalry. He marched at the head of 2,000 armed Cuban horsemen and footmen. The population of the city was wild with enthusiasm, throwing themselves in front of the general's horse, impeding its progress, and pelting him with flowers. The general reviewed the troops at the palace.

Following the procession were many private carriages, filled with women representing the best society, some allegorically dressed and others waving flags. The Cuban bands played the Cuban national hymn, varying this with "Dixie," "The Star Spangled Banner," "The Stars and Stripes Forever," and popular American marches. There were many allegorical floats expressing the friendship between Cuba and the United States. No fewer than 25,000 people were in line, requiring three hours to pass a given point.

Against Polygamists.

Washington, Feb. 28.—A favorable report on the proposed constitutional amendment prohibiting polygamists from being elected to congress was made in the house Monday by Representative Capron, of Rhode Island, in behalf of the committee on election of president and vice president. It refers to the case of Representative-elect Brigham H. Roberts, of Utah, as one of the causes for renewing attention to the subject. After reviewing this case, the report states that its determination rests with the next congress. On the general subject, however, it urges an amendment to the constitution.

Molineux Held for Murder.

New York, Feb. 28.—The jury in the Adams poison cases came in with its verdict at 8:43 p. m. Monday. It was as follows: "We find that the said Katherine J. Adams came to her death on December 28, 1898, in 61 West Eigaty-sixth street, by poison by mercuric cyanide, administered by Harry S. Cornish, to whom said poison had been sent in a bottle of bromo seltzer by Roland B. Molineux." The coroner immediately issued a warrant for the arrest of Molineux, and the latter was at once arraigned before him. He was committed to the Tombs without bail.

Judgeship for Day.

Washington, Feb. 27. — William R. Day, of Canton, O., late secretary of state, was nominated by President McKinley Saturday for United States circuit judge for the Sixth judicial circuit. This is a new circuit, composed of parts of Ohio, Michigan, Kentucky and Tennessee, and Mr. Day will be its first judge.

Col. Conger Dead.

Des Moines, Ia., Feb. 27.—Col. A. L. Conger died here Saturday night from a stroke of paraylsis. He came here from Akron, O. For eight years he served on the republican national committee, and served several terms as a member of congress. He was 70 years old.

Rations for Cuban Troops.

Havana, Feb. 28.—The military authorities have issued 2,000 rations to the Cuban troops who entered Havana with Gen. Gomez. These troops will be given an open-air banquet next Sunday by the city of Havana.

"Durability is Better Than Show."

The wealth of the multi-millionaires is not equal to good health. Riches without health are a curse, and yet the rich, the middle classes and the poor alike have, in Hood's Sarsaparilla, a valuable assistant in getting and maintaining perfect health. It never disappoints.

Scrofula—"Three years ago our son, now eleven, had a serious case of scrofula and erysipelas with dreadful sores, discharging and itching constantly. He could not walk. Several physicians did not help for sixteen months. Three months' treatment with Hood's Sarsaparilla made him perfectly well. We are glad to tell others of it." MRS. DAVID LAIRD, Ottawa, Kansas.

Nausea—"Vomiting spells, dizziness and prostration troubled me for years. Had neuralgia, grew weak and could not sleep. My age was against me, but Hood's Sarsaparilla cured me thoroughly. My weight increased from 125 to 143 pounds. I am the mother of nine children. Never felt so well and strong since I was married as I do now." MRS. M. A. WATERS, 1529 33d St., Washington, D. C.

Eczema—"We had to tie the hands of our two year old son on account of eczema on face and limbs. No medicine even helped until we used Hood's Sarsaparilla, which soon cured." MRS. A. VAN WYCK, 123 Montgomery Street, Paterson, N. J.

COMFORTING WORDS TO WOMEN.

The Surgical Chair and its Tortures May be Avoided by Women Who Heed Mrs. Pinkham's Advice.

Woman's modesty is natural; it is charming.

To many women a full statement of their troubles to a male physician is almost impossible. The whole truth may be told to Mrs. Pinkham because she is a woman, and her advice is freely offered to all women sufferers.

Mrs. O. E. Ladd, of 19th and N Sts., Galveston, Texas, whose letter is printed below, was completely discouraged when she first wrote to Mrs. Pinkham. Here is what she says:

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—I wrote to you some time ago, telling you of my ills, but now I write to thank you for the good your remedies have done me. I have used two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, three packages of Sanative Wash, and one box of Liver Pills, and to-day I call myself a well woman. I suffered with backache, constant headache, whites, sick stomach, no appetite, could not sleep, and was very nervous. At time of menstruation was in terrible pain. Your medicine is worth its weight in gold. I never can say enough in praise of it. I have recommended it to many friends. If only all suffering women would try it, there would be more happy homes and healthy women. I thank you for the change your medicine has made in me.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Mrs. Pinkham's advice, have saved thousands of women from hospital operations.

The lives of women are hard; whether at home with a ceaseless round of domestic duties or working at some regular employment, their daily tasks make constant war on health. If all women understood themselves fully and knew how exactly and soothingly Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound acts on the female organs, there would be less suffering.

AN EXCELLENT COMBINATION.

Successful Enterprise Based on Merit —The Importance of Informing the Public of the Value of an Article Through the Leading Newspapers.

The few remedies which have attained to world-wide fame, as truly beneficial in effect and giving satisfaction to millions of people everywhere, are the products of the knowledge of the most eminent physicians, and presented in the form most acceptable to the human system by the skill of the world's great chemists; and one of the most successful examples is the Syrup of Figs manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. Unlike a host of imitations and cheap substitutes, Syrup of Figs is permanently beneficial in its effects, and therefore lives and promotes good health, while inferior preparations are being cast aside and forgotten. In olden times if a remedy gave temporary relief to individuals here and there, it was thought good; but now-a-days a laxative remedy must give satisfaction to all. If you have never used Syrup of Figs, give it a trial, and you will be pleased with it, and will recommend it to your friends or to any who suffer from constipation, or from over-feeding, or from colds, headaches, biliousness, or other ills resulting from an inactive condition of the kidney, liver and bowels.

In the process of manufacturing the pleasant family laxative made by the California Fig Syrup Co., and named Syrup of Figs, figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste; but the medicinal properties of the remedy are obtained from an excellent combination of plants known to be medicinally laxative and to act most beneficially. As the true and original remedy, named Syrup of Figs, is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, a knowledge of that fact will assist in avoiding the worthless imitations manufactured by other parties. The Company has selected for years past the leading publications of the United States through which to inform the public of the merits of its remedy, and among them this paper is included, as will be seen by reference to its advertising columns.

LEGISLATIVE GOSSIP

Our Special Correspondent Tells of the Solons' Doings.

The Work of Introducing Bills, Both Public and Private Goes Merrily On. As Yet but Few Measures Have Received Final Action.

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 22.—The expected happened in the Senate yesterday, and the bill appropriating $19,975 for the sugar beet bounty was passed over the Governor's veto by a vote of 46 to 16, 42 being enough to override the veto. As the House had previously passed the bill over the veto, it is now a law, the Governor's objections notwithstanding. Every Senator was in his seat, save one, who was detained by illness, and the vote was strictly a party one, with two exceptions, every Democrat voting to sustain the veto and every Republican voting to pass the bill. Senator Johnson (Dem.) of St. Peter, voted with the Republicans, explaining that he was in favor of the repeal of the bounty law, but that the sum named in this bill had been earned under the present law and it was a just obligation of the state. He hoped this bounty and all other bounties would be wiped out so far as the future is concerned. Senator McNamee (Dem.) of St. Paul, voted for the bill with a similar explanation. A number of the Democrats who voted to sustain the Governor for party reasons, stated privately that they would have voted for the bill if their votes had been necessary to pass it. Senator Wilson (Rep.) of Minneapolis, thought the Governor was wrong in that, while he admitted this claim was just, he demanded some other legislation as a condition of approving the appropriation in the pending bill. The call of the Senate to secure a full attendance of Senators and the explanation of votes occupied so much time that when the bill had passed, the Senate immediately adjourned until Thursday, today being Washington's Birthday and a legal holiday.

The point of agitation in the House was the bill amending the probate code in such a manner that the wife's dower interest in the real estate of her deceased husband can be sold to meet the indebtedness of the estate without her consent. Mr. Foss violently opposed the amendment and so far succeeded that the bill was referred back to the committee of the whole for amendment.

The much agitated question of department stores was sprung by Representative Nelson, who introduced a bill forbidding their existence. Another bill offered regulates bicycle riding.

The House spent the afternoon in committee of the whole and adjourned until Thursday.

St. Paul, Feb. 24.—The labor question had its day in court in the senate yesterday. One bill requiring the payment of all employes every two weeks was killed. The second bill provided that eight hours should constitute a day's work for municipal employes and for parties engaged in manufacturing materials for municipalities. Several of the prominent lawyers took the ground that it would be unconstitutional unless it made an eight hour day for every one, including the farmer, but the lawyers could only muster sixteen in support of the constitution, while twenty-four favored the bill and the bill accordingly went on general orders. Its final passage, however, is doubtful.

There was a good deal of a controversy relative to giving a clerkship on a committee to a newspaper man. Nearly every daily newspaper reporter in both houses has secured a clerkship of some description. Never before has the reporter's lines fallen in such pleasant places. The finance committee recommended that this lone, last reporter be turned down and after a vigorous debate the committee was sustained though the majority of the senate favored the reporter. It takes three-fourths, however, to overrule the committee, but another effort is to be made and in the end the reporter will doubtless be taken care of.

Among the bills introduced was one offering a bounty of $1 per ton for sugar beets. This is to be in lieu of 1 cent per pound bounty for the sugar produced.

There was but little more than a quorum present in the house and a good many measures were laid aside to await the arrival of their friends. Nine bills were introduced, one of them requiring railroad trains to stop at county seats "Long enough to allow passengers to get on and off with safety." Trains are already required to stop at county seats and this bill seems to be designed to bring them to a full pause.

Mr. Jacobson succeeded in killing the bill allowing Dr. Schoch $225 for services on the state medical board. Two years ago the doctor's associates were allowed similar compensation and Mr. Jacobson supported it but he said to-day that he had since ascertained that the claims were illegal and he carried the house with him in that view.

Both houses held afternoon sessions, but so many members were absent visiting state institutions that there was a bare quorum present in either body and only unimportant routine business was considered.

St. Paul, Feb. 25.—For several days the senate judiciary committee has had on its hands the Jacobson bill providing that the evidence taken in a hearing before the railroad and warehouse commission shall be sufficient and sole grounds for a decision in the case by the district court, and that upon the introduction of new evidence before the court the case must be referred back to the commission. The bill is designed to give commission hearings a les farcical nature, and to compel railroads to appear at such hearings.

Senator Miller's bill is exactly the same thing and was passed yesterday after a vain attempt on the part of the judiciary committee to get hold of it before the senate voted on it.

Eight thousand acres of land and over belonging to private parties still lie within the boundaries of the Itasca state park at the source of the Mississippi. That this tract, donated to the state of Minnesota by the government must be preserved in its natural beauty for the benefit of this and future generations, has been brought home to the committee on public parks of the house, in the shape of a bill by Mr. Deming, which is designated as H. F. No. 321.

Speaker Dare was given an ovation yesterday morning when he again assumed the gavel, after a week's absence on account of illness. He is somewhat more pale and thin than he was, but is fully recovered and says he is glad to be able to resume his place. When he mounted the rostrum and rapped the house to order, the members applauded him to the echo, and he bowed his grateful acknowledgment of the honor.

The Arkansas senate has defeated the proposed constitutional amendment, placing senators and representatives on a salary.

A bill has been introduced in the Minnesota legislature calling for the appointment of a state temperance commissioner and deputies.

Mexico and the United States have agreed upon a new extradition treaty. It will permit of the return of criminals now in either country.

A bill has been introduced in the Texas house to amend the criminal laws so as to increase the penalty for burglary at night.

THE EXCELLENCE OF SYRUP OF FIGS

is due not only to the originality and simplicity of the combination, but also to the care and skill with which it is manufactured by scientific processes known to the California Fig Syrup Co. only, and we wish to impress upon all the importance of purchasing the true and original remedy. As the genuine Syrup of Figs is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, a knowledge of that fact will assist one in avoiding the worthless imitations manufactured by other parties. The high standing of the California Fig Syrup Co. with the medical profession, and the satisfaction which the genuine Syrup of Figs has given to millions of families, makes the name of the Company a guaranty of the excellence of its remedy. It is far in advance of all other laxatives, as it acts on the kidneys, liver and bowels without irritating or weakening them, and it does not gripe nor nauseate. In order to get its beneficial effects, please remember the name of the Company—

The "Smart Aleck" Candidate Spoils His Chances by Being Too Foremost.

"Do you happen to know why the rural vote went back on him when he ran for congress?" asked one leading Michigan politician of another.

"Never gave the matter any study."

"Nor did I. Just happened to learn a few facts. He went to a big meeting of horticulturists several years ago; long before he thought of running for office. You know what a smart 'Aleck' he is. After what was really a thoughtful and well-considered discussion, he obtained permission to ask some questions, and started off with this one: "Where do literary laurels grow?' There was a laugh, and the thing would have been remembered as a joke had he not persisted.

"'Who cultivates the flowers of rhetoric?' was his next conundrum, and then he wanted to know if the buds of genius could be forced and if they could survive a hard winter.

CURED WITHOUT MEDICINE.

The Man with Rheumatism Comes in Contact with the Hold-Up Man.

"Yes," said the man in the macintosh, lighting another cigar, "it was one of the most remarkable cases I ever knew. Rheumatism 25 years—both shoulders—had to be fed like a little child. Arms had hung helpless ever since I knew him—no use of them whatever."

"And he was cured without medicine?" asked the man who had his foot on the table.

"Yes."

"Or liniments?" inquired the man with the slouch hat.

"Or liniments."

"And recovered the use of his arms in one moment?" observed the man with the goggles on.

"Yes."

"I've heard of such things," remarked the man in the inverness. "It was under circumstances of strong mental excitement, wasn't it?"

"Yes."

"I thought so. He was induced to believe he could be cured if only he made the effort, wasn't he?"

"I suppose so. Something or other of that nature."

"Then there's nothing strange about it. The history of medical practice is full of such cases. It was only an instance of what they call faith cure."

"No," said the man in the macintosh, reflectively, "you could hardly call it that. The cure was effected by a man with a revolver, who met him on a lonely road and said:

His Peculiar View.

"Doesn't it sometimes make you gloomy to hear the wind howling about on a wild night?"

"No," answered the man with a careworn look. "I rather like to hear it. The wind doesn't come up and ring your doorbell and ask how about that bill, or tell you you'll get arrested if you don't tag your dog. It doesn't sing 'I won't go home till morning' away off the key and disgrace the neighborhood. It howls because it enjoys it. But it never says anything to hurt anybody's feelings. I sometimes honestly wish that there was more wind in this life and less people."—Washington Star.

Wild Rush of Diamond Miners.

A wild rush of excited miners is reported at Nullagine, Western Australia, where diamonds have been discovered in large quantities, and it is feared that many will lose their lives in the mad struggle for riches. In this country the rush for gain is causing many other men to break down in health and strength. Nervousness, sleeplessness, loss of flesh and appetite and general debility are the common symptoms. GOVERNOR OF OREGON

Uses Pe-ru-na For Colds in His Family and Grip.

CAPITOL BUILDING, SALEM, OREGON.

A Letter From the Executive Office of Oregon.

Pe-ru-na is known from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Letters of congratulation and commendation testifying to the merits of Pe-ru-na as a catarrh remedy are pouring in from every state in the Union. Dr. Hartman is receiving hundreds of such letters daily. All classes write these letters, from the highest to the lowest.

The outdoor laborer, the indoor artisan, the clerk, the editor, the statesman, the preacher—all agree that Pe-ru-na is the catarrh remedy of the age. The stage and rostrum, recognizing catarrh as their greatest enemy, are especially enthusiastic in their praise and testimony.

Any man who wishes perfect health must be entirely free from catarrh. Catarrh is well-nigh universal; almost omnipresent. Pe-ru-na is the only absolute safeguard known. A cold is the beginning of catarrh. To prevent colds, to cure colds, is to cheat catarrh out of its victims. Pe-ru-na not only cures catarrh, but prevents. Every household should be supplied with this great remedy for coughs, colds and so forth.

The Governor of Oregon is an ardent admirer of Pe-ru-na. He keeps it continually in the house. In a recent letter to Dr. Hartman he says:

State of Oregon, Executive Department, Salem, May 9, 1898.

The Pe-ru-na Medicine Co., Columbus, O.:

Dear Sirs—I have had occasion to use your Pe-ru-na medicine in my family for colds, and it proved to be an excellent remedy. I have not had occasion to use it for other ailments.

Yours very truly,

W. M. Lord.

It will be noticed that the Governor says he has not had occasion to use Pe-ru-na for other ailments. The reason for this is, most other ailments begin with a cold. Using Pe-ru-na to promptly cure colds, he protects his family against other ailments. This is exactly what every other family in the United States should do. Keep Pe-ru-na in the house. Use it for coughs, colds, la grippe, and other climatic affections of winter, and there will be no other ailments in the house. Such families should provide themselves with a copy of Dr. Hartman's free book, entitled "Winter Catarrh." Address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio.

ALABASTINE

WHAT ALABASTINE IS.

Alabastine is the original and only durable wall coating on the market. It is entirely different from all kalsomine preparations. Alabastine is made ready for use in white or twelve beautiful tints by the addition of cold water. It is put up in dry powdered form, in five-pound packages, with full directions on every package. It takes the place of scaling kalsomines, wall paper and paint for walls. Alabastine can be used on plaster, brick, wood or canvas, and a child can brush it on.

WHAT "KALSOMINES" ARE.

Kalsomines are cheap and temporary preparations, manufactured from whiting, chalks, clays, etc. They are stuck on the walls with decaying animal glue. Alabastine is not a kalsomine. It is a rock-base cement, which sets, and it hardens with age. It can be re-coated and re-decorated without having to wash and scrape off its old coats. Beware of a large four-pound package of light kalsomine, sold to dealers for four pounds and offered to customers as a five-pound package.

CHURCHES AND SCHOOLHOUSES.

The interior walls of churches, schoolhouses and all public halls should never be coated with anything but the durable and pure Alabastine. So evident has this fact become, that hundreds of tons are used annually for this work. The genuine Alabastine does not rub or scale off. It is cleanly during the long period of its usefulness. Every owner of a building should use it. Ask your paint dealer or druggist for card of tints, and write for free copy of our paper, Alabastine Era, to Alabastine Co., Grand Rapids, Mich.

REJECT THE "JUST AS GOOD."

The dealer who tells you that he can sell you the "same thing" as Alabastine or "something just as good," either is not posted or is trying to deceive you. In offering something he has bought cheap and is trying to sell on Alabastine's demands, he may not realize the danger to himself as well as to you. Beware of all new substitutes. Dealers risk a suit for damages by selling and consumers by using an infringement. Alabastine Co. own the right to make and sell wall coatings adapted to mix with cold water.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, March 3, 1899.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Fairday, Saturday, March 11

—Several Delanoites visited the concert at Rockford, Wednesday evening.

—If you want to know all about the affairs in Manila come around and read our copy of "La Independencia".

—A call has been posted for a caucus for the voters of the town of Franklin for Saturday afternoon, at City Hall Feb. 11, at 1 o'clock.

—Eggs were high during 1st week but have returned to 15cts a doz., and the Eagle hasn't made her "tariff is a tax" argument either.

—Electrician Muckey is proving himself a genius every day. He now has an alarm bell to notify him when the tank, away in the other end of town from the power house, is full of water.

—Fritz Moy, of Winsted has a bad case of gout on account of which three toes have been amputated and the trouble is growing worse. His case has been pronounce hopeless.—Howard Lake Herald.

—The Ladie's Aid of the M. E. church will hold a dime social in the City Hall, Friday eve., March 3rd, and a short programme will be rendered, and a lunch will be served. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

—The probabilities are that no matter who the incoming village officers are the laws will be better observed. If the officers don't look after things about right the villagers themselves will complain of the officers and in that way laws will be observed.

—"The Minnesota Issue" published by the anti saloon league, under supervision of Richard H. Battey, who gave a couple of lectures to our citizens a couple of years ago is received this week. It is a bright paper and calculated to help the cause of temperance considerably.

—The new dynamoes continue to fail to furnish as nice a light to read by as the old ones did. Some have already resorted to the kerosene lamp, hoping that the electric outfit will soon be furnished with machinery up to what was thought inefficient when it was swapped for new.

—Politics are boiling already, even in Delano. On Tuesday an exransionist offered to bet $5 that Bryan would not be the next nominee of the Democratic party for President. His offer was snapped up immediately. There was considerably more "snapping" done also. Politics is a "bilin".

—When we see sled load after sled load of wood, two cords on a load rounded up as high as will stay on and nothing but two small stakes to keep it from pitching with the driver onto the horses heels and possibly killing the man, we can't help thinking it is too risky altogether for comfort or safety.

—Last week several young farmers were brought into court for a fight with another farmer. These men are good working men at home, but Delano drinks get them mixed up. Let the drinks alone and be what you might, not what any man who drinks too much must. You will be better off for money, health and respectibility if you don't drink than if you take too much.

—The large store room beneath the I. O. O. F's hall is to be made over into a hall. The walls are to be ceiled; the ceiling is to be arched and a new floor laid. The fact developed a few evenings since, that two parties can be held in town the same evening and both enjoy themselves, probably led up to the improvements being made, as the City Hall is the only suitable hall for public amusements now in town.

—I. Gutzwiller took a tumble Monday as Horace Mann was driving over to Rockford station with him. The road was badly drifted and Mr. G. being the heaviest when the cutter struck a sideling place, the center of gravity changed too quickly for him and he tumbled out into a snow bank. He righted himself and resumed his journey, reaching the station in time to wait nearly an hour for a late train to Buffalo.

—We are in receipt this morning of a bundle of papers printed at Manila. Some are in English and some in the language of that country. Among them is the American which bears the motto "Equal rights for all", and which contains an editorial concerning their suspension by military order recently for publishing that the Germans in Manila were in open sympathy with the insurgent cause, etc., etc.". It says: "We shall endeavor to conduct it so as to give satisfaction to the authorities."

—The Delano Cemetery Association held a called meeting Tuesday evening. The committee on recording platt, reported that the County Attorney who is engaged on the work thought best to have a new platt, a copy of the old one which is in a sadly dilapidated condition. The members agreed to the proposition. The prospects are that the work will now soon be completed. It is very necessary to have this matter finished as all business is at a stand still with the Association until it is, as no deeds can be given until the plat is filed with the Register of Deeds.

ADVERTISE and SUBSCRIBE.

—Last fair day we noticed the most humane outfit leaving town for the cities we have yet seen. One man drove a sled, several small calves covered with horse blankets stood in the box, three cows were comfortably tied to the rig and one man walked behind to keep things in order. The day was cold but things were comfortable under the circumstances. Kind hearted people had rather sell their stock to such men for something less than to take a few cents more and see their animal friends driven and whipped, and dragged out of town as some of the patrons of our fairs do them. There is no excuse for the cruelty exercised by some. A prevention of cruelty to animals society would find lots of work here some Fair Days. Let's have one. Who will move in the matter?

—Some of our citizens are invariably led to vote against as good men as our town affords for village officers, at nearly every election, for fear they will enforce the laws concerning saloons. This is a wrong idea, and injures their business more than it would to put the best men in places of honor and trust and obey the laws cheerfully. The state law regulates the liquor traffic and officers are sworn in to discharge their duties, enforcing the laws. If the officers don't do their duty any citizen can complain and they are liable to loose their offices. If a man or a set of men desire, strongly enough, to enforce the laws they can do it. Perhaps the quickest way to arouse a lively public sentiment is to allow all the saloon keepers in town to occupy the village offices. But experience is apt to be a dear teacher.

Personal.

Mrs. Laura Price, of Minneapolis, is stopping for awhile with her mother, Mrs. Louis Kespohl who has been sick.

Dr. Catlin and I. Gutzwiller Jr., of Delano, transacted business at Buffalo, Monday.

S. D. Sturman is now occupying C. H. Green's N. Third Street residence.

Don Ames, of Rockford, drover to Delano yesterday.

Rev. Sava who was recently reported as going to leave Delano informs us he it to stay.

Grace O'Hair and Guy Murphy studeuts at Minneapolis, visited their homes this week.

Jake Kuehenmeister and daughter, of Waverly, visited his brother-in-law Lawrence Knooth and family, Thursday.

Hair Wanted.

Cut or combings wanted at once, to fill orders, at Mrs. Jones', 2nd street.

County Cullings.

Attorney Latham is to argue soon before Judge Giddings the propriety of allowing Joe Boxell to be released on bail.

Editor Carlson of the Cokato Enterprise has been sick for a couple of weeks. We are glad to note his recovery.

The Eagle threatens to sue the county for five dollars on printing bill cut down. County commissioners some times assume considerable authority.

Mrs. G. M. Daugherty who has been ill for a month, we learn from the Howard Lake Herald is recovering. Her sister, Mrs. T. W. Keithley has returned home to Montivedio.

The Herald says Judge Morris has been appointed on a committee to investigate plans for reform currency, and claims he knows a heap about it. Of course he has had Mr. Towne for an instructor.

Senator Chilton is working on some good roads law. That's right Senator, but a law requiring labor in roads when they are obstructed by snow drifts, would be a bigger feather in your cap just at present.

Another opportunity for Wright county's best peace officers in the state of Minnesota. The Waverly Tribune says some one tried to burn the house occupied by Louis Labo and family. Arson is a wicked crime.

At the county Treasurer's office we learn that while traveling over the county, the tax gatherers collected about $18,000, making about $20,000, and that the county now owes but $2,000 bonds on the Court House, one of which is to be paid next summer. Our county finances appear to be in fine shape, and county orders worth 100 cents on the dolar.

Editor French seems to think it necessary to climb onto the saloon band wagon in order to become a "reformer" in politics. You'r off there Mr. French. The last democratic banquets we have attended were notable for the absence of "drinks" other than water and coffee. It is not necessary now, if it ever was, in order to be a good democrat to drink. Perhaps Mr. F's coachers are not training him in the way he should go.

Several Wright county villages are to vote for or against saloon license at the election on the 14th. It is plain to everybody and the plainest to those who indulge, that if they let liquor alone, they would be worth more money, enjoy better health, and have much more happiness at home. Will you continue to place the temptation in the way of YOUR boy, for a few dollars revenue for village officers to fritter away?

The Annandale Advocate has some quite clear ideas concering the war tax. It intimates, unconsciously perhaps, while going for the GAZETTE, that the war debt is similar to a mortgage, and it is necessary to have a war tax until the debt is paid.

The Advocate also says in regard to the news from Manila, where we are told that Filipinos are "mowed down like grass" etc. etc. that we read such stuff from the same papers that delight in "crime of '73," "corporation robbers," "Wall street" etc. Of course a paper that favors liberty of the people, must fight the enemies of liberty all along the line. By the way, Advocate, don't you honestly think the same gang responsible for all these crimes?

County Commissioner's Meeting.

County commissioners met Feb. 22.

Petitions of C. E. Oakley, A. A. Clark, John F. Neuman and J. M. Peterson asking abatement of taxes were recommended to State Auditor.

Resolved to release bondsmen of Elof Hoernberg by their paying court expenses.

A long list of claims were allowed.

Otsego quarantine claim rejected.

Claim of Thomas A. Remmington rejected.

Claims of A. W. Praught, agent for witnesses States vs Adams, and of Anna Dolbar same case laid over till next meeting.

Adjourned till special session, March 27, 1899.

Monday at the County Seat.

Things at the County Seat on Monday were much as they are in most country villages in mid winter, in Minnesota. The newly fallen snow was being taken advantage of by farmers, and wood, logs, grain and stock were coming into market perhaps a little more lively than on the poor bare roads we have been having. Eggs seemed most in demand, at 26cts per doz.

Editor Charles Warner of the Aitkin Age, I. Gutzwiller, Jr., of the Eagle, and ye humble servant, of the GAZETTE were visitors on business.

Landlord John Elsenpeter was just getting home from Minneapolis.

John Shattar informed us he would again become landlord of his old stand, the American House Friday, this week.

Landlord Frank Gorman, of the Park House, was all smiles and seemed to be enjoying his share of prosperity.

Dr. Cady was quietly recovering from the Grippe, while Dr. Shannon was figuring over that parsonage debt.

Assistant Post Master Campbell K. Dodd, who has virtually been P. M. for 16 years died of haemorrhage this morning.

S. M. Ash, left in answer to a telegram that his father was dead, for Southern Wisconsin, to attend the funeral.

Politics don't appear to ebulate much on the surface, but they are boiling deep down. Bryan men are as firm in the faith as even Mr. Bryan himself. They have not surrendered their principles, nor their hope of seeing their chosen leader in the Presidential chair to help administer the laws of the country according to his interpretation of them. Leading Republicans expressed themselves as not in harmony with the wholesale slaughter of American soldiers and Filipinos in Manila. Expansion, unless it can be brought about in a different way, is rapidly loosing ground among intelligent and humane people everywhere.

The annulling, by the Legislature, of the special law fixing the salaries of the County Treasurer of this county at $1,500 and allowing him to receive $2,000 and pay his own expenses, and clerk hire, don't seem to suit A. Y. Eaton, most everybody else appeared to think that men ought to have enough to live on, even if they do work for the county. Treasurer Hanaford claims that the new law allowing half the taxes to be paid in the spring and half in the fall is becoming popular; even Tom Lowey, we are told, took advantage of it, and more work has to be done than before and help has to be hired, and the Treasurer should have more. He claims the raise don't amount to more than about $300 really, to him.

The property on which Austin Knight's old livery barn stands has been sold and it is reported that the Minneapolis Brewing Company will erect a fine brick building there in the spring.

Pidgeon & Heath's abstract office appeared to be quite a busy place.

Jacob Ruff's sausage mill was, as usual, in motion.

Uncle Joe Van Eman is up and about again. The grippe uses him hard, but he has come out on top several times. He is tough; he used to live in Delano.

MAPLE PLAIN.

We have had another first class blizzard imported from the North Pole with the freight prepaid. Such weather makes a heavy draw on the wood pile and coal bin, also feed for stock disappears rapidly.

The snow is piled up in every direction, and the roads were almost impassable just after the storm.

The meetings still continue at M. E. church, Armstrong but Rev. Hodgson, thinks he will close them this week.

There has been quite an interest manifested in the meetings.

Sherly Drake, of Long Lake, was at home over Sunday.

There will be a town caucus at the Town Hall, Armstrong, on Wednesday evening, March 8th, at early candle light. The campaign will be on expansion and protection.

A good many Independence people attended Washington birthday meeting at Delano last Wednesday, and called it a success.

Your correspondent, in company with lawyer Lindsley, of Delano, went to Minneapolis last Monday morning on business before one of the Sanhedrims of Hennepin county. M. Lindsley being my counsel brought me back every whit whole.

Eggs has formed a trust; gone out of sight. Last Saturday they were taking at Maple Plain 25 cents per doz. It seems prosperity is coming by way of the hen coop.

Last Monday morning Minneapolis was piled full of snow, and the [illegible] une building looked like an ice [illegible] and shoveling snow seemed to be the only industry in sight.

Some seem to think the present war between Spain and the United States has had a good deal to do with healing the breach between the North and South, but I think it more imaginary than anything else. A young man, a friend of mine that belongs to the 15th Minesota, now encamped at Augusta, Georgia, by the side of a Maryland regiment says the difference the citizens make of the two regiments is quite perceptible. Their love seems to favor the Maryland regiment. Blood is a purefier they say.

"And almost all things are by the law purged with blood, and without shedding of blood is no remission". Remember this verse of scripture has reference to the law. What may be legally right may be morally wrong. The law can not give life. It gendereth to bondage.

"And your covenant with death shall be disannulled, and your agreement with hell shall not stand".

Is this a war with Spain now, or with the Filippinos? This thing should be ended before the summer months. We have no men to give over to yellow fever, pestilence and small pox. Our northern men can not endure that climate of crocodiles, snakes, and lizzards. Give the Filippines a protectorate government and send our men home.

If this war was begun for humanity as they say it was, then is it right to be killing these monkey faced, breechclout, yellow tanned race of people. Did we buy the Philippines for humanity sake or for pelf. It should be millions for christianity and spread of the gospel, instead of millions for war. To civilize a nation by the sword is both dangerous and expensive.

George Washington had his home in Virginia on the Potomac river.

One day George and his friends wanted to catch his mother's colt. They wanted to tame the colt. George got on the colts back and the colt jumped so high that the colt fell down dead. Then his mother called him to breakfast. And they kept very still, and then George said: "Mothtr I have killed your colt". George's mother said: "I am very sorry but I am very glad to have my little boy tell the truth".

George Washington.

George Washington was born in Virginia, February 22, 1732.

When he was quite young his father died. He went to school. His teacher's name was Hobby. He was very young when his father died.

His home was upon the banks of the Potomac river. He played soldier.

One day he went out into the pasture and got on the colt to ride. The colt oumped so high that the colt fell down dead, then he went up to the house, but did not say a word for a little bit, then he said: "Mother, our colt is dead". His mother said: "I don't like to loose my dear little colt but I'm glad that you told the truth.

Washington was very true. He could not tell a lie, he was such a true boy.

THE delights of an evening spent around a well-lighted reading table are not half understood. An illustrated magazine with its wealth of illustrations, its stories of adventure and love, its descriptions of travel which carry you to the remotest ends of the earth, and its instructive articles for young and old—these are the first requisites for your own enjoyment and the entertainment and proper education of your children.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal,

Both Together One Year for Only $1.80

In this way you secure your own home paper and an illustrated magazine at a price that is only about a fourth of what some of the illustrated magazines sell for. For three years The Cosmopolitan has undisputedly claimed that it reached the largest clientele possessed by any periodical, daily, weekly or monthly, in the world. It was The Cosmopolitan which sent Julian Hawthorne to India to let the world know the real horrors of famine and plague; it was The Cosmopolitan which established at its own cost a great Free Correspondence University which now has over 20,000 students on its rolls. It was The Cosmopolitan which offered a prize of $5,000 for the best horseless carriage and prizes for best plans for public baths, and best arrangement of sewer and pipe systems for cities. It was The Cosmopolitan which set the presidents of great schools and universities seriously discussing the defects of existing educational systems. It is The Cosmopolitan whose enterprise is always in the lead in advancing the world's civilization.

"OLDEST AND BEST"

With the SPECIAL CABLES

OF THE NEW YORK HERALD

We have also succeeded in arranging for two additional offers in connection with this journal and The Cosmopolitan.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $1.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

One other opportunity we offer you. You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine

A FEW TRUSTS.

Since finding that almost every staple article of manufacture is controlled by a trust, we have given up the idea of making a list.

"There's a steel trust, an iron trust,
And a trust in lager beer,
And there is many another trust
To burden the glad new year.

There's a milk trust, a pie trust
And a trust in sparkling wine,
There's a plow trust, a reaper trust,
And a trust in binder twine.

There's an ice cream trust, a milk trust,
A trust in crackers and bread,
And to scan the catalogue of trusts
Is enough to turn one's head.

There's a paper trust, a type trust
And a trust on sewing thread,
And they follow you to the grave yard
With a coffin trust, when you're dead.

There's a nail trust, an oil trust
And a trust in biscuits, too,
And the country is swarming with trusts
Till the air with trusts is blue.

There's a glass trust, tobacco trust
And a trust on pottery as well,
An if it isn't too hot for them
They'll get up a trust in — well.

There's a butter trust, a sugar trust
And a trust in the power to skin
And nobody knows how many more
Till the trusts have all come in.

There's envelope trusts and other trusts
That will land us under the sod,
And all that is left for the poor man
Is to work and trust in God."—Broad Axe

How They Look at It.

Cap'n Van Sant declines to talk politics further than to affirm that the Republican party will defeat Lind at the next election. Well that's enough for the present.—Duluth News Tribune.

Anything to beat Lind, so soon in the campaign. The Republicans will have to resort to other methods than they have during the present legislature to defeat Lind and his reform.

Major Bowler's Bible.

"What, no Bible?" said Commissioner Bowler. "How could they run the office without one?" And the Major bought and presented to the dairy and food department a copy of the King James version, which now has a place on the shelf between the creamery diractory and the pure food laws. It is believed to be the first copy of the scriptures ever assigned to a place on the maine floor of the capitol. The last time one was wanted there was chasing all over the building, until someone bethought himself that the historical association might have one. —St. Paul Pioneer Press.

And just to think that the present Governor was accused during his first campaign of being an "infidel". Where are all our Bible canvassing women and men that they have failed to find that our State capital was in need of a Bible?

True American Ring.

The following from The American, a paper published in Manila, P. I., has the true American ring, and Commodore Watson must be a true American:

"In receiving the colors of the battleship 'Wisconsin', recently launched at San Francisco, Commodore Watson voiced the sentiments of every true American when he said: 'May the folds of our flag never float over oppression; may these emblems always be the guide to liberty'".

Here is another pretty good specimen of an American idea of freedom, found in a speech, made in the Senate of the United States, July 10, 1894, by Senator C. K. Davis, of Minnesota.

"People prate about liberty, and define that liberty as the liberty of the particular class they are speaking for. The only liberty worth having in this country is the equal liberty of all men alike. Liberty in its philosophical and commonsense definition consists in that right of each individual to exercise the greatest freedom of action up to, and not beyond, that point where it impinges upon the like exercise of freedom of action of every other man. Beyond that it is the destruction of the liberty of the weak by the strongest, a subversion of the very theory of a republic, and a return to primeval anarchy on the one hand, or, as an alternative, to despotism on the other."

Litchfield News Ledger: The army canteen has been wiped out. This is a good move. We believe the time has come when it is unnecessary for the government to run a saloon for the accommodation of its soldiers.

Some New "I. D's".

"We are getting a multitudinousness of reform parties. At a low estimate there must be a score of them."

"Is not one reform party enough?"

The Sage of Nininger after approving of the above from the Milwaukee Advance, in the Representative says: "Let the reply to these disorganizing efforts be increased devotion to the People's Party. I. D."

By the way, ain't "I. D." the initials of the candidate for Vice President of the United States on that ticket?

From Manilla.

MANILA P. I. Sampolic Dist.
Jan. 30th 1899.

Father: I received yours of Dec. 5th '98, carefully read its contents and with reget will say 'that we were notified to day of the death of Prt. Olson one of the recuts of our company, he was a very neat young man and bunked next to me, dying with smallpox; which was contracted to the best of my belief by entering a cemetary and viewing the bones, or by visiting some other place means similar, and must say it is the first death in our company and 27th in the regiment.

The other day (28th) I visited Perry and a Plum buff dinner. Orley Billings is also looking well.

All the boys are doing well I met Elmer Erickson on duty the other day and must say he was in good health and looking well.

Geo. Dyer is cooking for the Co. and hasn't much time to spare.

Jenner Chance as usual made the trip to I Co. and carried off all the Eagle so I could not get a look at them.

Burt is doing well and is in very good health.

And I am as usual on my feet most of the time.

I saw all the boats in the harbor also shore batteries saluting, on the 27th. I cannot tell what it was for. but all the warships of foreign and U. S. fleets partook in the seemingly sham battle.

A couple of natives were married yesterday and corporal Nuten was the best man.

All the cheap dogs are mysteriously being poisoned on account of being a general nuisance.

We go on duty every three days.

There was an article in the paper stating that the Vol. would be relieved some time.

This is the coldest month here. It is never below 50, but nearly a hundred all the time except when old sol throws his bright rays down and makes it so hot you cannot imagine how hot it is, but you repeatedly hear the rumor that it is "Hot as H—".

There is always drill in the morning before breakfast with our company.

There is also rivalry at guard mount for orderly, and yesterday two were so near a tie that the Major had to come out and examine their underclothes in order to judge. Now if you call that being soldiers, I would like to know what a tin soldier is.

There is a very well known man in our regiment, better known here as papa, and has a large number of babies.

George Kurtz was over to take me to the Nebraska outpost the other day.

Bill Steffes was in batallion parade last Saturday evening.

O. J. Billings now wears a cirsingle. although greatly reduced in length, in place of a belt. His pants are too big for him.

I am going on guard tomorrow.

P. S. I have received the three last papers regularly.

Broad Axe: It is admitted on all sides that John Lind is making the best governor Minnesota ever had. Careful, conscientious and deliberate in the minutest details, he can not help but administer the affairs of state in a manner that will win the admiration of not only his friends but those who are politically opposed to him.

Duluth Herald: Senator Davis says our imports last year must have been $12,000,000, and then asks: "Shall we shut up to ourselves this avenue of trade and become in turn the China of the West?" Does the senator forget that our export trade "the largest of any nation's in the world" has been built up without the ownership and military government of a single colony—without a large standing army—without a great navy—without a thought of conquest by war? What is there about our growing export trade suggestive of the necessity of colonies? Our own experience shows we are better off without them. Prices make trade—not navies and armies and government without the consent of the governed.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(Fromour Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 24, 1899.

Nothing more significant occured during the closing days of this Congress than Mr. McKinley's recognition of the rapidly increasing sentiment against an indefinite continuation of the nobody-knows what-we're-going-to-do policy towards the Philippines, which has been making rapid headway among prominent members of his own party and which is practically held by all the democrats in Congress. Heretofore he has acted as though it were treason to even hint that the whole business should not be left to his discretion. This week he took another tack, and talked of the necessity for Congressional action on the Philippine question, and intimated, although he took particular pains not to definite'y promise, that an extra session of the Fifty sixth Congress would be called to deal with it, soon after the treaty of peace goes into official effect. Of course, he may have been talking for fear that Congressional sentiment would force an immediate extra session, in order to settle the matter quickly.

Czar Reed didn't succeed in his effort to kill the Nicaragua Canal amendment to the River and Harbor bill, but he scotched it.

The new Army bill, with which the democratic Senators called the extra session bluff of Mr. McKinley, which gives the administration the number of men asked for, but limits their service to two years from the first of next July, was a bitter pill to many of the imperialists in Congress, but they had to obey orders from the White House and swallow it.

Mr. McKinley still lacks the nerve to follow the advice of some of his best friends and demand the resignation of Secretary Alger, but he had enough to compel Alger to announce the abandonment of his intended junket to Cuba and Porto Rico at public expense. It is creditable to the democratic members of the House and Senate Military Committees that almost without exception they declined Alger's invitation to themselves and family to accompany him on the junket, before they knew that it had been called off. He had figured that democratic criticism could be silenced if he could carry a few prominent democrats with him, but they were not to be caught in such a palpable trap.

Secretary Allen didn't throw any boquets at the Senate in a little farewell speech he made. He told the Senators that any single state in the Union could easily produce ninety men who were their peers in ability.

The impression in Congressional circles is that the administration did much more hurrahing than there was any occasion for over the action of the German government in announcing that it had ordered the single warship it had at Manila away and its request that this government take all German citizens in the Philippines under its protection. It is a good guess that this move on the part of Germany was actuated by a desire to make it easy for its citizens in the Philippines to collect money from the U. S. for damage done to their property by the Filipinos.

Representatives Champ Clark, of Mo.; J Hamilton Lewis, of Washington; Jerry Simpson, of Kansas, and James G. Maguire of Cal. were among the speakers at a public meeting held under the auspices of the Washington Single Tax Club. It was a sort of farewell so far as Simpson and Lewis were concerned, as they will retire from public life at noon tomorrow.

The democratic members of the Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections-Turley, Pettus and Caffery-declined to join in the Scotch verdict of "not proven" rendered by the majority of the Committee on the charge of bribery brought against Senator Hanna, and submitted a minority report, taking the ground that further investigation should be made, as one attempted case of bribery had been fully proven. Of that case the report says: "$1,750 was paid in cash by Boyce to Campbell as attorney for Otis. Boyce agreed to pay $1,750 more when Otis reached Columbus, and a balance of $6,500 if Hanna was elected."

The situation was very near to being presented in a sentence when Senator Caffrey asked in the course of a speech against allowing the President to govern the Philippines under a military despotism after the formal proclamation of peace with Spain has been made, "Are the American people going to tolerate for any length of time the usurpation of civil authority on the part of the President of the U. S?" Mr. Caffery contends that as soon as the treaty of peace goes into effect the Filipinos will become American citizens and that the President will have no more authority to keep them under military control than he would have to put Oklahoma or New Mexico under military rule.

Most of the testimony taken by the Military Court of Inquiry this week has supported the charge of Gen. Miles that beef unfit to eat was issued to the soldiers.

The anti-expansion resolution adopted by the democratic House caucus was offered in the House and referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs. It had no chance to get reported to the House either favorably or unfavorably, as the Chairman of the Committee-Hitt, of Ill.,-declined to call a meeting to consider it, but it puts the party on record.

TIM BRANIGAN'S COURTSHIP

By B. W. Channing

BRANNIGAN carried ice for the Sylvan Spring Ice company. He was a goodly young fellow, standing six feet one in his stockings, with a countenance deeply bronzed by weather, out of which his wide blue eyes laughed unceasingly. His flannel shirt, open a little at the base of the strong, round throat, and his broad felt hat, indented with a vertical "Denver poke," gave him a cowbow effect. He was perfectly cognizant of this, and traded on it with the maids at the various houses on his beat, before whom he swaggered not a little, dropping hints of a western past, strewn with Indian scalps.

"And was you ever there, now, Mr. Brannigan?" one of them once asked him, and he answered, ambiguously:

"Aw, an' if I hadn't a-been, how would I get the wownd on me crown?"

"What wownd on your crown? Go on!"

"I'll show it ye if ye'll step over here."

Brannigan bent his burnished curls, and pretty Norah stretched on tiptoe to meet them. But just as the two heads reached one level, the hero lifted his own quickly and kissed the fresh-colored face that looked so intently at him.

"Shure, the situation was that convaynient, I cudden't help it!" he urged, fleeing to the door with a smart cuff ringing in his ears.

But he was to learn that there was a type of womanhood demanding more deferential approach.

The first time he saw Alma was on a hot afternoon in August, when she had just come down from Nova Scotia, and was feeling the atmosphere of the South end oppressive.

Her mother, who kept a boarding house, and had combined with that responsibility the care of a shiftless second husband and his two small boys, had written to Halifax that Alma was needed. Alma was a slender, dark-

"I AM NOT THAT KIND," SAID ALMA.

Brannigan, swinging in with his huge ice block, took a swift, appreciative look at her, dumped the ice in its receptacle, and stopped on the return swing for conversation.

"'Tis a warm day!"

"Dreadful!" said Alma, listlessly.

"I didn't see you before?"

"No. I've just come."

"Ye'll not stay here! the old lady can't kape no gyurl more than a week: 'tis a hole of a place!"

"I'm Mrs. Brown's daughter, from Halifax."

Brannigan went away at that, suddenly speechless.

He saw her nearly every day after, but he did not seem to make much headway. A packet of chewing gum, which had appeared to him a graceful attention suitable from any gentleman to any lady, was received with disappointing coldness.

"It's very kind of you," she said, "but I never use it. Mrs. Dalby, where I lived in Halifax, thought it was common."

One day about a month after her arrival, he found Alma alone in the kitchen—and marked with concern that her eyes were red with crying. Now, Brannigan had a man's philosophy regarding tears.

"Aren't ye well at all?" he asked, coming up beside her.

"I'm all right!" said Alma, holding her head down, and plunging her thin little arms into a tub of soapsuds.

The next moment she was startled and scandalized by the clasp of an arm about her waist, and the touch of a brown mustache on her cheek.

"Ah, cheer up!" whispered Brannigan, tenderly, "it don't sthorm ivery day!"

He stepped back to avoid the expected slap; but the girl made no sort of demonstration. She simply stood there with a white face and looked unutterable reproach.

Tactics of so novel a kind were disconcerting. Brannigan's bronzed cheek flamed, and the laugh died out of his eyes.

"Say, I'm mighty sorry!" he murmured; "I niver thought but ye'd like it! The gyurls mostly does, an' 'tis no harm at all."

"I'm not that kind," said Alma, sternly.

"I'm mighty sorry," he repeated, and as Alma showed no signs of relenting, went dejectedly to the door.

"'Twas sweet, what I got of it," he mused. "an' 'tis bad luck I'll get no more. She's not the kind, it's true for her."

The next few times that he carried ice to the house he did not see Alma, and when he did, on the fourth day, her manner was excessively dignified. But Brannigan was hard to snub. Instinctively, he reconstructed his too florid vocabulary, and altered some of his ways.

"She's worth takin' trouble for," he said to himself.

His gentle persistence had its reward, and after awhile they had become so far friends that Brannigan hazarded a new departure.

"Do you iver go out Sunday avenins?" he inquired one fine Saturday.

"Sunday afternoons I do," Alma amended.

"'Tis great out in the park."

"I've heard it was nice."

"I'd be proud if ye'd ride out there with me tomorry?"

Alma's delicate color deepened. She gazed fixedly at the handle of the door.

"Let's say three o'clock."

"I'm not through my work till four." It was the same thing as an assent.

"I'll call for ye at four!" He went off beaming, but her voice made him turn back in sudden panic.

"Don't call for me," she said, in a low, hesitating tone; "you—I'd rather you wouldn't. Maybe I'll be at the corner at four."

The ride out on the open car was very pleasant. Alma enjoyed every bit of it, though she asked herself frequently what was she about.

Brannigan was not introspective; besides, he knew what he was about perfectly. He paid Alma's fares with an authority she dared not gainsay, and sat with his arm on the back of the seat behind her.

His heart swelled; he almost wished some man would do something for which he could knock him down. He had the primitive instincts of the tribal lover; he wanted to show his strength to the woman he desired, and to have her know that strength would always stand between her and danger.

This feeling increased as time went on, and he saw more and more clearly that Alma was unhappy at home. Her eyes were often red. She complained of headache, and on being pressed confessed that "the boys were tiresome."

One afternoon a strange man came with the ice.

"Tim Brannigan's hurt," he explained. It appeared that Brannigan had been at a fire, and rushing out of the burning tenement with a forgotten baby, had broken his leg. He was in the city hospital.

The next day Alma dressed herself with care in the blue gown Brannigan liked, and the Sunday hat with its soaring plumes and outspreading ribbons, and started for the hospital.

When Brannigan saw Alma enter the ward his face was irradiated with joy. And yet, when she reached the bedside, he was lying very still, with closed eyes—or, with eyes that seemed to be closed.

"Ah, an' is it you?" he asked, faintly, feigning a languid awakening. "'Tis good of ye to come, but I'm that wake I can scarcely take it in!"

"O, but you'll soon be better, Mr. Brannigan!" she said, struggling not to cry.

"Ah, an' do ye think so?" he asked, feebly.

Alma looked down at his splendid porportions in perfect seriousness.

"Do you feel pain anywhere?" she asked, fearfully.

"Ahful, just here!" said Brannigan, laying a muscular hand upon the cardiac region.

Not a muscle of her face changed, as he saw through his half-shut eyes. A ripple of laughter passed over him, and he bit his lips under the long, tawny mustache. And while he laughed, he could have fallen at her feet—she was so adorably innocent!

Alma saw and wholly misinterpreted the tremor which shook him.

"Are you cold?" she inquired, anxiously. She knew that it was a bad sign to feel cold in serious illness.

"Froze out!" said Brannigan, in a choked voice, another and more violent tremor convulsing him.

"Don't they give you anything for a chill?" she asked.

"They can't give me nothin'," he whispered, "'twouldn't do no good!"

Poor Alma began to cry. She did not know people never died of a broken leg; and with Brannigan's young strength and health it was inexplicable.

But, certainly, he was near his end. Reckless of observation, she bent her face to his and kissed him.

And then a strange thing happened, for the helpless sufferer revived, returned her farewell salute with interest, and held the girl close in a clasp of astonishing vigor.

"O, my! Mr. Brannigan, aren't you ashamed? And me thinking you that ill!" gasped Alma.

"I niver told ye there was anything wrong wid me arms!" he cried. "An' I was just sufferin' for a kiss, dear! Ye've niver let me have one till now! (he repaid himself for the deprivation). Ah, Alma, darlin', say ye'll go to the priest wid me when I'm out o' here! I've a tidy bit in the bank, an' niver a soul dependin' on me, an' I'd make ye so happy ye'd not know yerself—"

He became aware of the severely-disapproving regard of a middle-aged nurse on the other side of the bed, and let Alma go. Then he winked with glad effrontery at the intruder.

"'Tis all right!" he assured her; "kissin' ain't agin the rules whin it's a man's own gyurl he's goin' to marry—is it, now? An' ye're goin' to marry me the minute I'm out, aren't ye, Alma, me dear?"

Alma was torn with a variety of emotions; but she loved Brannigan.

"Yes," she said.—Boston Globe.

Recognize Gresham's Bravery.

The St. Peter friends of W. H. Gresham, have as a slight recognition of his extreme bravery in the clever capture of Valentine, the would be post office robber, purchased an elegant solid gold watch of Waltham Riverside movement, together with a fine chain, and will present the same to him this evening. Engraved upon the watch is the inscription, "Presented by Friends to W. H. Gresham, Recognition of Bravery, Feb. 20, 1899, St. Peter, Minn."—St. Peter Herald.

Soldiers Must Go Dry.

Washington, March 2.—The amendment which Senator Hansbrough offered to the army reorganization bill and which became a part of that measure prohibiting officers or soldiers from selling intoxicating drinks in any post or exchange was more far reaching than first appeared. It goes further and prohibits any other person from selling such liquors in any encampment or any place used for military purposes. This will exclude liquors from all military reservations. —Pioneer Press.

Quoting George Washington.

It would be well for the anti-expansionists to remember that George Washington said: "To be prepared for war is one of the most effectual means of preserving peace." —Duluth Tribune.

True; and it would be thrice well for the expansionists to remember that George Washington also said, in his matchless Farewell Address, which should be to the American nation what the "Sermon on the Mount" is to the Christian religion:

"Why quit our own to stand upon foreign ground? Why, by interweaving our destiny with that of any part of Europe, entangle our peace and prosperity in the toils of European ambition, rivalship, interest, humor or caprice?"

It will not do to undo anything we may attempt to do for Dewey.

Aluminium has found still another use in France. Violins and large string instruments are being constructed with it, and are said to have a richer tone than their wooden rivals, especially in the higher registers.

A New York doctor informs the public that the skull is not a solid bone, but is so constructed that the brain may grow. Too many people, however, refuse to give this valuable organ any encouragement in its efforts.

A few years ago a misguided scientist imported a few samples of the gypsy moth "just to experiment with." A few of them got away and established themselves on some apple trees in Massachusetts, and now the authorities of the state are called upon to appropriate $200,000 to exterminate the pest.

Now it is the wooden nutmeg tradition that must go. The Hartford Courant says it is a "stale and baseless" slander on the fair state of Conneticut, a "malicious libel," and a "disgrace." The rest of the country has been laboring under the false impression that Connecticut was proud of the emblem.

A west African on a visit to England in connection with a missionary society was shown a collection of photographs. "What is this?" he asked, gazing wonderingly at one of them. "That is a snapshot, taken during a scrimmage at a Rugby football game." "But has your church no missionaries to send among these people?" he demanded.

Last January was a record-breaking month in Wall street. There were 25 business days, and in that time the sales fell but little short of $1,000,000 a day, while the sales of bonds each day fell but little below $6,000,000. Such activity, extending over so long a period of time, is unprecedented. During the month every record for a day, week or month was broken.

A western editor was running the motto "We tell the truth" at the head of his paper. The other day, however, he was compelled to encounter several gentlemen who objected to the truth being told, and as a consequence the motto disappeared and the following notice was printed: "Until we recover from the injuries recently received this paper will lie just like the rest of them."

Prize fighting does not seem so brutal, says the Chicago Tribune, after reading an account of the horrible sufferings of the riders in a six-day bicycle race. The marvel of the thing is that thousands of people find delight and enjoyment in watching the torture of the half-crazed participants in the spectacle. If these men were horses an outraged public sentiment would put a stop to the practice.

Norway recently enacted a law forbidding the sale of tobacco to youths under 16 years without signed orders from adults. Tourists who offer cigarettes to youths render themselves liable to prosecution, while the police are empowered to confiscate the pipes, cigars and cigarettes of youths who smoke in public streets, a fine for the offense being likewise imposed, which may be anywhere from 50 cents to $25.

A man high up in life insurance circles is authority for the statement that the big insurance companies are paying out enormous suicide claims just now. "The public has no apprehention," he said, "of the magnitude of business done by these gigantic corporations. The number of deaths resulting from suicide last year is greater than ever known in the history of life insurance. I estimate the payments last year on suicide claims alone reached an average of nearly $1,500,000 to each one of the big companies."

The "Grant Family association" has been formed, with Ulysses S. Grant, of San Diego, Cal., as president; Rev. Dr. Roland D. Grant, of Concord, N. H., as first vice president; Dr. Thomas D. Grant, of Louisville, Ky., as second vice president; Frant Grant, of Westfield, Mass., as secretary and treasurer; Rev. Arthur H. Grant, of Montclair, N. J., as recorder. The association comprises descendants of Matthew Grant, of Windsor, Conn., and in that town biennial reunions are to be held, the first on October 27 next.

Washington's home has been restored and preserved to the nation by the able efforts of "The Mount Vernon Ladies' Association of the Union," an organization dating from 1854, and governed by ladies, a vice regent representing each state. How intelligently this work has been performed every visitor to Mount Vernon can testify. The estate and buildings as they are cared for are a remarkable realization of what was once but a patriotic idea that scarcely seemed practicable. But the faith and energy of American women turned it into a fact.

More than 19 centuries after Julius Caesar was stabbed to death in the hall of Pompeius his ashes have been found in their restling place in the Roman forum, beneath a column erected in his memory by Augustus. Perhaps no one who was present when the urn was placed beneath the marble gave a thought to the place that would be accorded Julius in history 20 centuries later. Most of them would have accorded Augustus the higher rank. This discovery is more interesting than the recent unearthing of the black stone said to mark the tomb of Romulus.

According to statistics there are in use in the world 1,288,163 telephones, the service covering a distance of 1,509,499 miles. An idea of the extraordinary use of the telephone in the United States is derived from the fact that the figures credit this country with more than half of the instruments in use and the amount of mileage of the whole world. The number of instruments in the United States is placed at 772,627, while Germany has only 151,101; Great Britain and Ireland, 69,645; Sweden, 56,500; Canada, 33,500; Switzerland, 28,546; France, 27,736; Norway, 20,678.

TO FORCE FIGHTING.

Gen. Otis Preparing to Move Against the Filipinos.

Expected That It Will Deprive Them of Their Offensive Power at Least—Arrival of Reenforcements.

Washington, March 7. — There is some reason to expect important news from Manila within the next fortnight. It has developed that Gen. Otis has practically completed his plans for a grand onslaught on the insurgents which is expected to deprive them of offensive power at least. It is probable that he will form a large part of his force into columns, as soon as his reenforcements are all at hand, and will push these in parallel lines straight through the jungles, clearing out the insurgents in every direction as the troops move forward. The American troops are getting restless and nervous under the petty but annoying sharpshooting of the Filipinos and are anxious to put a stop to this and Gen. Otis has yielded to their desire.

An Unsuccessful Rebel Attack.

Manila, March 7.—The rebels have been concentrating in the vicinity of the reservoir. Monday a patrol of company G, Second Oregon volunteers, was taken in ambush. Two men were wounded, but the Oregonians held their ground under a heavy fire until the remainder of the company, assisted by two companies of the Frist Nebraska regiment, flanked the enemy, killing 30 and wounding several more.

Offer Not High Enough.

The Spanish commissioners who are endeavoring to secure the release of the Spanish prisoners in the hands of Aguinaldo have returned to Malolos to offer $2,000,000 for their release. As Aguinaldo has been demanding $7,000,000, it is not likely their mission will be successful.

Two members of the United States Philippine commission arrived here last Saturday.

Rebels Getting Ready.

The rebels, anticipating the American advance, are busy in throwing up defenses in every direction and it is reported that they are levying men and supplies in every province. As a result great dissatisfaction prevails among tribes ordinarily unfriendly to the Tagalos, particularly among the Ilocanos, who assert their desire to assit in conquering the Tagalos if furnished with arms.

Dewey's New Flag Saluted.

Manila, March 6.—Admiral George Dewey raised his flag as an admiral on board the Olympia Saturday and was saluted by the guns of the forts, of the foreign warships, the British cruiser Narcissus and the German cruiser Kaiserin Augusta and by the American ships in port.

Arrival of Reenforcements.

Washington, March 6.—The war department has received the following cablegram announcing the arrival at Manila of six companies of reenforcements for the army in the Philippines:

"Manila, March 4.—Adjutant General, Washington: The transport Senator just arrived, troops in good health. One casualty, accidental drowning.

(Signed) "OTIS."

The Senator carries companies A, B, C, D, H and K, of the Twenty-second infantry, and sailed from San Francisco on the 1st of February. The balance of this regiment will soon arrive at Manila on the transport Ohio, which followed the Senator.

IS NOW AN ADMIRAL.

Nomination of Dewey Is Confirmed by the Senate—Otis Is Now a Major-General.

Washington, March 4.—The senate has confirmed Admiral Dewey.

The president Friday morning sent to the senate the nominations of Rear Admiral George Dewey, to be admiral of the navy, under the act approved March 2, 1899, and Brig. Gen. Elwell S. Otis, U. S. A., to be major-general by brevet, to rank from February 4, 1899, for military skill and most distinguished services in the Philippine islands.

Washington, March 4. — Secretary Long has cabled Admiral Dewey as follows:

"Heartiest congratulations upon your deserved promotion as admiral."

Secretary Alger sent the following congratulatory message to Maj. Gen. Otis at Manila:

"Washington, March 3.—You have been nominated and confirmed a major general by brevet in the regular army. The president wishes this message of congratulation sent you, in which I cordially join."

WILL KEEP HANDS OFF.

The United States Government Will Remain Passive as to Italy's Demand of China.

Washington, March 7.—The United States government has remained absolutely passive throughout the execution of the Italian project to secure an "open door" on the Chinese coast through the acquisition of San-Mun bay and outlying islands. One of the highest authorities said: "The government of the United States will not take any steps in regard to the Italian demand for Chinese territory." In other words, our government, resisting from motives of broad policy the intimations from other powers that the time is ripe for a raid by the United States on some part of the Chinese coast line, has determined definitely to keep hands off.

Cyclone Kills Three.

Athens, Tenn., March 6.—A terrific cyclone passed over a portion of Madisonville and Monroe county Saturday night, with disastrous results. Early in the evening a strong wind arose and several hours later a cyclone about 70 yards wide struck a portion of Madisonville, killing three persons, wounding ten or twelve others and completely destroying 12 or 15 houses and several barns.

Offer Is Declined.

Washington, March 6.—Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British ambassador, called on Secretary of the Navy Long Saturday and on behalf of his government expressed thanks for the tender of the Brooklyn to bear Lord Herschell's remains back to England, but explained that the British government had ordered a vessel, probably the cruiser Talbot, from its North Atlantic squadron at Bermuda for this mission.

DAMAGE BY FLOODS.

Destruction Caused by Overflowing of Rivers in Ohio, Kentucky and West Virginia.

Cincinnati, March 7. — Fifty-three feet and nine inches is the ten o'clock stage of the Ohio river at this point Monday night. This is beyond all expectations warranted by information at hand Sunday night. The rainfall in the limited section of the Ohio watershed south and east of the Ohio river was much greater than anyone expected. This rate of rise at this point is about three inches per hour. This rate unexpectedly has been maintained for more than 24 hours.

Damage by flood in the cities on the Ohio so far reported is slight. The lowlands and a part of Gallipolis, O., are flooded. Many families have been obliged to move out. The Ohio river overflowed its banks at Point Pleasant and nearly all of the business portion of the city is flooded. Schools are closed and all business suspended. Middleport and Racine are both getting a muddy bath. River men say the Ohio is higher now than it has been since the memorable flood of '84.

Louisville, Ky., March 7. — The swollen streams in Kentucky are causing great damage, especially to farmers, and it is feared the worst is yet to come, as the streams are still rising.

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 7.—At midnight the record at Davis Island dam was 19.4 and falling. All danger of flood in this vicinity has passed.

Charleston, W. Va., March 7.—The high water has receded, but slowly, and the largest portion of the city is still under water. It is estimated that the damage to coal property along the upper Kanawha will amount to over $25,000. There is likelihood of distress on account of the growing shortage of coal. The supply is about exhausted and all the coal yards are under water.

NEW SPANISH CABINET.

Ministry Takes the Oath at Madrid —Senor Silvela Sworn as Sagasta's Successor.

Madrid, March 6.—The new cabinet took the oath of office Saturday. The ministry is composed as follows:

Minister of the interior—Senor Dato.
Minister of finance—Marquis Villa Verde.
Minister of justice—Senor Duran.
Minister of war—Gen. Pollevaja.
Minister of public affairs and of the colonies—Marquis Pidal.
Minister of marine—Admiral Imaz.

SENOR FRANCISCO SILVELA.
(Appointed by the Queen Regent of Spain to Form a New Ministry.)

Those who are in the immediate surrounding of Senor Silvela say his sole idea is to regenerate the country. He holds that the queen regent can ratify the treaty of peace with the United States without a vote of the chambers and that, therefore, their dissolution need not defer the ratification.

LOVE OF A GIRL.

Causes Quarrel Between Friends Who Were Rivals—One of Them Murders the Other.

Wymore, Neb., March 3. — Clyde Cole, a young man living at Endicott, near here, was shot and instantly killed by Bert Grundy, his bosom friend, in that village Wednesday night. Thursday Grundy's body was found in a pasture six miles from Endicott. A bullet hole in his skull and a revolver lying by his side told the story of suicide. Both young men were enamored of Gertie Rickards, a 20-year-old girl. The tragedy Wednesday night occurred in her presence, after the youths had quarreled over the privilege of escorting her home from a party, and Miss Rickards had decided in Cole's favor. Grundy drew a revolver, and as Miss Rickards jumped to seize the weapon he fired over her shoulder, shooting his most intimate friend to death. Grundy then fled.

Spain Punishing Her Warriors.

Madrid, March 6.—The supreme court, backed by the departments of war and marine, will not stop with sending Gens. Jaudenes and Toral to prison. Popular opinion demands that Spain exact from her vanquished warriors the satisfaction she could not get from their victors. Capt. Diaz Moreu, commanding the Cristobol Colon in the fatal flight from Santiago bay, is likely to be the next victim, while Admiral Montojo will be sacrificed to the popular clamor for the punishment of those who surrendered Cavite. And no one knows where the vendetta will end.

A Terrific Storm.

Decatur, Ala., March 6.—A terrific storm of wind, hail and lightning struck this place Saturday night, doing great damage and causing the loss of four lives. Capt. Sim McKee, of the steamer Luke Pryor, plying between here and Chattanooga, reported that he found a large raft below Whitesburg which had been broken up. The raft was managed by four white men, who were evidently lost in the storm, as their boat was destroyed.

Children Perish by Fire.

Omaha, Neb., March 4.—A special to the Bee from Onawa, Ia., says: The farmhouse occupied by the family of Joshua McGee, six miles from this place, burned Friday forenoon and his two children, a boy three years of age and a baby girl, were burned to death. The mother was fatally burned in attempting to rescue the children. The husband and father was away from home at the time.

Rich Tobacco Manufacturer Dead.

Detroit, Mich., March 4.—Daniel Scotten, the wealthy retired tobacco manufacturer, died here Friday evening from a heart affection, aggravated by his extreme age, 80 years.

ONE VAST WHEAT FIELD.

Prince Albert, Sask., Aug. 17, 1898.

William McCreary, Esq., Immigration Commissioner, Winnipeg, Man.:

Sir: We, the undersigned delegates from Kansas and Nebraska, U. S. A., in reporting the results of our trip to Dauphin, and subsequently to Regina, Prince Albert and the middle Saskatchewan country, beg to say that our tickets were limited to 21 days, and as we had other large regions to visit, we could only spend a short time in the Dauphin country. We examined, however, the principal cultivated areas in the southern part of township 25, range 19—the great wheat fields of Wishart, Buchanan, Owen, Smith, Ross, Sinclair, the Whitmores, Drinkwaters, etc., and, subsequently others to the north, and never, in our experience, have we seen finer grain. The whole country is watered by numerous streams flowing from the slopes of Riding Mountain, and excellent well water is found everywhere, at from 9 to 18 feet. Extensive forests of spruce and tamarack cover the northern parts of the mountains from which timber is manufactured in Dauphin and elsewhere, and sold at from $12 a thousand at the mills. Wild hops and wild fruits are abundant, and ripen in the open air. Vegetation throughout is surprisingly luxuriant, and, without hesitation, we would rank the whole region amongst the best grain-growing areas of the continent. The output of wheat last year was about 75,000 bushels, but this year it is estimated at over a million.

Westward lie the homestead lands which now, and when fresh surveys are completed, will afford comfortable homes to thousands of diligent families. The great Gilbert Plains, also, we were unable to visit, where grain-growing has been conducted with the best results for years, and which will become a vast wheat field as soon as a branch railway reaches there. Settlement is speeding in all these regions, reminding us indeed of the early days in our own States; and, as we have examined, since our visit to Dauphin, a portion of the great country lying south and east of Prince Albert, we can readily imagine the tide of immigration which will soon flow into the Canadian West.

POKER PARLANCE.

A Sunday School Boy Whose Education Included a Knowledge of Good Pairs.

The mixed metaphor of a South side Sunday school teacher and the precociousness of a youngster of seven in the juvenile class, who had evidently been listening to some fatherly club stories not intended for his ears, combined to disrupt the Bible services temporarily a couple of weeks ago. Recently the good pastor of the church received a call to another congregation, and in referring to this the young woman who sees to the spiritual growth of the youngest charges of the church dwelt at some length on the righteousness, faith and upright life of the pastor who had been so highly honored. She impressed her young hearers with the "faithfulness to duty" that had characterized the career of the beloved minister, and was listened to with devout and deep attention. Believing this lesson had effectively penetrated the young minds the teacher asked:

"And now who can tell me the one thing that our pastor held so dear that he should receive this call?"

After an interval of silence, during which the members of the small set looked about somewhat uneasily, a shrill voice came from the end of a pew, where its owner and his knickerbocker suit were curled up comfortably against the cushions:

"I know."

"Well, Bobby?"

"Aces."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Not What She Expected.

Fangle—I saw your friend, Mrs. Jaysmith, get on the train and leave town with a married man this morning.

Mrs. Fangle (deeply interested)—Well, I've been expecting a scandal in that quarter for some time. Who was it with the shameless thing?

"Her husband."—Harlem Life.

FREE TO MILLIONS OF SUFFERERS.

The New Cure for Kidney, Bladder and Uric Acid Troubles.

Almost everybody who reads the newspapers is sure to know of Swamp-Root, the great Kidney remedy.

It is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of scientific research by the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, Dr. Kilmer, and has truly wonderful powers in curing kidney, liver, bladder and uric acid diseases.

Kidney trouble is responsible for more sickness and sudden deaths than any other disease, and is so deceptive that thousands have it without knowing it.

Thousands owe their health and even life to Swamp-Root, and thousands more who to-day think themselves beyond help, can be made well by the use of this great remedy.

Swamp-Root has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work, in private practice, among the helpless too poor to purchase relief, and has proved so successful in every case, that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent absolutely free by mail. Also a book telling more about Swamp-Root and containing some of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women who owe their good health, in fact, their very lives, to the wonderful curative properties of Swamp-Root. Be sure and mention this paper when sending your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

If you are already convinced that Swamp-Root is what you need, you can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles at drug-stores.

JIMMY GOT HIS RAISE.

His Troubles with a Lady Customer Caused His Butcher Boss to Come Down.

"I've got to have my pay raised," announced the Clark street butcher's boy in a gentle but decided tone. "It's got to be raised."

The butcher smiled indulgently and replied: "Well, Jimmie, of course I'm always willin' to do the right thing, but times in this business was better once an' my shop is small. Still, if I can do anythin'—"

"It's over that Mrs. Justmarried," complained Jimmie. "I get along all right with everybody else but her—well, say, I told you how she wanted the salted mackerel sent up with 'only a pinch of salt.'"

"Yes."

"And about that order of 'one dozen lamb chops, freshly laid,' and the pound of 'boneless sausage.'"

"Yes."

"Well, to-day happened the worst yet. She's got a Mexican lady stopping with her, and I guess the other women in that flat have been stringin' her to get up a Mexican dinner, for to-day she sailed in high and mighty as you please, and she says: 'You may send up, James, six Spanish omelettes cut thick and with the bones broken. And, let me see—yes, one pint of whipped chili colorow, and eight tamales dressed and ready for the oven. Pick out the plumpest tamales you have in the yard and have them killed and dressed before noon.'

"Say, won't that Mexican lady have a hot time? How can I go up there and explain matters unless—"

"I guess I can give you 50 cents more a week, Jimmie," said the butcher.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

GOVERNOR M'CORD

Recommends Pe-ru-na to All Catarrh Victims.

HON. M. H. M'CORD.

Hon. Myron H. McCord, Ex-Governor of New Mexico, in a letter to Dr. Hartman, from Washington, D. C., says:

Gentlemen—At the suggestion of a friend I was advised to use Pe-ru-na for catarrh, and after using one bottle I began to feel better in every way. It helped me in many respects. I was troubled with colds, coughs, sore throat, etc., but as soon as I had taken your medicine I began to improve and soon got well. I take pleasure in recommending your great remedy to all who are afflicted with catarrh.—M. H. McCord.

Thousands of cases of chronic catarrh have been cured by Pe-ru-na during the past winter. In spite of changeable weather, in spite of the natural setbacks from catching cold, and confinement to ill-ventilated rooms, the great catarrh remedy—Pe-ru-na—has effected these cures. But now spring is here. The days are longer, the sun is warmer, and the blizzard is gone for another year. This presents a much more favorable opportunity for the permanent cure of chronic catarrh, especially old, stubborn cases. Now is the time to begin treatment. Other things being equal, one month's treatment in the spring is worth two months' treatment during the inclement weather of winter. Insist upon having Pe-ru-na. There are no successful substitutes for this remedy. Send to Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio, for a free catarrh book.

LEGISLATIVE GOSSIP

Our Special Correspondent Tells of the Solons' Doings.

The Members are Busily Engaged, as the Session Draws Towards Close, in the Discussion and Passage of Various Measures.

St. Paul, March 1.—The last day of winter (by the calendar) rounded out into one of the important days of the session. Senator C. K. Davis, who has been spending three or four days with his parents, delivered an address to the legislature and the public yesterday afternoon, in response to a resolution passed by the house. Extra chairs were placed in the aisles and there was not an available inch of sitting or standing room left and the crowd extended far out into the corridors. The senate was present, as well as the house. When the senator entered, accompanied by Gov. Lind, they were greeted with great applause. The senator was introduced by Speaker Dare, and after thanking the legislature for the honors they had bestowed upon him in his re-election, he proceeded in an eloquent manner to express his well-known views upon expansion. He stated that only recently had the United States taken her position as one of the great powers of the world, and emphatically declared in favor of maintaining that position. Gov. Lind followed briefly. An informal reception was then given the senator at the foot of the stairs leading to the speaker's desk, and hundreds of ladies and gentlemen thronged to shake him by the hand. The senator left last night for Washington.

St. Paul, March 2.—The way legislation can be made to legislate had a unique illustration in the senate yesterday. Some little time ago Senator Butz introduced a bill to prevent probate judges and their clerks from representing clients in the probate courts. The argument against the bill was that many matters before a probate judge, such as probating uncontested wills, for instance, did not require professional lawyers and much expense would be saved if the judge passed upon the matter without counsel appearing. The argument for the bill was that it took bread out of the mouths of the lawyers to allow the probate judge to act without having counsel present to secure a fee.

When the bill came up for final action today Senator Butz arose and said he did not think it was a good bill though he had introduced it himself. He had received many letters and protests against it and none in its favor and he thought it should be defeated. The vote was then taken and the bill passed by 34 to 20. Senator Butz being one of the 20.

It is not often that the sponsor for a bill cannot kill his own offspring.

The legislature has one colored man this year who is a member of the house. He got a bill through the house compelling saloons to serve drinks to colored people the same as to whites. This bill was on its passage in the senate and an effort was made to defeat it on the ground that it encouraged intemperance by legislative enactment, but the argument failed. The bill passed and if the governor signs it colored people can get drunk legally, just the same as white folks.

Wheelmen were pleased by the senate passing the house bill protecting bicycle paths. A bill was introduced at the instance of Public Examiner Pope giving his office four assistants instead of three as at present. Senator Brower prevailed upon so many senators to go to St. Cloud to visit the reformatory and normal school that not more than a bare quorum will be present today and little if any business will be done.

The house spent most of the day considering Senator Somerville's bill which requires foreign corporations doing business in the state to pay the same fees which are required of Minnesota corporations. It was argued that large corporations were organized outside of the state to escape the fees. The Twin City Street Railway company organized in New Jersey without paying any fee to Minnesota, while if they had organized here, on the same basis, they would have been obliged to pay the state $40,000. The bill was very considerably amended but finally passed after having been considered nearly all day.

There was quite a breeze in the house over the report of the committee on insane hospitals in favor of the bill creating new asylums at both Anoka and Hastings. The committee had three bills for this purpose before it and only reported one. Their report was adopted and the bill then laid upon the table to await reports on the other two.

St. Paul, March 3.—There were many vacant chairs in the house and senate chambers yesterday, many members being absent on the junketing tours to St. Cloud, Moorhead and Red Wing. The senate barely had a quorum and no serious attempt was made to transact important business. The senate has its work well in hand anyway, and was able, after a short session in the forenoon to adjourn for the day.

But in the house the proceedings dragged their weary way until night set in. Toward the close of the session only 43 of the 119 members were present. But there were no less than fifty-five bills on general orders, and so it was considered necessary to let the work go on. But everybody was looking painfully spiritless, and progress was slow. It is understood that arrangements are being made for a race between the house of representatives and a barrel of molasses.

Representative Deming was the only member of the Hennepin delegation who voted for the Somerville bill exacting a license fee from foreign corporations. It was he who had the bill amended so that it is not to apply to any corporations engaged only in the business of loaning money or investing in securities in this state.

Next Tuesday evening there will be the final hearing in the senate chamber of arguments for and against the Jacobson bill to increase to 4 per cent the tax on the gross earnings of railroad companies. It is expected that this will be a battle royal between the Jacobson forces and the men who either oppose the bill or have their doubts as to the advisability of such a measure at this time.

St. Paul, March 4.—The governor's veto of the sugar bounty bill seems to be indirectly bearing fruit, notwithstanding both houses passed it over the veto. He called attention to the bad character of the bounty bill and asked its repeal before he signed an appropriation. The legislature has apparently adopted a reverse method, and after making the appropriation they now propose to repeal the bounty bill. The senate yesterday, in committee of the whole, recommended the repeal of the bill unanimously. The uncertainties of legislation had an amusing illustration in the senate. A bill to prohibit disorderly conduct on the street cars received 32 votes, the exact number necessary for its passage. One senator changed his vote to no in order to move a reconsideration. The bill really had 33 votes at that time, but one senator changed his mind and asked to be recorded no, so that when the other senator changed his vote for the purpose of reconsidering, it defeated the measure. Then the senator who wanted to reconsider if it was defeated, changed back and saved the bill. Later it was discovered that the roll call had not been verified, and when it was called over for that purpose, one senator who favored the bill had stepped out and left it with only 31 votes. Then a senator who had voted for it originally discovered that he had not been recorded as voting at all. This discovery saved the bill for the third time. That bill seems to have enough saving qualities to become a law.

A pretty lively debate occurred in the senate over the bill changing the oil inspector's office from a fee to a salary office. Some of the senators argued that the basis should not be changed simply because the politics of the govenor's office had changed. When the bill came back from the judiciary committee yesterday it had an amendment which was designed to relieve it of seeming partisanship. The amendment provided that it should not go into effect until 1901, which would be after the term of the present incumbent had expired. The fees amount to $20,000 per annum, and are paid by the Standard Oil Company. Some argued that if it was a salaried office, much oil would escape being inspected at all. After a long debate it was recommended to pass as amended, but it is doubtful if it goes through in the final round up. The bill providing a commission to visit the state institution and report, instead of having the legislature go itself, does not meet with much favor, as the legislature seems to like junkets. It went back to a committee "just to kill time."

The house yesterday emasculated Robert's election bill and then passed it. One section allows the voter to vote for all of the presidential electors by placing an X against the first name. The oft repeated attempt to establish a board of immigration was again inaugurated by a bill providing for an immigration board of five members who are to name three immigration agents in each county. The bill carries an appropriation of $15,000 Another bill offered provides for a state highway commission of three members, to be appointed, the same as the proposed immigration boards, by the governor. Their duties would be to lay out all the state roads and bridges and also to apportion the road and bridge fund.

St. Paul, March 6.—The proposition to change certain offices, the holders of which are appointed by the governor, from fees to salaries, bore fruit Saturday by a bill presented in the senate to cut off the fees of the clerk of the supreme court and make his salary $2,400 flat. As it is now, his salary is $1,500, and the fees add $2,000 more.

Another bill offered, which is likely to create considerable interest, relates to food products, and requires all baking powder containing alum to be so marked on the package, and that all vinegar must be labeled with its ingredients and the name of the manufacturer. These matters have been fought over several times in the legislature, so that it is the old story in a new form.

Another bill offered allows foreign railroad corporations to consolidate with local roads. The object of the bill is said to be to allow the Milwaukee & St. Paul road to acquire the St. Paul & Duluth, and the Chicago, Burlington and Northern to consolidate with the Burlington & Cedar Rapids.

An amendment was proposed to the game and fish laws which will allow the use of gill nets in all of our lakes during all the months of the year except April and May.

One of the bills passed requires any narrow gauge railroad to change to the standard gauge upon order of the railroad commissioner. This would affect but one road in the state, that running from Wabasha to Zumbrota.

The bill which would allow the Younger brothers to be paroled and leave the state was considered in committee of the whole, but no conclusion was reached.

In the house the bill amending the probate code so that the sale of property under execution shall wipe out the dower right, was defeated by a vote of 47 to 48.

The bill requiring the current tax on timber or mineral lands to be paid before the timber or minerals can be removed, produced a lengthy debate, but was finally passed.

Other bills passed increase the appropriation for country schools to $35,000, and allow counties to buy grounds for agricultural fairs. An unsuccessful effort was made to resuscitate the bill fixing the liquor licenses at $1,500 in cities having over 10,000 inhabitants, and $1,000 for cities under 10,000. A bill was introduced in the house creating a commission on claims, composed of the Attorney General and two Judges of the Supreme Court, whose duty it shall be to pass upon all claims against the state and upon whose award the claims are to be paid.

St. Paul, March 7.—Perhaps it was the cold weather, but at all events, the legislature was not in a working mood yesterday and but little was accomplished. The senate session was very brief, but long enough to receive Gov. Lind's appointments of a new game and fish commission. The successor of S. F. Fullerton, the head of the board, is John Beutner, of Proctor Knott, a suburb of Duluth. The other members are Jacob Danz, of St. Paul, Leonard Cramb, of St. Cloud, William Ward, of Fairmont, and Mr. Williams, of Minneapolis. There were so many committee meetings to be held that after the introduction of a few bills the senate adjourned.

Soon after the house met in the afternoon it went into committee of the whole and spent the entire session in that work. The bill relating to the compensation of the reporter of the Supreme Court caused a wind-storm.

The bill originally gave him a salary of $3,500, but it was reduced to $3,000, and recommended to pass. The next bill to elicit debate was the one introduced at the request of the Retail Grocers' and Manufacturers' Association, to prevent fraudulent assignments of wages by requiring assignments to be recorded with the city or town clerk or village recorder. After a lengthy debate the bill was laid over to be amended to remove the objections raised against it.

HALF an hour before his time expired for his hanging at Danville, Ill., Thomas Pinnex's sentence was commuted to life imprisonment.

THE Atlantic Coast Seamen's union reports a great improvement in the work of organizing the seamen of the coast during the past month.

CHURCH property is taxed in California, but a resolution for a constitutional amendment to exempt such property has been adopted by the legislature.

THE South Carolina farmers will not be allowed to sell wine from grapes grown on their own lands. The senate killed a bill to that effect, but it took the vote of the lieutenant governor to do it.

ADJOURNS SINE DIE.

Fifty-Fifth Congress Comes to Close at Washington.

The Session Marks a Memorable Epoch in American History—Much Important Legislation Enacted.

Washington, March 6.—The Fifty-fifth national congress was adjourned at noon Saturday after a session which marks a memorable epoch in American history. All of the large appropriation measures, over which a battle royal had been waged during the closing days of legislation, were passed, compromise on the more important features having been effected during the all-night vigil of the members of both houses. The senate was adjourned at 12:08 o'clock, the house at 12:10. The president expressed himself as well pleased in general with the outcome of the session of congress just closed.

CONGRESS AND ITS WORK.

Three Notable Sessions of the Fifty-Fifth National Legislature.

Washington, March 6.—The Fifty-fifth congress, which adjourned sine die at noon Saturday, will live in history for two things. First and foremost will be its patriotic spirit in connection with the war with Spain. Next will be the enormous sums carried in its appropriation bills, which exceed $1,500,000,000. It was preceded by four $1,000,000,000 congresses, but this is the first time the appropriations have exceeded $1,050,000,000. It will be lampooned with charges of extravagance, but a large part of the excess in expenditure grew out of the war—much of it in the prosecution of conflict and some of it for maintenance of the enlarged national policies in the ensuing era of peace.

The Fifty-fifth congress had three sessions, each of them marked by the enactment of legislation of great importance.

The first session passed the Dingley tariff act.

The second session gave the world a striking proof of the patriotism of the American people regardless of party by the act which placed a fund of $50,000,000 in the hands of the president to be used for the national defense—an act that was passed by a unanimous vote and with no demand upon the president for an accounting. This was supplemented by other measures upholding the hands of the commander in chief in the conduct of the war.

Unlike any previous congress, the Fifty-fifth saw the conclusion of the war which it helped to inaugurate, and in its closing session it provided men and money on a generous scale for the support of the nation in its broader career in the future.

Congress left some things undone that were to be desired, but even the friends of these policies are resigned to wait and are agreed that congress made a good record.

The sentiment of the country was for the construction of a ship canal across the American isthmus, but the project was involved in so many perplexing doubts and complications and entailed such an enormous expense that congress hesitated to commit the country to it without more light.

Hawaii was at the door asking for a permanent form of government; but here again congress wanted a delay in order to gain a better understanding of the needs of the case, and moreover it is felt the Islands can easily get along under the arrangement provided for in the annexation resolution, which continued the old government under the direction of the president.

Bound up with Hawaii and the other isles of the Pacific was the question of a cable, but that is not considered vital.

The bill for the upbuilding of the merchant marine by a system of subsidies probably had a majority of each house in its favor, but it came up too late in the session to be crowded through against the opposition of Speaker Reed and a coterie of objecting senators.

With the close of this session many senators and congressmen of national reputation will retire from service at the capitol. Senator Gorman, of Maryland, is perhaps the most conspicuous of these, because of his leadership of the democratic party.

Senator Quay is quite as conspicuous as a leader on the republican side, but he is still battling for life and has a chance to return.

Senators Turpie and Mills are famous statesmen about to give way to younger men, and Senator Allen, who has been conspicuous as a pioneer populist in the senate, will return to the quiet of a Nebraska village.

The house will lose more than a hundred of its members, some of them well known, but most of them obscure.

SCORES ARE KILLED.

Awful Result of the Explosion of a Powder Magazine Near Toulon, France.

Toulon, March 6.—The naval powder magazine of La Goubran, between La Seine and Toulon, in the department of Var, southern France, exploded at half-past two o'clock Sunday morning. All of the soldiers on duty at the magazine were killed and a number of inhabitants of the surrounding district, the buildings in which were razed, also fell victims.

Paris, March 7.—The deaths resulting from the Toulon explosion of Sunday morning number 54, and 130 persons were injured. The reports that the catastrophe was the result of a crime are renewed. The Petit Journal asserts that a fuse four feet long has been found in the ruins of the magazine.

Carl Schurz Celebrates.

New York, March 3.—The seventieth anniversary of the birth of Carl Schurz was celebrated Thursday. Congratulatory letters and telegrams were received in great numbers. Through the day close friends called to offer their congratulations in person. A cablegram of greeting came from Prince Herbert Bismarck and from 40 of the leading members of the German reichstag, and similar dispatches were received from various parts of Germany and from important cities the United States over.

Effect of a Strike.

Fort Smith, Ark., March 7.—The town of Wilburton, I. T., has been almost depopulated. No work has been done in the mines there since the strike last Wednesday and the strikers are leaving town in large numbers to seek employment in other fields. The men are quiet and orderly and no demonstration has been made, but a general exodus is in progress, which will in a few days leave the place practically uninhabited.

Iowa Republicans.

Des Moines, Ia., March 3.—The republican state central committee met here Thursday to arrange for the next state convention. Charles E. Pickett, of Waterloo, was chosen for temporary chairman of the state convention and Howard E. Tedford, of Mount Ayr, for temporary secretary. The date and location of the convention was not fixed, but it is practically agreed that it shall be held in Des Moines early in August.

Noted Artist Dead.

New York, March 6.—Michael Angelo Wolff, an artist whose pictures of little waifs had brought him note, died Sunday at the home of his sister in Brooklyn of heart disease.

Our Naval Station at San Juan.

The new United States naval station to be located at San Juan, Porto Rico, will be of the utmost importance to this country as the key to the situation when the Nicaragua canal is constructed. The key to good health is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It guards the digestive organs from attacks of indigestion, biliousness and constipation, just the same as the new naval station at San Juan will ward off attacks upon this country by foreign foes.

STRUCK A BARGAIN.

A Deal in Cow Buying That Created Bad Blood Between Neighbors.

"Blank's uglier than a bear," complained one board of trade man to another, recently. "What's the matter with him, anyhow?"

"Haven't you heard? I'll tell you on the quiet, but never intimate to him that you know a thing. It would be all your life's worth. You know he owns a fine home out north of the boulevard?"

"Off to the right near Highland Park?"

"That's the place. He has a neighbor on either side and one of them owned one of these cows that never wants to stay where she's put. She was constantly breaking into Blank's back yard, tramping the lawn to pieces, breaking the shrubbery and using the side of the house, in lieu of a straw-stack, to rub against. No fencethat would not deface the property would keep her out, and Blank decided that something must be done. He could not bear the idea of a neighborhood row, so he went to the owner of the cow, told him that she had become an intolerable nuisance and that he would gladly give $20 to have her disposed of. The offer was promptly accepted, and the money paid. A morning or two later the cow was in the yard again, destroying things just as of old. Blank hunted up his neighbor and said: 'I thought you promised me to get rid of that cow at once.'

"'I did and I have. Sold her to your neighbor on the other side for $30. Pretty good deal, wasn't it; $50 for a $25 cow?'

Blank's been mad enough to shoot ever since."—Detroit Free Press.

HEALTH IN THE HOUSEHOLD.

Injurious Labors in Home Life and How They May Be Avoided.

Among all the health-destroying occupations in which the housewife may engage none is more productive of harm than is the back-breaking, muscle-twisting, nerve-destroying operation of washing and scrubbing clothes upon the ordinary wash-board. The woman who stands over the tub inhaling the hot, unwholesome vapors cannot hope to maintain good health, to say nothing of the effect of being confined to a stooping, unnatural position, which, in time, will wreck the strongest constitution. Do not wreck health and happiness over the washtub in this day of washing machines. Get the best mechanism in this line and release yourself from the galling slavery of the wash-board—that instrument of domestic torture which is answerable for nine-tenths of the diseases with which our womankind is cursed. Take, for example, the Rocker Washer, which is the representative product in this line, and compare its work and its results with the labors of the old-style "blue Monday" wash day. Not only does this washer do the work in a fraction of the time consumed by the old-fashioned methods, but it does it much more thoroughly, the clothes being whiter, sweeter and cleaner than could possibly be the case were the garments cleaned by hand.

For the convenience of our readers who realize that the highest class article in any department of domestic equipment is not only the most satisfactory, but in the end is really the cheapest, we would state the washer in question may be had from the Rocker Washer Company, Ft. Wayne, Ind. The woman who insists upon continuing in the health-destroying methods and the man who permits such a cruel and unnecessary sacrifice has much to answer for. When work can be done more quickly and far better without the slightest risk to health it is a crime to persist in what causes such general and widespread harm. The woman who discards the washboard for the Rocker Washer will, at the end of the year, be brighter, better, healthier and happier for the change, and could never be persuaded to return again to the days of her degrading and unnecessary slavery.—J. H. Meyers, M. D., in American Journal of Health.

How hopeless the future appears, month after month the same siege with menstrual pain!

Comparatively few women understand that excessive pain indicates ill-health, or some serious derangement of the feminine organs.

DESPONDENT WOMEN

A million women have been helped by Mrs. Pinkham. Read what two of them say.

MRS. LIZZIE COLEMAN, of Wayland, N. Y., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—For years I suffered with painful menstruation and falling of womb. The bearing-down pains in my back and hips were dreadful. I could not stand for more than five minutes at a time when menstruation began. But thanks to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, my sufferings are now a thing of the past. I shall gladly recommend your medicines to all my friends."

MISS C. D. MORRIS, 3 Louisburg Square, Boston, Mass., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I have been using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has helped me wonderfully. I was troubled with headache, backache and that weak and tired feeling. I cannot say enough in praise of your medicine for it has done me so much good. I shall recommend it to all my friends who suffer."

Despondency is a disease. Nervousness and snappishness come with it. Will power won't overcome it. The feminine organs are connected by nerves with the brain and all parts of the body. These organs must be healthy or the mind is not healthy.

All low-spirited or suffering women may write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., and receive her advice free of charge. Don't wait until your life is wrecked by neglect and suffering. Get advice in time.

SIX MEN IN LOVE.

And All with a Young Lady Who Wrote Circular Love Letters.

Yes, people can come close to each other without scraping in a big city. I stumbled onto a case the other day. A few months ago I was let down the trapdoor of somebody's confidence. Men don't confide very often, but when they do they make a landslide of it.

This one did. He told me of a poor little Columbus girl who was hopelessly in love with him. Unrequited love is such a bid for sympathy, you know, and in this case it seemed so dreadfully pathetic. Poor little thing! If she could only care for some one else! But then she couldn't, he knew. He was worried, in a lofty, condescending kind of way. He hated to think that he must wreck a life on the shore of love—but then he could not care for her—for, well, she cared too much for him, you know.

Before the end of the month I was up to the ears in confidence! Six unfortunate fellows, neither of whom knew the other, were beloved by six unfortunate girls—with all of the love emanating from the female side.

I had begun to fear for the sense of the sex, when one day I called in on a lively little friend of mine in a big High street office building, and found her writing letters. "Six of them—all alike, except for the addresses," said she.

"Circular letters?" I asked.

"Yes, circular love letters," she laughed, showing the addresses.

"Marjorie! you don't mean that you are the composite young woman in love with these six men?"

"Oh, yes, I am, and it's great fun, too. And you ought to see the way they all believe it! Talk about flattering a woman! Why, they can't be touched compared to a man. Why, it has never occurred to one of them that possibly I might not mean it! Oh, yes, I'm an object of pity, all right. Let's see—I'm to commit suicide twice, go into two nunneries, and—well, die of six broken hearts some way. Oh, I'm in an awful shape.

"Yes, it is rather extravagant entertainment, but then, you know, I'm understudying a part at the theater that just needs such practice."—Ohio State Journal.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, March 10, 1899

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO

DELANO DIARY

—Fairday, Saturday, March 11.

—Everybody read the Village Financial Report.

—Boxing lessons have been added to the natructions in the High School.

—A people's caucus is called for Monday evening at City Hall, at 7:30 p. m.

—A non-partisan caucus of the voters of Delano is called for 7:30 p. m., Saturday, at the City Hall.

—The Epworth League will hold a dime social next Saturday evening, at Mrs. Maxfield's. Everybody is invited.

—Thunder and lightning awakened our citizens this morning to behold a good covering of snow on the ground.

—Among pensioners claims increased we notice this week the names of Hiram Dyer, $6 to $8; William D Freeman $8 to $10.

—Mr. Wolfenden has moved his photograph gallery from the Swedeback building, into the back rooms of the old school house, up stairs.

—If the Old Bird will try and keep a clear conscience we believe she will not be in so much fear of a big elm tree tumbling down on her some day.

—There has been a number of jolly sleighing parties lately. A couple sleigh loads of young people from Rockford, stopped off here an hour or so one night last week.

—Most of our voters seem to think Jim Hill ought to pay a little nearer what it is worth for the water furnished by the Village of Delano to run his engines through town at a mile a minute.

—The M. E. social in the City Hall last Friday evening was quite a success. The music furnished by the grammar school trio contributed largely toward making the programme enjoyable.

—The Eagle complains that GAZETTE news is a year old, and yields us "the cake". Granting so, isn't the Eagle about a week and a year old with its item, and copied from the GAZETTE in the bargain?

—Charley Redmond, who enlisted in Co. H., 5th heavy artillery, and was stationed in New York harbor for the past ten months, received an honorable discharge from the service, and visited his brother here last Monday.

—The mail from Manila arrived here last evening and many of our citizens received letters from the boys. Ours appears in another place. It contained a map of the fortifications about Manila, and a circular in the native language.

—The Eagle makes a big howl about the Village council getting about twice the pay the state law allows them. The Old Bird must have reformed since her owner sat among the fathers and proposed the very ordinance under which the present board draws pay.

—We noticed a few days ago evidence that some fellow out west either had a heart in him, or feared to share in the loss by cold, of stock shipped to the cities, and had actually nailed some building paper over the cracks in a couple of stock cars. It surely couldn't have been done by the company.

—Last night, Curtis Grafft, of Hamline, who has been visiting with his brother in-law, C. J. Buckley and family for the past couple of weeks, was surprised by a large and jolly party of friends and acquaintances, at the latter's home on North 3rd street. A very pleasant time was had; the party not disbanding until after twelve o'clock. A nice lunch, consisting of sandwitches, cake, ice cream and other delicacies was served by Mrs. Buckley. Everybody joined in pronouncing it one of the most enjoyable parties of the season.

—On Monday morning Mrs. John Stein, living about three miles south of Delano, became tired of living and undertook to commit suicide by eating Paris Green from a whisp broom which had been used to sprinkle potato vines last summer, with a mixture of flour, Paris green and water. The broom had been washed out but particles of the dough containing the poison adhered to the broom straws, these she picked off and swallowed, straw and all. After a couple of hours she vomited some of the green stuff and her husband sent to town for medical help. The woman wouldn't admit until Monday afternoon that she had taken the poison. She has recovered from her perilous undertaking, and concluded to live awhile longer.

Valley Herald: Gov. Lind has been overwhelmed with messages of congratulations over his veto of the beet sugar bounty bill. The messages come alike from republicans democrats and populists—farmers and business men.

Exchange: Parents and teachers are so often mistaken in their estimate of a child, that one is not surprised to learn that when Phil Sheridan's chance for an appointment to West Point hung in the balance, and Senator Ewing told the father that there was a likelihood of his being able to get the appointment for one of his boys, the grateful father said, "Well, if it's after books ye want him, better send Mike; but if it's for fighting ye want him, Phil's the fellow ye want." And yet we know that it needs no mean ability in an intellectual way to pass the ordeal at West Point.

Personal.

John and Leo Coolen, of Smith Lake visited Delano friends last week.

F. G. Nott, a former Delanoite was seen driving into town yesterday.

Boss carpenter James Nelson, of the G. N was a Delano visitor Saturday.

Road Boss John Mayer, of the G. N. was at home Sunday with his family.

Earl Hobington and John McGary represented Independence in Delano this week.

J. W. Milligan, of the Murray cure Institute, Minneapolis, visited this vicinity this week.

A. E. Johnson and wife came home Wednesday from the City and a visit at Belle Point.

J. F. Lee, County Superintendent, visited Delano professionally, Wednesday and Thursday.

Miss Sadie Van Eaton, of Watertown stopped in town last night on her way home from St. Paul.

Sam Coffin and room mate, Charles Morris, a son of Congressman Morris, from the "U" visited Delano last Saturday.

Mrs. John Coolen and Julia and Laura came down from Smith Lake yesterday evening for a visit with Delano relatives and friends.

Word was received here yesterday that Mrs. Kier had been killed at her home near Howard Lake.

The Howard Lake Herald has an account of the affair stating that A. Nelson called at Kiers' house about 9 a. m. and was told to come in when he knocked. He saw Mrs K. on the bed with one limb hanging out covered with blood. He got out and spread the alarm.

Kier had been in the insane asylum twice. Was there at the time of the Boxell murders. Mrs. Kier was a Miss Sarah Boxell, daughter of the murdered Boxell. Kier was handcuffed and brought to Howard Lake. A child 20 months old was unharmed.

The aboye is from a letter from Horace Lunsford, Manila, in the Dassel Anchor.

Oregon Agriculturist: Mutton from Australia has recently been sold in Portland and the Sound cities. It is peculiar that mutton should be imported into a state which sends to market every year close to a million sheep, and Australian mutton is not likely to come to Portland very often.

Sherburne County Star News: There is more talk of Secretary Alger resigning. Alger will never resign until he has to. He is the most disturbing element in the cabinet, and his resignation would be a calamity from which the country would recover with astonishing rapidity.

Anoka Herald: Mr. Alger didn't worry so much over the difficulties our soldiers encountered chewing the beef last summer as he does now with their chewing the rag about it.

Waseca Herald: Gen. Pope has unearthed a number of irregularities in the accounts of various state institutions, and discovers that Kenyon "left the cupboard bare" when he retired.

Carlton County Vidette Anything done by the democratic senators to prevent the passing of the bill that will saddle a large standing army on the country will be approved by the party.

St. Peter Herald: A Duluth man has filed a petition in bankruptcy under the new law, in which his liabilities are placed at $138,567, with $58 assets. Verily the new bankruptcy law is the poor man's friend.

Le Sueur Sentinel: The Thirteenth Minnesota at Manila had a chance to show what kind of stuff they were made of the other day when the attempt was made to burn the city by Philippinos. It is gratifying to their friends at home here that they were equal to the emergency.

Sherburne County Times: It was rumored last week that Sec'y Alger was about to tender his resignation of the War portfolio. Unfortunately it was only a rumor. While there are many charges against the secretary that are doubtless untrue still we believe where there is much smoke there must be some fire.

THE delights of an evening spent around a well-lighted reading table are not half understood. An illustrated magazine with its wealth of illustrations, its stories of adventure and love, its descriptions of travel which carry you to the remotest ends of the earth, and its instructive articles for young and old—these are the first requisites for your own enjoyment and the entertainment and proper education of your children.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal,

Both Together One Year for Only $1.80

In this way you secure your own home paper and an illustrated magazine at a price that is only about a fourth of what some of the illustrated magazines sell for. For three years The Cosmopolitan has undisputedly claimed that it reached the largest clientele possessed by any periodical, daily, weekly or monthly, in the world. It was The Cosmopolitan which sent Julian Hawthorne to India to let the world know the real horrors of famine and plague. It was The Cosmopolitan which established at its own cost a great Free Correspondence University which now has over 20,000 students on its rolls. It was The Cosmopolitan which offered a prize of $3,000 for the best horseless carriage and prizes for best plans for public baths, and best arrangement of sewer and pipe systems for cities. It was The Cosmopolitan which set the presidents of great schools and universities seriously discussing the defects of existing educational systems. It is The Cosmopolitan whose enterprise is always in the lead in advancing the world's civilization.

"OLDEST AND BEST"
With the SPECIAL CABLES
OF THE NEW YORK HERALD

We have also succeeded in arranging for two additional offers in connection with this journal and The Cosmopolitan.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $1.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

All Three Together for Only $2.25

One other opportunity we offer you. You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine

RECESSIONAL.

God of our fathers, known of old—
Lord of our farflung battle line—
Beneath whose awful hand we hold
Dominion over palm and pine—
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget!

The tumult and the shouting dies—
The captains and the kings depart;
Still stands thine ancient sacrifice,
An humble and a contrite heart.
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget!

Far-called our navies melt away—
On dune and headlands sinks the fire—
Lo, all our pomp of yesterday
Is one with Nineveh and Tyre!
Judge of the nations, spare us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget!

If drunk with sight of power we loose
Wild tongues that have not thee in awe—
Such boasting as the Gentiles use
Or lesser breeds without the law—
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget!

For heathen heart that puts her trust
In reeking tube and iron shard—
All valiant dust that builds on dust,
And guarding calls not thee to guard—
For frantic boast and foolish word,
Thy mercy on thy people, Lord!
Amen. —Rudyard Kipling.

REPUBLICANS seem to be first class expansionists when it comes to expanding the indebtedness of our nation.

THE Prison Mirror announces a change of editors. It takes a pretty good hand at the business to keep the paper up to its standard.

IT is claimed that Hon. C. K. Davis is one of those who believe in the doctrine of never haul down the flag. But how about his flag of truce in the Ex-Gov. Merriam matter?

REGULARLY every two years comes the efforts to free the Younger boys from the Stillwater penitentiary. If they are released all other prisoners confined in the institution have a right to expect the same treatment. Might as well shut up shop.

TROOPS are in demand. They are called for in Henson, Col. to suppress rioting strikers. In Palmetto, Ga. they are called on to preserve the lives of whites against negroes, nine negroes having been shot while in jail. In Minnesota it is expected that the Indians will be troublesome again in the spring. This is a great administration for soldiers.

IT seems the St. Paul Globe has concluded to change editors. G. F. Gifford, managing editor, becoming editor in chief; vice, G. F. Spinney returned to New York. New York politics probably agree better with Mr. Spinney's notions than do the Minnesota kind. It is to be hoped the new editor, who, by the way, has put the old head on the paper again will be more in harmony with Minnesota democracy than it has lately.

LAST nights reports from Manila say that after a severe engagement Americans in the Philippines took Cainti, a town of 700 inhabitants. A large number of natives were slain and 17 of our men wounded. This kind of acquisition of territory might suit some folks, but we don't see the use of having our men killed off and of shooting down Filipinos in that fashion for years as the Spaniards have been doing. We have been at it for a month already.

How It Looks at Manila.

From the St. Cloud Times we clip a few items of interest concerning Philippine matters as looked at by one who is there. The letter is taken from the Melrose Beacon and was written by Herbert Morrison, of Company M. 13th Minn. Vols., Jan. 27, to his brother. It says:

"We are having all kinds of trouble with the natives. We are called out most every night to repel an attack. It seems as if Gen. Otis is afraid of them, for at every little rumor he calls us out. The other day some fellows on the main street "Escolta" started running after a pick pocket and got a crowd on the run when somebody hallooed, "the Filipinos are coming," and we were called out and kept out all the afternoon. Our company is assigned to the bridge of Spain. In case of an attack we'll have a hard fight to keep them from crossing over. We'll give them the best and hottest time for their money they ever had.

Dewey is dead against holding the islands, and is working hard to get them to let the natives have all but Cavite and Manila under a protector ate, and see what they will do. If the people in the States who want these islands would come over here and take a look at them they would not take them as a gift.

Up to date what have the people gained by electing John Lind governor? —Anoka Union.

An increased respect for the Republican party.—Duluth News Tribune.

Some of the Republican party is entitled to respect for helping elect John Lind instead of William Henry.

What apology has Senator Hoar got to offer for his "second Washington," who allowed his men to fire on a flag of truce?—Minneapolis Tribune.

Probably about the same excuse the Tribune would offer for having such a man as it claims Hoar is in the United States Senate.

Courier Journal: Alger's reindeer have at last reached Dawson City. It would have been much better both for Alger and the country if he had superintended in person the job of taking them there."

That sems to be the verdict all along the line.

Plant and Seed Distribution

The Minnesota State Forestry Association is making the following very valuable offer as an inducement to obtain new members, and for the purpose of obtaining data and awakening interest in forestry matters, to those that agree to report results. The membership fee of the association is ond dollar, no after fees; and all of its publications are sent postpaid to members as issued.

Besides a handsome bound copy of its recent publication, "Forrestry in Minnesota," (a 310 page treatise on the subject—one of the best and most concise works ever issued), worth in itself the cost of membership; any two (2) of the following premiums will be sent postpaid upon receipt of $1 25. Book to be forwarded immediately, and plants at proper season.

50 Box Elder, Green Ash or White Elm Seedlings.

20 Black Walnut, Basswood, Hackberry or European Larch.

25 Golden Willow Cuttings.

15 White Spruce, Norway Spruce, Douglas Spruce, Scotch Pine, White Pine, Ponderosa Pine, Arbor Vitae, Red Cedar or Balsam Fir.

Trial packages of forest seeds sent free to residents of this state upon receipt of postage (2 cents per packet); also paper bound copies of "Forestry of Minnesota" (postage 5 cents). Address, GEO. W. STRAND, Sec'y, Taylor Falls, Minn.

From Manilla.

MANILA, Feb. 2. 1899.

FATHER. We are now at the stage of a soldier where we don't care whether school runs or not.

We had the first batallion drill under the Major this morning that we have had for some time, since we left the United States I think.

The band has been moved from I quarters to a building near ours, so we have the regulation retreat roll call. We have a fine guard mount now. The Major says it is the best on the island, and the regiment that puts up anything like it is the 23d regulars, and that there isn't a man but what is fit for anybody's orderly.

* * * *

Things seem to point to our departure within the next six or eight months at least.

The officers had a reception the other day. Gen. Reeve said we would be out of here by the end of three weeks; but what he says is little thought of by the boys, because he tries to jolly them which is a very bad thing.

As the mail closes now I shall close for the present (Feb. 3) and write soon. Yours truly,

ALVA G. CATLIN.

P. S. All the boys are well.

There is a circus in town. Soldiers $1, Filipinos 50 cents, officers free.

In the same mail I send nine Americans. ALVA.

MANILA, Jan. 28, 1899.

FATHER. These are pieces of bone I picked up in the Paco grave yard. The grave yard has a stone wall all around it, and in some places the wall is split, so as to make an oval opening and stairs to go up the side, where the Spaniards throw the remains of people after they are taken from the vaults. In the stone wall are holes or vaults where people (Spanish and natives) pay so much per year to bury their dead, and when they don't come around to pay their rent, the bodies are taken out and thrown into the boneyard. This kind of barbarious work has gone on for many years.

I will also send you some pictures. No. 1. A funeral of a member of our company (Ole Tikken) over whose grave I played taps. No. 2 was taken on your birthday, Jan. 5, '99 in front of the guard house. I was musician of the day. No. 3 of the company. I was not there. No. 4, of me.

Will write more soon.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 10, 1899.

The republican leaders are laying the wires for a financial fake that is expected to tide the party over the Presidential campaign. The caucus committee of Representatives elected to the next Congress, chosen to prepare a financial bill for the republicans, met in Washington this week and agreed to meet again at Atlantic City the 15th of next month. How this thing strikes a veteran political observer may be judged by the following words of ex-Congressman Dolliver, of Mo., in relation thereto: "The republican caucus committee is now engaged in making a pretense of doing that which they have no intention of doing—the framing of a measure for currency reform. They will do their best, and I guess will succeed in staving of any change in the financial statutes until after McKinley has been a candidate for another term. Their heroic and vociferous assertion that they will do anything at all, does not fool me." It is probable that the committee will get up some sort of a bill, but it will be purposely made meaningless. Mr. McKinley has no idea of allowing any real financial legislation before the Presidential election.

Senator Jones, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, has had a second attack of heart trouble, similar to to the one that laid him up several weeks before Congress adjourned, but neither his physician nor his family regard his condition as dangerous as it has been represented to be in telegrams sent from Washington. The doctor thinks the Senator will be all right, if he will remain perfectly quiet for about a month and not attempt to attend to any business whatever. Those who know the energetic make up of the Senator will understand how difficult it wil be for him to meet the doctor's wishes.

Gen. Wilson, Chief of Engineers, under whom Gen. Hale, who is making a fighting record in the Philippines, served from the time he graduated from West Point with the highest standing in studies ever attained, until he resigned from the army to engage in private business, at Denver, Colo., said of him: "He was the most remarkable man I have ever known, both in his studies and in his abilities and I am delighted to hear that he has made out so well. He is young enough to attain almost any rank if he should stay in the army." Gen. Hale entered the volunteer army as Colonel of the First Colorado Regiment, and was promoted to Brigadier General last August. He is only 37 years old.

It is reported and generally believed in Washington that Secretary Alger has offered to resign, provided Mr. McKinley will allow him to name his successor. How is that for gall? That such an offer should have been made indicates that Alger has a hold upon Mr. McKinley that compels the latter to defer to him. It would not change the situation a particle for Alger to retire from the Cabinet, if he was succeeded by a man selected by himself, to continue the system that has been aptly called Algerism and to cover up all its past defects. Mr. McKinley's wisest advisers are trying to get him to defy Alger, force him to resign, and to put a man in his place whose name will convince the country that he will not allow a continuance of Algerism. This advice would have been adopted long ago only it has failed to get the endorsement of Boss Hanna, who alone knows how many damaging secrets connected with '96 Alger could and doubtless would tell, if not let down easy.

The report that the Attorney General of the U. S. was about to begin proceedings against the Standard Oil Company for violating the Anti-Trust law was too good to be true. There is no doubt that the Standard Oil trust and a score of others are constantly violating the Anti-Trust law, but the obligations of the present administration to trusts, as well as the close business relations existing between some of the men who now dominate the republican party with trusts, are such that nothing short of actual conviction of them would convince anybody that any serious prosecution of trusts will take place under this administration. When the Presidential campaign opens there may be a bluff made towards prosecuting trusts, for the benefit of the very gullible voters.

Mr. Daniel O Leary, chief factory inspector of New York, testified before the Industrial Commission, now sitting in Washington, that he had reported to the War Department some time ago that clothing for the U. S. Army was being made in the sweat shops of New York city, which shows how much sincerity there is in the claim of the republican party to be the friend of the working classes. Mr. O'Leary said the prices paid for this work were about as follows: coats 32½ cts, infantry pants 22 cents, cavalry pants from 26 to 35 cents, and vests from 11 to 14 cents. Nice friendship, to be a party to making men and women work for such prices, isn't it?

There are reasons for saying that some sensational testimony will be given in support of the charges of General Miles when the Military Court of Inquiry returns from its present need less trip to Chicago. The latest rumor is that the canned meat which made so many soldiers sick will be proved to have been horse meat and no beef at all.

TWO SUNBEAMS.

Straight through a casement, open wide,
A sunbeam found its way,
And down upon the cottage floor
A shaft of brightness lay.

Sent from the gay, glad outer world,
A messenger apart,
It glorified the humble room,
And cheered the matron's heart.

It coaxed the little one from play,
And mocked, with true delight,
The vain attempts of baby hands
To grasp the lance of light.

"Catch if you can," it seemed to say.
"I'd willing captive be."
And danced before the wondering eyes
To the tune of baby glee.

Bright shone the little golden head
As it flitted here and there,
As though the sun itself had lent
Of its shining store a share.

And mother caught her darling up,
In the midst of his fruitless chase,
And showered kisses, warm and soft,
On the pretty baby face.

"You cannot catch the sunshine,
Though you followed the wide world through;
You're mother's little sunbeam, dear,
And she has caught you, too!

"Two sunbeams have I in my home;
Dark would it be, and drear,
Without the bright ray on the floor,
And the bright face shining here!

"God owns the sunlight, but He gave
This precious beam to mother.
Content am I to call one mine
And entertain the other."

Straight through the casement, open wide,
The sunbeam crept away,
And twilight shadows, stealing through,
Foretold the end of day.

The outer world in darkness lay,
But mother's heart was light,
For a golden head and a baby face
Kept home forever bright.

THE CALIPH'S CUP OF WATER

By David Kerr

THE sun was setting red and sullenly over a battlefield in western Asia, upon which two great armies had been contending since daybreak.

Barely 15 years had elapsed since the death of Mohammed, and already the strong arms and sharp swords of his soldier disciples had spread the faith of Islam through every land from Syria to Morocco, and now the turn of Persia had come at last.

The native warriors fought as stoutly as men could do; but they were matched with men who had never met their equal in war.

Caliph Omar, wiping his heated face with the sleeve of his robe, watched keenly the giving away, little by little, of the pointed Persian helmets before the white Arab turbans, and hurled upon the wavering enemy, just at the decisive moment, the thousand picked men whom he had hitherto held in reserve.

"Fight bravely, my sons!" was his last charge to them; "for God Himself fights for you. But should ye meet with a Persian chief, wearing a lion-skin cloak and gold-inlaid helmet, whose name is Harmosan, the satrap (governor) of Yezd, kill him not, but bring him to me alive; for men say he is the bravest warrior in Persia, and I would fain see him with my own eyes."

This sudden charge of fresh and vigorous troops upon men exhausted with a long day of hard fighting was quite irresistible.

The Persians gave way on all sides; the sacred standard of the shah was trampled in the dust and the few who still strove to hold their ground were overwhelmed by numbers.

The whole field was in a whirl of flight and pursuit, and only in one spot, where a solitary clump of palm trees broke the gray, unending level of the boundless plain, a clamor of shouts and clashing weapons showed that resistance had not yet wholly ceased.

Beneath those trees, with his back against the largest trunk, stood a tall, noble-looking man, in the prime of life, with large black eyes, which flashed as fiercely as the sword that played like lightning amid the wild faces and tossing arms of his swarming enemies.

More than one broken arrow head was sticking in his breast plate; the silver buckler on his left arm was hacked and dented, as if by the blows of a sledge hammer; his armor was dyed red with more than one wound.

But he still held his ground unflinchingly, striking right and left with the strength of a giant, and never once in vain.

But such a fight was too unequal to last. The brave man's arm began to wax weary, his strength to fail. Closer and closer to him gleamed the merciless spear heads, and in another moment all would have been over, when suddenly a powerful voice broke through the din of the fray:

"Hold your hands, brothers! perchance this may be the man whom the commander of the faithful bade us spare!"

The Arabs made way for the newcomer (who was no other than the captain of the caliph's guard), and he looked keenly at the hard-pressed man for the signs by which the famous satrap was to be distinguished. But he looked in vain. The stranger's cloak was gone, and his helmet so battered and stained that the keenest eye could not have told the color of its metal.

"Persian!" cried the captain, at length, "art thou Harmosan, the satrap of Yezd? If so, our swords have no edge against thee, if thou wilt but yield to the caliph's mercy."

But the Persian answered only with a blow, which, had it hit its mark, would have ended the captain's wars once for all. A gigantic Yemenee rushed forward only to fall dead beneath another of those irresistible strokes; but now the Persian's sword snapped close to the hilt, and he was left defenseless.

"We have him now!" shouted the captain. "Seize him and bind him fast!"

Despite the stranger's tremendous struggles, he was overpowered by numbers, and securely bound. But to all the taunts of his captors he deigned not a word of reply, and maintained the same stern silence, even when he was dragged into the presence of the caliph himself.

As he listened to the recital of his prisoner's exploits, Omar eyed him with a look of grim approval; and the captive, in his turn, surveyed with equal admiration this prince of the desert, who, master as he was, of nine powerful kingdoms, was sitting cross-legged upon the bare ground, in a rough cloak of camel's hair, and supping on a handful of dates and parched corn.

"Knowest thou," said Omar, at length, with a stern look, "what fate awaits him who hath shed the blood of the faithful?"

"I have fought for my country," answered the prisoner. "I am in thy power, and I ask no mercy. Let the fate that awaits me be what it may, it is all one to me."

Omar's eyes sparkled; for, brave as a lion himself, he loved nothing better than a brave man, whether friend or foe.

"Methinks there is but one man in Persian host who could speak to me so," cried he. "Art thou Harmosan, the satrap of Yezd?"

"I am," replied the Persian, drawing himself up proudly. "I would not tell my name in the battle, lest it should seem that I did so because thou hadst bidden thy men spare me; but it matters little who knows it now. I am Harmosan, the soldier of Persia, and thine enemy!"

Even the fierce Arabs around him smiled approvingly at the fearless words, and more than one voice was heard to mutter:

"This is a bold fellow, and worthy to be one of the faithful! Pity that he must die!"

"Persian," said Omar, "I may not give thee thy life; but to show how the prophet's followers honor courage, any other request thou canst make is granted before it is uttered!"

"Give me a cup of water, then," answered Harmosan; "for since this day's fight began, my thirst hast not been quenched."

Omar nodded, and a black slave brought forward a large silver cup, filled to the brim with clear, sparkling water; but, instead of drinking, the prisoner held it doubtfully in his hand.

"What now, friend?" cried the caliph, impatiently. "If thou fearest treachery, be easy; for I pledge thee my word that none shall harm thee till thou hast drank that water."

Quick as lightning, Harmosan dashed the cup to the ground and said, with a mocking smile:

"Bid thy men, then, gather up that water from the sand; for, by thine own pledge, I am safe till I drink it!"

There was a moment of amazed silence, and then the outwitted Arabs rushed at him with a savage yell; but high above the uproar was heard the commanding voice of Omar:

"A caliph's word is sacred, my children. Bring the brave Persian another cup of water, and as I once bade him drink and die, so now I bid him drink and live."—Golden Days.

Worked Until the Last.

An anecdote of the late Pierre Puvis de Chavannes, given on the authority of M. Octave Mirbeau, deserves to take a permanent place in the annals of painting. "Feeling himself very ill," says M. Mirbeau, "he sent for his medical adviser. 'My dear friend,' said he, 'I want to know exactly how long I have to live. For weeks past, in order that I might take better care of myself, I have neglected my work. I want to complete my fresco before I die. I ask you for the truth—the real truth!' 'Eh bien!' gravely replied the doctor, 'you perhaps have eight more days to live.' The same day he went into his studio and commenced to work furiously. For a whole week he painted ten hours a day, only abandoning his canvas when with increasing weakness the brush fell from his hand."—Studio.

Little Courtesies.

There is often something luminous about a child's definition. Every American will agree with the little lad in a board school in England who in an examination on Scripture subjects gave an original answer to the question: "What can you tell me about Moses?"

"Please, sir, he was a gentleman," replied the little fellow.

"A gentleman!" repeated the inspector. "What do you mean by that?"

"Please, sir, when the daughters of Jethro went to the well to draw water, the shepherds came and drove them away, and Moses helped the daughters of Jethro and said to the shepherds: 'Ladies first, please, gentlemen.'"—Youth's Companion.

Independence Politics.

MR. EDITOR. Is it not about time for our soldiers at the Philippines to pull for the shore, that is come home. It will be very hot weather there in a short time and our men can not stand that climate. A year has passed since the war between Spain and the United States begun, with the expansion policy as an accompaniment and the trouble is yet unsettled. The courtes of Spain have not yet ratified the treaty, and when will the exchange be made. The question naturally arises in the minds of the people, how long will this thing last. If this is a righteous cause and for the benefit of all connected with it, then no doubt it will come out all right in the end, but party prejudice should not crop out in this matter, the question should be, is it wright or is it wrong. A year or two ago when it seemed there would be trouble between England and the United States in regard to the line between Venezuela and British Guiana the Monroe doctrine was quoted by every newspaper, and says hands off. The main clause of the Monroe doctrine reads like this: We owe it to candor and to the amicable relations existing between the United States and the allied powers to declare that we should consider any attempt on their part to extend their system to any portion of this hemisphere as dangerous to our peace and safety.

Now if the language of the Monroe Doctrine I have just quoted is binding on the Jew is it not also binding on the Gentile as well

Of late years it has become manifest that the interest of the North the South, the East and the West are not always the same, and sometimes it makes Legislation difficult, and causes more or less friction. Now if we extend our public domain beyond the limits it will tend to increase this difficulty in legislation.

Our public domain was large enough before. It is estimated by official count that aliens own land in this country to the amount of 20,000,000 acres, in large tracts from 50,000 acres and up to 200,000. Why is this prodigal waste? The yeomanry of the country should have this land for homes and to cultivate. We believe in the rights and protection of our American citizens as much as any man, let him be saint or sinner, and that our laws and free institutions should be maintained.

The leaders of our government are only human. They are not infallible. They are our servants and not our masters, and the people are the government. But of late years it seems many of our good people have lost sight of the things that should most concern us, and gone into foolishness and frivolity. They seem to turn a deaf ear to the important questions at issue.

Bicycle racing, foot ball playing, prize fighting, and even a dog fight, will attract more attention than a gospel convention. This is the way Rome went. Shall we go and do likewise? God forbid.

We are a religious and civilized nation, standing at the head of christianized powers, and yet we are manufacturing the most destructive implements of war that can be conceived by the ingenuity of man.

If the war with Spain was for humanity, as claimed, then it should stop there.

It is said there is 20,000 in and around Havana, Cuba, that must be fed, and this country is called on for help. Our expences are getting very heavy. The appropriation of our last Congress was $1,573,304,633. This is quite a little sum, and I fear this is only the beginning. Our army and navy will have a big pay roll.

It seems in this war the President appoints all the commissioned officers. During the war of the Rebellion the different companies elected their own officers and their commissions were given by the governor of the state.

There are in the United States over 50 distinct secret orders, with more than 70,000 lodges and 5,000,000 members.

Hawaii's foreign trade last years was over $29,000,000, an increase of $5,200,000 over the preceding year, and the net gain in population in 1898 was 9,916.

The report of the Indian department shows that there are 325,464 red skins still with us, and that the total number in the country has only decreased 62,765 during the past 50 years.

It is perhaps not generally known that the German emperor has a paper published and printed exclusively for himself and for the empress. It is the Imperial Gazette of Berlin, containing a clear and concise daily summary of the world's news. The edition of this paper consists of two copies, doubtless the smallest edition of any paper published.

Among the residents of New York city are seven former cabinet officers. Cornelius N. Bliss has recently retired as secretary of the interior, William M. Evarts was in the cabinet under both Johnson and Hayes, Gen. James was with Garfield, Gen. Fairchild with Cleveland's first cabinet, Mr. Carlisle and Mr. Lamont with his second cabinet and Carl Schurz with Hayes.

Art does not seem to be deteriorating in America, if the demand for American pictures can be accepted as an index of conditions. At the recent sale in New York of Thomas B. Clarke's collection of American paintings some 400 pictures sold for an aggregate of $306,930, a landscape by George Inness bringing $10.150, the highest price ever paid at an auction for a picture by an American artist.

The mayor of Boston has given orders for the extermination of the English sparrows, which, it may be recalled, were imported into this country in spite of the warnings of some distinguished ornithologists. But Boston has a job ahead of her. The English sparrow seems to be able to increase and multiply faster than a man with a gun can decrease and subtract.

Floyd Edward Whiteman, a student who is totally blind, is the most interesting figure at Cornell university in Ithaca, N. Y. He is taking the regular law course of three years, having entered two years ago. A fellow student reads all his books for him and the blind youth has such a remarkable memory that he knows them all nearly by heart. His examination papers are typewritten by himself and are marvels of neatness and accuracy.

"Uncle" Edmund Parker, the faithful old negro who stood guard at Washington's tomb for 25 years, died a few days ago. He was born in 1827, a slave of Mrs. John Augustine Washington. During the civil war he was cook for the Ellsworth zouaves, and since then has been the guard at the Washington tomb, an office which this old slave considered the highest honor that could be conferred on him. He has been succeeded by another ex-slave who is 74 years old.

According to the New York World Dr. Chauncey Depew is at present chairman of the board of the Vanderbilt lines and a director in the New York Central, Lake Shore, Michigan Central, Nickel Plate, Big Four, Chicago & Northwestern, Vanderbilt leased lines, Equitable Life, Mercantile Trust company, Union Trust company, Western national bank and Western Union Telegraph. It is surmised that he accepted the position of senator from his state just to have something with which to occupy his leisure time.

Seldom does a high promotion meet with such unanimous assent as does the elevation of George Dewey to the rank of a full admiral of the United States navy. Americans of every age and rank agree that the promotion is deserved. The unanimous vote by which the bill was passed to reestablish the rank of admiral for Dewey's benefit is in itself a rare tribute to the esteem in which the victor of Manila is held by the nation. Furthermore, by a provision of the bill that gave him this rank, he is exempted from retirement for ten years.

Congressman James R. Young, of Pennsylvania, represents the most populous district in the United States. It lies in that portion of Philadelphia which has been growing for years. It is the district formerly represented by the late William Kelley, known for many years as "Pigiron Kelley, the father of the house." By the census of 1890 Mr. Young's district contained a population of about 310,000 people. Since that time the number has materially increased until to-day it is estimated that James R. Young represents 450,000 American citizens.

The state railways of Sweden are the latest to apply to American manufactures of locomotives for new engines, orders for 20 of these having been placed in this country. It is only by accident that the Americans have secured this trade, the orders having been first proffered to English concerns, who were compelled to refuse because of their inability to deliver soon enough to meet the requirements. But the accident was quite as lucky for the Swedes as for the Americans. The former will now have a chance to learn what first-class locomotives really are.

MOVE ON INSURGENTS

Three Filipino Towns Captured by Gen. Wheaton.

Guadalupe, San Nicolas and Pasig Now in Hands of Americans—Thirty Killed and Many Prisoners Taken.

Manila, March 14.—James H. Creelman cables the New York Journal: Gen. Wheaton's flying column began the great forward movement against the insurgents Monday morning by a rapid and well executed movement against the enemy's country. Gen. Wheaton captured three towns and cut off the wing of Aguinaldo's army north of Manila from all connection with his troops to the south. The towns of Guadalupe, San Nicolas and Pasig were captured in succession, and a large section of the Filipino army driven beyond the Pasig. The Filipinos lost 30 killed, and many prisoners were taken.

The capture of Guadalupe was effected with the aid of a gunboat, which advanced up the Pasig river and shelled the jungles on either bank. Gen. Wheaton followed the retreating Tagalos relentlessly. After Guadalupe, San Nicolas fell into the hands of the Americans. The advance continued as far as the Pasig river, in front of the town of Pasig.

The fugitives crossed to the opposite bank and made a stand in Pasig for an hour. But Scott's battery shelled the town vigorously, and the Filipinos retreated again. The Americans crossed the river and hoisted their flag over Pasig.

Divides Insurgent Forces.

It is the most skillful maneuver of the American troops yet carried into effect in the Philippine fight. Gen. Wheaton is now in absolute possession of the ground between the two main wings of the rebel army. Reenforcements cannot be sent to the insurgents, for Gen. Wheaton's men have closed all the roads and avenues between the north and south.

The Casualties.

New York, March 14.—Following is the Journal's revised list of the casualties in Monday's fighting at Manila:

Killed—Privates Stewart, Twentieth infantry; Munson, Twenty-second infantry; James L. Kline, Twentieth Kansas.

Wounded—Corp. Chris Thompson and Privates L. Folger, Charles Davis, Thomas Miller, R. Piper, C. Sumner and Matthew Sharkey, of the Twentieth infantry; Privates Charles Easley, Theodore Misner, John Blazek, William O'Brien, William Rhinehard and Willet Harmon, Twenty-second infantry; Private Walter Irvine.

Orders Negotiations Discontinued.

London, March 14.—It is reported from Manila that Gen. Otis has ordered discontinuance of the negotiations between the Spanish Gen. Rios and Aguinaldo for release of Spanish prisoners on payment of a heavy indemnity. Such payment would strengthen the Filipino cause by replenishing the insurgent treasury.

Lawton Reaches Manila.

Manila, March 11.—The remains of Col. W. E. Smith, Maj. E. McConville, Capt. David S. Elliott and Second Lieut. Eugene S. French, who were killed in action, were shipped home Friday by the United States transport Scandia with military honors, the Second Oregon volunteers furnishing the escort through the city.

Maj. Gen. Lawton, who arrived here Friday on board the United States transport Grant from New York on January 19, landed and formally reported to Maj. Gen. Otis, after which he returned on board the Grant. The troops that reached here on board the Grant will be disembarked immediately.

The Grant carried to Manila the Fourth infantry and four companies of the Seventeenth infantry. This adds to the troops under the command of Gen. Otis 42 officers, 1,716 enlisted men.

Gen. Miller to Retire.

Washington, March 10.—A change in command of the United States forces at Iloilo will occur on March 27, resulting from the retirement of Gen. Marcus Miller, who, on that date, reaches the age limit of 64 years. Gen. Miller is in the regular service, having been promoted only recently to the rank of brigadier general. He will be succeeded in the natural order of promotion by Col. Thomas M. Anderson, who now ranks as a brigadier general of volunteers.

Railways Badly Cripled.

Milwaukee, March 13.—Most of the railroads between Milwaukee and St. Paul are in a crippled condition on account of the storm in the northwestern part of the state. Throughout the Wisconsin Valley districts, large drifts are reported, the snow being from one to four feet on the level and the drifts much higher. The snow that accompanied the blizzard is not the only condition that the railroads are fighting. Many of the streams in eastern Minnesota and northwestern Wisconsin overflowed Friday and Saturday and in territory west and north of LaCrosse, there are bad washouts.

Awarded the Laetare Medal.

South Bend, Ind., March 13.—The third woman to receive the Laetare medal is Mary Gwendolen Caldwell, now Marquise de Merinville, the fact of the award to her being made known Saturday by Dr. Zahn, of the University of Notre Dame. The medal is given in recognition of distinguished services rendered for religion, education or morals. Mme. Caldwell was the chief founder of the Catholic University of America, her contribution of $300,000 making the beginning of the institution possible.

Welcome News.

Chicago, March 11.—More than 3,000 employes of the roadway department of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific railroad are to be made happy by an increase in pay. Vice President and General Manager Parker, of the company, gave notice Friday that, commencing at once, every section hand and employe of the roadway department on every line of the 3,600 miles of the big system would have his wages advanced from five to ten per cent.

Monument for Winnie Davis.

Richmond, Va., March 10.—The design for the statue to be erected in Hollywood over the grave of Miss Winnie Davis, the "Daughter of the Confederacy," has been chosen and approved by Mrs. Davis. The design, which is by Zolvey, of New York, is the figure of a sitting angel. It is to be of Italian marble and will be erected by the Daughters of the Confederacy.

TO REMAIN NEUTRAL.

Secretary Hay Informs Italy as to Our Position in the Chinese Question.

Washington, March 10.—The Italian government, through its representatives in Washington, lately laid before the authorities here its purpose to ask of China a port on San Mun bay, and has invited an expression from this government as to its attitude. In response it is understood that Secretary Hay, as well as the president, made it clear that the United States would pursue the same course as toward the Russian, British and German occupation of Chinese ports, namely, disinterested neutrality. The exchanges have been verbal and rather informal, more in the nature of diplomatic soundings than direct propositions. They have given occasion to erroneous publications to the effect that Italy had asked the United States to support her demands on China, and that this government in a pointed note from Secretary Hay had refused. It is stated in an eminent and authoritative quarter that Italy made no such request for American support, and that there was no declination from this government.

London, March 11.—A Rome correspondent of the Daily Mail says the government has ordered three more cruisers to get in readiness to proceed to Chinese waters in connection with the demand of Italy for a concession at San Mun, province of Che-Kiang. A dispatch from Rome on Tuesday announces that a squadron of five Italian cruisers, with 100 guns and 1,500 men, would soon arrive at San Mun bay.

London, March 10.—The Shanghai correspondent of the Daily Mail says that Japan is supporting China in her resistance to the Italian demands for a concession at San Mun.

TALMAGE RESIGNS.

The Famous Divine Severs His Connection with the First Presbyterian Church in Washington.

Washington, March 10.—Rev. Dr. T. De Witt Talmage, who for nearly four years has been the pastor of the First Presbyterian church of this city, sent a letter Thursday to the session of that church tendering his resignation. It is the intention of Dr. Talmage to continue his residence in this city. He will devote most of his time to literary pursuits.

Washington, March 11.—Rev. Dr. Byron Sunderland has been appointed pastor of the First Presbyterian church to succeed Rev. Dr. T. DeWitt Talmage. Dr. Sunderland already has served the church 45 years, and since his resignation last June, when Dr. Talmage took charge, has been the pastor emeritus.

Furious Snowstorms in Michigan.

Detroit, Mich., March 13.—Nearly all points in the upper peninsula of Michigan report railway traffic completely blocked by snowstorms. A special to the Tribune from Bessemer, Mich., says: The heaviest snowstorm in the history of the snow belt is prevailing. For 48 hours all trains have been snowed in at different places. All streets are blocked with banks of snow from four to eight feet deep. This with former storms will make a total fall of snow about eight to twelve feet on an average. In some places the drifts are from the top of one roof to the other. Telegraph wires are down and all communications are by private lines.

Big Vessel Ashore.

Halifax, N. S., March 13.—The new Allen line steamer Castilian, from Portland for Halifax, went ashore at Gannet rock light, near Yarmouth, at 4:30 o'clock Sunday morning at low tide, in a dense fog, her compass being deranged. Two compartments are full of water, and tugs have gone from Yarmouth to the scene.

Portland, Me., March 13.—The Castilian sailed from this port at one p. m., Saturday. The ship itself is valued at about $700,000, and her cargo at $450,000. This is the most valuable cargo the Allens have ever shipped from Portland. The principal items were grain and provisions.

Prepares for War.

London, March 10.—Great Britain's naval estimates for the year, introduced in the house of commons Thursday, carry a total of £26,594,000 ($132,970,000). Several new warships, to be the finest in the world, are provided for and a goodly sum is to be expended in fortifying the port of Wei-Hai-Wei, an important strategic and naval base in case of trouble in the far east. The first lord of the admiralty, George J. Goschen, declared that England must be prepared for any emergency and will at all costs keep pace with the other powers.

Heavy Loss in Chicago.

Chicago, March 13.—The falling wall of a burning building at 209 and 211 Jackson boulevard totally destroyed the structure to the east at 3:30 o'clock Sunday morning. The building in which the fire originated, together with the stock of over 20 business firms, was entirely destroyed. The collapse of the wall was sudden and unexpected, and came just after a number of firemen and insurance patrolmen had left the building that was crushed. No one was injured. The loss on both buildings and stock is estimated at $400,000.

Predicts Dreyfus' Pardon.

London, March 10.—The Daily News publishes an interview with Count Ferdinand Walsin Esterhazy, who is represented as having said: "The fireworks of the Dreyfus affair are only just commencing. One thing is certain. It is all up with Gen. De Boisdeffre. He and Gen. Rogot are responsible for Col. Henry's forgery and death. All the excitement, however, will end in smoke and the pardon of Dreyfus."

Great Britain Seizes Islands.

London, March 14.—The Shanghai correspondent of the Daily Mail says: The Chinese here report that Great Britain has seized the Miao-Tao islands, opposite Port Arthur, in the strait of Po-Chi-Li, and north of Teng-Chau-Fu, in the northwest portion of the Shan-Tung peninsula.

Stockholders Assessed.

Washington, March 14.—Comptroller Dawes has ordered an assessment of 100 per cent. on the stock of the defunct National Bank of Illinois, of Chicago. He estimates the deficiency in the assets at $1,200,000 and that $1,000,000 will be raised if all the stock levies are realized.

WOMEN OUTLAWS.

Young Amazons of Kurdistan Who Take to the Road as Brigands.

The Kurdish women are also devoted to an outdoor life. Quite as enterprising and indefatigable as the men in their race, they are ever on the alert, ready to leap to the saddle, where, though not graceful riders, they are at home and able to keep up with the men in their adventurous wanderings, says the New York Tribune.

A recent traveler in Kurdistan tells of meeting a girl of the Bulbassi tribe who had just killed with a spear a Turk who insulted her. This young Amazon was dressed like a man and served the chief, Fazullah Effendi, as his faithful henchman, following him in all his wanderings. The women of this tribe are all particularly hardy and intrepid. Frequently they take to the road by themselves as brigands, and luckless indeed is the traveler or trader who falls into their hands. Not content with robbing him, they pinch, scourge and scratch him.

When a girl is born in Montenegro the mother says to her: "I do not wish thee beauty, but courage; heroism alone gains the love of men." And courage they possess in abundance. While their husbands are away on excursions the women in the intervals of caring for the fields and flocks, take to the road and do a little looting on their own account.

IN THE BERMUDAS.

There Is a Plague of Cats and Sparrows and Too Many Worthless Curs.

People arriving in New York from Bermuda say that the island is overrun by cats and sparrows. The nuisance of the plague has even been discussed in the colonial legislature at Hamilton. Visitors from the United States seeking the balmy climate of Bermuda are complaining especially of the "eat gangs" which nightly disturb their sleep, says the New York Journal.

When the dog tax bill came up before the legislature, Dr. T. A. Outerbridge, one of the members of the council, proposed an amendment. In doing so he said:

"I should like to see the bill recast and a heavier tax put upon dogs, because we have too many worthless curs in Bermuda. I should also like to see a tax put upon cats. You may laugh, but if there is any useless animal in this world it is a cat. Cats may be of some use in some countries, but they are of no use here. They do not kill rats. They do destroy our native birds.

"I have not seen a bluebird in six weeks, and there ought to be plenty of them here now from America. I have not seen one this year, and before long all our native birds will be exterminated—between the cats and the sparrows."

Hair Raises on End.

An eminent medical man, whose treatises on human hair have attracted much notice, among many other striking statements as to woman's chief beauty, remarked that "bristling," when used in speaking of the human hair, is not a figure. The hair is subject to and influenced by almost every passion of the human mind, and emotional hair, of which he has treated especially, he claims is quite common. Hair looks, feels and falls differently when a person is in sorrow, joy, surprise or dejection. After a day or two of deep mental study or violent bodily exercise, a most visible difference may be detected by a practiced observer. The day is fated to come, he maintains, when this coloring in the hair will be a valuable aid in identification.

PERFECT womanhood depends on perfect health.

Sweet dispositions turn morbid and fretful.

The possessions that win good husbands and keep their love should be guarded by women every moment of their lives.

The greatest menace to woman's permanent happiness in life is the suffering that comes from derangement of the feminine organs.

PERFECT WOMANHOOD

Many thousands of women have realized this too late to save their beauty, barely in time to save their lives. Many other thousands have availed of the generous invitation of Mrs. Pinkham to counsel all suffering women free of charge.

Mrs. H. J. Garretson, Bound Brook, N. J., writes: "Dear Mrs. Pinkham—I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound with the best results and can say from my heart that your medicines are wonderful. My physician called my trouble chronic inflammation of the left ovary. For years I suffered very much, but thanks to Mrs. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and kind advice, I am today a well woman. I would say to all suffering women, take Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine and your sufferings will vanish."

Mrs. Maggie Phillippe, of Ladoga, Ind., writes:

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham—For four years I suffered from ulceration of the womb. I became so weak I could not walk across the room without help. After giving up all hopes of recovery, I was advised to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and wrote for special information. I began to improve from the first bottle, and am now fully restored to health."

Modern Science Recognizes RHEUMATISM as a Disease of the Blood

There is a popular idea that this disease is caused by exposure to cold, and that some localities are infected with it more than others Such conditions frequently promote the development of the disease, but from the fact that this ailment runs in certain families, it is shown to be hereditary, and consequently a disease of the blood.

"I finally placed my case with several physicians and doctored with them for some time, but they failed to do me any good. Finally, with my hopes of relief nearly exhausted I read an article regarding Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, which induced me to try them. I was anxious to get rid of the terrible disease and bought two boxes of the pills, I began using them about March, 1897. After I had taken two boxes I was completely cured, and the pain has never returned. LEGISLATIVE SUMMARY.

The Transactions of the Lawmakers at St. Paul.—A Short Summary of the Regular Routine

St. Paul, March 8.—Both branches yesterday were in a discussive mood and talk prevailed throughout the day.

The Somerville bill taxing foreign corporations passed the senate as amended by the house.

The bills passed on the calendar during the afternoon were:

Senator McKusick's bill appropriating $2,500 for the erection of a monument to the victims of the "great Hinckley fire."

Senator Fitzpatrick's bill amending the laws of 1889 relating to the administration and distribution of the estates of intestates.

Senator Thompson's bill raising the state aid to high schools from $400 to $1,000, with a limit to the total appropriation of $105,000.

Providing that within ten days after the foreclosure of a mortgage under section 6051, general statutes of 1894, the attorney shall file an affidavit of costs and disbursements.

Senator McGill's bill providing for a custodian of public documents and supplies in the office of the secretary of state, at $1,200.

The house spent both sessions in consideration of the asylum bills without conclusion.

St. Paul, March 9.—The senate yesterday defeated the bill giving a bounty to sugar beet growers and to sugar manufacturers.

Bills were introduced as follows:

Amending the law relative to order of trial in civil cases.

Making it a misdemeanor to use the national flag as advertisements.

Allowing councils for cities having more than 50,000 population to order the grading of streets, or building of sidewalks without petitions from property owners.

Providing that before any person or corporation shall be liable for damages to any person who is injured by the negligence of another, the injured person, or his representatives, must have given notice within sixty days to the person who committed the injury.

The Grindeland bill for the regulation of the business of commission merchants and providing a bond for such merchants to be filed with the state auditor was recommended to pass by the judiciary committee.

The house defeated the Grondahl bill providing for the care of insane upon the "Wisconsin plan."

The senate bill providing for a retirement fund for teachers was also defeated.

The bill for traveling libraries was recommended to pass, carrying an appropriation of $5,000 for this and $5,000 for next year.

The Umland bill for a clerk for the inspector of steam boilers was killed in less than half a minute, no one saying a word in its favor.

St. Paul, March 10.—So many of the senators wer absent on a junket there were not enough left to pass bills. The entire day was passed in committee of the whole. The following were recommended for passage:

Amending the 1881 laws relating to the admission to practice of attorneys.

Amending the exemption laws so as to exempt to the amount of $100 but one person of a family, living in the same house.

Changing the number of boiler inspectors from seven to five, in order to correspond with the congressional districts.

In the house a few bills were introduced:

In the bill introduced by Mr. Kelly additional powers appear to be conferred upon the board of education in independent and special school districts. Negotiable bonds in such amount as may be necessary have their issuance authorized.

The tax insurance companies, organized under the law of any other state or nation, pay for doing business in this state is increased from 2 to 3 per cent by H. F. 490, introduced by Mr. Fosnes. The tax is graduated by the amount of premiums received.

An appropriation of $5,000 for this fiscal year and $7,000 annually thereafter is provided for in a bill by Mr. Bush to enable the state dairy and food commissioner to enforce the laws relating to food adulteration.

An important change in the present publication law is apparently accomplished by the Jackson bill, H. F. 429. At present the law of the state and legal notices may be published in English papers. The proposed law permits their publication in papers printed wholly or in part in a foreign language.

St. Paul, March 11.—Very little was done in the senate yesterday, many of the senators being absent.

The house spent the day in committee of the whole and the following measures were recommended to pass:

Relating to examination of offenders, commitment to trial, and taking bail.

To regulate mutual hail insurance companies.

Relating to stay of execution.

Relating to enforced payment of taxes.

Relating to rebating assessments for local improvements.

Refunding amount paid by purchasers of property under certain circumstances.

Relating to the addition of territory in all incorporated villages of 1,000 inhabitants or over.

To provide for the publication of a legislative manual.

Relating to municipal courts.

Relating to proceedings supplementary to execution.

Relating to plats of additions to villages and cities.

Providing for dedicating land for road or cartways.

Relating to the admission of children to public schools.

St. Paul, March 13.—The house Saturday passed the following bills:

To provide for the incorporation of bridge companies.

To appropriate $30,000 for the payment of arrears due enlisted men of the National Guard, etc.

Relating to examination of offenders, committed for trial, and taking bail.

To regulate mutual hail insurance companies.

Relating to stay of execution.

Relating to actions concerning and rights in real property.

To provide for the publication of a legislative manual.

Relating to municipal courts in villages.

Relating to proceedings supplementary to execution.

Relating to plats of additions to villages or cities.

Providing for dedicating land for road or cartways.

To prevent mutilation of horses.

To prevent occupants from acquiring title to public streets, highways, etc., by adverse possession.

St. Paul, March 14.—The house only was in session yesterday. The following bills were passed:

To fix the compensation of triers in the district court.

Relating to municipal courts in incorporated cities having a population of less than 5,000.

Relating to attachment of property.

To validate sales of real estate under order of a probate court.

Requiring railroads to adopt standard gauge.

Relating to municipal courts.

General orders were taken up, with Mr. Mallette in the chair. Three bills were recommended for passage:

To reimburse W. B. Hennessy for expenses incurred in his election contest.

Relating to mortgages on conveyances of personal property and contracts creating or reserving a lien thereon.

Relating to mechanics' liens and defining the duties of contractors before becoming entitled to lien.

MRS. COOPER,

The Most Famous Sculpturess in the World, Entirely Cured by Pe-ru-na.

MRS. M. C. COOPER

Mrs. M. C. Cooper, of the Royal Academy of Arts, London, England, is undoubtedly one of the greatest living sculptors. She has modeled busts of half the nobility of England, and is now in Washington making busts of distinguished Americans. Mrs. Cooper has just completed a bust of Mrs. Belva Lockwood, which is now in the Corcoran Art Gallery. Ruskin, the great artist, placed Mrs. Cooper as one of the greatest sculptors and painters of this century. Mrs. Cooper is an ardent friend of Pe-ru-na and in a letter dated January 26, written from Washington, says the following: "I take pleasure in recommending Pe-ru-na for catarrh and la grippe. I have suffered for months and after the use of one bottle of Pe-runa I am entirely well."—Mrs. M. C. Cooper.

PROTECTING HER INTERESTS.

She Had Been "'Scriminated" Against and Wanted Some Points on Law.

"Mistuh," said the very large colored woman, stopping a man who was just leaving the District buildings, "I wants ter state a case."

"I'm not a lawyer, auntie."

"'Tain' no law case. I ain' gwinter sue nobody. I jes' wants to know whut my rights is an' how to git 'em."

"You see any of the attaches here, if it's government business."

"I ain't got no piece o' paper to shove in at de window so's ter git noticed. But I's bein' scriminated ag'in'."

"What's the trouble?" was the kindly inquiry.

"I ain' gittin' proper 'tention. Ev'y once in awhile I hyah's it read out o' de paper dat somebody has got a eel out'n 'is hydrant."

"Well, an ell is a very cleanly sort of creature. It doesn't do any harm."

"You didn' fink I was a-skyaht of 'em, did you? De case I wants ter lay befo' de gover'ment is dis: I pays extra rent to kivver de water tax. I's had a hydrant in my back yahd foh fohteen years, an' I ain' nebber got no eel yit. Whut I wants to know is, how does dey 'stribute dem eels? Is they prizes or is dey favoritisms or whut is dey? If dar's any eels comin' to me, I's hyah wif my basket, ready to take 'em home, right now, ca'se we ain' got no money to buy meat an' we's kin' of hongry foh feesh, anyhow."—Washington Star.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

HIS MORNING TRAIN.

Mr. Suburbanite Was in a Hurry and Got His Commission Mixed.

He had reached the door in his usual morning sprint for the train, when his wife called for him:

"Oh, Tom!"

"Yes," he answered, with his hand on the knob.

"I had the garden dug over yesterday," she cried, "and I want you to bring some plants from town."

"All right," he snapped; "what do you want? Hurry up; I must catch my train."

"Well," came the reflective voice from the dining-room, "you might bring me—"

"Oh, hurry!" he retorted, with a show of impatience.

"Well, I think—"

"Quick," he shouted, with the door open; "I hear the whistle. What is it?"

"R—roses," was the answer that reached his ears, and he was off like a madman.

At noon he feared he might have been a little harsh in the morning, so he went out and bought two dozen varieties of rosebushes, and carried the thorny, scratchy things home in the evening, to the peril of anyone who approached him.

Then he laid the offering at his wife's feet, and was surprised to see her burst into tears.

"What is the matter?" he asked, wonderingly. "Are not these all right?"

"N—no," she sobbed; "I don't want roses."

"But, my dear," he protested, "you certainly said roses this morning."

"I—I—know it," was the weeping answer. "You made me—you were in such a hurry, and 'roses' was the shortest word I could think of at the moment. I w—wanted chrysanthemums and rhododendrons, but you would not give me time to say them!"—Cincinnati Enquirer.

LOST FAITH IN HIS TAILOR.

A Gentleman of the Old School Whose Clothes Were a Trifle Too Loud.

Col. Tarker is a staid old West side citizen who has made a fortune in land. He is an aristocrat of the old southern school, courtly and impressive. His collars are made in the fashion of 50 years ago, and his neckties the same. Withal the colonel is what New Englanders call "a bit near." He has his clothes made by a cheap tailor. They are always a modest, respectable black of remarkable pattern and fit. But they suit the colonel. One day last week he walked over to visit his daughter living on Prairie avenue.

"What makes you look at me so seriously?" he asked, presently, guiltily self-conscious.

"Why, father, what have you been doing to yourself?"

"Nothing, daughter, nothing. I—I have on a new suit of clothes."

Sure enough, the colonel had on a new suit of clothes. The effect was gorgeous and startling. The trousers were a loud check, very tight and a trifle short. The coat was a short blue frock, mottled with dark red. He wore a cheap red tie. The ludicrousness of the situation finally overcome the daughter's gravity, and she laughed until she cried.

"In heaven's name, father, where did you get those clothes?" she asked, at last.

"Wartz made them. He—he said checks were stylish, and the cloth came cheap, and I—I said I wasn't particular, you know; never am."

The mild and dignified old gentleman had transformed himself into a comic valentine without knowing it. His faith in Wartz is now somewhat shaken, and he has donned an old suit.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

14 Trains Each Day.

This is what it means. On and after March 12th, 1899, the Northern Pacific Railway will start two trains each day flying westward from its eastern terminals. At the same time—not at exactly the same hours—two trains will also leave its western terminals for the east. There will then be, each day, moving over the 2,000 miles of main track between St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth at the east, and Seattle, Tacoma and Portland on the Pacific Coast, FOURTEEN OF THESE TRAINS—in both directions—going at the same time, and this in a country where 20 years ago the buffalo were roaming. These trains will be known as No. 1 the Puget Sound Limited, No. 3 the Oregon Limited going west, and No. 2 the Twin City Mail, No. 4 the Twin City Express, going east, and will contain in the aggregate more than 100 cars of various sorts. Each train will have a mail car, a baggage and express car, first and second class coaches, a Free Colonist Sleeping Car, a Pullman Tourist Sleeping car, a Dining car and one or more Pullman First Class Sleeping cars, so that everybody and everybody's pocketbook can be accommodated. The Dining cars are a part of the solid through trains, and no one need therefore go hungry.

Train No. 1 will leave St. Paul at 8:55 a. m.; train No. 3 at 10:45 p. m.; after all trains have arrived from the east and south morning and evening. Train No. 2 will leave Portland at 11:30 a. m., and train No. 4 at 11:00 p. m., arriving at St. Paul 2:00 p. m. and 7:30 a. m., respectively, in time for all departing trains eastward. One train goes via Helena, Mont., and one via Butte, in each direction. These trains run through the most important cities of the northwest, and are hauled by new and enormous Schenectady locomotives, making, when necessary, 75 or 80 miles an hour.

These diurnal trains will amply accommodate the large immigration and tourist travel that seems probable this year.

During the Yellowstone Park season one train in each direction will carry a Pullman First Class Sleeping Car, especially for Park travel.

Inquiries regarding this new train service may be addressed to any Northern Pacific Agent, or to Chas. S. Fee, Gen'l Passenger Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

Have You Tried Swamp-Root?

To Prove for Yourself the Wonderful Merits of This Great Discovery Every Reader of This Paper May Have a Sample Bottle Sent Absolutely Free by Mail.

Statistics prove that more people are brought to the grave by diseases of the kidneys and bladder than by any other disease.

Kidney trouble is in itself so insidious and deceptive that thousands have some form of it and never suspect it.

For many years medical science has been trying to discover some remedy that would positively overcome these dangerous troubles.

But not until recently was the discovery made. Dr. Kilmer, the eminent physician and scientist, after years of study and research, and after test on test that never varied in the grand result, announced the discovery of Swamp-Root, which has proven itself a most wonderful cure for all diseases of the kidneys and bladder.

While Swamp-Root has proven such a remarkable success in curing kidney and bladder diseases, it has also proved equally invaluable in the cure of blood diseases, rheumatism, liver and stomach troubles, and in the regulation and cure of all uric acid troubles.

If your water, when allowed to remain undisturbed in a glass or bottle for twenty-four hours, forms a sediment or settling, or has a cloudy appearance, it is evidence that your kidneys and bladder need immediate attention.

Swamp-Root has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work, in private practice, among the helpless too poor to purchase relief, and has proved so successful in every case, that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent absolutely free by mail. Also a book telling more about Swamp-Root, and containing some of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women who owe their good health, in fact, their very lives, to the wonderful curative properties of Swamp-Root. Be sure and mention this paper when sending your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

Private Butter.

I am reminded of an incident on one of the Atlantic steamers which took place not so long ago, and in which a married member of a family to whom it is not necessary to allude was a party. The husband and wife appeared at all meals, flanked on either side by a large dish of butter.

As it was an English ship and butter was not served at any of the meals, some Americans who were neighbors were delighted to see that the hor d'oeuvre had at last a place on the table. They helped themselves bountifully at luncheon.

At dinner they were surprised to see little sticks stuck in the middle of the mound of butter with a pasteboard card attached. The card read:

"Private Butter. Keep Off the Grass."

It is needless to say that the hint was taken.—N. Y. Journal.

An Excellent Combination.

The pleasant method and beneficial effects of the well known remedy, Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., illustrate the value of obtaining the liquid laxative principles of plants known to be medicinally laxative and presenting them in the form most refreshing to the taste and acceptable to the system. It is the one perfect strengthening laxative, cleansing the system effectually, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers gently yet promptly and enabling one to overcome habitual constipation permanently. Its perfect freedom from every objectionable quality and substance, and its acting on the kidneys, liver and bowels, without weakening or irritating them, make it the ideal laxative.

In the process of manufacturing figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, but the medicinal qualities of the remedy are obtained from senna and other aromatic plants, by a method known to the California Fig Syrup Co. only. In order to get its beneficial effects and to avoid imitations, please remember the full name of the Company printed on the front of every package.

DELANO, FRIDAY, March 17, 1899.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Dr. Niven at Delano, March 30.

—L. M. Maxfield, T. S. Kerr and N. K. Coffin acted as judges of election for the village Tuesday.

—Dave McLeod and his crew made some much needed repairs to the G. N. depot platform this week.

—Sunday morning's snow storm was the biggest of the season. But it seems the storm was quite local, not extending further west than Smith Lake.

—For the edification and encouragement of the little fellows we publish a number of school essays written by scholars in Miss Kelly's room; subject Abraham Lincoln.

—In another column appears letters from Manila. One from our son, Alva. He also sent us nine papers published in Manila, The American. Another letter is to O. L. Billings, from his son Orlie. He also sent some pictures and some bones from the Paco graveyard.

—Proceeings for the appointment of an administrator of the estate of the late William McKinley has been commenced by F. Q. Lindsley in the Hennepin county Probate court. We understand the heirs will satisfy claimants and the proceedings will be stopped.

—Mr. Burnes, who is living on the place he purchased from W. D. Freeman, carries a very unique cane, which is quite a curiosity. He says he made it while he was a member of the Minneapolis fire company. The cane contains 132 pieces and is of horn around a steel rod. He says he has several other articles of like construction, one a chair, which he made.

—On Wednesday evening while enroute home from the cities, C. W. Kerrick says he met a man named Shepherd who was on his way home to Litchfield to visit his father. Mr. S. was among the first Red Cross people to go to Manila after Dewey's victory. He seems inclined to the belief that it will take a long and costly war to subdue the Filipinos. Is the game worth the candle?

—It is claimed that a petition by numerous citizens of Delano to the Village council to buy the Breed picnic grounds was pidgeonholed by somebody and never brought before the council, while the land was sold to the present Mayor. That surely was not right. The people have a right to petition, and to be heard, and no man can afford to pidgeonhole petitions before they have been acted on.

—The new city authorities will probably conduct affairs about as near up to law as they have been for years. If they don't there will doubtless be many complaints. Laws are made to be observed not broken. The village officers are required to take an oath to do their duties which are plainly laid down in the ordinances and state statutes. Let us have a law observing board and a law abiding people.

—The village election caused the usual excitement in town. The old saying that "politics makes strange bedfellows" was once more verified to perfection. Men who a few short months ago called each other "liar" and "thief" are said to have been seen Tuesday arm in arm electioneering against some one who was not altogether to their liking, The ticket nominated at the Saturday evening caucus won.

—William Hawker claims to have sufficient proof of who stold his chickens to land a couple of fellows in jail for awhile. Possibly a couple of Delanoites will change their residence to Stillwater for a season if Mr. H. can prevail on the proper authorities to discharge the duties taken upon themselves when accepting the office It is about time this and a whole lot of other law breaking business was stopped. People demand it.

—Some people have the thoughtless or selfish habit of arranging matters so that they may appear at the delivery window at the post office about the first after the mornings mail is distributed and ask for a money order or some stamps, stopping business for others entirely and causing them to stand and wait for their mail. Such thoughtlessness or selfishness on the part of any should be promptly pointed out to them and the intruders asked to come around some other time.

—The non-partisan caucus held Saturday evening was largely attended and a mixed ticket, so far as politics go, was nominated. No other caucus being held, some who were not satisfied with the caucus ticket, had others printed, supplanting the names of Tom Rader and John Brandser with those of Adam Horsch and Ferdinand Kelsey. Most people would have been better pleased if two caucuses had been held and two tickets put in the field so that they might have a choice of who to vote for.

—Some of our butter makers are arranging for a big meeting of their craftsmen. They hope to have Profs. Hecker and Shaw from the State Experimental Station present with them on Saturday, March 25. They are to talk on dairying, care of cows, growing of dairy food, stock, etc. Everybody is invited. Don't miss this chance to learn how to increase your butter making qualifications and to help fatten your pocketbooks, thereby allowing yourselves and family luxuries not now known.

—Dr. Niven at Waverly, March 28 and 29.

—The schools are enjoying a week's vacation.

—There is talk of a log chute in the Minneapolis Court House soon. Just wait till our Hennepin county correspondent finds 'em turning that million dollar mansion into a dog kennel! Bow! wow!

—We suspect that the threat of the Eagle to furnish the proceedings of council meetings to its readers is made more for a bluff to the incoming administration than as a bonefide announcement to its readers.

—The new village officers are: Pres., John Lohmiller; Trustees, Thomas Rader, Henry Beck, John Brandser; Recorder, Peter Peterson; Treasurer, Louis P. Probst; Justice of the Peace, R. M. Walter; Constables, Joseph Merriman, Charles Belt; Assessor, Valentine Eppel.

—A good many people complain that certain parties are carrying on in a manner that needs airing up every week in the newspapers, and the GAZETTE should mention them. One man of family when told that everybody knows of the doings, and asked if he would want his family to read every week of the wrong doers and their evil ways, promptly answered that he would not.

—Mr. William Hawker, who lives in the suburbs of the village claims that out of about 30 chickens his wife and him have wintered, some lazy, shiftless, fellows that ought to be in better business, stold about one third a few nights ago. There has been too much of this kind of thing going on about here and some of the thieves are old hands at the business and well known, and the officers should take immediate steps to put them where they can work enough to pay for what they eat and where they will drink less.

—Crowds gather daily in the post office and while waiting for the distribution of the mail talk politics and other matters, so loudly, as to constitute a nuisance. The evil was so great next day after election as to call for the presence of the Deputy P. M., who very emphatically informed the talkers that things had gone far enough and arguments must cease, or be made outside the building. That's right. The post office lobby is not made for such purposes. If it is necessary to talk politics, the City Hall can be had and we can all go and listen to the instructive and interesting arguments.

Hiawatha.

Hiawatha was a little Indian boy. He lived in a wigwam. It looks a little like the tent. It is made of skins.

He lived with his grandmother Mokins. His mother was died.

One day his friends made him a bow and arrow for a present.

One day he went out to shoot some birds and deer. He saw some birds. The bird said, do not shoot me Hiawatha. Hiawatha called the birds chickens.

He saw a deer, and he thought he would shoot the deer. Then he shot the deer, and then he carried the deer home. CAROLA ROOSEN

Could Have Shot Washington.

"It was once in my power to have shot Gen. Washington," said a British soldier to an American as they were discussing the events of the great struggle after the concluding of peace.

"Why did you not shoot him then?" asked the American. "You ought to have done so for the benefit of your countrymen."

"The death of Washington would not have been for their benefit," replied the Englishman. "We depended upon him to use our prisoners kindly, and we'd sooner have shot an officer of our own!"—Courier Journal.

New York World: Speaker Reed has refused to certify to that part of the pay roll of the Congress which bears the names of those members who, under the Constitution, forfeited their seats by accepting commissions in the army. This simply means that Speaker Reed still believes, in spite of Duty and Destiny and the Second Term Syndicate, that the Constitution is "the supreme law of the land."

SCHOOL ESSAYS.

Abraham Lincoln.

Abraham Lincoln was born in Kentucky, February 12, 1809

When he Was a boy he played by a creek and caught fash Abraham's father could not read or write

Abraham went to school with his sister Sarah. They had to walk four miles and a half.

Then Abraham made his figures on a board with a piece of charcoal. when he went to school they only one book. His teacher had that, and that book was a speller.

One day Abraham went to a man's house to borrow a book. When he went to bed he took his book with him to read. When he went asleep he put the book between the logs and it snowed that night and in the morning when Abraham got up the book was spoiled and Abraham took the book home to the man. Abraham said: "What can I do for to pay for this book". The man said you may work for me three days, or pay me 75 cents. Abraham worked for the man and then the man give the book to Abraham. LUCY KIMMINS.

Abraham Lincoln.

Abraham Lincoln was born in Kentucky, February 12, 1809. He was the son of poor parents. They lived in a log cabin in the woods. They did not have as much as a chair in their house. Abraham Lincoln fished when he had no work to do. Abraham Lincoln's mother died and Abraham Lincoln's father move to Indiana and got married to Miss Johnston. She was very good to him. He went to school with his sister Sarah.

He liked to go to school. He had a board to work the numbers on. He went ahead of the class. He learned very good. His teacher had only one book, and that was a speller.

NORA POGREBA.

Abraham Lincoln.

Abraham's father and mother were very poor. The house was made of logs. In the house was little furniture. To eat on they had wooden plates. Over the door was a piece of skin. When he went to school he was five years old. After a little while he got to the head of the class. His teacher had one book and that was a speller.

When he had time he would go and catch fish by a creek. They had to eat some corn mush and corn bread. There was a little meeting house. Abraham and his sister Sarah took their dinner with them. Abraham worked with charcoal. He had to do it sometimes on a fire shovel.

After a little while he became a president. LOIS KNOLL.

Abraham Lincoln.

Abraham Lincoln was born in Kentucky, February the 12, 1809.

He lived in a log cabin, the window and door was just a hole in the logs and some fur over it.

His bed was made of leaves. He walked to school four miles and a half. The school was just a log house. He was anxious to read and write. He worked his arithmetic on a shovel. The teacher had only one book and that was a speller. He had a very few books and they were the Life of Robinson Cruso and the Life of Washington, and those he knew by heart. He was not rich like Washington. The first sarrow that he had was when his mother died. Then his father married Mrs. Johnston. Mrs. Johnston was very kind to Abraham and his sister Sarah. They used to go to a meeting house and all the people brought their dinner. The preacher used to stand on a stump, and the people who went to the meeting had to sit on logs. After the meeting was over Abraham used to preach to his sister Sarah. And then he got down and sang hymns. Abraham freed the slaves. There was a war between the South and the North. The North beat. Abraham Lincoln died on April the 14, 1865

WILLIAM CROLLEY.

THE delights of an evening spent around a well-lighted reading table are not half understood. An illustrated magazine with its wealth of illustrations, its stories of adventure and love, its descriptions of travel which carry you to the remotest ends of the earth, and its instructive articles for young and old—these are the first requisites for your own enjoyment and the entertainment and proper education of your children.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal,

Both Together One Year for Only $1.80

In this way you secure your own home paper and an illustrated magazine at a price that is only about a fourth of what some of the illustrated magazines sell for. For three years The Cosmopolitan has undisputedly claimed that it reached the largest clientele possessed by any periodical, daily, weekly or monthly, in the world. It was The Cosmopolitan which sent Julian Hawthorne to India to let the world know the real horrors of famine and plague. It was The Cosmopolitan which established at its own cost a great Free Correspondence University which now has over 20,000 students on its rolls. It was The Cosmopolitan which offered a prize of $3,000 for the best horseless carriage and prizes for best plans for public baths, and best arrangement of sewer and pipe systems for cities. It was The Cosmopolitan which set the presidents of great schools and universities seriously discussing the defects of existing educational systems. It is The Cosmopolitan whose enterprise is always in the lead in advancing the world's civilization.

We have also succeeded in arranging for two additional offers in connection with this journal and The Cosmopolitan.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $1.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

All Three Together for Only $2.25

One other opportunity we offer you. You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine

Three Together One Year for Only $2.35

T. J. CATLIN,
Publisher.

Entered as Second-Class Mail Matter at the Post Office in Delano, Minn.

THE Governor and his advisors have, we fully realize, a difficult task in distributing the offices in the different parts of the state. Many names are filed, and usually, we believe, about as safe a way to satisfy the majority of the people would be to appoint capable, honest, reliable men who will discharge their duties fearlessly and without favor, and we believe most of those will be found among men not pressing their claims.

WHILE at the capitol Monday we took occasion to visit the Senate and House, both in session. Our Senator, Dr. E. Y. Chilton, is, so far as the interests of the people are concerned an improvement on the legal gentlemen who have preceded him. He attends strictly to business, and votes promptly, fearlessly, and we believe for what he thinks right. Politicians and pettifoggers may abuse him if they see fit but the people will "love him for the enemies he makes".

During the afternoon Gen. Wilson and his helpers labored hard, very hard, in favor of the passage of a bill which he admitted, would give the Younger boys and one other old lifer at Stillwater, their liberty. He had been told lots of things, among them that the old man had been there so long and his friends were all dead and he would not ask to be let out! He had heard reported that $45,000 had been put into the state to liberate the Younger boys. He personally knew nothing of it! One Senator wanted the bill allowing prisoners who had served faithfully for 20 years released because all the Penologists said that was the way to do! ! Another poor deluded individual Senator said he would vote for the bill but he didn't believe it should be the law, and as soon as the Youngers were out he would vote to annul the law! ! !

We may be wrong; but we couldn't help believing that Gen. Wilson had heard the truth when he heard that money was being expended for the liberation of the Younger boys.

One Senator argued that Warden Wolfer would trust Cole Younger anywhere, that his word was reliable. When the Senator from Rice wanted to know if Cole was reformed why he wouldn't tell who shot the Swede. He was told that Cole had promised not to tell and would die at Stillwater before he would break his word. It is generally talked that such robbers pledge each other to avenge the death of comrades. Suppose the Younger boys are turned out what assurance has the public that Cole hasn't pledged his word to seek out all those interested in their incarceration at Stillwater and the killing of their comrades at Northfield and to meet out to them the sworn punishment of a robber band? The bill lacked four votes of passing the Senate.

In the House, Hennepin county's contingent to the Legislature seemed to contribute the most "color" to its argument for a law allowing 5 6 of a jury to decide a case after the jury had been out 12 hours. Mr. Jacobson, of Lac qui Parle opposed this measure vigorously, but the House in committee of the whole recommended its passage. We didn't hear anything on the subject from our Wright county Representatives. But one of Hennepin's solons said "but for the disparity in color I would almost have a filial affection for the gentleman from Lac qui Parle."

Speaker Dare was about his business again after his illness. He appears to be loosing some of his notorious diffidence.

Principles.

BUFFALO GAZETTE,

Dear old Friend: Some time has passed since I saluted you. There has been many causes at work preventing me from greeting you. Old grip and rheumatism have used their skill in a most effectual manner. But during all my delay the political changes have been going on.

Mr. McKinley has swung around the circle on a lecturing tour, and in his southern speeches completely electrified the "solid South" by his words of sympathy for the dear departed, who in 61 to 65 tried to blow some of the stars out of Old Glory. Our beloved president suggested it as the proper thing; that on the next coming decoration day, that the old rebel soldiers who died for their cause, should be remembered. So mote it be.

But in 1888 and all along the departing years, I have heard such suggestions made by different parties and persons not of the Republican persuasion, and in one holy minute the air would be foul with the fumes of sulphur, tiger screams of copperheads were heard and associated with vile and murderous language. Nothing was befitting that man or party but death for daring to suggest thoughts, sentiments that would inflame the nation and precipitate another scene of war and desolation. To think our loyal hearted men at the North should so far forget their duty to our soldiers, whose lives were offered for the protection of our institution, as to suggest the idea of decorating the rebel dead in conjunction with our noble boys S'death. Down with the vile hearted traitors that gave birth to such unholy thoughts. Then came a season of quiet, and our brave men, year after year strewed flowers on the graves of our boys, until another war cloud darkened our lives. The question of a humanitarian war is sounded through our land, when lo! from the despised south came the first soldier to fall in defence of the "Union". In a moment almost, the fountains of the great deep were broken up and a nation wept, therefore we are shamed into decorating the graves of all soldiers, irrespective of color or cast.

I am thankful beyond measure that Mr. Bryan was not the man who did the speech making, for I am sure it never would have been received in the harmonious manner by the G. O. P. as it was. Apropos—Mr. Bryan. 'Tis said by our friends, the enemies press, that Bryan is spreading dissatisfaction among the people by his attacks on the administration, and especially on the financial part thereof. Away with such bosh! As tho' Mr. Bryan had said, or declared any new thing in his free silver advocacy. "Bryan" theories were the policies of the framers of the Republican party, Lincoln and his cabinet, Grant, Garfield, one and all down to the brightest light that ever illuminated the darkest hours of our political life, the framer and careful builder, and expounder of Republican principles, indorsed and defended the very sentiments of Mr. Bryan.

It was lawful for the plumed knight, James G. Blaine, to promulgate and defend free silver; this light of the G. O. P. party, whose death has plunged the party into darkness and almost ruin. But 'tis treason for Mr. Bryan to take up the gauntlet in defence of the remnant of liberty left in the "people's" hands, and so eloquently portray the enormity of the financial crimes committed in the last 30 years, and in trying to warn the people to watch with a vigilant eye the actions of men who want to saddle on the nation the results of the Baltimore Convention of Bankers.

Mr. Bryan sounds the tocsin of alarm. He warns us lest in an unguarded moment, the right of our government to create the volume of money and set the value thereon, should be stricken down. "The coin of the United States consists of two parts, a silver part and a gold part. It has been so from the foundation of the government. We have always had the system of bimetallism, which is simply a concession to the debtor that he shall enjoy the valuable option of paying freely in the cheaper of the two metals, or the more convenient, as the case may be." Now if this option could be stolen away by legislating against it. How great would be the gain of all those who are to be paid dollars. Under this reckoning, the American silver dollar was struck from the mints. Homer in relating the woes of Greece says it was the direful effects of changing the money standard of the nation that caused the trouble and Bryan is the Homer of today and has boldly pointed out the fact that our financial disturbances were caused by the scheme by which one half of the coin potency of the people of the United States was struck away, when they did not know it! It needs such men as Bryan to tell the people that 'tis dangerous to antagonize the money lending class, and also in free countries it is dangerous to antagonize the industrial and the producing classes. Of course when Mr. Bryan's opposers cannot stem the tide of popular approval they resort to the beautiful method of caricature, because he used the Scripture to illustrate any point of doctrine. We are thankful that Mr. Bryan can stand alone. But how long? O God how long! will it be before men will cease their hero worship before men will awake to the fact that 'tis about time for all of us to do the legislating act, a government by the people and for the people is the stale and silly story told us until it has got to be a vile decoction. A government of the people will not much longer consist in selecting a man, and sending him out to represent the wants and wishes of his constituents, that kind of business is about as childish as can be, and our poor representative goes where his hands are tied and the money power laugh at his and the people's discomfiture. No. Instead of selecting our hero and loading him with all the responsibility and sending him forth to the slaughter, lets relieve him by retaining the right "to our say so", by direct legislation, then we shall surely realize 'tis a government of and by the people. Allowing the rank and file to vote on great issues, would lessen the probabilities of always being crushed by combines and trusts. Would Gov. Lind's veto have been supported by the great unwashed army of voters, having the right of direct legislation? It would. Not a more healthy paper was ever sent to a state legislature than the one sent by John Lind. His article on taxation is particularly expressive of the condition today. Every tax payer should read this excellent paper. Mr. Lind thinks the people should be brought more in touch with the direct issue of the day, and this can never be accomplished under the old form of selecting legislators, and then for the people to be entirely subject to their decision to remedy this matter and place the right to decide on any important piece of legislation that might work diametrically against the interest of the tax payers (as the sugar bounty for instance). Mr. Lind suggests the Initiative and Referendum or in other words direct legislation, there has been no man for governor who has suggested so many healthy measures and Mr. Lind is growing in public favor day by day.

But of all the matters that passes the understanding of the way faring man, and the I. E. of it lost in the profound mystery, like the mystery of Godliness, is our late unpleasantness with Spain, and our present trouble with the ones we aimed to benefit. The object of the war was to free Cuba (not the Philippines) from the tyrannical yoke of Spanish government that was causing the death of the Cuban people by the thousands. Prof. Vinageras estimates the total loss of Cuban life by the revolution to be 418,300 deaths by starvation and disease (Reconcentrados) 387,000. While this wholesale starvation drama was being acted, our forces, that started out with the commendable object of immediate succor to the island in question, failed to put in an appearance, but changed the base of action to the Philippinos and Illoilo; and to subdue these islands by conquest seems now to be the intention of the administration. Still not ten months ago, McKinley joined with the two houses of Congress in a solemn disclaimence of any intention to wage a war for the purpose of conquest.

The Silver Knight Watchman, says in the face of that solemn declaration of April 20 1898. The World has seen with cynicism and a large portion of the American people with disappointment and surprise, the President acquire the island of Porto Rico and of Gaum in the south sea by conquest, and engage deliberately in the work left unfinished by Spain, of conquering the natives of the Philippine archipelago. How the work of assimilation is progressing let the same Republican Senator tell. "We kill them (the Filipinos) not by scores, not by hundreds, but by thousands. More Filipinos have been killed by the guns of our army and navy than were patriots killed in any six battles of the Revolutionary war, and the slaughter of people in no way equal to us; meeting us with bows and arrows and crawling into jungles by hundreds to die has stupefied the American mind." And well it may. The idea of our government assuming the "Protectorate of these islands and to establish a government suitable to their condition, and to prepare them for local self government as rapidly as events could shape themselves." All these promises and pretentions seem mysterious as I have said before, viewed from the standpoint of recent war like events. But what can be expected, if we as a nation seek to imitate other and older blood thirsty nations who with the sword, the bible, and rum, endeavored to subdue and controll all God's dominion. Wherever white civilization goes rum goes, and it becomes a fearful factor both in politics and religion as administered to us today. From Will Carleton's paper Everywhere, I quote "One brand of American civilization". The Hoffman House Cafe, the only American bar in the city, where you will find the best kinds of old government whiskey, rye and bourbon, egg noggs and American cock tails a speciality, beer and ale on draught. All come, spend the afternoon and listen to the sweet strains of music. —Manila American

These are mighty potent civilizers as the conditions of the American Indians and our own half developed humanity amply testifies. The non sense of expansion is shadowed forth by this, we had better commit to memory the "Monroe doctrine" of minding our own business try and expand what territory we have before acquiring more. Do more to expand our minds would be a commendable measure for government and individuals to look to. God knows there is heathen enough to look after and govern without adopting any more. Seek for remedy that will alleviate unhappy conditions at home and make us feel proud to be American citizens, and when we look on our dear old flag, handed down to us by men and lovers of liberty, know that it stands for A PRINCIPLE.

THE LITTLE FARMHOUSE.

Back in the little farmhouse, on the quiet countryside!
And I think of a bygone summer, when I was a happy bride.
I worked in the little kitchen; you tilled the fertile land!
For the rainy days a-coming, we toiled and saved and planned.

Back in the little farmhouse! And memory brings to view
A cozy room, scant furnished, and a table spread for two.
Back in the little farmhouse, haunted with mem'ries sweet,
I see familiar faces, and list for the tread of feet.

Back in the little farmhouse, dingy, and old, and brown,
(Not like the newer dwelling, up in the nearest town).
Ten years have gone, my dearest, and we come again to-day,
To tread familiar footpaths, in the morning cool and gray.

Back at the little farmhouse, we seem to have younger grown;
The yards are the same, my dearest, and the grass is newly mown;
The stock in the river pasture at the same fence corner stop,
And the corn is a-waving calmly, but oh, 'tis another crop!

Back from the little farmhouse we turn with a weary sigh,
And we brush away the tears, dear, but we do not mention why.
Back in the little farmhouse, time sped on so fleet,
Our love grows firmer, dearest, that we keep this mem'ry sweet.

A CLEVER TRAP

By Claude Oliver

BATH is a beautiful little place on that famous river made dear to the hearts of all the world, because on its banks Shakespeare was born. It is in a fertile valley, surrounded by towering hills whose verdant sides make a restful picture for wearied eyes.

"Sixty or 70 years ago it was a favorite resort for health and pleasure-seekers, who found there something that they were not seeking. It was the scene of a series of the most mysterious robberies that baffled the keenest sleuth-hounds of the detective forces."

Just as I entered the parlor I heard my English friend relating the above to his little companion, who was listening to his words just as I have often pictured Desdemona listening to the recitals of the love-mad Moor.

I knew that the big, fine-looking Englishman was deeply in love with out little brown American wren, and that he could have wished me in Halifax rather than have a company of three.

"That sounds like a possible romance," I said to myself as I pricked up my ears like a war horse at the first sound of the bugle's call; and I sat demurely down and took out pencil and paper.

The little brown wren was sitting with her hands clasped around her knees, and her pretty, dark head poised to one side. She turned her sweet head slightly toward me and smiled a cordial welcome.

Not so her handsome Englishman! He frowned at me until his scowl was like a thundercloud.

"Oh, you needn't look at me like that, Dr. Gilbert," I said saucily, making a little moue at him, and thrusting my chin defiantly outward. "I am here to stay until I hear the end of that fish story."

"Go away," he said with mock anger.

"If you say that to me again," I cried threateningly, "I'll sit right down at the piano and play 'There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town To-Night.'"

I knew how the doctor hated that song, and by this means I always used to cow him into submission. We were stopping at a boarding house in the mountains of Tennessee, and we had all become like one large family and said what we liked to each other in our playful way.

As I uttered my fearful threat the doctor dropped his hands helplessly at his sides, drew down the corners of his mouth and made himself look the very picture of fear and submission.

"I've never turned my back to the enemy's guns," he said in a serio-comic tone, "but I always quail before the fire of a woman's eyes."

"Well, if you will proceed with the romance I will turn the fire of my eyes on Wrennie," I said playfully, "while I take it down, skeleton-like. Then I will weave it into a story.

"And now 'perceed with the precedence,'" I added dictatorily.

But he didn't proceed. He only sat and looked at Wrennie as if he would like to "drink her into the waste places of his soul."

"Wrennie, will you kindly command that slave of yours to finish his recital for my benefit? Here am I at the very verge of despair for material to make the pot boil, and this wretched old brain of mine won't budge an inch. It's like Jamie's old donkey; when it gets tired it won't 'go' for love or money."

"Resume your story, doctor," she said, sweetly. And the big man immediately obeyed. Love is a wonderful mystery.

"Well—but where was I at?" the doctor laughingly questioned, while he looked askance at Wrennie to see how she would take his slang.

"Oh, yes! Now I remember. I was saying that 60 or 70 years ago Bath was the scene of a series of mysterious robberies.

"Every day some man or woman would find himself or herself relieved of a valuable, watch, or brooch, or bracelet, or money, and not the slightest clew could be found to the robbery. The most noted detectives were continually baffled, and the mystery grew deeper and darker.

"Finally a young man presented himself to the head of the detective forces and offered his services to ferret out the seemingly fathomless mystery. The young man was tall and angular, and awkward. But he had a head like Napoleon Bonaparte's, and the head of the detective force, in sheer desperation over all the other failures, told the young man he might try his hand. At that time the best English farmers dressed like the caricatures of John Bull; and Fielding, the new detective, conceived the idea of acting the role of a well-to-do farmer, with pockets full of money and anxious to 'paint the town red.' There was one drawback to his clever scheme; for Fielding was tall and thin, while the typical John Bull was just the opposite. However, with the aid of a pillow or two and various other paraphernalia he soon had himself rigged 'to the queen's taste'—big stomach, loose pockets with flap unbuttoned and hanging open; rattling his money with his left hand while he walked along gaping up at the houses, and whistling a tune that savored strongly of rusticity.

"Strolling leisurely along, and pretending to be very 'green' and to have eyes for nothing but the houses and signs, he was on the qui vive for suspicious looking characters.

"Suddenly he felt a slight tremor near his right-hand pocket, which was flaring temptingly open.

"The tremor was so very slight that only the most sensitive nerves could have detected it. He pretended not to notice anything and continued to lounge along unceremoniously and indifferently, never quivering even the muscle of an eyelid, until he knew the hand was well in—then he clapped his own over it, whipped out a revolver, shoved it into the face of his captive, and said sternly: 'Surrender, my man; I've got you now.'

"But his 'man' had no notion of yielding so readily. He gave one quick, sudden jerk in the desperate hope of freeing his imprisoned hand. But the jerk was instantly followed by a sharp scream of pain, as he felt what seemed to him like barbed arrows piercing the tender flesh of his white hand that was soft and dainty as a woman's.

"The ingenious detective had sewed a number of fish hooks in his pocket with the points arranged in such a way that the hand would be firmly hooked in attempting to withdraw it."

"Oh—I said it was a fish story," I cried, jeeringly.

"A fish hook story, my dear madam," he replied, with assumed dignity. "But if you interrupt me again I shall not finish the story and then you can't write it, and then you'll have no pot boiler."

"I'll send it unfinished and call it 'The Second Mystery of Edwin Drood,' or 'The Mystery of the Second Edwin Drood.'"

"Well, it is of no use to threaten a woman—at least a woman like you—so I'll finish the story just to spite you.

"The robber proved to be a descendant of one of Europe's titled families.

FELT A TREMOR NEAR HIS POCKET.

He was one of those men whom the talented English poet painted in his lines:

"'With smooth dissimulation skilled to grace
A devil's purpose with an angel's face.'

"He had been mingling with the best element at Bath.

"All the women, with their usual enthusiasm and lack of prudence—where a handsome, dashing, fascinating man is concerned—had received him into their most exclusive circles with smiles of welcome.

"And he had been robbing them even while whispering pretty nothings into their listening ears.

"He was tried, proven to be one of the world's most notorious robbers, convicted and sentenced. The capture created a sensation, the like of which Bath has never since known.

"Fielding's name blazed into sudden fame and he was ever afterward employed on all the most difficult cases—one of which was the capture of a notorious female forger, who had set all Bath wild with her beauty and her voice."—N. O. Times-Democrat.

Felicity and a Pig.

There is an oft-told story of a rustic who when asked to explain the meaning of "felicity" (a word which had been freely used in a sermon to which he had been a supposed listener), replied that he "believed 'twere some part of the innards of a pig," a writer says. I have often wondered what process of mind could have suggested so incongruous a reply, and I think I have the clew. The poor man thus challenged for a definition simply bethought himself of "flick," the common Somerset term for the inner fat of a pig.—Notes and Queries.

Cost of Burning a Heretic.

In the course of an article sketching the histories of some early English ecclesiastics, a writer tells what it cost to burn a heretic. The items are taken from the municipal records of Canterbury, dated 1535, and are as follows:

For the expense of bringing a heretic from London	14s 8d
For 1½ loads of wood to burn him	2s 6d
For gunpowder	1d
A stake and staple	8d

TOM REED, it is claimed, is ashamed of the way our government is carrying on war against the Filipinos. He is not alone in his feelings of shame either.

Bryan Not Alone

The "Croker" banquet the New York World says:

"The regrets for the Democratic Club dinner compared with the acceptances seem to be about 16 to 1."

Imperialism.

The belief of the ruler that he is the special tool of destiny, that his deeds must be right, and that therefore it is his duty to force his will on the people against their consent is imperialism, and it destroyed from the beginning of history all the republican institutions. Therefore the founders of the Union put in on the principle, that the consent of the ruled was the fundament on which the right of the government rested. This rule made us great, because all the oppressed looked at us as the champion of liberty. The imperialistic rulers of Europe feared us; their armor was defective because they rule people against their consent.

Take England. If our dear cousins should go into war with any strong power, especially with us, what would Ireland and India do? And what would Cuba and the Philippines in the same case do with us, if we force our rule on them without their consent?

That is the reason they coax us in the track of foreign oppression; that we abandon the position as the champion of the peoples right of self rule.

The Republican party degrades itself and weakens our position by following the track or imperialism.

This degradation drives the old republican leaders, who served prominently under Lincoln, into opposition.

It is disgusting and degrading to hear these imperialists talk about the deeds of our Anglo Saxon cousins.

England is a mixture of natives and foreign conquerors; in Scotland, Scots; in Ireland, Celts; all ruled by a family of German descent. That is all. What is there in Anglo Saxonism?

They are sturdy defenders of their political rights; they are great colonizers; they are greater oppressors of mankind. Unreliable; they can find nobody in Europe to help them in the approaching conflict with Russia in Asia, therefore they coax us to take their burning chestnut out of the fire.

Look at their deeds at the time Lincoln was president and the Union was in danger of dissolution. Our dear cousins above all others supplied the Confederates with everything they needed to carry on the war of destruction. More than that! They, in alliance with the French Emperor instigated an uprising of the large land owners and the church against the rule of the natives in Mexico. They sent their armies to Mexico, carrying with them the Austrian Duke Max, and had him crowned as Emperor of that country

It was done to make the South, if successful, elect an Emperor as their ruler and so, to destroy the Union entirely. Of course, as soon as our cousins saw that the North would be victorious, they withdrew their soldiers and Max was court martialed and shot at Ouertara.

If a man, with the inspiration of McKinley was at that time president, he would have interfered and some way or other annexed Mexico against the consent of the people.

What did Lincoln, the great liberator of the black race, the greatest Republican of this century do?

He, who wrote that memorable sentence: "No man is good enough to govern any other man, without that man's consent." Let the Mexicans strictly manage their own affairs.

That is the degradation of republicanism of that time and today against that of Lincoln's time.

Whatever doubts the general public may have on the question of capital punishment, there can be but one opinion in the matter of paper-hanging.

An American admiral's flag is a blue field with four white stars, and Admirals Porter and Farragut are the only Americans who ever raised it before Dewey.

Joseph Jefferson, the actor, is a firm believer that a man must be sick once in ten years. His own experience goes to bear out this idea. Since 1869 he has been ill every tenth year.

The first Sunday law enacted in this country was passed in Virginia in 1617. It provided that the man who did not attend church on Sunday should be fined two pounds of tobacco.

Arbor day is celebrated in 44 states of the union by the voluntary planting of trees by the people. In Arizona, Colorado, North Dakota, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Wyoming it is a legal holiday.

The mayor of Macon, Ga., is collecting subscriptions for supplying at least one paper to each family now without one. He believes that this is in the interest of law and order and wisdom and sobriety in the community, and the local press unanimously agrees with him.

All the snow plows which have been given a trial in Wyoming this winter have proven to be rank failures. The kind of snowstorms in vogue in that country demand a plow having the burrowing disposition of a gopher, combined with the staying qualities of the ordinary wharf rat.

The French government reports the completion of one of the greatest lighthouses in the world at Cape Grisnez, on the French coast of the English channel. The light is of 1,500,000 candle power, during ordinary weather, but when a fog lowers the candle-power of the light is increased to 3,000,000. On a clear night the light can be seen for 48 miles.

The claims of American citizens against France for the seizure of their vessels in French ports, assumed by the United States in a treaty made early in the century, have not yet been paid, but congress has at length made provision to do so, appropriating $1,055,000 for that purpose. The matter has been before most of the congresses of the past 80 years.

According to the latest issue of the Naval Register there are 254 vessels of all grades, serviceable and unserviceable, in the United States navy. There are under construction eight first-class battleships, one submarine torpedo-boat, one gunboat, four monitors and 16 torpedo boat destroyers. Omitting sailing and receiving ships, tugs, colliers and supply ships, and unfinished torpedo-boats, we have in commission 134 war vessels.

Shoot-at-Him, an Indian chief, has begun divorce proceedings against his wife in a Colorado court. This shows how much civilization has done for the redskins. In the old days an Indian who grew tired of his helpmate promptly stuck a tomahawk in her head and went off and found a better and more congenial drudge. The old way was the simpler, but the new is the more commendable. It is better both for the women and the lawyers.

A new alloy has been discovered which is said to be a wonderful substitute for gold. It consists of 94 parts of copper to six parts of antimony. The copper is melted and the antimony is added, together with a little magnesium and carbonate of lime to increase the density. The product can be drawn, wrought and soldered like the precious metal to which it bears a striking resemblance when polished. The cost of manufacture is about 24 cents a pound.

The Spanish government has ordered for the use of its army 25,000 American-made bugles. The dons evidently believe that it was the clarion notes from the American trumpets that gave our brave boys the heart to face the deadly Mausers and sweep all before them at San Juan and El Caney. As usual, the dons are wrong. It was the American schoolhouses, books and newspapers that furnished the inspiration. The Spaniards would do better to order 25,000 American school-teachers.

The war department, according to a Washington dispatch, has undertaken the compilation of a photographic history of the war with Spain. All officers in the service and all others who have taken war pictures have been requested to send them to the department in order that they may be copied. The desire of the department, as announced in the letter, is "to produce in a single volume every obtainable picture and photograph bearing on this subject." It will be the first book of the kind ever compiled, and will be of great historical value.

An analysis of the public building bills passed by the last congress shows that New York heads the list with six, Illinois has five, Iowa and Nebraska four each, California, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Minnesota and Georgia three each, Ohio, Texas, North Carolina, Maryland and Wisconsin each two, and there is one building each for Colorado, Kansas, Tennessee, Mississippi, Montana, Utah, Indiana, Washington, Arkansas, Kentucky, New Jersey, Michigan, Oregon, Florida, South Dakota, Vermont, Connecticut, Virginia and the District of Columbia.

Capt. Morton Levy Phillips, commander of the United States revenue cutter Boutwell, who died recently at the age of 61 years, served almost half a century in the navy under an assumed name, his real name being Morton Levy. He was a son of Commodore Levy, and when a lad ran away and secretly joined the crew of one of the ships under the command of his uncle. He enlisted under the name of Phillips, and it has always remained on the rolls the same. Capt. Phillips was one of 11 brothers, all of whom have served in the United States navy all of their lives.

WINDSOR IS BURNED.

New York's Famous Hotel Destroyed by Flames.

Many Persons Lose Their Lives in the Terrible Disaster—The Loss—History of the Burned Building.

New York, March 18.—Flames which originated from the igniting of a lace curtain burst forth from the second floor of the Windsor hotel at Forty-seventh street and Fifth avenue shortly after three o'clock Friday afternoon, just as the St. Patrick's day parade was passing the building, and in a few moments they had leaped up to the roof and enveloped the entire Fifth avenue and Forty-seventh street fronts of the hotel. Ten minutes later the flames were roaring through the interior of the hotel and all escape by means of stairways and elevators was cut off. There was the wildest scene of excitement within and without the building. Hundreds of guests and employes were in the hotel when the fire broke out, and for many of them escape with safety was impossible. Probably from ten to fifteen lives were lost within a half hour, and 30 or 40 persons were injured in jumping from windows and in rushing through the roaring flames in the corridors and on the stairways. Many who were injured died later at near-by residences and at hospitals, and others who made wild leaps to the stone sidewalk were so badly injured that they are still hovering between life and death.

The Dead.

The list of the dead is as follows:

Mrs. Elizabeth Leland, wife of Warren Leland, proprietor of the hotel; burns of body; died at Flower hospital.

Mrs. Amelia Paddock, Irvington, N. Y.; jumped from window; body at East Fifty-first street station.

Nancy Ann Kirk (Mrs. James S. Kirk), Chicago; died in Bellevue.

Mrs. M. Pierce, Macon, Ga.; died at 19 East Forty-sixth street.

Miss Lacelles Grandy, Elizabeth City, N. C.; body at East Fifty-first street station.

Mrs. Addie Gibson, aged 35; shock; died at Murray Hill hotel.

Unknown woman; body at East Fifty-first street station.

Unknown woman, partially identified as the wife of a Baltimore financier; fell while letting herself down by the rope fire escape from sixth floor, and died in Miss Helen Gould's house.

Unknown man, 35, seen to jump from roof at rear of hotel; body not recovered.

Unknown child, thrown from window by mother; body not recovered.

Unknown woman, mother of the child; jumped from window; body not recovered.

New York, March 20.—The latest estimate with reference to the Windsor hotel fire places the number of dead at 16; injured, 54; missing, 45.

Several of the persons hitherto reported as missing were found to be safe Monday. The present list of missing numbers 44. This, however, takes into account but few of the 200 servants of the house.

Fired by Thieves.

The police are now led to suspect that the Windsor hotel fire was the work of thieves. Many of the guests who lost friends and valuables declared that thieves had set the big hotel on fire for the purpose of creating a panic and looting the rooms.

The Loss.

The loss on the hotel is estimated at about $1,000,000. Several adjoining buildings were damaged considerably, but the loss on these is comparatively small. All the papers and books of the hotel are believed to have been saved

The Burned Hotel.

[The Windsor hotel was seven stories high and almost square in form, had a frontage of 200 feet on Fifth avenue and occupied the entire block between East Forty-sixth and Forty-seventh streets. The front center of the building was eight stories in height. It had also two wings, each seven stories in height and 75 feet in length. There were more than 500 rooms in the hotel. The building was chiefly of brick and was architecturally simple. It was thoroughly equipped for fighting fire and had pumps equal in force to six of the most powerful fire engines in the city. It cost about three-quarters of a million dollars to build. The Windsor's builder and first owner was John T. Daly, and the building was first opened as a hotel in September, 1873. The Windsor for many years was one of the most exclusive hotels in the city and was in the height of its glory up to ten years ago. It was the rendezvous of all the great Wall street operators from the days of Commodore Vanderbilt and Daniel Drew. The hotel became known as "Wall street by night," because of the visits of the great financiers. President and Mrs. McKinley always stopped at the Windsor and celebrities of all kinds were its guests. Mr. Leland, the proprietor of the hotel, took charge of the Windsor shortly after the close of the world's fair in Chicago.]

Deadly Battle in Arkansas.

Hot Springs, Ark., March 17. — A shooting affray occurred here at 5:30 Thursday afternoon which resulted in the death of five men and the serious wounding of two others, one of whom is not expected to live. The killed are: Thomas Toler, chief of police; J. E. Hart, city detective; Thomas F. Goslee, police sergeant; John Williams, son of Sheriff Williams; Louis Hinkle, driver of a brewery wagon. Ed Spears was shot in the neck and may die. The shooting was the result of feeling growing out of the mayoralty contest which was under way here.

Hot Springs, Ark., March 20.—The coroner's jury on the riot of Thursday last, in which five men were killed, rendered a verdict against Sheriff Williams and Deputy Sheriffs Coffee Williams, Ed Spears and Will Watt, holding that the killings were not justified and committing the above men to jail to await the grand jury.

Harrison Heads the Ticket.

Chicago, March 17.—These nominations have been made by the democratic city convention at North Side Turner hall: For mayor, Carter H. Harrison; for city treasurer, Adam Ortseifen; for city clerk, William Loeffler; for city attorney, Andrew J. Ryan.

Declarations for 20-year franchise limit, compensation for the city and four-cent fares on all surface lines were included in the resolutions.

LEGISLATIVE SUMMARY.

The Transactions of the Lawmakers at St. Paul.—A Short Summary of the Regular Routine.

St. Paul, March 15.—Both branches of the legislature were in full working order yesterday. In the senate bills were passed as follows:

Providing all process butter be marked "renovated."

Investigation of Sunday labor.

Allowing real estate corporations to hold more than 5,000 acres.

Allowing cities of less than 15,000 to issue bonds for buildings and improvements.

Amending the laws relating to exemption from taxation so that the $100 exemption shall apply to the head of but one family living in the same building.

The house killed the bill for a bounty for the capture of bicycle thieves.

The following bills were passed:

Relating to exemptions from taxation.
Relating to contract for right of way.
Relating to malicious mischief.
Relating to enforced payment of taxes.
Relating to rebating assessments for local improvements.
Refunding amount paid by purchasers of property under certain circumstances.
Relating to the crime of rape.
To legalize certain deeds, mortgages, etc.
Relating to paroiment of prisoners in certain cases.
Relating to special terms of courts outside of county seats.

St. Paul, March 16.—The senate yesterday was in a working mood, although a good deal of the time was spent in committee of the whole.

The Neubaur bill, rendering effective threshers' lien on grain they thresh, was killed.

The Allen bill amending the law regarding search warrants was killed.

Miller's bill directing the railroad and warehouse commission to investigate and regulate the rates of several railroads was also put to sleep.

The following bills were passed:

Providing for uniform state certificates for teachers in certain public schools.

Providing for seven instead of five boiler inspectors.

Amending section 5533 of the General Statutes of 1894.

The bill provides for eight divisions or companies of naval reserves, which shall constitute the First and Second battalions.

Against the vote of nearly all the members from the Twin Cities, the house, by a vote of 82 to 30, passed the Argetsinger bill, "to encourage a better condition of the public schools and to appropriate money therefor." The passage of this bill was the net result of the day's work.

The rest of the day was spent in consideration of the insane asylum bills.

St. Paul, March 17.—The senate spent most of the day in consideration of the bill allowing parole to such prisoners as the Younger brothers.

The McGowan bill to establish eight hours as a legal day's labor was considered and amended so that it will apply only to counties of more than 50,000 population, and to include only labor done by and for the state, and the bill was then referred to Senators McGowan and Ives for redrafting.

The Grindeland commission bill was passed.

When the house adjourned after a three hours' session there were few results to show for its labors. The most important action taken was the dealing of a death blow to Senator Potter's S. F. 75 which amends the tax laws by providing that the tax payer who does not pay any of his tax before the first of June shall be subject to a four per cent penalty and a further penalty of one per cent a month during each month the tax is left unpaid, the remainder of the year.

A bill was introduced by Mr. Grass prohibiting salaried officers and employes of cities and counties from receiving fees as witnesses in any case in which the state, county or city may be interested.

The Bean bill, H. F. 525, authorizes boards of county commissioners of any county in which there is any meandered lake to establish a uniform height of water, for the purpose of improving the boating on such lake or the fishing therein. This will doubtless apply to Minnetonka and the commissioners of Hennepin county.

A bill introduced by Mr. Lampe, of Hennepin county, excludes railroad engineers from the operation of the law affecting engineers who run steam boilers.

Under suspension of the rules Senator Knatvold's bill providing an appropriation of $1,500 to pay for cablegrams from the sick and wounded volunteers of the Thirteenth Minnesota passed.

The Anoka-Hastings asylum bill was passed.

St. Paul, March 18.—Both houses adjourned yesterday until Monday, to visit the state farm.

The senate did little business, as many of the members were absent to Owatonna.

The bill legalizing the consolidation of railroads was killed.

Senator Wilson's oil inspector's salary bill that was practically killed was reconsidered and placed on general orders.

Senator McGowan introduced a bill making St. Patrick's day a legal holiday.

In the house, under suspension of the rules, two local bills, indorsed by the Hennepin delegation, were passed. One provides for the surrender of a certain portion of Lyndale avenue north by the park board to the city. The park board has no funds available for the maintenance of this highway. The second makes the appointment of one of the four assistant county attorneys subject to the confirmation of the county commissioners, with the understanding that he will act as the civil representative of the county.

Under a bill introduced by C. O. A. Olson, one of the half dozen that came into the house this morning, it is made unlawful to operate a private detective agency without a license. The term of the permission is made three years, the fee $25, and the accompanying bond, $1,000.

St. Paul, March 21.—The senate yesterday recommended for passage the Wilson bill to parole the Younger brothers.

Stockwell's bill for the initiative and referendum was killed by indefinite postponement.

The following bills were passed:

Requiring the education of children and providing truant officers in ungraded schools, in school districts and cities now or hereafter having over 50,000 inhabitants.

To abolish private seals and to provide that contracts in writing shall import a consideration.

To amend sections 2990 and 2991, General Laws 1894, etc., relating to corporations.

To amend the act to revise and codify the insurance laws of the state, etc., so as to authorize organization of certain insurance companies to insure bicycles against loss by theft.

To amend acts to change the name of the Minnesota state reform school and to consolidate the various acts relating to said schools and to amend the same.

Authorizing each of the district court judges of the state to appoint a district court reporter, and fixing his duties and compensation.

To provide for the purchase of municipal bonds for the permanent school and university fund.

To amend section 6775, General Statutes 1894, relating to the keeping of disorderly houses.

Proposing an amendment to section 6, article 8, of the constitution of the state relating to school funds.

To provide punishment for illegal voting at school meetings.

The atendance in the house was light and the proceedings of no great interest. A few bills were passed, none of which were important.

AN ORIENTAL PEACH.

As a Slinger of Mongolian Taffy This Vassal Was a Winner in a Walk.

Her majesty, Tsi An, empress of China, sat in her palace in the purple Forbidden City, with her brow resting on her thumb and her index finger pushed up through her fringe. Rousing herself presently from her profound absorption she beckoned to a walnut-colored person plastered up against the yellow silk tapestry.

"Un-Hung," she said, "where is the emperor?"

"Dash your ignominious slave into a million atoms, oh, amethyst flower of the Clestial kingdom," he responded, lying flat on his chest before her, "but your slave wotteth not."

"Wot?"

"No, most purple of our yellow lilies of the Yang-tse-Kiang, do not wot where the emperor is."

"And this to me?"

"Most beauteous descendant of all the gods, your vile slave speaks but the truth, though he lies here on his very stomach. He wotteth not where the emperor is."

"Slave, dog, canine wretch, scum of the Yellow river, did I not tell you what to do?"

"Truly, most divine of all the gentle, purple peoples of Peking, and your slave did it to the queen's taste, so to speak."

"Aha, then he is dead?"

"As a mackerel, O, yellow anemone of the crystal sea."

"Why liest thou, knowing that he is dead?"

"How the dickens, most marvelous of mandarin matrons, do I know where he is? I'm no fortune teller."

"Oho, aha," smiled her majesty, again relapsing into thought, "bring on another."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

THE HOTEL POTENTATE.

"When I was in business with W. C. Coup, the famous circus man," said Mr. J. A. Whyte, the impresario, "we once had occasion to make a business trip to the northwest, and stayed a week or so in a certain big city, the name of which isn't essential to the story. We put up at the leading hotel, which is one of the finest and best known in the United States, and would have enjoyed ourselves if it hadn't been for the head clerk. He was one of a breed that has since become obsolete—thank heaven!—a haughty, disdainful potentate, who considered it beneath his dignity to show the slightest courtesy to any of the guests of the house. Mr. Coup, as all who knew him will confirm, was a polished man of the world, totally careless of money, never complaining, but accustomed to punctilious service. He bumped against the majestic ruler of the register several times and endured his affronts in silence. At last he told me quietly to secure quarters at another hotel, which I was only too glad to do. I reported that arrangements had been made, and he went down to settle our account. 'What is our bill, Mr. King?' he asked suavely. 'My name's not King,' snapped the clerk, and proceeded to figure up the amount. Coup took out his pocketbook. 'Strange,' he said pensively, 'but I have been under the impression all along that your name was King.' 'Well, my name ain't King,' retorted the clerk, 'and I don't know now you got that idea.' 'Nor I,' said Coup, 'unless it was because you act so much like one.'"—N. O. Times-Democrat.

HIS CONDITION.

He Was Just Plain Lazy, Without Any of Your Frills or Ornaments.

"Howdy do, Mr. Jarlick?" saluted Dr. Slaughter, an Arkansas physician. "How is your health to-day?"

"Are you asking as a physician or merely as a friend?" returned Mr. Jarlick, a moss-grown, but shrewd native.

"As a friend, of course!"

"Wa-all, then, Doc, I'm feelin' kinder sawter, so to express it. Ain't sick enough to go to bed, nor well enough to do anything that looks like work. Ain't rich enough to need a vacation, nor poor enough not to feel like I want one. Can't say I've got spring fever or palpitation of the heart, for the first ain't in season now, an' I'm too durn big an' husky for anybody to believe the latter. The simple fact of the case is that I'm truthful enough to own up that I'm lazy, without any frills or ornaments—jest plain lazy, an' honest enough to confess it. That's all in the world is the matter with me."—Puck.

Railroad Across the English Channel.

The English Parliament is considering the plan of connecting that country with France by railway. Engineers say a roadbed can be laid on the bottom of the English channel, and by mounting trestlework on wheels, so that it projects above the water, the railway can be operated. This seems beyond belief, but it is perhaps no more remarkable than some of the cures accomplished by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters in bad cases of dyspepsia, indigestion and constipation. This is an age of wonderful achievements.

DOWN ON COLUMBUS.

If He Had Not Discovered America the Spaniards Would Have Had No Trouble.

One of the most delightfully humorous aspects of our late antagonists is their utter absence of a sense of humor. Some American jester having predicted that when the Spaniards got through with the war they would repudiate Christopher Columbus for having ever discovered America, the Madrid journals are verifying the prediction by asserting with truly Iberian profundity that Cristobal Colon has turned out to be the evil genius of Spain.

It is evident that if the old mariner had been content with staying in the Mediterranean and had not gone about bothering monarchs to furnish him the means of discovering the new world Spain would have no colonies, and having none she could not lose them. "It's ill taking the treeks off a Highlander," says the Scotch proverb, and by the same logic, if it had not been for the mischievous activity of Columbus Spain would have been thoroughly guarded against such disasters as have now befallen her.

But even upon the Spanish method of reasoning—that Columbus was at fault and not the ages of plunder and cruelty which have wiped out the Spanish ownership of nearly half the world—our Madrid friends forget that Columbus gave them three centuries of squeezing the colonies that followed his discoveries in South America, and four in Cuba and Porto Rico. Inasmuch as Columbus was thrown into disfavor and prison while he lived, we should say that the balance between him and Spain was still in his favor.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

ONE ACCOMPLISHMENT.

A Finland Maiden Who Had One Qualification for the Position of Cook.

The servant girl question is even more difficult in small western cities than it is in New York. There no lady ventures to ask a reference, but contents herself with a verbal examination of her applicant's capabilities.

There was an avalanche of Swedes and Finlanders in a Pacific slope town last winter, and one wild-haired damsel presented herself as a candidate for a $20-a-month position as cook. The prospective mistress thus interrogated her:

"Can you make good bread?"
"Brod? Naw."
"Can you make soup?"
"Soup? Naw."
"Do you understand roasting meats?"
"Meat? Naw."
"Can you broil?"
"Naw."
"Can your clean brasses?"
"Naw."
"Can you wash and iron?"
"Naw."
"Scrub?"
"Naw."
"Well, my goodness, girl! What can you do?"

The Finlander reflected. Then she answered proudly: "I can milk a reindeer!"—N. Y. World.

The mother suffered and she thinks her daughter must suffer also. This is true only to a limited extent. No excessive pain is healthy. Every mother should inform herself for her own sake and especially for the sake of her daughter. Write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., for her advice about all matters concerning the ills of the feminine organs.

INDULGENT MOTHERS

Many a young girl's beauty is wasted by unnecessary pain at time of menstruation, and many indulgent mothers with mistaken kindness permit their daughters to grow careless about physical health.

MISS CARRIE M. LAMB, Big Beaver, Mich., writes: "DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—A year ago I suffered from profuse and irregular menstruation and leucorrhœa. My appetite was variable, stomach sour and bowels were not regular, and was subject to pains like colic during menstruation. I wrote you and began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used two packages of Sanative Wash. You can't imagine my relief. My courses are natural and general health improved."

MRS. NANNIE ADKINS, La Due, Mo., writes: "DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I feel it my duty to tell you of the good your Vegetable Compound has done my daughter. She suffered untold agony at time of menstruation before taking your medicine; but the Compound has relieved the pain, given her a better color, and she feels stronger, and has improved every way. I am very grateful to you for the benefit she has received. It is a great medicine for young girls."

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water, and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What to do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder, and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful discovery and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing be sure and mention that you read this generous offer in this paper.

BATTLE AT TAGUIG.

Americans Repulse a Rebel Attack, Inflicting a Heavy Loss.

Are Completely Routed After Two Hours' Fighting—Aguinaldo Has a General Beheaded for Suggesting Surrender.

Manila, March 20.—Some of the rebels recently expelled from Cavite and the small towns in the vicinity of Pasig combined forces and Sunday night attacked a company of the Washington volunteers, a detached post at Taguig, about 1½ miles southeast of Pasig. Gen. Wheaton immediately reenforced the Americans with two companies each of the Washington and the Oregon regiments. The post had held the enemy in check and the fire of the reenforcing companies repulsed them, driving them across to an island formed by the estuary. They were thus in front of the Twenty-second regulars.

Rebels Fight Desperately.

On discovering that they were entrapped the rebels fought desperately, aided materially by the jungle and the darkness, but they were completely routed with heavy loss after two hours' fighting. The Americans lost two killed and 20 wounded, among the latter Lieut. Frank Jones. Gen. Wheaton determined to punish the natives, and at daybreak Sunday his brigade started in the following order:

More Fighting.

Manila, March 21.—James H. Creelman cables to the New York Journal: Except for a little skirmishing there was no fighting Monday between the American troops and the insurgents. Gen. Wheaton's troops, who drove the natives 15 miles away from the Pasig Sunday, have returned to their position around the town. Gen. Miller reported to Gen. Otis Monday that an irregular force of natives made an attack on Iloilo and the village of Jaroz several days ago, but the American troops were ready for them, and in the sharp fighting that followed the Filipinos were driven back with a loss of 200 killed and wounded.

Aguinaldo Beheads a General.

Manila, March 21.—It is reported on hitherto reliable authority that Aguinaldo is taking extreme measures to suppress signs calculated to cause a cessation of hostilities. Twelve adherents of the plan of independence, residents of Manila, have been condemned to death because they wrote advising surrender, and all loyal Filipinos have been called upon to perform the national service of dispatching them.

On Friday last Gen. Lagarda visited Malolos for the purpose of advising Aguinaldo to quit. He argued with the insurgent leader and attempted to convince him of the folly of his persistence in the face of overwhelming odds. Aguinaldo was furious at the advice and ordered Gen. Lagarda to be executed immediately.

Philippine Commission Meets.

Manila, March 21.—The United States Philippines commission has held its first meeting and decided to issue a pronunciamento to the inhabitants of the islands. President Schurman will prepare it. The document will explain the spirit in which the United States intends to fulfill the trust imposed and will call upon the people of the islands to lay down their arms and cooperate in the interests of good government.

Oregon Arrives at Manila.

Manila, March 20.—The United States battleship Oregon, accompanied by the Iris, arrived here Saturday after its long voyage from the Atlantic. The big vessel is in splendid condition, Admiral Dewey regarding it ready for any duty with the fleet. With this valuable addition to the navy the American plan of campaign against the Filipinos can be carried out with no further delay.

MEETS DEATH QUIETLY.

Mrs. Martha Place Electrocuted at Sing Sing for the Murder of Her Stepdaughter.

New York, March 21.—Mrs. Martha Place was executed at Sing Sing prison Monday. She was the first woman to die in the electric chair in the state of New York, and she went to her death quietly. Her death was instantaneous; but two shocks were given. State Electrician Davis threw down the lever at exactly 11:01 a. m. The voltage of the current was 1,760, and it was continued for four seconds. It was then gradually diminished to 200 voltage, which was continued for 56 seconds. Dr. Irvine, the physician of the prison, examined the woman, and then ordered a second shock. That was the same as the first in power and continued for the same length of time.

Mrs. Place murdered her stepdaughter, Ida M. Place, a mere girl, on February 7, 1898. She first threw acid in the girl's eyes and then smothered her. This was early in the morning, in their home in Brooklyn. She waited the entire day for her husband to return, and then attacked him with an ax, fracturing his skull and otherwise seriously injuring him. Place, however, recovered.

In Honor of Dewey.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 17.—A resolution was offered by Mr. McWhinney, of Allegheny, in the house Thursday and adopted that Gov. Stone be requested to name Monday, May 1, 1899, as "Dewey day," and designate the same as a legal holiday. The preambie to the resolution recites the victory of Admiral Dewey and his brave followers in the Manila harbor on May 1 last as one of the greatest achievements in naval warfare the world has ever known.

A Texan Affair.

Columbus, Tex., March 17.—A deputy sheriff was engaged in an altercation with a man named Scott Thursday when Scott remarked that if he had a gun he would fight. Ex-Sheriff Reese offered him a revolver, and the shooting began. Reese was killed at the first fire. Charles Boeme, a bystander, was also killed, and a small boy named Williams was badly injured. The trouble had been expected for some time.

Death of a Noted Educator.

Chicago, March 20. — Dr. Oliver Marcy, dean of Northwestern university, and professor of natural history in that institution, died Sunday at his home in Evanston after a long illness, aged 79. Dr. Marcy was considered an authority on all natural sciences.

A DESTRUCTIVE CYCLONE.

Many Lives Lost and Much Damage Done Throughout Alabama, Arkansas and Mississippi.

Memphis, Tenn, March 20.—A special to the Commercial Appeal from Birmingham, Ala., says: Additional details of Saturday night's cyclone near Edwardsville were received here late Sunday night. The following is a list of the dead, so far as known:

Lewis Coffee, aged 55, tax assessor of Clebourne county, and the following members of his family: Mrs. Coffee, aged 46, Leila, aged 22; James, aged 20; Lula, aged 18; Jacob, aged 13; Deveroe, aged 8; Dollie, aged 10; Grover, aged 6; John, aged 4; unknown woman, near Hotlin.

The wounded number 14.

Lewis Coffee's residence, a strong double log house situated on a little hill, was in the path of the storm. It was swept away and the timbers scattered for a mile. Ten of its 11 occupants were instantly killed.

Hickory Flat, Miss., March 20.—A tornado struck this place Saturday, doing considerable damage to buildings and other property. The school building and two churches were demolished and 25 dwellings blown down or unroofed. Several persons received painful injuries. A family living west of here lost its dwelling and a young woman was killed. On some farms near here hardly a building was left standing.

Little Rock, Ark., March 20.—A tornado passed through portions of Jefferson and Desha counties Saturday afternoon. At Robroy five houses were blown down and one man killed. The town of Dumas, in Desha county, was struck and considerable damage done. Nearly all the houses in the town were either blown down or damaged and several persons were wounded, but so far as can be learned no lives were lost. At Walnut Lake three persons were killed.

Atlanta, Ga., March 20.—A cyclone passed over Burke county at three o'clock Sunday morning. In the vicinity of Waynesboro four people were killed. Several houses were demolished and much damage done.

Bismarck, Ala., March 20.—A terrific windstorm, accompanied by rain and hail, passed through the extensive plantation of Samuel Curry in Chilton county Saturday night. Eleven tenement houses were blown down and two negro boys were killed. Seventeen other negroes were injured.

SIGNS THE PEACE TREATY.

The Queen Regent of Spain Affixes Her Name to the Important Document.

Madrid, March 18. — The queen regent has signed the treaty of peace between Spain and the United States.

The next step must be taken by Spain; that is, she must name her special envoy and notify the United States government of the probable date upon which he will present himself in Washington with the exchange copy of the treaty of peace. Although in most instances little more than a perfunctory ceremony, in the case of the exchange of ratifications of this treaty the details will be of more than ordinary interest, for the occasion will be historical.

The signed treaty of peace will be forwarded to the French ambassador at Washington, M. Jules Cahbon, for exchange with the one signed by President McKinley. No decree on the subject will be published in the official Gazette.

The draft of the treaty of peace between Spain and the United States was signed in Paris on December 10, 1898. It was approved by the United States senate by a vote of 57 to 27, on February 6, and was signed by the president on February 10.

Madrid, March 17.—The queen regent has signed the decrees dissolving the cortes, convoking the new parliament and authorizing the payment of arrears of pay to the repatriated troops.

BACK TO CHICAGO.

The Court of Inquiry Completes Its Work of Investigation at Fort Leavenworth.

Leavenworth, Kan., March 20.—The army beef court of inquiry concluded the taking of testimony at Fort Leavenworth at noon Sunday and at 4:15, departed for Chicago, where the sessions will be resumed this morning. The sole witness examined was Sergeant Edward Mason, troop A, First United States cavalry, located at Fort Robinson, Neb., who served as regimental commissary sergeant at Lakeland, Fla., and during the Cuban campaign. Sergeant Mason's testimony was probably the most direct that has been adduced since the court left Chicago, witness declaring that meat received at Lakeland for use in his regiment was "undoubtedly chemically treated." An agent of Armour & Co., he further testified, "told me at the time that this meat had been treated with what was called preservaline." Witness had refused to accept the meat. Sergeant Mason was interrogated individually by each member of the court, and could not be shaken in his testimony.

Chicago, March 21.—The government court of inquiry returned from Fort Leavenworth Monday morning, and after some delay resumed the examination of witnesses in the matter of canned and refrigerated beef. It is probable that the court will remain in session in Chicago two or three days.

Death of Ex-Senator Walsh.

Augusta, Ga., March 20.—Ex-Senator Patrick Walsh died Sunday morning at 7:30.

Ex-Senator Walsh at the time of his death was mayor of Augusta. He was one of the most prominent men in Georgia and had a national recognition as the earnest champion of southern development and perhaps the best authority on the material resources and manufacturing products of the south. In 1894 he was appointed by Gov. Northen to the United States senate on the death of Senator Colquitt.

"Old Hutch" Dead.

Chicago, March 17. — Benjamin P. Hutchinson, famous for gigantic deals on the Chicago board of trade and known the country over as "Old Hutch," died Thursday at the Lake Geneva (Wis.) sanitarium. His passing away was due to heart failure. The end, although sudden, was not entirely unexpected. Mr. Hutchinson had been an inmate of the sanitarium for two years. During most of that time his mind was feeble.

AN EXCELLENT COMBINATION

THE pleasant method and beneficial effects of the well-known remedy, Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Company, illustrate the value of obtaining the liquid laxative principles of plants known to be medicinally laxative and presenting them in the form most refreshing to the taste and acceptable to the system. It is the one perfect strengthening laxative,

Its perfect freedom from every objectionable quality and substance, and its acting on the kidneys, liver and bowels, gently yet promptly, without weakening or irritating them, make it the ideal laxative.

In the process of manufacturing figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, but

by a method known to the California Fig Syrup Company only. In order to get its beneficial effects, and to avoid imitations, please remember the full name of the Company printed on the front of every package.

Consumers of the choicest products of modern commerce purchase at about the same price that others pay for cheap and worthless imitations. To come into universal demand and to be everywhere considered the best of its class, an article must be capable of satisfying the wants and tastes of the best informed purchasers. The California Fig Syrup Company having met with the highest success in the manufacture and sale of its excellent liquid laxative remedy, Syrup of Figs, it has become important to all to have a knowledge of the Company and its product. The California Fig Syrup Company was organized more than fifteen years ago, for the special purpose of manufacturing and selling a laxative remedy which would be more pleasant to the taste and more beneficial in effect than any other known. The great value of the remedy, as a medicinal agent and of the Company's efforts, is attested by the sale of millions of bottles annually, and by the high approval of most eminent physicians. As the true and genuine remedy named Syrup of Figs is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Company only, the knowledge of that fact will assist in avoiding the worthless imitations manufactured by other parties.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, March 24, 1899

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Dr. Niven at Delano, March 30.

—The M. E. Sunday school is preparing to have an entertainment Easter night. Everybody invited.

—The sociable of the C. E. Society, at the City Hall, last night was a success.

—Nick Frank now has machinery headquarters at the corner of River Street and Railroad Avenue.

—Frank Pellet, conductor on the R. R. was killed in a wreck in the Cascades, Wednesday. He was a son-in law of Peter Burke. The remains were brought to Delano for interment.

—The butter maker's meeting which was to have been held Saturday, the 25th, has been put off until Tuesday, the 28th, on account of the inability of Profs. Shaw and Hecker, of the State Experimental station, to be present on the former date.

—Unless things are attended to about right it is feared our High School will not keep up to grade next year. Let all interested, and that should be every inhabitant of the district, at least do what they can towards advancing our school. We should be up to the best in the county.

—The Independence ticket was elected as follows:

Supervisors, Jacob Beal, Cearman, Chas. Cox. M. Frank; Town Clerk, O. Styner; Treasurer, John Pagenkoff; Assessor, J. H. McGary; Justice of the Peace, Julius Hardt; Constable, Ed Pittsley.

—Horses are looking up in price. Sales at auction this spring have been made at from $75 to over $100 for good fair work horses. The demand is quite brisk, and with the meagre supply of colts in the country, horses are bound to be good property.—Litchfield Independent.

This is in accord with the testimony of some of our neighbors. William Kaeppe says he was offered $100 for one of his horses a short time ago, but didn't sell because he kneeds him.

—An effort to raise money enough to pay off the indebtedness on the M. E. church property in Delano is being made. If everybody helps a little it can be done. The membership is not numerous nor wealthy, and help from kindly intentioned neighbors will be gladly received. "Giving to the poor is loaning to the Lord". A good investment.

—The new village council held its first meeting last Monday evening. The usual bonds were placed on file.

Fire officers were confirmed as follows:

Chief, A. L. Mealey; 1st Assistant, A. Horsch; 2nd Assistant, T. B. Rader; 3d Assistant C. H. Green.

Other officers appointed were:

Marshal and Night Watch, Joseph Merriman.

Street Commissioner, Darv Welker.

Health officer, Dr. T. J. Catlin.

The village engineer was instructed not to turn the electric lights on in the mornings during the summer.

President Lohmiller appointed the following standing committees:

Streets and Alleys and cleaning same,—Brandser and Peterson.

Sidewalks, construction and repair,—Peterson and Rader.

Public Grounds,—Lohmiller and Bock.

Finance,—Peterson and Bock.

Claims,—Brandser and Rader.

Street, Grade, Bridges,—Lohmiller, Rader.

Ordinance—Peterson and Bock.

Electric Lights,—Brandser and Peterson.

Fire Department,—Lohmiller and Rader.

Poor,—Bock and Brandser.

City Hall and Jail,—Brandser and Lohmiller.

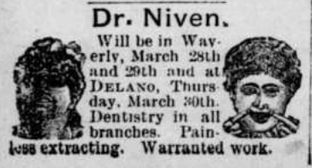
Purchasing Committee,—Lohmiller, Rader.

—Our citizens read this week with horror of the Windsor Hotel, New York City burning in the middle of the afternoon, while the St. Patrick's parade was passing, with thousands of people in the streets, the hotel full. The means of extinguishing fire not even used for lack of servants being drilled to that end. The death list is 10, missing 55. This was followed by the burning of the Patterson block in Omoha, where an entertainment was being arranged for and several lives were lost And unless something in the way of arranging a way of escape, or of drilling the pupils, or both, in our school building filled with two or three hundred children, and the dangerous fire trap that it is, we fear that people some day will be reading of what fools those Delano people were to allow their children to go to school in a six room two story brick veneered school house, without any means of extinguishing a fire, and only one stairway, and one double door for exit. How many of the little tots even in the lower room could possibly get out in case of fire without being run over, and tramped to death by the larger pupils in their hurry to save themselves, in case of a fire in the building? It is a shame now and liable at anytime to become a BURNING SHAME, and should at once be remedied by making another door and drilling the scholars to get safely out.

For Sale.

Six room brick house on South 3rd street. Call on Nick Franzen for further information.

Dr. Niven.



Will be in Waverly, March 28th and 29th and at DELANO, Thursday, March 30th. Dentistry in all branches. Painless extracting. Warranted work.

—Dr. Niven at Waverly, March 28 and 29.

Miss Anna Erwin, who has been working in the city, came up last Friday evening for a couple of weeks visit with relatives and friends.

William Grant, son of the late Dr. S. D. Grant, of Watertown, and who is now a member of the Red Cross society, is spending a month's furlough with his relatives on the old farm.

Asst. Postmaster John Steffes visited the city last Friday and Saturday. He met his sister Julia there, who has been in Williston about a year, and both came up Saturday evening.

Herman Otto returned Thursday from St. Cloud, whither he had been visiting his three sisters. He says he never had a worse trip on wheels. He road in a buggy a little too early in the season.

County Cullings.

The Financial statement of the county up to Jan. 1st. 1899, has finally been publshed on March 22, in the Buffalo Standard. The Syndicate was a long time getting the document before the people.

Old timers all along the line, are clamoring for political appointments, evidently they have been led by their boss to believe that to the laborer, for the Boss, belongs the spoils. But county politics are changing, and the Boss whose followers are wandering too far from paths of rectitude and righteousness, no matter how smoothe he himself may be, will learn in time that he has builded his house on the shifting sands.

Among the nays, on the question of parolling all life prisoners at Stillwater, we noticed the name of our Wright County Senator. We realize after hearing the arguments put forth by the wonderful array of legal talent that it required no little stamina of character for a Senator to vote nay, when such men as John Ives, saying he had not made up his mind, asked to be excused. We presume the man and the lawyer in John were having it out in his heaving breast and he will when he thinks necessity occasions, be ready to vote. It would be as well to abolish the prison entirely as to limit the time of service for murderers to less than the number of years they live.

Among Our Exchanges.

Sherburne County Star News: Once and on the Younger brothers and gang live to any legislation doing away with capital punishment. What if these murderers had been hanged twenty years ago?

Wascca Herald: One of the last acts of the Fifty-fifth Congress was the approval of the president's nomination Ex Governor Merriam for superintendent of the census. This is supposed to cover a multitude of sins and does Goodnow, Tams Bixby, Merriam—grand trio of Minnesota masters in the school of boodleism, appointed by McKinleyism!

St. Cloud Times: With Senators elected by direct vote there would be no failure to elect and no State would be deprived of its full representation in the U. S. Senate for indefinite periods.

County Line: Large graft powers, ex-labor commissioner, always "lights on his feet"—like a cat. After losing his job as commissioner—an office from which he should have been ousted long ago—he finds shelter under the wing of W. R. Merriam, as chief statistician.

We are informed by an Ohio contemporary that 250,000,000 microbes can stand on a postage stamp without crowding. The man who counted them was in small business. He was probably an Ohio politician.—Courier Journal.

Duluth Herald: It is not all to the credit of the United States that the representatives of the Filipinos were not given a hearing by the Washington authorities. "Pride goeth before a fall," it is related.

Duluth Herald: The Filipinos can be whipped into submission, but a "man convinced against his will is of the same opinion still." There are better ways of conquering a foe than by the use of bullets.

Valley Herald: The internal revenue authorities have lately decided that a two cent revenue stamp must be placed on all creamery warrants or orders issued on the treasurers, the same as on bank checks and similar paper.

Sherburne County Times: There is another junket to the reformatory today. They princely have come up to look over that 240 acres of sand that the owners want to sell to the state for $3,600 00.

Willmar Argus: Director Merriam is said to control more than 50,000 appointments in the census department. What a time he will have feeding the hungry!

Anoka Herald: Judge Collins and S. R. Van Sant are said to be anxious to run for governor next year. We haven't heard from Mr. Eustis since he met the terrible Swedes last fall.

Duluth News Tribune: Canned roast beef is "a trade lie," says a packer. A little ordinary lye sprinkled on it would have helped some.

Duluth News Tribune: On some days the Filipinos are "completely routed:" on others they are simply chased off the diamond.

Wabasha Standard: Why don't the president put a stop to this beet scandal by getting a large meat ax and doing a little work with it in the war office?

St. Peter Herald: Hon. William Henry Eustis does not seem to have profited by his experience last fall, and has announced that he will be a candidate before the republican state convention in 1900 for the gubernational nomination. Mr. Eustis will not have clear sailing by any means as Capt. Van Sant has also signified his intention of becoming a candidate, and Congressmen Eddy, Tawney and Morris would only need but little urging to enter the field.

From Manilla.

MANILA, Sampolick Dist.,
February 7, 1899.

FATHER: On the evening of the 4th, the long expected battle was commenced about the center of the line around Manila, attacking Nebraskans, then Col. and Penn., then 14th reg. and Washington, then the fire became a perfect roar from the bay clear around Manila to the other side on the bay. Firing began at 9:30, continued all night and day Sunday with heavy loss to the natives. By night we had lost about 40 killed and 120 wounded. The Minnesotans are still the supreme authority here.

In several parts of the city the insurgents tried to co-operate with those outside but the men who started the uprising were instantly shot.

Some of the men in our army, but none of Minnesota, seem to have deserted and received commissions from the insurgents. Several were found on the field. One was captured and instantly shot. Some of the so called deserters are soldiers with bob tailed discharges.

The enemy are so far pushed toward the mountains that not a shot can be heard. When it started I saw them about four blocks from our quarters. It is estimated that between five and six thousand have been killed by Sunday night.

Feb. 8th, 1899.

The battle is still being pushed, crowding the enemy before us, and all the shaks are burned, all the country laid waste around the city.

Melabon is expected to fall today.

Only two Minnesota men were hurt that I have heard of. Every charge that has been made our regiment has been represeted.

Major Bell called for a squad to go to a stone fort to see what it looked like. About twenty Pennsylvanians volunteered but their Colonel would not let them go, so he secured three or four of our band boys, and inspected the fort, capturing one prisoner.

I will send you an account that will be published soon. As the mail goes soon I must hurry.

Yours truly,
A. G. CATLIN.

"Mr. Bryan, before answering an invitation to dinner, telelegraphs to the sender an inquiry as to his character. Mr. Bryan may never be President, but he may write a new book on etiquette."—Louisville Courier Journal.

The Hon. Henry Watterson evidently don't understand how anyone can resist so great a temptation as that offered Mr. Bryan, and prefers to chance the battle with "snakes" after the feast rather than do as Mr. Bryan, openly meet them in his manly way the serpents who are trying to beguile him. We don't believe Henry will ever write a book on etiquette or be President.

Congressional Asses.

Tom Reed performed a grand duty when he forced cogressmen to stand up and be counted And his recent assumption of authority in nullifying needed legislation is merely another proof that men are falible and that it is easy to make an ass of ones self on short notice, thereby destroying a whole lifetime of usefulness.—Ida Grove (Iowa) Era, (Rep.).

What's the matter with the "Era" now? People ought not to send "asses" to Congress, and surely Iowa has no Congressmen that can't stand up to be counted. As for Tom Reed what ever he is, he has learned to be mostly from his own experience a good deal of it with Congress.

THE delights of an evening spent around a well-lighted reading table are not half understood. An illustrated magazine with its wealth of illustrations, its stories of adventure and love, its descriptions of travel which carry you to the remotest ends of the earth, and its instructive articles for young and old—these are the first requisites for your own enjoyment and the entertainment and proper education of your children.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal,

Both Together One Year for Only $1.80

In this way you secure your own home paper and an illustrated magazine at a price that is only about a fourth of what some of the illustrated magazines sell for. For three years The Cosmopolitan has undisputedly claimed that it reached the largest clientele possessed by any periodical, daily, weekly or monthly, in the world. It was The Cosmopolitan which sent Julian Hawthorne to India to let the world know the real horrors of famine and plague. It was The Cosmopolitan which established at its own cost a great Free Correspondence University which now has over 20,000 students on its rolls. It was The Cosmopolitan which offered a prize of $3,000 for the best horseless carriage and prizes for best plans for public baths, and best arrangement of sewer and pipe systems for cities. It was The Cosmopolitan which set the presidents of great schools and universities seriously discussing the defects of existing educational systems. It is The Cosmopolitan whose enterprise is always in the lead in advancing the world's civilization.

T. J. CATLIN, Publisher.

Entered as Second-Class Mail Matter at the Post Office in Delano, Minn

GEN. MCARTHUR has taken Malolos. Mr. Aguinaldo was not in, and the place was on fire. Not very much resistence seems to have been made. Possibly this is what Gen. Otis meant by "taking them in reverse."

EVERYBODY seems to have had about all the war they wanted, and are now anxious for peace. When one list of killed and wounded, costs over $1600 as has been claimed for one on cablegram, it begins to affect people with pocketbooks as well as those who send boys to war. And when the pay stops the wonderful hankering after war will very soon cease.

SPEAKER DARE writes home to his paper the Star News "The house is doing fairly well, but everything it does seems to get expliceibly tied up in the senate. Of course the Senators do not have to go before the people at the next election, but the party does and it is entitled to the best kind of a record the legislature can give it."

That's right Mr. Dare, the G. O. P. even at its best, in the next campaign takes big chances of getting "expliceibly tied up."

With the Army Recruiter.

The army recruiting office at Seventh and Cedar streets is still receiving applicants for admission to the service. Men are coming in slowly and there is an entire absence of that eagerness which was displayed in the early months of the war. As fast as detachments of six or seven are obtained they are sent to their respective commands. One batch has already been sent to the Philippines and another will go next Monday.—St. Paul Dispatch.

There are two classes of people who continue to prate about that alleged corruption fund for the release of the Youngers—one which is so gullible as to bite at every yellow newspaper story, and the other one that knows of no other way to influence legislation and which, if it undertook to accomplish such an end, would resort to that expedient. The story at first was only a silly falsehood, and grew until there were some who believed it—and wanted some of it.—St. Paul Dispatch.

Could it have gotten among the newspapers?

Among Our Exchanges.

Willmar Argus: J. Adam Bede may be the republican candidate for congress in the sixth district next year. Page Morris has had enough, or at least his republican friends think so and an attempt will be made to lay him on the shelf.

Willmar Argus: W. R. Merriam may be McKinley's running mate next year. Stranger things have hadpened. Hanna wants it so.

LeSueur Sentinel: Quite a few of our brave American boys are still sacrificing their lives every day in the Philippines just to satisfy that thirst for plunder that has caused them to be sent there. We fail to see any glory in it and can only see sadness.

Waseca Herald: "Those who deny freedom for others deserve it not for themselves, and under a just God cannot long retain it."—Abraham Lincoln.

—"No man is good enough to govern another man without that other man's consent. I say this is the leading principle, the sheet anchor of American republicanism,"—Abraham Lincoln.

—"When the white man governs himself that is self government; but when he governs himself and also governs another man, that is more than self government, that is despotism."—Abraham Lincoln.

Litchfield Ledger: The bill making possible the pardon of the Younger brothers seems to be making some headway in the senate. That bill will prove to be an edged tool to those who play with it.

HENNEPIN County, Minn., March 26.

BUFFALO GAZETTE.

Mr. Editor: When I was a boy of only a few summers my father brought me out west to grow up with the country and so I hadn't much of a chance for a college or clerical education: had to work them days clearing off the heavy timber in order to get a farm. In them days we had no such thing as bicycle racing, base ball playing, prize fighting, dog conventions and such like. All these have come in later, and young America can learn more now in 48 hours than he could learn in a whole life time 40 years ago. I have been much amused of late in reading the Minneapolis dailies, about that stare route dog convention held in the parlor rooms of the city part of the Hennepin county court house in Minneapolis, last week. I understand there were about four hundred canines entitled to seats in the convention, but none were entitled to seats that did not have their credentials and a pedigree.

It has been a wonder to me what this dog convention is a forerunner of. It must have some significance. I hope it is an omen of some pending good. We understand but do not give it as reliable news, that the Minneapolis court house dog convention was held in the interest of the sausage industry, and perhaps there will be a trust formed soon.

Dogs are a domesticated animal, and their various usefullness are about as follows: for breeding flees, for watching chicken coops by night, killing sheep, and for assessing purposes at from $5 a head to $25.

Now this canine convention may have been a forerunner of prosperity.

But St. Paul says in his letter to the Philippian church at Philippi, while he was a prisoner at Rome. "beware of dogs." Whether he meant the domesticated canine or not I do not know.

Some of our solons at St. Paul tried to get a bill through the legislature, taxing the taxible property of Minneapolis, so as to finish the city part of the leviathan Hennepin county court house. But for some reason it did not go through and so it will be given over to the moles and bates also dog conventions for another two years. Our county (Hennepin) has been called the banner county of the state and I guess it is all right, for what other county in the state can afford such an aristocratic canine convention. It is thought the convention was a success with one exception, and that was the absence of Darwin's photograph. This may be the means of starting a zoological garden in the city, with the Philippine monkey as president.

"What meaneth then this bleating of the sheep in mine ears" and the barking of the dogs which I hear.

Mr. Editor, I suppose the dog was a passenger on Noah's ark at the time of high water in 1656, or he existed in antediluvian times. But a little more looking after the poor an oppressed of this country would be more commendable than such manifest interest in dog shows, prize fighting, bicycle racing and such like but the people seem to be going in that direction, regardless of what will follow.

It seems that winter is going into the lap of spring. Our spring is coming late all right.

Rev. Thomas Grundy, of Wisconsin, preached two evenings at Advent church, Armstrong, last week.

George Washington was in Minneapolis one day last week on business.

Dick Pitman, of Jordan was in our town one day last week.

The man who bought the George Hoisington farm has moved onto it with family, household goods, stock and farming implements, and looks as though he meant business.

The office of Town Clerk will now be at O. Styners, Armstrong.

The Maple Plain creamery is still dead property. It should be made use of in some way.

The new town board met at town hall Armstrong last Saturday.

Everybody predicts high water when this snow goes off, and also good fishing around the lakes.

There has been quite a number looking for land of late, and some say prosperity is here. A GENTILE.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 24, 1899.

The Bryan-Belmont correspondence has naturally been the principle topic of conversation among democrats since it was made public. All sorts of opinions are expressed concerning its effect upon the party in next year's campaign, but the general tendency is that Col. Bryan only did what any other man of spirit would have done, in striking back at those who have been hitting at him for months, and that the fight which the correspondence has precipitated had to come anyway and that it is better to have it now than next year. It is an open secret that the element of the party represented by Mr. Belmont, which bolted the regular party platform and ticket in '96, has been working to down Col. Bryan and to get control of the next National convention of the party. Col. Bryan's friends have contended that men who bolted in '96 and who openly threatened to bolt again in 1900, if the same platform is adopted, have no right in reason to dictate to the democratic party; that these rule or ruin men have not a single electoral vote that they can promise with a reasonable degree of certainty, even if they were allowed to dictate both candidate and platform, and consequently that there defection will not reduce the electoral vote of the democratic party by a single vote; also that the party in every state that went democratic in '96 is overwhelmingly in favor of a readoption of the principal planks of the Chicago platform, next year. The discussion of this correspondence will have a tendency to show whether these claims are correct or not; also to cause the rank and file of the party to make sure that they are properly represented in the next National convention. A movement has already been started to make every delegate admitted to that convention pledge himself to support the ticket nominated and the platform adopted.

When they have no power to be otherwise republicans are always fair. A case in point is the distribution of the Senate patronage. When the republicans were in the minority they thought the plan of dividing the patronage of the Senate among democrats, republicans and populists, in proportion to the strength of each in the Senate, as just right, as it unquestionably was. But now, having a majority of the Senate, they have undergone a change of mind and are advocating a change that will give them entire control of the Senate patronage, and without waiting for a change to be formally adopted democratic employes are being dismissed to make places for republicans.

There are some men in the Alger party, now on the way to Cuba, that are ashamed of being with him, or else he has some along that he is ashamed of, as particular pains were taken to prevent a complete list of the eight or ten men getting published.

Secretary Hay had a bad spell when it was learned that the report of ex-Secretary Sherman's death was false. He had caused copies of an article highly eulogizing the public career of Sherman to be sent to a number of the big newspapers. He isn't much of a politician, but he knew that with Sherman alive and his attitude in Ohio politics uncertain, neither Hanna nor McKinley would wish the administration to stand sponsor for any praise of the man they had forced out of the Senate and out of the Cabinet. Telegrams were sent requesting that the eulogy be suppressed.

Military officers who have closely followed the testimony taken by the Court of Inquiry say the verdict is bound to support the charges made by Gen. Miles. One prominent officer said: "I don't see how the court can do anything else but report that every charge made by Gen. Miles was justified, and I expect it to go further and fix the responsibility upon Alger and Eagan. I know that great pressure will be brought to bear to prevent such a straightforward report as the evidence calls for and to get some word juggling done that can be made to mean anything or nothing according to the wishes of the reader; but there are men on that court who are not in the habit of suppressing their conscientious opinions."

Another blessing of annexation has just been officially uncovered. When it was stated in Congress that the annexation of the sugar producing islands would mean a speedy end of the sugar industry in the United States, the rabid annexationists hooted at the idea. Now, an agent of the Agricultural Department, sent to Porto Rico to carefully investigate the subject, makes an official report saying that the sugar industry in the U. S. is doomed. If Porto Rico, Cuba, and the Philippines are allowed to send us their sugar free of duty. He says the same grade of sugar that costs 3¾ cents a pound to produce in the U. S. costs but ⅔ cents a pound to produce in those islands. This will be a hard nut for the next Congress to crack.

WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

A SWEET REVENGE.

When my boy Reuben, 'long last spring,
Fer him ter ride, I didn't kick, good exercise, I like;
This bicyclin' does young folks good, and if's all well enough,
Pervided they don't want ter fix the roads er no sich stuff.
So I says: "Rube, my son, I'll see," and, later on I bought
A slap-up nickel-plated rig, good purchase, too, I thought,
But land! I didn't know my biz when I put through that deal,
I'd had to run the hull blamed farm sence Reuben got a wheel.

When he was learnin', fust along, he'd come home bruised and sore,
And so used up I couldn't ask the boy ter do a chore,
And so I done 'em all myself, but, arter quite a spell,
I sickened of it 'cause I see it suited him too well.
And then he jined the "Centchry Club" and uster go away
Ter ride a hundred miles, b'gosh! and not be home all day,
And all the work he done about the place wa'n't worth a meal
Of good cold vittles fer a dog, sence Reuben got a wheel.

In hayin' time I'd go with him, and we'd start in ter mow,
And he'd leave off ter git a drink and then, fust thing yer know,
I wouldn't see him comin' back, and, when I'd hunt him up,
I'd find he'd gone off on his wheel, the shiftless, idle pup!
He got ter be a "scorcher," too, and raced around the town
All bent up like a jumpin'-jack a-runnin' people down;
Took all the cash fer damages that I could make er steal;
It's cost me forty dollars clean sence Reuben got a wheel.

All summer long I let him ride and never opened head,
But when 'twas winter, then I set that wheel up in the shed
And rigged a belt around it tight and hitched it so 'twould draw
Across the room, and turn a shaft that worked a cross-cut saw.
And then I says: "My son," says I, "I know yer like ter ride,
So git up on that wheel and hump or else I'll tan yer hide.
You're quite a 'scorcher,' ain't ye? Well, then, scorch, right off the reel!"
I've sawed up thirty cord er wood sence Reuben got a wheel.

A College Story

An Interesting Tale of Stubs' Noiseless Banjo

"YOU see," said the Princeton man, "Stub Gillis was such an all-around white man and it didn't seem square to leave him out of anything that was going on. It wasn't just that he was the best halfback in all the colleges that gave him such a hold, but he was just the squarest kind of a chap, and there wasn't a more popular man in college. Well, we rang him in on the winter theatricals, though he didn't have enough dramatic gumption to shift scenes, and he waddled through his part like a duck across a hot stove. But that was all right; everybody wanted to see Stub Gillis, the famous halfback, and he was a drawing card. Then came the proposition to run him in on the Glee and Banjo club winter trip. I was assistant manager and I pushed it along all I knew, for Stubs and I were great old pals. Just the same I knew he was a dead one on the tune racket.

"Well, the manager went up against him and asked him if he could sing. Stub didn't have any false ambitions about him.

"'Sing what?' he says.

"'Sing tunes,' said the manager.

"'I can sing the class song,' says Stub, 'but I'm the only one that can tell what it is I'm singing. As a triller I don't strike a very lofty average.'

"'Well, you can stand up and make your mouth go without letting any noise out of it?' says the manager.

"'I'd hate to trust myself,' Stub said.

"That put him out of the Glee club business, but there was still the banjo club. All sorts of instruments go into that, but the only thing the candidate had ever even tried to play was a jews-harp, and he couldn't back himself for any record-breaking oratorios on that. It looked pretty dark, and Stub felt wuzzy, for he was rooting deep to go along. I put in some thinks about it and dug up an idea.

"'Look here,' I said to the manager, 'I'll rig up a banjo for Stubs with fake strings and we'll put him in the second row, where he won't be a mark for all the spy glasses in the house, and teach him to go through the motions, and I don't see where he comes in to be anything but a gigantic success.'

"'Go ahead with your banjo,' said the manager, 'only look out that the strings don't stiffen up and turn out a spiel when it isn't wanted.'

"It didn't take me long to get that instrument rigged; looked like the real thing, too, but you couldn't get any more racket out of the strings than out of a lump of putty. They were a sort of hemp arrangement, stiffened up to look like gut, and to make sure of its being on the quiet the bridge and tail piece were plugged with felt. At first Stub was kind of sore; said he'd rather be a tailor's dummy and make an honest living. But after I'd taught him the motions he took to it all right and used to come to rehearsals regularly, so he'd know when to leave off his picking and when to begin on it again. When we got started on the trip, we made him usher every night and he'd had so much about him in the newspapers that every place we struck the girls would wait in line for him to take them up the aisle. It was a case of zero for the other ushers. At the receptions after the show, too, Stub was a hot tomale, but it didn't get him stuck on himself, for he wasn't that kind. He was an easy kingpin till we struck New Orleans, and there he made the break of his life.

"It was Sunday evening when we landed in that resort of Mardi Gras and other large and healthy joys, and we sort of scattered around to get a bird's-eye view of the town. When it came to viewing a town Stub was a bird with eyes all over him, and I guess he saw enough to write a book about, only I haven't heard that he ever wrote it. Anyway, he stayed out so late that night that he forgot his name, and when he showed up Monday noon he tried to make the gang believe that he was the father of his country, and his first name was George. He couldn't remember the other one, and it made no difference anyway, as he intended to make his debut as a soloist that very night under the alias of Signor Stubbini. It was in order to get Stub out of that frame of mind, so we treated him internally and externally with ammonia cocktails and cold baths until he rounded to a pitch of humility that made him sad enough to bring tears to the eyes of an instructor in math. He said he was a crawling worm and he'd like to go out and dig holes in the garden. After that he had a big dinner. It braced him up to beat the band. The manager and I put him through the alphabet and the multiplication table and the shorter catechism and decided that he was all right to show up that night. That's where we sprinkled our record with hayseed.

"Do you know what a hang-over is? Well, a hang-over is one of those jags that takes a nap way in the back of your brain and leaves you feeling pretty solid with yourself until it wakes up again. When it gets waked up it's time for your friends to tie ropes around you and lock you in a room. That's what the manager and I ought to have done with Stub, for he had a hang-over like the eaves of a house. If he'd only shown it a little more—but he didn't. I tackled him an hour before concert time when he was getting into his dress clothes.

"'Feel all right?' I asked him.

"'Feel like a bird,' he said. 'Say, if I had the real thing in a banjo to-night instead of that fake cheese box you rigged for me I could tear the eternal soul of music right out of it. Let's have a cocktail.'

"'Never a one,' I said. 'It's up to you to drink ice water.'

"'No,' said he. 'It would put out the fires of genius. I feel the spirit of Beethoven and Wagner and Mozart and the man that wrote "Johnny Get Your Gun" all stirring within me. Great song, "Johnny, Get Your Gun" is.'

"Yes, but you don't need to sing it,' I said, for Stub had taken a long breath and opened his mouth. 'Sure you're all right?'

"'Truly rural,' says Stub. 'Six slick, slim, small saplings. Think I could do those stunts if I wasn't? Watch me tie my tie.'

"Now, it's really something of a trick for a man to put up a dress tie in a neat bow unless he's pretty steady, and Stub tied a gent's furnishing store model in three moves. That settled my doubts. When I left him he was singing. He said it was 'America' because he was patriotic. Three minutes later I met a boy in the hall carrying two cocktails on a tray. I asked him where they were going. He said to Mr. Gillis. I told him to charge 'em to Mr. Gillis' private account and drank 'em both. Then I sent Jerry Corley, who sat next to Stub in the banjo line, to hover over him on angel wings and see that he didn't establish lines of communication with any more booze. Jerry was a careful chap. He did the angel wing business with an eagle eye attachment and landed Stub at the concert hall so late that he couldn't usher. Stub said he didn't feel much like ushering, anyway; felt kind of compressed around the head; effect of the pressure of his musical thoughts on the inside most likely. During the first piece he got along all right. From my place at the other end I got a glimpse of him pecking away at his hemp strings with a kind of rapt look like a man hitting up something long and cold through a straw with the thermometer at 90 degrees.

"As I said, Jerry Corley was a careful sort of man, but he got his eye on a girl in the audience that he used to know, and I guess it rattled him, for when he gathered up the boxes for our second appearance Stub goldbricked Jerry and got his banjo, and Jerry was in such a trance that he never noticed that he was up against Stub's hemp-lined silence-spreader till he hit his chair. Then he made a swipe for his banjo, but Stub warded him off and the trouble began. It was some kind of a jiggering waltz we had for that time and it began with some little tinkly picks on the mandolins, very soft and birdy. Well, the mandolins started in, and first thing I knew I heard a kind of wild whisper from Jerry Corley:

"'Don't touch the strings, Stub.'

"Then Stub's bass voice said:

"'Leggo that banjo, Jerry. Drop it or I'll kick your chair over.'

"There was a kind of scraping of the chairs and I saw a couple of beads of water come out on the leader's alabaster forehead. Off in the wings the manager was doing a war dance and whispering so that you could feel the wind of it rustling your hair.

"'Stub, you blank fool, don't pick those strings. Put that bridge down! Keep your hands off. Wait for the rest.'

"Itwas too late. Stub had his arrangements all made and just as the mandolins were twittering their last little twinks before they came to the jumping-off place, where the whole bunch of us came in with a crash, Stub came out on his banjo:

"'Boom. Plinkety-plunkety-plark! Plankty-plunkty-whang!'

"Oh, it was heart-breaking. The mandolins stopped as if a brick wall had fallen on 'em. The leader smiled a sickly kind of smile, and the manager just stood and naturally choked himself to keep from yelling. The audience was kind of surprised, but a snicker ran around. Stub executed a few more plunks before he discovered that he was playing a solo. Then he got up and started for the front, leaning a little forward under the weight of his hang-over. He had only Corley to Hunting for leaking gas with a lighted match is an effective method, but its results are not always pleasant. An Ohio paper says that during the past three weeks 12 persons have been killed, 44 seriously injured and $300,000 worth of property destroyed by explosions of natural gas caused by the fools with the lighted matches. The person who puts kerosene in the kitchen stove now has a fit companion in the man who looks for leaking gas with a match.

The most wonderful sight to the natives of Santiago seems to be an American girl, so great is the contrast with the senoritas of whom glimpses are caught behind the window bars. There being no prospect of a change from electrocution back to hanging, the old machine was turned over for fuel. REBELS RETREATING.

Filipinos Continue to Fall Back Under Fierce Onslaught.

Desperate Resistance Offered to Advance of Our Troops—Dispatch from Otis—Details of the Fighting.

Manila, March 28.—A thousand Filipinos, composing the rear guard of the rebel army which is retreating on Malolos, Aguinaldo's headquarters, made a stand Monday in some strong entrenchments about Marilao, across the Marilao river. In the engagement six Americans were killed, including three officers, and 40 were wounded.

The American forces advanced from Maykawayan, the brigade commanded by Gen Harrison Gray Otis being on the left of the railroad and Gen. Hale's on the right. They eventually discerned white roofs and steeples among the green trees beyond the river, looking not unlike a Massachusetts village.

The rebels had an unfordable river in front of them and they poured in a fire so effective that it showed that they were veterans, probably members of the native militia which the Spaniards organized.

The American artillery put a dramatic end to the battle. Approaching under cover of the bushes to about 60 yards from the trenches, the artillerymen emerged upon an open space commanding the town. When the Americans appeared they gave a great yell, and the Filipinos were panic-stricken, about a hundred seeking safety in flight, while a white flag was raised by those who were in the trenches, who also shouted "Amigos" (friends).

Col. Funston, with 20 men of the Kansas regiment, swam across the river to the left of the railroad bridge and captured 80 prisoners with all their arms.

The Pennsylvania regiment captured 40 prisoners.

By this time, the right of the Filipinos was demoralized.

The Americans refrained from burning the town and rested there at night.

Dispatch from Gen. Otis.

Washington, March 28. — The following dispatch was received from Gen. Otis. It reached Washington at 8:55 Monday morning:

"Manila, March 27, 1899.—Adjutant General, Washington: MacArthur holds Marilao; severe fighting to-day and our casualties about 40. The insurgents have destroyed bridges, which impeded progress of train and artillery. Our troops met the concentrated insurgent forces on northern line, commanded by Aguinaldo in person, and drove them with considerable slaughter. They left nearly 100 dead on the field, and many prisoners and small arms were captured. The column will press on in the morning.

(Signed) "OTIS."

Have Retreated to Malolos.

Manila, March 28.—Gen. MacArthur's division spent the night and morning at Maykawayan, the next station beyond Palo. After reconnoitering his front, he pushed along the railroad Monday afternoon towards Malolos. If the statement of the 35 prisoners captured is true, the main body of the enemy has retreated to Malolos.

Gunboat Fires on Bulacan.

Manila, March 28.—The army gunboat Laguna de Bay ascended the shallow water to Bulacan this (Tuesday) morning and shelled the strong positions of the insurgents around that important city. Three Americans on board her are reported wounded by the storm of rifle bullets which swept the little craft from the intrenchments on the shore. Gen. MacArthur's engineers have completed a pontoon bridge across the river at Marilao and his forces are now rapidly advancing northward toward Malolos.

Under Terrific Fire.

The American troops advanced under a terrific and deadly fire. The South Dakota boys rushed up to the trenches in a furious fashion and succeeded in driving the enemy out from their stronghold pell mell. Ten lives were lost in the gallant rush, and 11 poor fellows were wounded. Many of the insurgents were killed and about 60 were captured.

Three men of the Third artillery were wounded at the railway bridge. Three lieutenants of the Dakota regiment were killed. The total loss for the day was about 20 wounded and ten killed. The total American losses during the last three days is about 30 dead and 280 wounded. Marilao is now in complete possession of the Americans.

Two more strongly-fortified positions still remain between Marilao and Malolos to be taken by the Americans before they hope to round up the rebel chief in his so-called "capital."

The heat is very severe here and many soldiers are suffering from prostration.

But there are no more trenches to encounter, although over 30 villages, including the larger settlements of Bulacan and Gudguinto, intervene.

At every railroad station circulars have been posted, signed by the Filipino commander-in-chief, Antonio Luna, ordering all spies and bearers of news to the enemy to be shot without trial, and instructing that all looters and ravishers be treated in the same manner. Further, all towns abandoned by the Filipino troops are first to be burned.

While deploring the existence of war, the circular maintains the undeniable right of the Filipinos to defend their homes, lives and lands against "would-be dominators, who would kill them, their wives and children." Adding that this motive ought to impel all Filipinos to sacrifice everything.

The shelling of Paranaque was not premeditated. The turret ship Monadnock anchored off the town, and the insurgents, emboldened by the long silence of the warships on guard duty, opened fire on her with muskets, with the result that one man was killed and three were wounded. The Monadnock then destroyed half the town, including the church.

The Killed.

The following is the list of killed March 24, 25 and 26:

Twentieth Kansas—Company E, Privates H. S. Plumer, Curran C. Craig; G, A. S. Anibal; Third artillery, battery H, Privates William Patton, James O'Neil, Sergt. Fogarthy; G, Privates Herbert Ross; K, Thompson Clarence Watts.

Second Oregon—Company B, Privates H. B. Arams; D, William W. Cook; L, Charles Herbert, Guy Millard.

First Montana—Company F, Privates Joseph Bickman; G, Percy Lockhart, Steve Stevens; M, William Mitschke.

Third infantry — Company M, Privates Morrell, Corporal Cummings; Tenth Pennsylvania, Private Alix Nowall; First Nebraska, company A, Sergt. Walter Poor; First Colorado, company E, Capt. John S. Stewart.

Twenty-Second infantry—Col. H. C. Egbert.

Col. Egbert was among those who distinguished themselves at Santiago, being wounded at San Juan, and brevetted for his conspicuous gallantry in that engagement.

Gen. Hale Wounded.

Denver, Col., March 28.—A cablegram was received Monday morning from Manila stating that Gen. Irving Hale was wounded in action. A cablegram reached Mrs. W. B. King, the general's mother-in-law, reading as follows: "Hale slightly injured. Irving." The message was evidently sent to allay any fear when the list of dead and injured is received from the islands, but instead of toning down anxiety it has increased it. Neither Gov. Thomas nor Horace M. Hale, the general's father, has received any news, and they believe that the general's wound is not of a serious nature.

A RACE WAR.

White Men in Little River County, Ark., Inaugurate a Systematic Slaughter of Negroes.

Texarkana, Ark., March 24.—A race war is on in Little River county, and during the past 48 hours an indefinite number of negroes have met their death at the hands of an infuriated white population. Seven are known to have been lynched, shot to death or slain in some manner, and the work is not yet done. The bodies of the victims of the mob's vengeance are hanging to the limbs of trees in various parts of the county, strung up wherever overtaken, while that of another who was shot to death while trying to escape was thrown into a creek and left there.

The known dead to date are: General Duckett, Edwin Goodwin, Adam King, Joseph Jones, Benjamin Jones, Moses Jones, unknown man. Joe King and John Johnson were also taken in hand by mobs and whipped. They were afterward turned loose and have disappeared.

The disturbances grew out of the lynching of a negro named General Duckett, near Richmond, in that county, on Tuesday.

Jackson, Miss., March 24.—Three negroes were taken from an officer of the law and lynched by an armed mob near Silver City, in Yazoo county, last Saturday morning. After being shot to death the bodies of the victims were weighted with bundles of cotton bale, tied and thrown into the Yazoo river. The negroes were Minton Wilson, C. C. Reed and Willis Boyd. They were the ringleaders of the negroes in a race encounter on the Midnight plantation early last week.

Advices from New Boston, Tex., are to the effect that across the river several negroes have been lynched. Thursday morning Benjamin Jones was found dead on Hurricane bend, and from New Boston it is learned that Joe King and Moses Jones were found hanging to trees at Horseshoe curve Thursday. Another Jones is missing. In the gang that was plotting for a race war were 23 negroes, and it is likely that the entire number have been strung up in the thickets. The negroes are fleeing from the district. Thursday three wagons full arrived at Texarkana, having crossed Red river at Index at midnight. They were greatly frightened. The citizens of Little River county have suffered much recently from lawlessness.

Bad Fire in Chicago.

Chicago, March 28.—The five-story brick building of the Armour curled hair and felt plant, Thirty-first place and Benson street, was destroyed Monday by fire, which started among the wool picking machines on the third floor, and spread so rapidly as to imperil the lives of 152 operatives in the building. The total loss was estimated at $300,000, fully covered by insurance. There were many narrow escapes. Seven persons were injured, of whom some may die, and six employes were still missing at midnight, and it was believed they had perished in the flames.

A Fireman Killed.

Cleveland, O., March 25.—Fire Friday destroyed the big Dangler Stove & Manufacturing company's plant in Perkins avenue, near Wilson, and the plant of the Cleveland Machine Screw company, adjoining. The loss on the Dangler works is estimated at $200,000 and on the screw plant at $150,000. Three hours after the fire started a falling wall at the screw works buried beneath it Lieut. Roth, of fire company No. 7. His dead body was recovered.

Washington, March 28.—The minister of finance of Russia has informed our embassy at St. Petersburg that American products intended for exposition purposes will be admitted free upon the condition that a sum corresponding to the amount of the duties on the products be deposited as guarantee. This sum will be returned in case the products in question shall be exported within a certain time.

Another Victim.

Omaha, Neb., March 28. — Mrs. Ed Shriner, who was injured in the Patterson block fire in this city last week, died Monday in terrible agony. She leaves a husband and a child only a few months old. Mrs. Shriner is the fourth person to die as a result of her injuries in the fire.

LEADER GIVES UP.

Insurgent Governor of Cavite Surrenders to Gen. Otis—Says Natives Are Sick of War.

Manila, March 24.—Francesco Valencia, insurgent governor of the province of Cavite, escaped into the American lines Thursday and came to Manila, where he presented himself to Gen. Otis. He gave the American military governor all the information he possessed regarding the insurgent forces, and told remarkable stories of the cruelty and deception practiced by Aguinaldo and his assistant leaders upon the natives in order to keep up the insurrection. There are, according to Gov. Valencia, between 20,000 and 30,000 insurgents, armed with Mausers and Remingtons, between Manila and Malolos. The main force of Aguinaldo's army is at Malolos, the insurgent capital, where intrenchments are being thrown up day and night.

The mass of natives are sick of war and the idea of independence. They are fighting under fear of death and the threats of leaders. Valencia says the people recognize there is no hope battling against the Americans, but they dare not refuse to fight. He believes that the insurrection will collapse when the American troops advance, smashing the insurgent force and exposing Aguinaldo's false stories of victories.

Aguinaldo threatens to punish with death any person who advises peace except on terms of absolute independence.

WILL STAND BY THE TREATY.

Germany Apparently Desirous of an Amicable Settlement of the Samoan Affair.

London, March 25.—The Berlin correspondent of the Daily News says: I learn from a well-informed official that Germany is desirous of an amicable understanding on the Samoan question. The government does not altogether approve the German petition from Samoa and certainly did not inspire its protests. However, the government is determined not to allow German rights to be encroached upon. It will abide by the treaty, taking no initiative for its alteration or abrogation.

London, March 25.—The Berlin correspondent of the Morning Post says: "I am informed that Germany regards the withdrawal of Chief Justice Chambers from Samoa as imperative and that a refusal on the part of the United States to withdraw him would be equivalent to the abandonment of negotiations concerning Samoa."

St. Louis, March 28.—Subscription blanks were distributed Monday for the $5,000,000 popular subscription fund for the Louisiana Purchase centennial, to be held in St. Louis in 1903, and an active canvass was commenced in the different interests. No individual subscriptions have been officially announced, but reports from chairmen of subcommittees indicate that more than $1,000,000 have already been obtained with but a small percentage of the houses interested heard from. It is expected that the entire amount will be raised within the next 30 days.

Prelate Suddenly Stricken.

Dubuque, Ia., March 24.—Archbishop Hennessey is alarmingly ill at the archepiscopal residence here. He was suddenly stricken after dinner Wednesday, but his condition was not considered serious until Thursday. The result of a consultation of physicians is not divulged. His speech is affected, leading to the assumption that paralysis has seized him. It is also feared his brain is affected, and that the affliction will be permanent.

Four Persons Perish.

Memphis, Tenn., March 25.—In a fire Friday morning at Mrs. E. B. Nolen's boarding house at 104 Court street, there was a property loss of not more than $2,500, but four lives were lost and six people were more or less seriously injured. The dead are: Mrs. Chapin, a widow; Roy Chapin, her son, aged ten; Chester Chapin, aged four; Thomas Bull, aged 60.

Workmen Win.

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 28. — The strike of the laborers at the Anderson-Du Puy steel works ended Monday by the firm conceding the advance demanded by the workmen. The plant is again in full operation.

A BRAVE COLONEL

Recommends Pe-ru-na as a Family Medicine.

A Scientific Spring Medicine.

Colonel Arthur L. Hamilton, of the Seventh Ohio Volunteers, 259 Goodale street, Columbus, Ohio, writes: "Besides having the merits of Pe-ru-na so fully demonstrated in my family, I have a number of friends who have taken it for catarrh and stomach trouble, and all unite in praising it. As a remedy for catarrh I can fully recommend it." Mrs. Hamilton, wife of the gallant Colonel, is an ardent friend of Pe-ru-na also. In a letter on the subject she writes: "I have been taking Pe-ru-na for some time, and I am enjoying better health now than I have for years. I attribute the change in my health to Pe-ru-na, and recommend this excellent catarrh remedy to every woman, believing it to be especially beneficial to them."

The spring-time is the most favorable time of the year to treat catarrh. There is so much less liability to take fresh cold that the treatment is unimpeded. All old cases of chronic catarrh should begin immediately a course of Pe-ru-na as directed in Dr. Hartman's books on this disease. There are so many different phases and stages of catarrh that one hardly knows when he has it. A great many people think they are suffering from something else and have tried many medicines in vain, when if they could realize that it is catarrh and take Pe-ru-na for it they would improve promptly and soon recover entirely. There are no substitutes. Let no one persuade you there are other catarrh remedies just as good.

LEGISLATIVE GOSSIP

Our Special Correspondent Tells of the Solons' Doings.

The Members are Busily Engaged, as the Session Draws Towards Close, in the Discussion and Passage of Various Measures.

St. Paul, March 23.—There was quite a surprize in the senate yesterday when the bill paroling prisoners serving a life sentence after 20 years imprisonment came up for passage. This is the so-called Younger Bros. bill. It had been recommended to pass by 33 votes, or one more than necessary to pass it. Still it was known that two of the 33 were opposed to its passage. There were 12 absentees, from whom it was necessary to secure one vote to carry it. Even the opponents of the bill considered its passage assured when it was reached, and both friends and foes were surprised when it only mustered 28 votes, or four less than the required number to pass. An attempt will be made to reconsider it.

The bill which passed the house increasing the tax on railroads from 3 to 4 per cent of their gross earnings and giving the railroads the alternative of accepting the 4 per cent or having their property assessed like other taxable property, was reported by the senate judiciary committee with the recommendation that it be indefinitely postponed. A lengthy argument was made in the report showing the reason for the position, the chief point being that the legislature did not have the power to make this charge and give the railroads the alternative choice of methods of taxation, and if it had, the best interests of the state would not be served by such legislation. The committee asked to have the report printed before action is taken on its adoption. The senate resumed consideration, in the afternoon, of the bill establishing insane asylums at Anoka and Hastings. The principal speakers were Senator Johnson of St. Peter against the bill, and Senator Schaller, of Hastings, in favor. Senator Schaller had not completed his argument when the senate adjourned.

The temperance people failed to score in the house. A bill was introduced some time ago to allow county option. This was designed to reach towns in a county where it would be impossible to carry local option, but where the majority in the whole county would favor it. The temperance committee reported in favor of indefinite postponement. A determined effort, led by Mr. Jacobson, was made to have the bill sent to committee of the whole for discussion, in spite of this report, but the effort failed by 63 to 45, so the bill is dead. For the first time this week the house took up the calendar for the passage of bills. The bill allowing five-sixths of a jury to return a verdict in civil cases, after 12 hours spent in an attempt to secure unanimity, was passed. One of the bills passed was an exemption bill. It exempts one watch and a safe not above $75 in value. This enables a man, after the law is through with him, to have a place to put what money he has left. The bill providing for traveling libraries was passed, and the one providing to have the state print school books was lost.

St. Paul, March 24.—The Younger brothers parole bill was reconsidered, amended and passed the senate yesterday by 48 to 5. The amendment was one offered by Senator Stockton early in the fight, and refused by Senator Wilson, the author of the bill. It provides that after the board of managers of the state prison shall have voted to parole a life prisoner, the parole cannot be effective until the board of pardons have given their consent in writing.

Senator Stockton was opposed to his amendment, because he preferred to kill the bill absolutely. In its present shape it is quite likely to pass the house as well.

An effort was made to adopt the report of the judiciary committee for the indefinite postponement of the railroad gross earnings bill, but the temper of the senate was in favor of doing a little talking on the subject. The bill itself was made the special order for Tuesday next, while the indefinite postponement report lies on the table. A bill was offered in the senate to provide for a sort of board of control to look after the board of corrections and charities and the state institutions as well. This board is to consist of two senators and three representatives, to be appointed by the lieutenant governor and speaker, respectively. They are to meet and organize on the first Tuesday in June and thereafter direct their own meetings. The members are allowed a per diem of $5, while in session, and $2,000 is appropriated to pay the expenses. The afternoon was again occupied in debating the Anoka-Hastings asylum bill. Senator Somerville made the leading speech against the bill. Senator Schaller, of Hastings, said he had the assurance of the governor that the bill would not be vetoed if it passed the legislature. The debate is to be renewed this morning, and a vote is expected during the day.

Nervous horses do not seem to be strong in the house, as the bill requiring wheelmen to dismount when 30 feet distant from a horse that looks nervous was defeated. The bill levying a tax of two and one half per cent on all insurance companies lacked two votes of passing. The bill making non-resident stockholders liable and providing to reach them through the U. S. courts, was passed. The Roberts' bill granting a bounty for beet sugar, with a limit as to the aggregate sum to be paid, was debated at some length but no conclusion reached.

St. Paul, Minn., March 25.—The senate put in a busy day yesterday in discussing and finally voting upon the Anoka-Hastings asylum bill. After debating until 2:30 p. m., a call of the senate was ordered and it took two hours to round up all the senators, save two, who had been excused. The call was then suspended and a vote taken. The gallery and floor of the senate were crowded with visitors, many of them being ladies. Senators and spectators were armed with roll calls and followed the vote closely as the secretary called the names. When the voting began, the opponents of the bill were confident of success, but two or three they had relied upon failed them and the bill was passed by 34 to 27. It requires 32 votes to pass a bill, and considering the fullness of the senate, it was an exceedingly narrow margin to go upon. As the house has favorably acted upon a similar bill, the vote practically settles the point that the state will have two additional insane asylums instead of adopting the county plan. The vote in detail was as follows:

Yeas—Messrs. Baldwin, Barker, Brower, Buckman, Chilton, Dougherty, Du Toit, Everett, Greer, Horton, Hospes, Ives, Jepson, Jones (J. D.), McCarthy, McGill, McGovern, McGowan, McKusick, McNamee, Myran, Nixon, Potter, Reeves, Ryder, Schaller, Sheehan, Sivright, Smith (E. E.), Smith (J. H.), Snyder, Stockton, Viesselman, Wilson—34.

Nays—Messrs. Batz, Benedict, Coller, Daly, Dart, Dickey, Fitzpatrick, Gauseweitz, Grindeland, Grue, Halvorson, Johnson, Jones (E. J.), Knatvold, Larson, Lord, McArthur, Meilicke, Miller, Roverud, Schellbach, Shell, Somerville, Stockwell, Sweningsen, Thompson, Underleak—27.

Next Monday is the last day when bills can be introduced in the legislature, except by request of the governor, and in view of that a large number came into the house yesterday. Notwithstanding this, they were not of very general importance, which shows that all of the bills, outside of those of a local bearing, must have already been introduced. As on offset for the new bills which came in, a number of bills were killed by adverse reports of committees. The most of the day was spent in considering bills in committee of the whole. The bill taxing insurance companies 2½ per cent, which was lost yesterday and reconsidered, had vitality enough to be again recommended to pass, and next time will probably go through.

The Roberts bounty bill for sugar manufactured from beets was again considered, but definite action finally postponed. Representative Yale said that there were parties in Winona waiting to see what action the legislature would take, and if the bounty was retained they would start a sugar beef factory there.

The bill making a state reward of $50 for the capture of horse thieves, and $10 for the capture of bicycle thieves, was recommended to pass, as was also the bill reducing the legal rate of interest from 7 per cent to 6 per cent. This is a senate bill, and the action of the house indicates that the legal rate of interest will be so reduced. This will be one of the most important bills of the session if it finally becomes a law.

St. Paul, March 27.—Saturday being the last day for the introduction of bills in the legislature was a busy one. A stream of embryo laws poured into the senate and a torrent into the house. The senate was ahead on the count in the morning, but the house kept at it an hour longer and finished four bills ahead. The grand total in the senate was 660 and in the house, 664.

The only incident of the day in the senate was a temperance lecture by Senator Halvorson, on a resolution by Senator Grindeland to call the county option bill back from the committee. The resolution would probably have been agreed to, had not Senator Halvorson made his speech and thereby put the opponents of the bill on their guard.

In the house among the proposed laws might be mentioned H. F. 645, by Mr. Dunn. It provides for the revision of the general laws of the state and for the annotating of the same. The revision is to be reported to the next legislature. An appropriation of $25,000 is carried by the bill.

A bill by Mr. Morris, of Hennepin, fixes the tax of insurance companies at 2 per cent of the gross premiums and it is also provided that 1 per cent of the tax collected on premiums of policies written in towns and cities in which there is an organized fire department shall be applied towards paying the expenses of such department.

H. F. 633 cuts down the liquor license fee in cities of over ten thousand inhabitants from the present amount of $1,000 to $500. A measure by Mr. West, of Mower, allows the commander-in-chief of the state militia, when he deems necessary, to organize and equip a company of engineers.

If H. F. 649, by Mr. Deming, becomes a law, an employer will be required to furnish to a discharged employe the reason for his discharge. H. F. 648 by the same member, fixes the amount of the earnings of wage earners which shall be exempt from execution at $50. Mr. Hazlett desires that the term of office of sheriff may be four years. He introduced a bill which so provides, and which also provides that the term of the present sheriffs shall not expire until 1903.

By H. F. 654 Mr. Ferris would prevent fraudulent sales of stocks of merchandise. His measure would have a sale of any portion of a stock of merchandise, if made otherwise than in the ordinary course of trade, deemed fraudulent unless the seller and the purchaser at least five days before the sale make a full inventory. It is further required that the intended purchaser shall at least five days before the sale notify each of the sellers creditors of the intended purchase.

A bill by Mr. McNeil places a tax of 5 cents a ton on the output of all mines which produce more than 10,000 tons of ore a year. All other mineral properties are to be taxed under the present law.

St. Paul, March 28.—The house devoted the day to the third reading and passage of bills, cleaning up the entire calendar of 35 bills. Five bills were killed, two laid over and the rest passed. One of the bills passed allows a district judge to modify the sentence of a municipal judge sending a minor to the training school until he or she reaches the age of 21 years. Another, as passed, reduces the legal rate of interest from seven to six per cent. The bill proposed by the recent state hardware convention asking authority to establish a hardware fire insurance company was also among those passed.

The senate did not meet until 2 p. m., and then devoted the afternoon to considering bills in committee of the whole. Most of them were recommended to pass, but the bill making eight hours a day's work in all public employment was indefinitely postponed.

MOTHERHOOD is woman's natural destiny.

Many women are denied the happiness of children through some derangement of the generative organs. Actual barrenness is rare.

Among the many triumphs of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the overcoming of cases of supposed barrenness. This great medicine is so well calculated to regulate every function of the generative organs that its efficiency is vouched for by multitudes of women.

SORROWS OF STERILITY

MRS. ED. WOLFORD, of Lone Tree, Iowa, writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I had one child which lived only six hours. The doctor said it did not have the proper nourishment while I was carrying it. I did not feel at all well during pregnancy. In time I conceived again, and thought I would write to you for advice. Words cannot express the gratitude I feel towards you for the help that your medicine was to me during this time. I felt like a new person; did my work up to the last, and was sick only a short time. My baby weighed ten pounds. He is a fine boy, the joy of our home. He is now six weeks old and weighs sixteen pounds. Your medicine is certainly a boon in pregnancy."

MRS. FLORA COOPER, of Doyle, S. Dak., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—Ever since my last child I suffered with inflammation of the womb, pains in back, left side, abdomen and groins. My head ached all the time. I could not walk across the floor without suffering intense pain. I kept getting worse, until two years ago I wrote to you for advice, and began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I had not finished the first bottle before I felt better. I took four bottles, and have been strong and perfectly healthy ever since, and now have two of the nicest little girls."

Hard Man to Get At.

The manager is a hard man to see. Shut in his private office and with a well-trained boy in the ante-room, he is inaccessible to anyone to whom that boy does not know. You cannot even get your card sent to him; the boy always says he is not in. You will get the same answer at the box office. I remember hearing an old manager once say to his office boy: "My son, if you don't learn to speak other people's lines you will not succeed in this business. I have written a part for you. Whenever anyone you don't know says: 'Is Mr. Brown in?' that's your cue to answer: 'No, sir.' I wish you to be dead letter-perfect in that line from this time on."—Scribner's.

THE BEST — SPRING TONIC.

As winter passes away it leaves many people feeling weak, depressed and easily tired. This means that the blood needs attention and sensible people always take a tonic at this time of year. Purgatives are not the right medicine — they weaken instead of strengthening.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are the best tonic medicine in the world and do not act on the bowels. They stimulate the appetite, enrich the blood, strengthen the nerves and make people feel bright, active and strong.

No one is better able to speak of this fact than Miss Hazel Snider, a charming young woman of Arlington, Ind. To-day she has rosy cheeks, sparkling eyes and a plump form, which prove that she is in good health. A year ago Miss Snider was very thin, her cheeks pale, eyes sunken and dull. She was troubled with nervousness and general debility. She says:

"After several months' treatment from the family physician we saw he could do no good. I was discouraged and did not know what to do. One day I read an item in a paper of the wonderful curative qualities of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I tried the medicine, and when nearly through with the second box noticed a change for the better. After I had taken eight boxes I was cured, and have had no occasion to take any kind of medicine since. I owe much to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, probably my life, and I advise any one suffering with troubles similar to mine, to take these pills." MISS HAZEL SNIDER.

Sold by all druggists or sent postpaid by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N.Y., on receipt of price, 50¢ per box; six boxes, $2.50.

DELANO, FRIDAY, March 31, 1899

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—April fool's day tomorrow. Every body beware of the perennial josher.

—The scholars of the Delano High School resumed their work Monday after a week's vacation.

—The M. E. Sunday School will give an Easter programme next Sunday evening in the church.

—Andrew Dugan plead guilty to a charge of chicken theft, brought against him and James Murphy by Wm. Hawker, and received as a penalty 30 days in jail.

—At last the ponderous mind of the mighty iron pusher of the Eagle is freed of its visions of a terrible death under a large elm tree that formerly stood in Dr. Catlin's front yard.

—Doubtless owing to the wise provisions of an over ruling Providence that has kept us indoors for nearly a week, our readers are spared the painful privilege of perusing some rather hot stuff on Delano evil doers.

—We this week print three interesting letters from Delano boys at Manila, written after the commencement of hostilities by the Insurgents. One is from Alva Catlin, Co. B., 13th Minn. Vol., dated Feb. 20 and 21, and one each from Orlie Billings and Perry Ball, from the 1st N. D. Vol.

—Prof. Haecker, of the State Experiment Station, and Mr. White, a deputy dairy inspector, visited Delano Tuesday in the interest of dairying and stock raising in this section. They visited the creamery in the morning, and in the afternoon Prof. Haecker addressed the patrons of the creamery in the City Hall.

—According to official calendars, spring should now be with us. We are reminded of its proximity by the appearance of the slick tongued and brassy book agents that have begun to put in their appearance, with nerve greatly strengthened and replenished by a long inactivity through the past winter.

—Jenner P. Chance, of the hospital corps, at Manila, a Delano boy, was eulogized in the Manila Times, and also in Minneapolis papers, for his bravery under fire in the rescue of private Sorenson, of the 1st Montana Vol. who lay wounded within 50 yards of the Insurgent trenches. It is stated that he was personally complimented by Gen. McArthur.

—Last Tuesday, complaint was made against James Murphy by Dr. C. B. Ames, for the theft of a watch, and he was lodged in jail over night. His hearing was held Wednesday afternoon by Justice Walters, and several witnesses were heard. The prisoner plead not guilty but had nothing to say against what any of the witnesses testified too. He seemed to take it as a hugh joke. Justice Walters gave a verdict of petit larceny, but deferred the sentence until Thursday, when the prisoner was given 60 days in jail.

—It has been hinted lately, that people who own dogs and consider them of any value had better keep them at home during the night. The third violent death among the canines of Delano within the past week was reported this morning. Lying awake all night and listening to a dog chorus of 20 or 30 voices is not the most pleasing privilege of a person who has worked all day and expected to work the next.

LATER: Latest reports from the front state that casualities among Delano's dogs numbered eight last night, most of them shot. Street Commissioner Welker is around this afternoon with a team picking them up to take out of town.

Abraham Lincoln.

Abraham Lincoln was born in Kentucky, February 12, 1809. His father and mother were poor. They lived in a log cabin. They had a door made of skins to keep the snow and wind and cold out.

Abraham and his sister Sarah went to school. He was five years old. They had four miles and a half to walk. The teacher had one book. It was a speller. Abraham got ahead of the class. He used to spell with big man. He worked his number work on a fire shovel with charcoal. One day he borrowed one book and it got spoiled. He went to the man and asked him what he wanted for the book. The man said $.75 or three days work in the corn field. Abraham worked three days and the man gave him the book.

When his father moved to Indiana Abraham helped to build the cabin. His mother died and his father married Mrs. Johnston she was very kind to them. She had three children. She made them some warm clothes. One day he went to the meeting house, the people took their dinner. They staid all day. The preacher preached on a stump. The people had to sit on logs. When Abraham came home he preached to his sister Sarah.

When he went to New Orleans he saw some negroes whipped he felt very sorroy when he grew to be a man he was chosen presiden then the South and the North had a war then Lincoln died. The people felt very sorry.

From Manilla.

MANILA, Feb. 19, 1899.

Father: I am well as usual and on guard today.

Yesterday I went to Caloocan on the railway which is now in the hands of American soldiers. At this point is Brig. Gen. Otis' Headquarters; across the track are the detatchment of the 6th and Utah batteries, which command the track for about a mile beyond, also the Kansas, Montana, 3rd artillery (as infantry) and Pennsylvania regiments on the line.

All the buildings between Manila and the fighting line have been burned. The Insurgents put up a fight and are driven back inch by inch.

In the papers I have sent you you can get a good idea of the situation. It is growing hotter every day, and all the boys are getting in the habit of staying home on account of orders against going around too much on account of small pox. It is still spreading slowly but evidently surely. Two more cases have been reported from I company. 5 cases have been taken out of the walled city (insurgent prisoners) and I cannot tell how many more. The authorities call it by varioloid or something like that, so as to make the men think it is not so dangerous. Dr. Law examined all the men in our company to see if the vaccination took or not. A large percentage took; the rest were re-vaccinated, some for the 7th time.

We are still the police of Manila and haven't any idea when we will be relieved.

All the boys are anxious to go on the firing line, but we have strict orders not to.

All the Delano boys are well, also Bert. Most of them look fat.

February 20.

I have now a half a dozed suits of clothes more than I can take care of.

Fighting has been raging off and on since the 4th. Harder than usual last night from 12:30 till 3:00.

Up to yesterday 4,700 natives had been buried by our troops.

Your son,

A. G. CATLIN

MANILA, Feb. 10, '99

DEAR FATHER:

I am in quarters for about ten minutes and will write you a line. We have been on the battle field for five days and now we are changing our position to the left of the fighting line. None of our company has been hurt yet. There are about 4,000 nigers dead and buried now, and no telling how many more there will be before the thing is over. I can't write much now but will write more next time, if I live. The bullets were coming pretty thick and close yesterday and the day before but I must have seven lives; nothing struck closer than seven or eight inches to me. I picked up this sheet of paper (a large double sheet of parchment paper, about 14 x 16 inches square) in the headquarters off the right of the line of the insurgents after we had driven them back over a mile or so, and then we took it easy for awhile and let the gun boat "Nevada" do something with them. The negroes say our shells are no good, because they burst when they strike but they seem to know when it is their time to move and they keep going straight back to the hills and we are going to keep them there until the rest of the troops get here, and then we won't do a thing to them but there are over sixty thousand insurgents in all so you see we will have to do a lot of shooting to down them all. They are funny fighters, but when they do fight, they fight like H—. Last Sunday night there was a steady fire on the left of the line and in the center for full four hours and then it went in volleys and lasted until morning, and all the next day till Tuesday afternoon and since that it has been quiet.

I will send you the picture of myself that I forgot to send in my last letter. I will also send you some street car checks used here on horse cars. I also send pins made out of mauser bullets which the insurgents used. I see the Delano boys often; they were all well the last time I saw them. George Dyer is now as big as ever. He is making for his company. Hoping you are all well, I will have to close for this time, hoping you will write as soon as you get this, I will write as soon as this thing is over.

from your loving son.

MANILA, P. I., Feb. 11, '99.

C. E. Ball, Delano, Minn.

Dear brother: Well the battle is here again, at last. Saturday night, about 9:45, we were called to arms, and were no sooner up when we heard the cannon roar and the volleys crack, all were soon to their post, and we were into it. Co. I, of N. D. were on outpost, with part of the cavalry and 14th regulars and were under fire about eighteen hours. They poured volley after volley most all night, many of their guns becoming so hot as to be useless for a time. At daylight we attacked them in skirmishes about two miles long and routed them after about four hours hard work. There were about 3,000 killed and many prisoners; all kinds of amunition captured, all of German make. We always thought they would run and not fight hard, but now we know better. About a hundred Americans were killed and many wounded. The 14th inf. lost fifteen men of Co. M, and their lieutenant. They say it was a sad affair when the regiment came back from battle and found mail from U. S. and read off letters for those who still lay upon the field of glory.

The muffled drums sad roll has beat
The soldier's last tattoo.

The following day and night was very still until a large force attacked the N. Dak's. on the right of the line near the beach. Word came to fire on everything we saw when the cannon started from the fort which was the signal. Finally it came and everybody was a ducking and firing. The insurgents commenced when we did. Finally the boats started up, then you could hardly hear one speak. After they stopped word came to charge and you ought to hear the boys halloo and go after them, chasing them out to Camp Dewey, about four miles. Co. C was disappointed. Just before the charge word came for us to go and guard the magazine, so we saw but missed the charge. Only one man in N. Dak. was hurt. We were just relieved today after marching and doing guard for five days, and now we expect to march to Malolos, about twenty miles where Aguinaldo has concentrated his troops; he has 40,000 with the best of fortifications, but it will be ours in two days. We are all anxious to take the field again.

I must tell you a little incident to show their cruelty: Dr. Young of 6th artillery happened to get astray from the command, early Sunday morning, was captured by the negroes who cut his head off and laid it on his breast, after cutting little figures all over his body and cutting his toes off and sticking them in his mouth. This is only one of their barbarities.

After Gen. Otis heard of it he gave orders to burn everything and take no prisoners. They shoot all red cross men, because they say they fix up the wounded again. They got near one of our hospitals and killed two sick men.

I tell you we are having a hot time. Even now I can hear the cannon rolling like thunder.

Well I must close. If you can make this out, you are a good one, I am in such a hurry. Will probably be into it again by night.

Love to all,

Co. C 1st N. D. Vol. PERRY.

THE delights of an evening spent around a well-lighted reading table are not half understood. An illustrated magazine with its wealth of illustrations, its stories of adventure and love, its descriptions of travel which carry you to the remotest ends of the earth, and its instructive articles for young and old—these are the first requisites for your own enjoyment and the entertainment and proper education of your children.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal,

Both Together One Year for Only $1.80

In this way you secure your own home paper and an illustrated magazine at a price that is only about a fourth of what some of the illustrated magazines sell for. For three years The Cosmopolitan has undisputedly claimed that it reached the largest clientele possessed by any periodical, daily, weekly or monthly, in the world. It was The Cosmopolitan which sent Julian Hawthorne to India to let the world know the real horrors of famine and plague. It was The Cosmopolitan which established at its own cost a great Free Correspondence University which now has over 20,000 students on its rolls. It was The Cosmopolitan which offered a prize of $3,000 for the best horseless carriage and prizes for best plans for public baths, and best arrangement of sewer and pipe systems for cities. It was The Cosmopolitan which set the presidents of great schools and universities seriously discussing the defects of existing educational systems. It is The Cosmopolitan whose enterprise is always in the lead in advancing the world's civilization.

Entered as Second-Class Mail Matter at the Post Office in Delano, Minn

Just for the little thing of not paying its rent, in Minneapolis, the Union League has been flung out of the building of William Henry Eustis. This would look like the real retirement of William Henry from politics. He got the unreal last fall. G. S. C.

GEN. OTIS seems to have called a halt, at Malolos, the last village captured from the Filipinos. Most of the troops that went to that place are still there; among them the 13th Minn. It is expected that they will wait to see the effect of the proclamation sent out by the commission sent over by the President. In the meantime the Filipinos are said to be intrenching themselves near Calupit, five and a half miles from Malalos.

Business.

Mr. J. J. Hill has sounded the alarm against the over capitalization of business enterprises. He predicts a money panic that will shake the business world to its foundations Legitimate business enterprise is always commendable, but business like real estate will only stand a fair valuation and capital For two years the public have shown great zeal in investing in all sorts of stocks and securities. Railroad stocks have doubled in value, and real estate has taken great strides toward high valuation. Then must come an end to this "boom" business period, and the end may come sooner than it is expected.

After Awhile They'll Think.

B. F. Partridge in Wheelock's Weekly: If it were generally known that the average rate of passenger fare on railroads in Germany is less than one and one fifth cents per mile, in Austria Hungary 3d class fare being as low as six miles for one cent, both countries under government ownership, while three, four and even six cents per mile is the rate here, (where we have railroad ownership of government) would not many begin to inquire why this is so? If the people ever "get ready to begin to commence" to think on the great transportation question, it will not be surprising if the populistic doctrine of government ownership of railroads has a great awakening.—Reform Press Bureau.

Late Literary News.

There has been so much reference in the recent cable news from Europe to the strong feeling in France against England, and so much significant allusion to the experiments which the French are making with submarine boats, that the question of the possibility of a French military force ever crossing the English Channel becoming interesting, a writer in the April Cosmopolitan, "Quatre Etoiles"—evidently a nom de plume—tells and ingenious story of the results of the consummation one hundred years later of that plan which was first conceived by Napoleon when he brought his army to the plains of Boulogne in 1804. When every detail of the plan has been successfully prepared, a great fete on the cliffs of Boulogne brings the Channel Squadron and the Prince of Wales to join in the ceremony. Insult is tentionally and suddenly given by the President of the French republic, leads to an immediate declaration of war. The English fleet, unsuspicious of its real danger, moves to engage the battle ships and cruisers of the French which merely serve as a decoy for their more than one thousand submarine vessels. How these latter accomplish their deadly work is told in a startling way. Then follows the invasion of England by three hundred thousand French troops, all in accordance with plans carefully arranged in advance—an invasion which takes place so quickly that the French battle ships and transports are landing men at Sandgate almost before the Foreign Office knows of the declaration of hostilities; then follows the occupation of London, et cetera. This class of speculation, while improbable, nevertheless has some interesting points in view of existing complications. The subject is evidently handled by some one familiar with the military details involved. The nom de plume would seem to indicate a French officer.

The People the Victors.

How our merchant princes must smile if they hear an orator frighten his audience with the influence of the British money power. Is their political influence not the greatest of all? The vast majority of the industrial districts in Europe are represented by radicals and socialists, the enemies of plutocracy and imperialism. Do they not know that they furnish the campaign funds used by the ward heelers to influence the people for this or the other candidate?

Look at the picture in Washington if the tariff shall be altered; how they threaten, how they cajole, how they bribe the servants of the people. Look at the disgusting spectacle many of our legislatures furnish if they have to elect a Senator.

Put India against the Philippines. It was a commercial company who undertook at their cost and risk in the year 1600, the conquest of India and carried it on for 250 years, and only the fearful uprising of the population in 1856 induced the British government to take their place. The American tax payer pays the price for the Philippines, our boys go into the bloody conquest of the natives and when they have finished that job the money power steps in to reap the benefit, and furnish their servants the ward heelers with plenty fat offices.

Look at the fearful increase of those industrial combines, the trusts established for the purpose to fix and raise the price of their products in the United States. They overreached the thousand million dollar mark months ago. The legislators who made the bed for these trusts will promise you the most stringent laws against their dear offspring though they know that as long as the right of the supreme court is not cancelled to pass judgement on laws on which the three legislative factors agree, such a law will not stand.

And if it stood that test, the trusts could rule us as good from Canada as from New Jersey. Sorry to say that the unlimited coinage of silver will not break their power, because they will pay their laborers with silver and raise the price of their goods to bring that in accordance with the gold standard abroad. There is only one remedy! Reduce the tariff rates to make foreign competition possible if these trusts take inordinate profits. They will tell you that you ruin the American infant industries. But as the whole world is mighty afraid about the competition of this industrial American infant, that is political humbug. Do not underrate the fight. It is the last and the deciding. The democratic as well as the floating votes of the independents are needed for the victory of Democratic principles. Consider that the vast capital of the trusts is divided into shares, that these shares (mostly watered) are put on the market for sale, and that they are taken by small capitalists all over; therefore, where you had to fight the influence of one man, you have now a hundred against you. Do not sit down obstinately on the Chicago platform on which you were defeated. Boil that apple of discord, the silver dollar into those districts where it will increase the democratic party in Congress. Stick without flinching in the platform, in your arts to the sentence: All for the people, all by the people. It is for the people that the victor's extravagance should be stopped which brings this years expenses to 1,500,000 000 dollars, equal to a tax from $15 to $20 on every man, woman, and child in the United States. It is for the people to create a system of taxation which lessens the burden of the common tax payer.

It is in agreement with this sentence to have the president, the senators, and all those petty officers who are appointed by your patronage, elected by a direct vote of the people. It is in agreement with it that the voters should have the right to elect for members of Congress any citizen within the boundaries of the U. S. It is in agreement with this sentence that the right of the Supreme Court should be cancelled and instead of that should stand the national, and if it is proven by this vote that the legislative bodies and the people disagree, new legislators should be elected.

That will take the strength out of American politics, that to the victorious party belongs the spoils.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 24, 1899.

Gen. Otis is still winning victories, but Aguinaldo still has an army, and we have not undisputed possession of a single island of the Philippine group. The administration seems to have acquired the "manana" habit along with other Spanish property. So far as known, our victories over the Filipinos have not been very productive of results, although the country has been daily told that "tomorrow will end the organized fighting." Mr. McKinley told his cabinet that he didn't like the situation and asked for opinions on the advisability of calling for the 35,000 volunteers authorized by the last Congress. It was pointed out to him that nothing could be accomplished by enlisting the volunteers now, as the rainy season in the Philippines would stop all active military movements long before they could be got there. An army officer came very near to correctly sizing up the situation when he said: "We lick the Filipinos every time we fight them, but they are such fools that they won't stay licked, and we have to keep doing it over again, which is monotonous; also expensive, both in blood and money."

The two Cubans who are in Washington as agents of the Cuban Assembly have been dropping some mysterious hints about their political backing in the U. S. and their expectation of succeeding in getting the consent of the administration to an issue of bonds by the Cuban Assembly, notwithstanding the semi-official statement that the administration would not recognize them in any way. Although only Congress can guarantee the payment of these bonds, a New York syndicate has offered to take $50,000,000 of them, at half their face value, if the administration will sanction their issue.

Ex-Representative King, of Utah, is one of the democrats who expresses regret that the Jefferson dinner controversy should have occurred. He said: "I believe that Mr. Belmont or Mr. Croker had a right to get up a Jefferson banquet or to participate in one and to invite such gentlemen as were desired. There would be no impropriety, in my opinion, in Mr. Bryan's sitting down at a banquet with Croker and Belmont. If I should be invited to a Lincoln dinner I should accept with pleasure and would be glad to do honor to that distinguished statesman. Democrats should get together. I do not think that anything ought to be done to prevent the establishment of harmony in the democratic ranks although, of course, we must insist upon adhering to the democratic platform." The last sentence shows that the difference between the opinions of Mr. King and Col. Bryan is an immaterial one, and that upon the main question they think alike.

Representative Ulzer, of New York, who is now in Washington, said: "I am sorry that Col. Bryan has seen fit to give Belmont so much free advertising, as Belmont represents no portion of the democratic party in New York. Col. Bryan has not impaired his popularity in the Empire state by his refusal to count Mr. Belmont and his fellow-bolters as democrats. The democracy of New York will see to it that Chicago platform democrats are selected to the next National Convention, and all apprehension in this regard is needless and absolutely without justification, from the attitude of the true democratic party in New York."

Gen. Eagan, when he was again placed on the stand by the Military Court of Inquiry, which is now sitting in Washington, promptly took the cue given him by the beef contractor, who testified that Eagan "must have been mistaken" when he stated that it had been his intention to make the contracts stipulate that refrigerated beef should keep 72 hours after being taken from the refrigerators, and that by an error it appeared in the contracts as 24 hours. Here is Eagan's last statement: "When I was asked here about the 24 hours I had totally forgotten that I had changed my own opinion as to the condition from 72 to 24 hours. I recall since in thinking it over that I was impelled to change it to keep 24 hours from the refrigerator on shore. I felt that 24 hours from the refrigerator would be ample to reach the troops." Things look blacker and blacker for Eagan. He must have seen it in the cold politeness with which he was treated by the officers in the court room; also by the looks of everyone present when he swore that he had never spoken to Boss Hanna and would not know him if he met him. This last was in answer to Maj Lee's question—"Were you present at a conference between Senator Hanna and someone else in regard to beef contracts?" The "some one else" referred to was Secretary Alger. Capt. Black, who was in the Commissary department, did not help Eagan any when he testified that Eagan had been greatly excited when he returned to Washington and told him that the troops in Porto Rico had refused to take and eat the meat on the Manitoba. According to Capt. Black's testimony, Eagan said: "Blank, blank them. They had no right to refuse it, blank, blank, them; I would have made them take it.

Get Your Sugar Beet Money.

In reply to our letter concerning sugar beets in this community, published a few weeks ago we have received from the company a letter containing the following paragraph which speaks for itself. If any of our farmers have a claim against the Beet Sugar company, now let them present it for adjustment:

"I recollect that after our factory was shut down an inquiry from Delano about the middle of December in regard to some beets which were not shipped, although our Superintendent at that time thought that it would be more profitable for Delano that the beets used for cattle feed as long as they neglected to ship them in due time. I gave instructions to have the beets shipped any how and we have allowed for them the full value and I have not heard any more about it, but I am still willing to give any party who has a just claim upon us full satisfaction."

A Misunderstanding

By Edwin Pugh

CHEEDLE and I had spent the evening alone together, Mrs. Cheedle being out of town on a visit to some relatives, and this was our crucial glass of whisky and soda. We had been very candid with one another, and were in a fine glow of honesty.

"It's a breach of confidence, I'm afraid," said Cheedle. "And it isn't a thing you ought to know, because you are quite vain enough already. (No offense, of course, old man. We're being frank, you know. Hang it all, I'm vain, too.) But I tell you this for her sake."

"Her sake? Whose?" I asked.

"All in good time," he replied. "I wouldn't tell you at all, Phil, if I didn't repose so much confidence in your good taste; for, whatever else you may be, Phil, you are still a gentleman."

"A colorable imitation, at least, I hope," said I.

"You know my wife's cousin?" he began.

"She has so many."

"Awful crowd! But I mean the pretty one."

"Little girl with flaxen hair? Rather—a shade—too conscious of her profile?"

"Yes. Ha, ha! Miss Marsh." He sipped solemnly.

"Well?"

"It is a pity. My wife told me. I should never have suspected it myself. She's a little bit impressed by you."

"In love with me?"

"Darn your complacency! I suppose so."

"Poor girl!" said I.

"She isn't a fool, either."

"Not a bit of it," I cried.

"That makes it all the more extraordinary."

"I don't see that."

"My object in telling you was to warn you against playing off that infernal trick of yours on her., You know what I mean? That way you have of talking to a woman as if she were the only one of her sex in the world."

"A reprehensible habit. So dangerous!" said I. "I will be careful."

"Yes, do be careful, old man."

We were silent awhile. I got up, murmuring again: "Poor girl!" bade farewell to Cheedle and went home. I had not intended to be at the Massie's party on the following evening, but, knowing that Miss Marsh would be there and feeling anxious to begin the cruel business of disillusionment at once—that it might be the sooner over—I dressed and went.

The drawing-room was very crowded. I looked about for Miss Marsh, and presently espied her in a far corner. By slow stages I made my way toward her. She marked my approach with a wistful face, and when I was close enough made room for me beside her. Poor thing! We shook hands, and I noted a tender light in her eyes. My heart ached with pity.

"How hot it is in here!" said she.

Oh, these hollow commonplaces uttered calmly in a gale of passion!

"Yes," said I. "I wonder if we could get out into the conservatory?"

We managed it by dint of many polite hustlings, strewing our path with apologies as we went. Our end attained, we sat down side by side under a tub-palm and looked at one another.

"How pleasant it is out here!" she murmured.

"So cool!" said I.

Conversation was certainly difficult.

"The usual rumor concerning you is out," said she.

"Indeed!" I cried. It was no time to be witty.

"They have married you again, Mr. Wroughtnight."

"Who is the unlucky lady this time?"

"It would not be fair to tell. And—two are mentioned."

Poor girl!

"You know that Rumor is a lying jade, Miss Marsh?"

"By nature—yes. But sometimes—by accident—she speaks the truth."

How valiantly women cover up their scars!

"Of course," said I. "there is no foundation for the rumor."

"I had hoped there was," said she, softly.

Brave heart! It was a dire business!

"There may be, some day." I murmured. "I mean that I expect I shall marry sooner or later."

"Oh, I hope so," said she. "When you are a little older. Some strong, helpful woman with ideals. Not a poor little society butterfly—like me."

"If she were like you," said I, and stopped.

"She won't be," said Miss Marsh, quickly.

My heart was torn of pity of her.

"One so seldom marries the person one wants to," said I, breaking the truth to her gently.

"And how much better for us that is, isn't it?"

The rejoinder hardly pleased me.

"How do you mean, Miss Marsh?"

"I mean that the object of our first love is so rarely the person to make us really happy."

I remembered that this was her third season.

"First love is the only love," said I.

"Oh, no," said she.

"Oh, yes," I repeated, firmly. It was no time for mawkish faltering. My duty was plain.

"Mr. Wroughtnight," said she, "believe what I am about to say. You are too young yet to know what is best for your own welfare."

It seemed an odd way to talk, as I was at least two years her senior, but I reflected that she was distraught—that she was fighting against her own happiness.

"I think," said I, "I know what is best for me, young as I may be. When my fate comes along—"

"That time is not yet, of course," said she.

Oh, anxious, despairing heart!

"No," I cried, and shuddered in dread expectation of some tragic sign from her. But she was strangely calm. It almost seemed to me that a light of relief leaped into her eyes. The relief of the tormented soul at hearing sentence of death!

A great silence fell on us. She mused, looking at me with strange intentness.

"Mr. Wroughtnight," said she, "I have a mind to be honest with you. I have a strong prejudice in favor of honest dealing. My honesty may cost me your good opinion, but I don't mind that. I mean that I have enough faith in your good sense to believe that you won't think me unwomanly and immodest in saying what I propose to say."

I rose in great agitation.

"Miss Marsh," I said. "Pause. Reflect. Don't speak yet. You may save us both much pain."

"Nonsense!" said she, sharply.

I was surprised and a little affronted.

"I beg your pardon," said I. "Go on."

She fluttered her fan nervously.

"I am afraid," said she, "we don't quite understand one another. At least I think I understand. But you don't."

I moistened my dry lips. "Go on," I said again, breathlessly.

"Mrs. Cheedle has told you something about me?"

"No."

"Mr. Cheedle, then? Somebody?"

"Yes," said I.

"What have they told you?"

"I—I cannot repeat it. Miss Marsh, let me implore you to say no more. Let us go back."

"No," she replied. "I will tell you what they said. They told you that I—I am—am in love with you?"

"They were mistaken!" I cried, still willing to spare her.

"Yes, they were," she responded, calmly.

I gasped and leaned back in my chair.

"They told me," said she, "that you were in love with me."

A bitterness of humiliation flooded my soul.

"I have no doubt they meant well," said she.

"Oh, there is no doubt of that," I agreed, sourly.

"Perhaps they thought they might make a match between us that way. Young married couples are always the busiest matchmakers. And really, do you know, I think they showed some knowledge of poor human nature in this instance, at any rate."

"THEY WERE MISTAKEN," I CRIED.

She smiled. I felt too sick to smile.

"I am sorry," said she, "if you feel at all hurt by this revelation of truth."

Then I saw the absurdity of my position and summoned my sense of humor to the rescue. It was not possible to remain insensible of Miss Marsh's magnificent command of her own dignity.

"I was a fool," said I.

"I, too," said she. "But it does not matter now it is all over, does it? And, anyway, nobody will know. We shall both keep the secret inviolate, I dare say, for our honor's sake."

"I am afraid you must think me rather a conceited ass, Miss Marsh?"

"Don't be silly," said she; "you thought as I did."

"But with less reason," said I, bowing.

She looked reproachfully at me.

"I have been sincere with you, Mr. Wroughtnight."

"That is why I pay you compliments. I want to restore the balance of things."

"We seem to understand one another now. I think we might be friends," said she,

She gave me her hand and I clasped it warmly. But whenever I recall that absurd interview my very body blushes.—Chicago Herald.

A Tip-Top Town.

About 50 years ago a clever Frenchman, struck with the idea of the tree home of the "Swiss Family Robinson," bought a small tract of land a few miles from Paris containing some magnificent trees and built restaurants in their branches. He has made a fortune out of it. Kings have dined there; thousands of wedding parties "have seen life rosy from the treetops," and almost every Parisian boy who has read the story of the Robinsons is taken to the village to see and enjoy it. A branch railroad was built to accommodate the traffic, for the other villagers, seeing the success of the plan, followed it, and have erected rustic dining-rooms on all the large branches of the trees. Rustic stairways, platforms and bridges lead from the ground and from one tree to another. Some of the rooms are located in the tops of the biggest trees many feet from the ground. The village is now known as "Robinson."—Strand Magazine.

McGary Springs Out.

There seems to be plenty of crows around ready to help pick up the garbage but we have a great quantity of snow yet, and spring is coming slow but sure. But it is the quantity nowa days and not the quality that takes the cake. For instance, if you are worth $100,000 they will call you Col. B. If you are worth $500,000, they will call you Lord Baltimore or some other foreign sea port name. If you are a millionaire they will make you a U. S. Senator. If a multi-millionaire they will give you an upper seat in the synagogue and telegraph your sayings from one end of the continent to the other. If you are an editor they will call you an old quill pusher, always sticking your nose into everybody's business. If a farmer, will say there goes old Jim Jones with a cupalo on his farm in shape of a $2,000 mortgage. I always thought he was an old fool. Why does he not stop blowing his horn about that exploded theory of 16 to 1, and pay off his mortgage while wheat is bringing 60 cents per bushel, cotton 6 cts per pound, tobacco 5 cents per pound, with Philippine monkeys at a premium. Come now old man, if you will just pay less attention to raising wheat, oats, corn, potatoes, and raise less cain, them other fellows that know how will attend to the finance and money matters, all you are here for is to pay the freight and keep still. You should have nothing to say pro or con.

How is this, Mr. Editor. Doesn't it go about this way?

Think I once made mention Hennepin was the banner county of the state, especially for legislative purposes, dog shows and such like.

In last week's Times I notice in big head lines—Keep off Cycle Paths—Law forbidding driving horses on them to be enforced.

Now, we understand this is a kind of a bulevard from Minneapolis to Lake Minnetonka built by the county and under the supervision of the county commissioners. It is for the benefit of the swells and dudes with hair parted in the middle and a cigarette in their mouth, for an escape valve to ride a wheel on, has nothing in view, is going nowhere, is neither here nor there. Time nor money cuts no figure with him. Instead of the earth moving him he thinks he moves the earth. Three men have already been arrested for driving on this cycle street, and are bound over to the grand jury. What will they do with them? Fine or imprison them I suppose. Well, how about this statute law. If a farmer is driving to Minneapolis with fifty bushels of potatoes, a ton of hay or two thousand pounds of pork, or with vegetable to feed the people of Minneapolis and is on a common road way, he by statute law, if he meets one of these monkey wheelmen, must turn out and give half the road, but a farmer is fined if he gets on their cycle path. Can anybody see any justice in this?

"As a jewel of gold in a swine's snout, so is a lot of fools that don't know anything."

Then they have a fish law with a game warden as a handle. He stands on the shore of Lake Minnetonka and with a field glass watches the poor fellow trying to get a mess of fish for dinner, has him arrested and so on. But when the lake breaks up and the boating and fishing is good, the millionairs, judges, governors, and embezzlers, go out and fish while the fellow who has on a pair of overalls that couldn't catch a mess of fish for his family now catches frogs for the other fellows. Hennepin county is all right. She is one of the charter members of the state. But of late she is in the habit of putting on too much swell. That little mill pond, Lake Minnetonka has already cost the tax payers of Hennepin county a good deal of money. Children and fools think a good deal more of fun than they do of money. Most of them do not know where and how their living comes.

A pneumatic tube to transmit mail between New York and Philadelphia is under serious consideration, and the project will probably be introduced in the next congress.

A Chicago court has fixed the fine at $25 for calling a man an ordinary liar. Where the allegation of falsehood is accompanied by a lot of trimmings the tax is correspondingly increased.

According to a recent discovery George Washington was not only first in peace, war and other important contingencies, but he was also one of the first Americans to wear false teeth.

Factories in this country are now engaged in manufacturing 81 locomotive engines for the Trans-Siberian railway, 30 for the Midland railway, of England; 20 for Swenden, 15 for Egypt, and ten for French state railways.

A French engineer, by a device which intensifies the vibration, makes it unnecessary to stand with receiver to the ear and talk into the transmitter of a telephone. The invention, it is claimed, will revolutionize the telephone.

A Paris paper says that a French gardener has succeeded in grafting the tobacco plant on potato tubers, and that the new plant produces the finest tobacco leaves above ground, and below ground the best of potatoes. Next!

The bodies of soldiers who lost their lives in Cuba and Porto Rico and which were not claimed by relatives will be buried in the Arlington cemetery, near Washington, where the graves will be taken care of as long as the government stands, and be decorated with flowers on each recurring memorial day. No other government has bestowed this care on its soldiers who have died abroad.

Charles Kraus, of Cincinnati, brought proceedings for a divorce, in which he pleads that during his courtship of the lady now his wife she carefully concealed from him the fact that she has a glass eye, and he therefore believes he was defrauded and should be given a divorce. She should file a cross suit and ask for a divorce upon the ground that only having one eye she did not get a good look at him when he proposed.

It is said that John C. Bight is coming to visit America. His name is ordinary, but when it is known that he is the only billionaire in the world it derives added interest. He lives in Kimberly, South Africa, and is rated as a billionaire. Mr. Bight is 54, a heavily-built man, with gray hair. It was his ambition as a boy to become the richest man in the world, and strange to say, he has accomplished his purpose.

The Daily Record, published at Ridgewood, N. J., went through an interesting experience. With eight surrounding buildings in flames and the newspaper office threatened with fire, a runway of greased boards was built under the building, a belt of chains was passed around the structure, and then when a long rope was attached to the belt 500 subscribers of the paper seized the rope and dragged the building to a point of safety.

It is said by American manufacturers of women's shoes that a marked change in styles has been going on during the last two years. The shoes in favor are heavier, with less flexible soles and with plainer uppers. Outdoor exercise and recreation for women have resulted in the demand for more comfortable and substantial shoes, which also last longer and wear more evenly. English women have always preferred a comparatively heavy shoe, and the laws of health back up their choice.

In the dispatch printed a short time ago telling of the fire in the Old Colonial church in Boston, it was stated that the "vinegar Bible" came near being destroyed. This Bible is the oldest in the United States. It was printed in Oxford, England, by John Barrett in 1717, and in 1733 was presented to the Colonial church by George II., who was then king. In the twentieth chapter of St. Luke, which contains the parable of the vineyard, the Bible reads "the parable of vinegar," and for that reason the book has been given the odd name of "the vinegar Bible."

The Dismal Swamp canal, which has been opened for commerce, is the oldest public work in the country, dating back to the year 1787, when a company, of which George Washington was one of the directors, was organized to build it. For years it was a great waterway for interstate commerce, but finally it was allowed to run down until it became unnavigable. The canal forms a link in the chain of inland waterways from New York to the Florida coast, and opens up over 2,000 miles of inland navigation, comprising the many rivers and streams of the Carolines.

Capt. D. S. Elliott, of company D, Twentieth Kansas, who was killed at Manila a few days ago, held a record for patriotism of which any man might be proud. He enlisted for the civil war when but 16 years old and served from the beginning to the end of that war. Last April, before the call for volunteers was issued, he organized and drilled a company, which was the first to apply for enlistment under the call. Two of his sons, aged 16 and 22 respectively, became members of the company which their father commanded, and were fighting by his side when he was killed.

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

Old glory now waves over the city of Malolos and the stronghold of the Filipinos is now in possession of the American forces. The troops were resting and were of the opinion that the war was ended, save for such guerrilla tactics as may be employed by the remnants of Aguinaldo's army that have sought refuge in the mountain fastnesses. The loss to the American army thus far has been 58 killed and 392 wounded.

In Paris a man named Ozouf attempted to kill President Loubet in the streets, but instead killed a wealthy gentleman named Tourret.

At Point Pelee, Ont., James La Blanche, a young French Canadian, killed his sweetheart, an Indian girl named Olga Postamie, and then killed himself.

On the 2d Gen. MacArthur's troops were still resting at Malolos. All efforts to locate the main body of the insurgents thus far had been unavailing. Many natives were returning from the north to Malolos without arms. The Filipino capital is now at San Fernando, and Chinese who have been at the latter place report that Aguinaldo has only 1,400 men left with him. It was evident that the native forces were scattered, with but little hope of reorganization.

The death of Baroness Hirsch, widow of Baron Hirsch, the Hebrew philanthropist, occurred in Paris. She leaves several million pounds sterling, chiefly bequeathed to charities.

LATER NEWS.

Gen. Otis the 3d telegraphed as follows: "Present indications denote insurgent government in perilous condition; its army defeated, discouraged and scattered, insurgents returning to their homes in cities and villages, at points which our reconnoitering parties have reached, and desire protection of Americans. News from Visayan islands more encouraging."

The One Hundred and Sixty-first Indiana volunteers will be mustered out of service April 25.

John Farley, democrat was elected mayor of Cleveland, O., over Robert F. McKisson by a plurality of 3,500.

Five men working in a deep and narrow ditch at Joplin, Mo., were killed by a cave-in. They were buried under 18 feet of earth.

The steamer City of Topeka, which runs between Puget Sound and Alaska, went ashore on a reef at the south end of Wrangel Narrows, 100 miles south of Juneau. The passengers were all taken to Juneau by the lighthouse tender Manzinillo.

The British government is about to send an engineering corps of 1,400 men to fortify Port Stanley and other points in the Falkland islands.

The crew of the battle ship Iowa, at San Francisco have presented Bobby D. Evens who commanded the Iowa during the war with Spain with a handsome sword.

The strike of the unskilled window glass workers at Pittsburg, Pa., is practically at an end, the tenders and shove boys having agreed to go back to work at the old wages.

Cotton mills generally in the New England states, operating more than three-quarters of the total number of spindles in the north, have begun work under an advance wage schedule.

Light Battery F of the Fourth and Light Battery F of the Fifth artillery are on their way to Manila via San Francisco.

Germany is to send an expedition to seize I-Chou, Shan-Tung province China, to compel the Chinese government to grant to German firms some big commercial concessions.

Great Britain will ask the United States to indemnify the family of a British subject named Simpson who was killed by mistake at the battle of Manila.

Clyde Mattox, who was pardoned from the penitentiary by the president, shot and killed Lincoln Kinney, a ranchman at Ponca City, Kan. The next day Mattox was shot and killed by the sheriff.

Carter H. Harrison was re-elected mayor of Chicago by a total vote of 146,914 against 107,304 for Zina R. Carter, the republican candidate, and 45,401 for John P. Altgeld, the independent democratic candidate.

Wm. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., and Virginia Fair were married in New York the 4th.

The Cuban military assembly voted the 4th to disband the army and dissolve. The voting was 21 in favor to 1 opposed. Copies of the muster rolls will be at once prepared for Gov. Brooke.

The Philippine commission publishes a new proclamation assuring the Filipinos of good faith and that home rule is the ultimate purpose of the United States.

Another blizzard visited St. Louis, Mo., on the 4th.

Acting Secretary Allen has received a letter from the manager of the Neptune Company, the greatest Swedish wrecking corporation, announcing that it is not possible to raise and repair the vessels of Cervera's fleet sunk near Santiago.

Three men killed by an explosion at the railroad cap factory at Braddock, Pa. One was W. P. Schooly, the proprietor. Andrew Sheppard and a number of others were injured.

A charter has been granted to the American Colonial Banking company to establish a bank at San Juan, Porto Rico. The authorized capital is $1,000,000.

To save his mother from his father's murderous attack, Lewis Dennis of Millheim, Pa., killed his father by a blow with a chair.

MALOLOS CAPTURED.

United States Troops Enter the Insurgent Capital.

Find That Aguinaldo Had Left the City Two Days Before—Rebels Fire the City Before Evacuating.

Manila, March 31, Noon.—Maj. Gen. MacArthur entered Malolos, the seat of the so-called insurgent government, at half-past nine this morning, the rebels burning the city and simultaneously evacuating it. They are now in full retreat toward the north, where Aguinaldo and the cabinet have been for two days.

After three hours of desperate fighting the natives, realizing that further effort was hopeless, set fire to the city and fled in disorder.

The American loss was comparatively small, considering the severe nature of the combat. Rapid-fire guns had been trained upon the city and spread consternation among the native troops.

MacArthur began the attack at seven o'clock this morning, having the city practically surrounded by his forces. Line after line of intrenchments was stormed, the defenders falling back into the town. At last the natives found that they could do no more, so they applied the torch to buildings in every direction and began the retreat.

Aguinaldo Escapes.

American Victims.

The war department has received from Gen. Otis additional lists of casualties in the operations near Manila. The lists include the killed and wounded on March 25, 29, 30 and 31. The previous totals of dead and wounded were 47 killed and 319 wounded. The additions cabled Friday bring the grand totals up to 58 killed and 392 wounded.

The Taking of Maraquina.

Manila, March 31.—While the forces under Gen. MacArthur were capturing the insurgent capital this morning the forces under Gen. Hall were engaged in a lively skirmish with the rebels in and about Maraquina, to the northeast of Manila. The town was quickly taken, and the rebels were driven into the hills beyond.

Reenforcements to Be Sent.

New York, March 31.—Additional reenforcements for the American troops in the Philippines will be sent from this department next week. They will consist of battery F, Fifth artillery, now stationed at Fort Hamilton, and battery F, Fourth artillery, now stationed at Fort Adams. They will start from Jersey City for San Francisco on Monday.

Good News from Otis.

Washington, April 4.—The following cablegram was received at the war department early Monday morning:

"Manila, April 3, 1899.—Adjutant General, Washington: Present indications denote insurgent government in perilous condition; its army defeated, discouraged and scattered. Insurgents returning to their homes in cities and villages between here and points north of Malolos which our reconnoitering parties have reached and desire protection of Americans. News from Visayan island more encouraging every day.

(Signed) "OTIS."

Pleased by the News.

War department officials were pleased by the cheering dispatch from Gen. Otis. It contains a great deal of encouragement to them, and those who know Gen. Otis well say he is not a man to take a roseate view of the situation unless there is reason for it. It is argued at the department that the Filipinos have never been used to the kind of warfare that the Americans have given them, and for that reason they are now aware that it will be impossible for them to accomplish anything by fighting. While there is disappointment because the movement for the capture of a large force of the Filipinos was not successful, it is believed the pressing of the insurgents steadily toward the north, capturing their capital and driving them from place to place has had a very discouraging effect upon the natives who have been following Aguinaldo.

Latest Plans of Aguinaldo.

Manila, April 4.—James Creelman cables to the New York Journal: It is reported that Aguinaldo, on the advice of the Filipino junta in Hong-Kong, will abandon Luzon and go to Mindanao, the southern island of the Philippine group, and endeavor to continue the insurrection there and on the adjoining islands of Negros, Cebu and Bohol. It is expected that the sultan of Sulu will lend him help.

Congratulated by Dewey.

Maj. Gen. Elwell S. Otis, commander of the military forces, has received the following message:

"Hearty congratulations on the most magnificent work of the army.

(Signed) "DEWEY."

Michigan Boys Welcomed.

Detroit, Mich., April 3.—Companies E, M, F and H, of the Thirty-fifth Michigan, with a few stragglers from companies C and L, arrived here at 12:15 Sunday, direct from Camp McKenzie, Ga., where they were mustered out last week. A great crowd thronged the vicinity of the Michigan Central depot when they arrived, and the men were given a royal welcome. From the station they were marched to the Light Guard armory, where dinner was served them.

Tortured by Brutal Thieves.

Columbus, O., March 31.—A special to the Ohio State Journal from Dennison, O., says: Six masked burglars entered the house of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Crocker, an aged and well-to-do couple, and bound and gagged them. Mr. Crocker was tortured by having lighted matches put to his feet to compel him to reveal the hiding place of his money, but refused. Mrs. Crocker was subjected to barbarous indignities. The robbers secured only $97.

Five Men Killed.

Joplin, Mo., April 4.—Five men were killed in three accidents here Monday. The following three were killed in a sewer cave-in: William Minche, Marion Neighbarger and Walter Bunn, colored. At the "Old Shoe" mine Dan Cartmine was knocked down the 120-foot shaft and died soon after. At the Missouri Lead and Zinc company's mine, John Smith, a miner, was killed by a falling bowlder.

TO PAY FINAL HONORS.

Interment of Heroes Who Fell in War to Be Marked by Appropriate Ceremonies.

Washington, April 4.—Arrangements have been practically completed for the funeral ceremonies on the occasion of the reinterment in Arlington cemetery at two o'clock Thursday afternoon of the remains of about 350 soldiers and civilians who lost their lives either as a result of wounds or disease in the campaign of Santiago and Porto Rico. The ceremonies will be of the simplest character, being confined to the commitment service, conducted by Post Chaplain Charles W. Freeland, who has been summoned here from the military post at Fort Monroe for the purpose. Full military honors will be paid the memory of the patriotic dead, and all the regular troops in this vicinity, the District national guard and a battalion of marines will participate in the ceremonies at the cemetery. Col. Francis L. Guenther, of the Fourth artillery, will have command of the military exercises. The remains of 150 of the heroes of the war have already been deposited in tents near the spot selected for their interment, and it is expected that the remaining 200 bodies will be brought on from Jersey City to-day or to-morrow. The president and most of the officials of the administration in the city will attend the funeral services. President McKinley has issued the following executive order in connection with the interments:

"It is fitting that in behalf of the nation tributes of honor be paid to the memories of the noble men who lost their lives in their country's service during the late war with Spain. It is the more fitting inasmuch as in consonance with the spirit of our free institutions, and in obedience to the most exalted promptings of patriotism, those who were sent to other shores to do battle for their country's honor under their country's flag went freely from every quarter of our beloved land. Each soldier, each sailor parting from home ties and putting behind him private interests in the presence of the stern emergency of unsought war with an alien foe was an individual type of that devotion of the citizen to the state which makes our nation strong in unity and in action.

"Those who died in another land left in many homes the undying memories that attend the heroic dead of all ages. It was fitting that with the advent of peace, won by their sacrifice, their bodies should be gathered with tender care and restored to home and kindred. This has been done with the dead of Cuba and Porto Rico. Those of the Philippines still rest where they fell, watched over by their surviving comrades and crowned with the love of a grateful nation.

"The remains of many brought to our shores have been delivered to their families for private burial. But for others of the brave officers and men who perished there has been reserved interment in ground sacred to the soldiers and sailors amid the tributes of military honor and national mourning they have so well deserved.

"I therefore order: That upon the arrival of the cortege at the national cemetery at Arlington all proper military and naval honors be paid to the dead heroes; that suitable ceremonies shall attend their interment; that the customary salute of mourning be fired at the cemetery and that on the same day at two o'clock p. m., Thursday, the sixth day of April, the national flag be displayed at half staff on all public buildings, forts, camps and public vessels of the United States, and that at 12 o'clock noon of said day all the departments of the government at Washington shall be closed.

"WILLIAM M'KINLEY.

SEARCH IS ENDED.

Belief That All Victims Have Been Recovered from Ruins of the Windsor Hotel—Total Dead 45.

New York, April 4.—The work of searching the ruins of the Windsor hotel ended Monday. The contractor thinks there is no human remnant left in the ruins. The total of the known dead now numbers 45, and several persons are still missing. Impressive memorial services were held in the church of the Heavenly Rest Monday for the dead of the Windsor hotel fire.

The record of the fire was as follows: Killed during the fire, and died subsequently of injuries received during the fire, 11; bodies taken from the ruins and identified, 3; unidentified bodies taken from the ruins, 31; total known dead, 45; injured, who subsequently recovered, 30.

TO EXCHANGE TREATIES.

The Last Act in the War with Spain to Be Consummated This Week.

Washington, April 4.—Before the end of this week President McKinley will issue a formal proclamation announcing that war with Spain has ended. The Spanish copy of the Paris treaty, signed by the queen, is on its way to Washington.

It is addressed to M. Cambon, the French minister here, and will be presented by him to the president. M. Cambon, as the representative of Spain, will receive a copy of the treaty signed by the president and approved by the senate, and will forward it to Madrid. As soon as the formalities of exchange have been completed the president will issue the peace proclamation.

Commission to Settle Trouble.

Washington, April 1.—A joint high commission to settle the entire Samoan trouble has been practically agreed upon by the United States, British and German governments. Lord Salisbury's absence from London alone delays the formal acceptance by Great Britain, though in his absence Sir Thomas Sanderson and Mr. Villiers, who are understood to be specially familiar with the Samoan question, have approved the plan for a commission. The United States has informally expressed its approval, and the formal acceptance, it is learned from the highest quarter, will follow speedily. As the proposition emanates with Germany her approval of course is assured. This high commission, it is felt, affords a pacific solution to the whole trouble at the moment when Samoan affairs begin to look the most threatening.

Will Not Submit.

Virden, Ill., April 4.—The miners of this sub-district, United Mine Workers of America, in an open set of resolutions to the public, have flatly refused to submit to the state board of arbitration the 40 cents mining rate in force in this district last year, and which was the cause of the battle of October last, in which sixteen lives were lost. The men claim that at both the Pittsburg and Springfield meetings no protest was entered against the rate, and they therefore reason that the matter is settled. The operators, on the other hand, have offered to submit the matter to the state board and abide by the result, and will temporarily run their mines pending the settlement.

SMITHERS' RETORT.

He Makes a Tart Reply to the Landlady at the Private Family Boarding House.

Mr. Smithers is a somewhat fastidious young man who is looking for a new boarding place. Smithers can't abide the regulation boarding house, and always tries to live with a private family. He is now convinced that an "ad." which solicits boarders for a "nice private family" is often a snare for a stuffy double flat, inhabited by one small family and 24 boarders.

Smithers called one day last week at a place with a glowing description just on the flank of Michigan avenue's aristocracy.

"Hum, suspiciously like a boarding house," thought Smithers, as he took in the dimensions. A collarless negro servant who opened the door confirmed his suspicions, but he had gone too far then to back out. A sharp-nosed, snippy landlady came in with a top-lofty air.

"Er-ah, I believe I am mistaken," he began. "I supposed I should find a private family. By the advertisement—hu-m—"

The laughter and the familiar boarding house hum of 14 clerks and ten lady stenographers came up from the dining-room in the basement. The mistress of the conglomerate "private family" drew herself up proudly. "You are entirely mistaken, sir," she asserted, in a rasping, seven-dollar-a-week voice, "this is not a boarding house, although we have a few friends living with us."

Smithers sniffed the air. There was a distinct odor of prunes and corned beef.

"Well, I must say," he remarked, as he turned up his coat collar and fled down the steps, "that it smells like a boarding house, madam."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Her Inconsistency.

"No," said the Boston dame, as she glared wildly, through her double refracting spectacles, "I will never lend my aid, nor encourage by my silence, the wanton slaughter of harmless birds. I am bitterly opposed to the killing of these sprightly sparrows. Yes, indeed. And I have only the most studied contempt for the selfish wretches—I mention no names—who lend themselves to, or profit by, the cruel killing of birds in any form."

A stifled laugh ran around the hall. The speaker paused and looked about her. Then she turned to the woman chairman.

"What arouses the laughter?" she softly inquired.

"I guess it's your hat," replied the chairman.

"My hat!" gasped the orator, and sat down with a dull blush on her faded cheek.

He Had Reason to Run.

The man came out of an office building on the run and started down the street.

"Here! Here!" cried the policeman on the corner. "What's your hurry?"

"There's a man back there trying to sell me a book on 28 weekly installments of $2.33 each!" cried the victim.

The policeman instantly released his hold. "Run!" he cried. "Run like a whitehead! Maybe you can get away from him yet."—Indianapolis Journal.

TALKS WITH WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—The doctor called my trouble ulceration of womb and change of life. I was troubled with profuse flowing and became very weak. When I wrote to you I was down in bed, had not sat up for six months; was under a doctor's treatment all the time, but it did me no good. I had almost given up in despair, but your Vegetable Compound has made me feel like a new woman. I cannot thank you enough. I would advise any woman who is afflicted as I have been to write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., and get her advice and be cured as I have been."

Mrs. F. H. Allen, 419 Nebraska Ave., Toledo, Ohio, writes:

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—Change of life was working on me. My kidneys and bladder were affected. I had been confined to the house all summer, not able to stand on my feet for any length of time. Terrible pains when urinating and an itching that nearly drove me wild. I had tried many remedies. I told my husband I had great faith in yours and he got me a bottle; am now on my fourth bottle. I feel that I am entirely cured. I can work all day. I can hardly realize that such a wonderful cure is possible. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the best medicine for women."

ALABASTINE

LABASTINE is the original and only durable wall coating, entirely different from all kalsomines. Ready for use in white or twelve beautiful tints by adding cold water.

ADIES naturally prefer ALABASTINE for walls and ceilings, because it is pure, clean, durable. Put up in dry powdered form, in five-pound packages, with full directions.

LL kalsomines are cheap, temporary preparations made from whiting, chalks, clays, etc., and stuck on walls with decaying animal glue. ALABASTINE is not a kalsomine.

EWARE of the dealer who says he can sell you the "same thing" as ALABASTINE or "something just as good." He is either not posted or is trying to deceive you.

ND IN OFFERING something he has bought cheap and tries to sell on ALABASTINE'S demands, he may not realize the damage you will suffer by a kalsomine on your walls.

ENSIBLE dealers will not buy a lawsuit. Dealers risk one by selling and consumers by using infringement. Alabastine Co. own right to make wall coating to mix with cold water.

HE INTERIOR WALLS of every schoolhouse should be coated only with pure, durable ALABASTINE. It safeguards health. Hundreds of tons are used annually for this work.

N BUYING ALABASTINE, see that packages are properly labeled. Beware of large four-pound package light kalsomine, offered to customers as a five-pound package.

UISANCE of wall paper is obviated by ALABASTINE. It can be used on plastered walls, wood ceilings, brick or canvas. A child can brush it on. It does not rub or scale off.

STABLISHED in favor. Shun all imitations. Ask paint dealer or druggist for tint card. Write for "Alabastine Era," free, to ALABASTINE CO., Grand Rapids, Michigan.

A SENSIBLE LETTER.

A Western Canadian Settler Writes to an Illinois Friend.

In writing to Mr. T. Hawkyard, of Rockford, Ill., Mr. G. Simpkins, of Leduc, Alberta, Western Canada, (and to which points especially low rates are being quoted over all lines of railway), says:

Dear Sir—Rec'd your letter the 14th inst. We have had no snow till after Christmas, and the cattle have been able to live out, and are all in good condition. It is snowing now. That is what we want—have about 6 inches now. The old settlers say when we have lots of snow it means a good crop the coming season. It never drifts here. The weather is calm and bright. We do not have to dress any heavier than in Illinois, and the horses never shiver with the cold when we take them from the warm stable, as they do in Illinois. It has not frozen in the stable this winter.

The most of the stock runs out, but there is no need of it, for timber is plentiful and there is no expense to build good stables and houses. We have good log houses and they are very warm. Two men can put up a house 16x24 in two days. There are good rails for fences. We live ten miles from the coal district, the price being 50 cents up to $2.00. The land is a very rich, loamy soil, from 6 inches to several feet in depth; the hills have the deepest. It is a rolling country, and excellent for stock of all kinds. Sheep do well, and there are plenty of small lakes where the cattle can get good water. The cattle got out of grass last year, about the middle of April, and run at large; unless in charge of a herdsman, we have to fence against them. Wheat goes from 35 to 60 bushels per acre, oats 80 and 90, very often a hundred. As to potatoes, a neighbor planted 7 bushels and dug 226 bushels, and no bugs. Roots of all kinds do well. There are lots of strawberries and lots of red raspberries, black and red currants, and gooseberries, where the fire has not burnt them. Cattle are scarce. I have been trying to buy some for 8 months and have got only three two-year-old, and paid $30 each.

Hogs are scarce, but can be got. They sell for 6 cents dressed, and cost more for stockers. Wheat, 50 cents per bushel; oats, 25 cents; eggs, 30 cents a dozen; butter, 15 and 20 cents; poultry was 10 and 11 cents dressed. Sheep are scarce. If you come, bring your farm tools, but bring no seeders; we use drills. Bring cows, but do not bring horses unless you are an experienced hand in shipping them, for so many of them are hurt in shipping. There will be plenty of work for a binder. Two good horses will break, but three lighter are better. The horses you get here can work without grain, but are better with it. It will be hard to tell what prices horses will be, for the immigration will be very large the coming spring. They could not be had last spring at one time. They claim the best time to break is June, but my experience is to break in the spring and work it. You can break till the middle of July.

Nickname Saved Him.

"His name is Percy Algernon," said the girl in the Seventh street car to her chum. "Pretty, ain't it? But, then, it's kind o' soft-like, too, don't you think?"

"Kind o'," said the other girl. "I like Bill, or Jim, or something like that, myself. Never knew a Bill or Jim yet that wasn't reliable. I hope Percy Algernon'll prove to be nice, but I think his name's awf'ly against him, honest I do, Min."

Then the other girl looked thoughtful for a couple of blocks.

"Oh, but he told me," she said, suddenly, then, "that the men down at the store call him 'Spud.'"

"Then you needn't worry," was the consolatory reply. "He's all right," and thus it was settled that Percy Algernon would do.—Washington Post.

LEGISLATIVE GOSSIP

Our Special Correspondent Tells of the Solons' Doings.

The Members are Busily Engaged, as the Session Draws Towards Close, in the Discussion and Passage of Various Measures.

St. Paul, March 29.—The eight-hour bill rose from its ashes in the senate yesterday. It makes eight hours a day's work on all public works. The committee of the whole Tuesday recommended its indefinite postponement, but when the committee rose Senator McGowan got it excepted and sent to the calendar. After a stubborn fight yesterday the senate passed it by 34 to 28. The chief point of interest in the senate yesterday was the bill which passed the house increasing the tax on railroads from 3 to 4 per cent on their gross earnings. The senate judiciary committee reported in favor of indefinite postponement of the bill, and the question was on the adoption or rejection of this report. Senator Halvorsen opened the fight against the report and had a letter from Gov. Lind read arguing that the present gross earnings tax of 3 per cent was not a contract between the state and the railroads. Senator Young, chairman of the judiciary committee, replied at length. The debate was continued until after 5 p. m., when a vote was reached and the report to indefinitely postpone was adopted by the close vote of 31 to 30. Senator Greer, who favored the report, in pursuance of the usual parliamentary tactics, moved to reconsider the vote with the view of having the motion voted down and thus clinching the death of the bill. Senator McGowan, who favored the bill, moved to lay the motion to reconsider on the table. The opponents of the bill voted for McGowan's motion with broad smiles, claiming that he had unwittingly accomplished the same result which Senator Greer was aiming at. The motion to lay on the table prevailed unanimously. After adjournment the opponents of the bill did not feel quite so sure that Senator McGowan's motion ended it after all, and the bill may be heard from later.

The senate committee on labor has reported in favor of the indefinite postponement of the anti-boycott bill.

The first notable event in the house was the attempt to pass the Fosness bill equalizing taxation. The author of the bill illustrated his point by saying that at present, if a merchant had a stock of goods worth $15,000 on which he owed $10,000, he was obliged to pay taxes on $15,000, but if another merchant had the same amount of goods, all paid for, but owed some one else $10,000, he could deduct that and only pay taxes on $5,000. The bill was designed to equalize such matters, but it was lost by 50 yeas to 60 nays.

A large portion of the day was devoted to discussing in committee of the whole the Roberts bill granting a bounty of one cent per pound on sugar made in the state from sugar beets. The bill is only effective to 1901 and limits the expenditure any one year to $50,000. After a long debate the bill was amended limiting the annual expenditure to $40,000 and to $20,000 in any one congressional district. It also provided that the recipients of the bounty must show that they had paid not less than $4 per ton for the beets. In this shape it was recommended to pass. The next bill before the committee was one from the senate repealing the existing bounty. An effort was made to indefinitely postpone this bill, but rather strangely, that effort failed and the repeal bill is left for future consideration.

St. Paul, March 30.—As the legislature went to Stillwater at 11:30 a. m. yesterday, the session of both branches was brief. In the senate there was a little scrimmage over the county option bill. A resolution was pending calling the bill out of the hands of the temperance committee. One member of that committee is sick and there is a deadlock in the remainder of the committee. In view of this condition of affairs, the resolution was laid on the table; so county option is still in the air.

The four per cent railroad gross earnings bill did not come up for reconsideration, but Senator McGowan says he will bring it up Thursday.

But little was done in the house save receive reports of committees, and those were chiefly adverse to the bills reported upon. Among those reported against was the one allowing 30 days racing with pool selling at the State Fair grounds. The bill distributing the taxes paid by railroads to the counties in proportion to the property in the respective counties, was sent to the committee of the whole.

St. Paul, March 31.—It was the country against the city yesterday in the senate and the country won. The bill was licensing peddlers—the intent being to prevent the peddlers from loading up with wares in the cities, and going out into the country to compete with the country merchant. It received 32 votes which was the exact number necessary to pass it and no more. The passage was illustrative of on what a slender thing legislation sometimes hangs. When the roll call was over the bill lacked one vote of passing. Two friends of the bill changed their votes to no in order to move a reconsideration and one actually did move a reconsideration before the vote was announced which was out of order. At this moment Senator Schaller came in and voted aye. This carried the bill and the two who had changed to no heartily changed to aye and the bill was passed. Senator Schaller had been called to the telephone in the corridor and while there was told of a senator who had already voted against the bill, of what was pending and he (Schaller) rushed in and saved the day.

The bill increasing the gross earnings tax on the railroads is still in the throes of parliamentary tactics.

On Tuesday the report of the judiciary committee to indefinitely postpone was passed by a close vote. Then a motion was made to reconsider that vote followed by a motion to lay the motion to reconsider on the table. After a long debate, the friends of the bill got a vote on taking the motion to reconsider from the table but failed to carry it. The presiding officer, Lieut. Gov. Smith, rules that it still leaves the bill on the table to be called up at any time a majority may so order. Under this ruling the bill is not quite as dead as its opponents thought it was.

The Roberts sugar beet bounty bill passed the house yesterday as did the bill relating to assignments of wages to cover debts. This latter was the bill asked for by the Merchants' Association of the state, and provides that all assignments of wages must be recorded with the town or city clerk. This makes such assignments public and if fraudulent they can be exposed. One of the bills defeated provided for an agricultural experimental station in Faribault county.

St. Paul, April 1.—The Anoka-Hastings insane asylum bill bobbed up again yesterday. Both the senate and the house passed the same bill separately, except that the senate bill provides that the stone used in constructing the buildings must be secured in the state. The senate sent the bill to the house and the house sent its bill to the senate. The senate found the house bill at the head of the calendar today. The friends of the bill were not very sure of their strength and wanted to delay action, but the opponents of the bill forced the fighting and won defeat for their reward. The roll call showed 35 affirmative votes, or three more than enough, to 24 negative. The house will now take no action on the senate bill. In spite of Senator Schallen's announcement during the debate that the governor had told him he would not veto it there are rumors that he will. He is known to favor the county hospital plan and this bill ends that for all time as it will make the state have five large hospitals which ought to supply demands for a good while. In committee of the whole the medical bill which created so much controversy early in the session was recommended to pass. The bill as it was finally rounded up is a compromise between the regulars and osteopaths, with a section declaring that it does not apply to Christian Scientists at all. The anti-trust bills were reached but the senate was evidently not ready for the fight as they were not taken up.

There was a determined effort in the house to abolish the office of fire warden. This is the position held by Gen. C. C. Andrews. A bill is pending abolishing the office on the ground that it affords no protection against fires in the woods. The friends of the office made a vigorous effort to indefinitely postpone the bill, but failed and it now goes forward for further action and possible passage. The house committee has decided to report back the Younger parole bill without recommendation. The committee was divided and this action was taken as a compromise. The house spent most of the day in committee of the whole, during which Senator Dan Shell's bill for a poll tax on dogs was killed. Mr. Jacobson said it would only bring $14.50 into the treasury and that settled it. Of the large number of bills acted upon none were of general importance. The house work is in much better shape than that of the senate.

St. Paul, April 3, 1899.—Saturday was substantially a "dies non" in the legislature, and if any one looked for much real business to be accomplished he was April fooled sure enough. Both branches had voted to visit the University in the afternoon which seemed to put them in the frame of mind not to work in the forenoon.

In the senate the leading topic of debate was the bill making the state oil inspector a salaried instead of a fee office. It was argued that the bill was unconstitutional, that it simply aided the Standard Oil company as it saved the company from paying as high fees as at present, and so on, but in the end it was recommended to pass. The bill was introduced by Senator Wilson the second day of the session. An effort was made not to have it go into effect until the term of the present incumbent expired, but it failed. The anti-trust bills offered by Senators Miller and McGowan were killed, but a third one still remains for consideration.

It was a small matter but it occupied a considerable portion of the time the house was in session. It was a bill to pay the widow of Judge Whytock $300. The Judge died one month before his term of office expired and the bill proposed to pay his widow the salary for that month. It was a senate bill and was supported by many of the leading men in the house, but bitterly opposed by Mr. Jacobson, who thought it opened the door for raids on the treasury. It was recommended to pass by so large a vote that it seems certain to become a law.

The senate, with nearly 200 bills in committee of the whole for consideration, adjourned until 2:30 p. m., Monday. The house with only 30 or 40 adjourned until 10 a. m., Monday.

Evidently a good many bills are going to be lost in the crush. At the University, President Northrup and ex-Gov. John S. Pillsbury addressed the members of the legislature, and explained why they needed $250,000.

St. Paul, April 4, 1899.—The senate did not meet until afternoon yesterday, but when it did business went with a rush. There were 202 bills in committee of the whole, and worse still, 128 are senate bills which must run the gauntlet of the house. As there are but 13 more days for passing bills and it will take at least seven of the thirteen to work the 128 bills through the senate, or kill them enroute, the chances of many of them being last are excellent. Between 60 and 70 bills were acted upon in committee of the whole. One of the bills passed over without action was the bill making the oil inspector a salary instead of a fee office. This bill is liable to be lost for lack of time. If the session was 60 days longer instead of 13 it might approximate passing.

The proposed new game was also passed over. Among the bills recommended to pass were the following: Providing a State Park in Northern Minnesota to be known as Leech Lake Park; regulating the business of operating telephone lines in the state; codifying the laws relating to building, loan and savings associations; appropriating money for the purchase of land and erecting additional buildings at the Soldiers' Home.

The house occupied most of the forenoon session in discussing a bill requiring notary publics to have their names on their seals. There was so much oratory against it that it lacked eight votes of passing. One of the bills passed is to compel the better observance of Memorial day and prohibiting public sports. Perhaps, after awhile there will be legislation to compel the observance of the Fourth of July. After passing eight bills the house spent the rest of the day in committee of the whole. There were 46 bills in the committee and the majority were acted upon. The most important bill acted upon was one granting certain authority to city councils in connection with street car lines. The bill is designed to facilitate the construction of a street car line between Stillwater and St. Paul, and was recommended to pass.

An Evidence of Prosperity.

It is generally conceded by economists, who study the commercial situation of the country, that the great arteries of railway travel are a sure indication of its condition. A depression in commercial lines means abandoned business trips and the cancellation of pleasure travel, while a healthy condition of affairs means business trips and an increase of passengers on pleasure bent.

A good evidence that a business revival has gone broadcast over this country is the "Lake Shore Limited," the star train of the Vanderbilt system, between New York and Chicago, which is daily comfortably filled. With a view to taking the best possible care of its patrons, the New York Central has arranged to increase the equipment of this train by placing an additional standard sleeper on the trains leaving New York and Chicago Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays. To the regular traveler the appointments and comforts of this train are well known, but if you have never made a trip on it, you owe it to yourself to see and enjoy the advance made in comfort and luxury in modern railway travel. Remember the fare is no higher on this train, except between New York and Chicago, while the accommodations and service place this particular train conspicuously at the head of the list, when compared with other lines.—Albany Journal.

THE NEW METHOD OF BLOOD PURIFYING.

What the New Discovery in Medical Science Has Accomplished.

The Prompt Way to Cure Yourself When Symptoms Show That Your Blood is Out Of Order.

THE EMINENT SPECIALIST'S FREE OFFER TO ALL READERS OF THIS PAPER.

For a great many years it has been the custom for sick people to say: "My blood is out of order. It needs purifying. I feel all used up. My skin needs clearing. My brain feels tired."

Does their blood run through their bowels?

Science has to-day furnished proofs that all the purifying that your blood needs, in fact, all that can be done, must be done by your kidneys.

All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys every three minutes.

The kidneys strain or filter out the impurities of the blood—that is their work.

Does your blood run through your bowels?

What the bowel-cleaner does is to throw out the poisons confined in your bowels ready for absorption into your blood, but the poisons which are already in your blood, causing your present sickness it leaves there.

There is no other way of purifying your blood except by means of your kidneys.

That is why bowel-cleaners fail to do their work—they fail to help the kidneys.

When you are sick, then, no matter what you think the name of your disease is, the first thing you should do is to afford aid to your kidneys by using Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root the great Kidney Remedy.

In taking Swamp-Root you afford natural help to nature, for Swamp-Root is the most perfect healer and gentle aid to the kidneys that is known to medical science.

Dr. Kilmer, the eminent physician and specialist, has attained a far-famed reputation through the discovery and marvelous success of Swamp-Root in purifying the blood, and thereby curing chronic and dangerous diseases, caused by sick kidneys, of which some of the symptoms are given below.

Pain or dull ache in the back or head, rheumatism, neuralgia, nervousness, dizziness, irregular heart, sleeplessness, sallow complexion, pimples, blotches, skin troubles, dropsy, irritability, loss of ambition, obliged to pass water often during the day, and to get up many times at night, and all forms of kidney, bladder and uric acid troubles.

Swamp-Root is sold by all dealers, in fifty-cent or one dollar bottles. Make a note of the name, SWAMP-ROOT, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and remember it is prepared only by Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

The great discovery Swamp-Root has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work, in private practice among the helpless too poor to purchase relief, and has proved so successful in every case that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent absolutely free by mail, post-paid. Also a book telling more about Swamp-Root and containing some of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women who owe their good health, in fact, their very lives, to the wonderful curative properties of Swamp-Root. Be sure and mention this paper when sending your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

AN EXCELLENT COMBINATION

THE pleasant method and beneficial effects of the well-known remedy, SYRUP OF FIGS, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Company, illustrate the value of obtaining the liquid laxative principles of plants known to be medicinally laxative and presenting them in the form most refreshing to the taste and acceptable to the system. It is the one perfect strengthening laxative,

Its perfect freedom from every objectionable quality and substance, and its acting on the kidneys, liver and bowels, gently yet promptly, without weakening or irritating them, make it the ideal laxative.

In the process of manufacturing figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, but

by a method known to the California Fig Syrup Company only. In order to get its beneficial effects, and to avoid imitations, please remember the full name of the Company printed on the front of every package.

Consumers of the choicest products of modern commerce purchase at about the same price that others pay for cheap and worthless imitations. To come into universal demand and to be everywhere considered the best of its class, an article must be capable of satisfying the wants and tastes of the best informed purchasers. The California Fig Syrup Company having met with the highest success in the manufacture and sale of its excellent liquid laxative remedy, SYRUP OF FIGS, it has become important to all to have a knowledge of the Company and its product. The California Fig Syrup Company was organized more than fifteen years ago, for the special purpose of manufacturing and selling a laxative remedy which would be more pleasant to the taste and more beneficial in effect than any other known. The great value of the remedy, as a medicinal agent and of the Company's efforts, is attested by the sale of millions of bottles annually, and by the high approval of most eminent physicians. As the true and genuine remedy named SYRUP OF FIGS is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Company only, the knowledge of that fact will assist in avoiding the worthless imitations manufactured by other parties.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, APRIL 7, 1899.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Saturday, April 8, will be Fair Day.

—A. W. Wittman is renovating his drug store for spring trade.

—Saloons complain that business is getting poor. A good healthy sign for the town.

—The sun which has been hid behind clouds for a goood share of the time lately, appeared in all his splendor this morning.

—April Fair Day would be a good time for the unveiling of the Mayor's monument, on R. R. Ave. It has had a good long rest.

—The I. O. O. F. have the lower story of their hall nearly finished. It is one of the finest store rooms in town now Johnny Arup has been looking it over.

—The Easter programme rendered by the scholars of the M. E. Sunday school was attended by large and appreciative audience. Those who took part in the exercises acquitted themselves in good style.

—Easter Sunday was the first day of our delayed spring weather. It was none too warm for a comfortable outing but was the first Sunday for quite a while that came anywhere near being warm.

—Last Wednesday evening, a number of friends surprised E. M. Cunningham at the paternal residence on 3rd street. About twenty were present and a very enjoyable time was had. The party disbanded about 12 o'clock.

—A couple sleigh loads of young people from Rockford came up one evening last week and had supper at Billing's restaurant, and visited with Mr. Haines and family on 3rd street, for a couple hours. They were a jolly party.

—The electric lights continue to be very unsatisfactory. People persist in gauging them by the old ones, and they don't size up to read by. Unless a change is soon made there will be a wonderful falling off in revenues from this source.

—Letters and papers from Alva, at Manila, as late as March 1, show that the 13th were still standing guard; but having a share in the dangers and discharging their duties faithfully. From one of the papers we learn that Co. B had their quarters fired into, and a hot time for awhile.
big double door to the school house is —Complaints are made that the great kept locked half the noon hour. Some who have little tots locked up there don't feel comfortable when they think of the consequences in case of fire, even the one door locked. If children are so incorrigible that they can't even be allowed to go in and out when they wish it would be better to have a police force to see to keeping order than to lock up innocent and wicked together.

—The school board will meet on Saturday night, April 15, to hire teachers for the next year. A number of applications have been filed. Each deserves proper attention. A good corps of teachers is what our school must have in order to keep up to grade. A good, capable man with a family, who will make Delano his home seems to be desired by some of our villagers for principal.

—One of the would be important factors in school matters was heard to remark the other day that "He don't get his ideas from the news papers" etc. etc. intimating rather that his "ideas" were very superior to those of news papers and of other people generally, and that in the matter of hiring teachers and such other important duties of an efficient school officer he considered himself fully competent to perform them without assistance. Granting, for the sake af argument that he should be, if he is not, that is not all that people have a right to expect from members of the school board. And there is a man on the board now whose daily walk would be wonderfully changed did he but conform it to the ideas of most of Delano's citizens, or even to the news papers.

County Cullings.

The County Commissioners, held a special session March 27.

Petition of Henry Schwerine for change of school district, granted.

Among Our Exchanges.

Wahpeton Globe (Colfax items): Our public school is gettiug along nicely with our efficient Prof. E. M. Cunningham, as teacher. Mr. Cunningham came well recommended and is a graduate of the Minnesota state university.

Colfax items: The professor is to leave us this week for a short vacation, and the boys rejoice as they say it will give the other fellows a little better show.

Reform Press: Nobody has anything to say against this manner of securing or defeating legislation, but what would be said if Senator Meillcke should open a lobby for a bonus on wheat, Senator Buckman for one on logs, or Senator Greer for one on the law business? But excuse us. In Buckman's case, as a "protected" lumberman, he has a $2 a thousand bonus, the gift of Uncle Sam.

Litchfield Independent, April 4 1899: The trust has closed down the linseed oil mill at Mankato. Last week its windows and doors were nailed up. Albert Lea is in the same boat. Its cracker factory is closed. Evidently in this age of trusts the small cities that rustle around and secure manufacturing plants, end up with having only their labor and experience for nothing.—Winnebago City Press News.

Reform Press: Apropos of the lobby its old time grip on the Republican legislature is now becoming apparent. The chief is the railroad, which has been very insidious this session, although its organized corps, mostly details of conductors, familiar with the members from their use of free passes, has been installed from the opening of the session. They have in hand especially the defeat of increase of gross earnings tax. The beet sugar lobby has been conducted openly by ex Senator August Theden, who was a member of the senate when the bill passed and himself then and now one of the parties interested. And so on to the end of the chapter.

Waseca Herald: How prophetic were the words uttered by Abraham Lincoln near the close of the civil war, in 1865, in a letter written to a friend in Illinois. He said: "As a result of the war, corporations have been enthroned, and an era of corruption in high places will follow, and the money power of the country will endeavor to prolong its reign by working upon the prejudices of the people until all wealth is aggregated in a few hands, and the Republic is destroyed I feel at this moment more anxiety for the safety of my country, than ever before, even in the midst of the war. God grant that my suspicions may prove groundless." These words were writtena third of a century ago and many of the fears expressed by President Lincoln have been realized.

Notice of Hearing of Application to Sell Intoxicating Liquors.

Notice is hereby given that P. F. Sexton has made application, according to law, to the Village Council of the Village of Delano, in the county of Wright, and state of Minnesota, for a license to sell Intoxicating Liquors for the period of one year from the 17th day of April, 1899.

The place where the said business is to be carried on is designated as follows: On the first floor of the two story brick, Fauteh building, situated on Lot 19 Block 8, Original Townsite of Delano.

Said applicant prays that such License be granted to him pursuant to the ordinance of said village of Delano and the Statutes of said state of Minnesota in such case made and provided.

The above application will be heard at a special meeting of the Village Council, in the council room at the City Hall, in Delano at 8 o'clock Monday evening, April 17 1899.

From Manila.

MANILA, Feb. 25, 1899.

Dear Father: I thought I would write you a few words seeing as the sun, moon, and stars still shine over the guarded city of Manila and also the gallant guards. Now I will say here that because they were N. G. at home that they have earned a different reputation here, for they have done some of the most important work ever known in Manila.

On the evening of the 23rd there were some large fires started; one at about 8:30 near L. Co. quarters; the five companies did their best at the point of the bayonet, and some scoundrels were trying to cut the hose, but were instantly killed, one by having a mounted guard hit him on the neck with the but of a carbine, breaking his neck. The fire rapidly spread till finally reaching the canal on one side and having more assistance in the line of fire companies on the other, was gotten under control. There was some firing in this district. About 12 o'clock the second fire broke out around company C's quarters but heavy firing began as soon as the fire, firing directly into the quarters of our boys who gallantly defended, finally driving the insurgents out of the district towards the bay and with the aid of Co. M, and two companies of the Oregon reg., completely drove them back to Malabon, capturing nearly 200, killing about 150 and wounding many more. Out of this brave little band there are but few to tell the tale.

MANILA, Sampolic Dis., Feb. 28

Father: The weather is nice here and the chickens nearly all hang by the hind legs on the end of some soldiers gun.

Banana shoots have started here in great quantities. Where a banana tree has been cut off leaving a stump about two feet high, directly from the center the sprout starts, and the leaves are large at first; they greatly resemble nothing else in America that I ever saw. The leaves are 6 or 8 feet long and about 2 broad.

About 9:00 a. m. the sun becomes very warm and continues to grow warmer till midday, then it is not advisable for a person to walk on the street unless on important business.

Tomorrow is is the first of March and we haven't had any snow yet.

Along towards evening the streets are very inviting for a pleasant stroll of a couple of hours.

The 20th reg. has arrived here, and I presume, on account of cold mornings, still wear their winter clothing.

By request I inform you that since the Philippine outbreak I have been forced to use my knife and fork when eating.

Maj. Diggles is now in command of the Reg. as Col. Ames has gone to China.

It has not rained for some two months.

The natives are not to be trusted very far because they are very ignorant and treacherous.

I have not seen Dr. Chance for some time but I heard he doesn't like to let the natives ride in his ambulance wagons of which he had charge of two.

We now have a Chinee assisting in the cook shack.

It is stated that we will receive Craig Jorgenson rifles in the near future which of course confirms the report that we will attend the peace jubilee in 'Frisco on the 8th of April.

COPYRIGHT 1899 BY COSMOPOLITAN MAGAZINE

THE delights of an evening spent around a well-lighted reading table are not half understood. An illustrated magazine with its wealth of illustrations, its stories of adventure and love, its descriptions of travel which carry you to the remotest ends of the earth, and its instructive articles for young and old—these are the first requisites for your own enjoyment and the entertainment and proper education of your children.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal,

Both Together One Year for Only $1.80

In this way you secure your own home paper and an illustrated magazine at a price that is only about a fourth of what some of the illustrated magazines sell for. For three years The Cosmopolitan has undisputedly claimed that it reached the largest clientele possessed by any periodical, daily, weekly or monthly, in the world. It was The Cosmopolitan which sent Julian Hawthorne to India to let the world know the real horrors of famine and plague. It was The Cosmopolitan which established at its own cost a great Free Correspondence University which now has over 20,000 students on its rolls. It was The Cosmopolitan which offered a prize of $3,000 for the best horseless carriage and prizes for best plans for public baths, and best arrangement of sewer and pipe systems for cities. It was The Cosmopolitan which set the presidents of great schools and universities seriously discussing the defects of existing educational systems. It is The Cosmopolitan whose enterprise is always in the lead in advancing the world's civilization.

St Paul Dispatch

25c per month for Daily. 75c per year for the Weekly.

The St. Paul Dispatch is the best Twin City daily; it has no equal in the Northwest as to size or quality.

The DISPATCH excels in Northwestern news having a correspondent in every Northwestern town.

We have also succeeded in arranging for two additional offers in connection with this journal and The Cosmopolitan.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $1.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

All Three Together for Only $2.25

One other opportunity we offer you. You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine

Three Together One Year for Only $2.35

UNCLE SAM keeps jumping onto the little fellows. Why don't he take one of his size?—Carver County News.

THE present administration seems to have a penchant for military manoeuvers. At least they seem to have a finger in the pie wherever there is half a chance.

THAT strike war in Illinois seems to be a long drawn out affair. Gov. Tanner has ordered out the troops claiming that the Sheriff and his deputies were not doing the correct thing.

AN investigation into the actions of Col. Leonhauser, of the 15th Minn Vol. is being had at St. Paul. Will the investigation be satisfactory when done, or will it be only a kind of an ice breaker?

IF men are to be enlisted to fight for the freedom and independence of neighbors and then turned out to shoot and be shot by those who are fighting for independence it won't be long till it will be necessary to draft to get an army to fight for imperialism.

C. K. DAVIS is evangelizing the Filipinos with a vengence. Gen Shafter says it will require a hundred thousand men. Others claim the war has just begun. Anyway, that the Spanish American war for which the volunteers enlisted is over the volunteers should be returned home.

HON C. A. TOWNE and wife have gone to Europe on a couple of months' trip. Mr. Towne will examine the railroad systems and other interesting matters in parts of Europe and the Paris Exposition. There are to be some articles from his pen in that already popular magazine, the Cosmopolitan.

WAR with Spain has finally been declared over. The exchange of ratifications took place in Washington April 11, a few days less than a year from April 21, 1898 when war was declared. President McKinley has issued his proclamation on the subject. Of course the volunteers enlisted for the Spanish war will now be returned home.

FOREIGN affairs are fuming now days. Reports come from Samoa that an expedition of English and Americans were ambushed by Mataafans and Lieut. A. H. Freeman, British, and Lieut. P. L. Landsdale and Ensign J. B. Monahan, of the United States cruiser Philadelphia and two British and two American sailors were killed. The natives cut off the heads of their victims. Germany was accused of aiding or encouraging the Mataafans. The Germans deny the charges. This war business seems likely to spread. What has become of our statesmen that soldiers must needs settle our disputes?

THE volunteer army of today was raised to stop the tyranny of Spain over her colonial possessions, and especially to liberate the Cubans who had been fighting for years for their independence. The cause for which the boys enlisted was a laudable one. They went in to fight for freedom. All the world applauded. But when they are asked to fight against the very people they enlisted to liberate, to fight against liberty, so dear to every American heart it looks wrong, and parents who consented to their sons enlisting to fight for humanity, for freedom of neighboring peoples don't feel just right about having the lives of their sons taken to satisfy paltry dollar seekers or imitations of Napoleon Bonapart.

Wages and Duties.

The world has been glad to print the fullest possible news of the advance of wages in large manufacturing industries. It likes to help on the contagion of good example.

But when we are asked by Republican newspapers if this increase does not refute the arguments which The World made against the Dingley tariff we answer No!

It is to be observed in the first place that most of the advances simply restore the cut in wages made last year, after the Dingley law had been in operation for more than a year But more conclusive than this is the fact that the greater part of these increases have been in the iron industry in which, as our great and growing exports to all parts of the world prove, we are able to produce cheaper than any of our foreign competitors, and therefore need no "protection." The labor cost in our cotton goods has always been less than it is in the foreign cloths, as Mr. Blain certified twenty years ago.

To credit the current increase in wages to the Dingley law is simply absurd.—World.

Among Our Exchanges.

Waverly Tribune: It isn't only the 13th we want back, but every volunteer in the Philippines.

Buffalo Journal: The message of the Prince of Peace cannot be imposed upon the hearts of men through the medium of thirteen-inch guns.

Duluth News Tribune: If Aguinaldo be captured we suggest that he be turned over to Mr. Hoar, to be lodged and fed at the Massachusetts gentleman's expense.

Le Sueur Sentinel: Uncle Samuel is having lots of trouble now-a-days with his foreign dependencies. Admiral Kautz, of the Philadelphia, now at Samoa, is in a wrangle with the natives and the German council. Lots of experience.

St. Cloud Times: There are four or five democratic dailies in Minnesota, not including the St. Paul Globe, the Democracy of which has been in dispute for some time, and yet the Globe advertises in Printers' Ink, New York, as the "Only Democratic Daily in Minnesota."

Senator Chilton is at work, we are informed, on a bill to prevent the marriage of feeble minded people, in order to reduce the proportion of insane and idiotic patients to be cared for by the state. It might be well to include proper punishment for people calling themselves men who, in gangs, take advantage of simple minded girls to accomplish their ruin.

Political wires for 1900 are already being laid. Men best adapted by their honesty, integrity, sobriety, industry, and intelligence for all the offices are well known and if the voters don't attend caucuses and help get them nominated they must make the most of what, by their negligence, they helped to get. Never miss a caucus and do what you can to get the best delegates in your community, and then you can't blame yourself anyway.

St. Cloud Times:—The proclamation of the President's Philippine Commissioners promises the natives everything except freedom—all they want save the one thing they have been fighting for during three centuries—Liberty! They are poor "yellow bellies," of course, but what would Patrick Henry or Sam Adams have said to a similar proclamation from George III?

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 7, 1899.

No more glaring proof of the all around military incompetency of Algerism has been shown than the fact that of the 356 bodies brought from Cuba and Porto Rico and buried in Arlington Cemetery, yesterday, after an impressive military funeral, 91 were unidentified. What sort of management must there have been when 25 per cent of the men who died or were killed over there were buried without being marked in some way for future identification? It must have been every bit as loose as that which had to do with feeding the living. It was all right and proper that these men should be honored by a military funeral and the closing for half a day of the government buildings in Washington, but this honor will not make the parents and friends of those 91 soldiers whose graves will be marked "unknown" forgive those in authority who neglected a plain duty in failing to look after their proper identification.

Things have reached an acute stage in the beef inquiry. The court has done several things this week calculated to make the public suspect its fairness, and believe that it had a preference as to the kind of testimony it wished to hear. It started by ignoring a courteous request from ex-Representative J. Hamilton Lewis that he be allowed to appear as counsel for Dr. Daly, when he gave his testimony, and it aggravated matters by trying to dodge a specific request of Gen. Miles that 131 witnesses whose names he furnished should be summoned. This brought out a sharp letter from Gen. Miles, from which the following is an extract: "It is my belief that a least 25,000 men, and undoubtedly a much greater number, would confirm the testimony that has already been given that a portion of the food supplied the army was unwholesome and unsuitable for use." Gen. Miles knows that the people are with him in this case and he has no idea of being bluffed off.

If all the applications are granted, and they continue being made as rapidly as they have been, a goodly proportion of the men who enlisted for the war with Spain will soon be on the pension roll of the government. From official figures at the Pension Bureau it is shown that the number of applicants for pension have been comparatively enormous. Out of five regiments, which lead the pension procession there have already been filed 1,735 applications for pension. These regiments and the number of applicants from each follow: Thirty-fourth Michigan, 226; First District of Columbia, 362; Eighth Ohio, sometimes called the President's own, 349; Thirty-third Michigan 313, and the Second Massachusetts, 317.

No law seems broad enough to protect employes of the government from their superiors who wish to have them "voluntarily" contribute to buy a present for a retiring official. The individual contributions for this sort of thing are small, but the aggregate is large, and at least ninety-nine out of every hundred who contribute would refuse to do so, if they did not know refusal would be followed by a course of petty [illegible] that would be far more annoying than the loss of the money. The latest "voluntary" contributions were made by the employes of the Internal Revenue Office [illegible] a $100 watch and diamond stud [illegible] was presented to Mr. Na[illegible] resigned the position [illegible]nt Internal Revenue to become [illegible] Va.

Ex-Governor [illegible]rman McCreary, of K[illegible] in Washington this week. He said of the political outlook in his state: "A spirited contest is going on between the three aspirants for the governorship, but it matters not which nomination falls he will be elected by 50,000 to 80,000 votes. We lost the Democratic [illegible] Mr. Bryan or whoever is the nominee of the party will get Kentucky's electoral vote. I presume that Mr. Bryan will be the nominee again on pretty much the same platform, although there will no doubt be some strong declarations against trusts and against imperialism. The republicans will almost certainly renominate [illegible] Kinley, so we shall have a campaign pretty much on the lines of '96."

Representative [illegible]ker of Va., said of the Philippine question that we ought to exchange the Philippine Islands for the British West Indies, which originally belonged to the United States and which has been [illegible] possessed in Washington this week. "As [illegible]ve are in the business of buying [illegible] and trading in sovereignty, I should [illegible] other things being equal, to [illegible] near the U. S. rather than [illegible] a distance." Representative Livingston, of G[illegible]a, is the first to predict that this government will [illegible] somebody to take the Philippines off its [illegible], rather than keep them, [illegible] that is feasible, and that if properly [illegible] England would agree to [illegible] Germany would probably [illegible] against their being transferred [illegible]. Mr. Livingston says that all we [illegible] the Philippines is a coal and naval [illegible] believes that we shall regret it if we [illegible] more than that. Admiral Schley says [illegible] will never be made for the very good [illegible] England would not agree.

ACTIVE SOLICITORS WANTED EVERYWHERE for "The Story of the Philippines" by Murat Halstead, commissioned by the Government as official Historian to the War Department. FOUGHT WITH THE TENTH.

An Incident at Santiago.

In the quick-coming dusk of the tropical night,
What was it that barred the way?
The colonel, walking the lines of the Tenth,
Stooped down where a soldier lay.

Dead he lay; but he guarded still
A paper in his right hand.
And the colonel said: "This soldier fought
To-day under my command.

"This is the man whose voice I heard
In the thick of the battle to-day:
'I've lost my regiment, sir—the Ninth,
I'll fight with the Tenth, if I may!'

"Men were falling to right and left,
The bullets around us flew;
I looked at him sharply; he simply said:
'My duty I'd like to do.'

"'Be it so,' I answered; 'serve with the Tenth'—
Then he disappeared from sight.
They say he fought with a gallant will;
I saw him no more till to-night.

"One hour ago before me he stood,
His voice was steady and low;
'I'll find my regiment, now,' he said,
'If you'll give me leave to go.

"'But lest my captain should think I shirked,
Will you write him a line to say
I fought with the Tenth, under your command,
And have done my duty to-day?'

"Quickly I wrote (this paper would show
He had done his soldierly part);
But little I thought to find him here,
With a stray shot in his heart!

"He served with us, with our dead let him rest,
And give him a comrade's place."
The man who had fought with the Tenth seemed to smile,
As he lay with his upturned face.

They slipped the paper he never would need
Into his hand again,
And the colonel passed slowly along the lines
To cheer his drooping men.

Jim Greyson's Lucky Find

The Colorado Miner and the Salvation Army

IT WAS a cold winter evening in a lively town which had sprung and grown into the proportions of a proud young city, just under the shadow of the Rockies. Electric lights flared blue and pale against the dark and rugged background of foothills, while down through the canyons whispered the evening wind, in that low threatening voice which is often the precursor of a blow. It was mild as yet, though, and the streets were thronged with people. All the shop windows were ablaze with Christmas cheer, and merry groups were gathered here and there in front of them, discussing the various decorations, which, lit up with incandescent lights, made the interior of jewelry, drug and novelty stores glitter like fairy palaces.

In the window of a fine shoe shop on Broad street was displayed a snowy landscape, with the old-time brick chimney and redoubtable Santa Claus just disappearing, with his pack on back, down its capacious flue. Gazing at this was a knot of miners who had come in from the mountains to pass the gay holiday week, and "have a lark." There were a half-dozen or more of them, all good-looking young fellows, showing signs of the recent results of bath and barber, and with that unmistakable air about them which, at once, to an accustomed eye marks the "men of the mountains."

Jim Greyson, the tallest of the group, presently spoke in a hushed voice, breaking a silence which evidently had been filled with thoughts of long ago and the New England firesides of their fathers; for three, at least, of the "boys" had hailed from "the east" years ago.

Sam Hunt, Jim's chum, said: "Not quite; the old folks don't show up." His voice was a trifle husky. He didn't want the boys to notice it. "Let's go on up the street," he continued. "What's that music? I hear a drum."

"The Salvation Army!" said Ned Riley. "Funny, ain't it? How they keep up their religion in the midst of all this fun! Let's go and see them—can we? Are they out of doors?"

"Yes," said Jim, "I see where they are; right on the corner of the big dancing hall. Come on! I've heard so much about that Salvation Army, but never have happened to see any of their performances."

All this time the boys had been drawing nearer to the crowd on the corner of Broad and Tenth streets. The music sounded a little less queer and a little more musical on approach. It gradually grew apparent that there were voices and a tune, as well as the monotonous rub-dub of the big bass drum, together with an indescribably festive jingle. The actors were three young women and one man—the drummer. The women, standing at equal distances apart, formed a half-circle. The man stood directly in front of them. The audience was not large—20 or 30 perhaps, and all were men. Stepping among them, just as our boys appeared on the scene, it seemed to me one of the most peculiar situations that I had ever accidentally come upon. The three solemn-looking young women in dark blue uniform and large coal-hod shaped bonnets; the music—such a strange union of piety and revelry! One young woman played a tambourine, and the jolly jingle of a row of little bells, together with the military roll of the big drum, accompanied the words:

O, yes, there's salvation for you,
O, yes, there's salvation for me;
Salvation for all who on Jesus will call,
Accept of it now, and be free.

No woman in all the passing throng stopped to listen. Indeed, the crowd of Christmas purchasers seemed to hurry past that dimly-lighted street corner, for the army detachment had modestly stationed itself just round the corner of Tenth, and out of the way of busy Broad street.

I studied the faces of the men in the group. Not a ghost of anything like [illegible] was visible. With grave, honest countenances they stood, giving the most devout attention, while one of the women exhorted: "Come, come tonight and accept your Saviour, and His pardon for your sins!" She talked rapidly and earnestly, and they listened respectfully, although it struck me that on none of the faces could I discern any signs of interested feeling.

That did not surprise me. Colorado miners are not notably religious; but they are notably respectful, even reverential in their attitude toward good women. I have heard an old miner affirm that if he were obliged to leave his young sister in the world, poor and unprotected, he would trust her sooner than anywhere else on earth among the gold and silver miners in the heart of the Rockies.

All this time while I was cogitating upon the ways and doings of this strange "Army of the Lord,"—of their strongholds in all countries, their sacrifices, courage, endurance, faith, their risk of insults in saloons and tenements, risk to health in storms and night air—wondering if they never faltered and longed to return to lives of ease; if they never felt their faith weaken in the face of multitudes who hold such different belief—I had forgotten to notice "our boys."

Glancing now to see if they were still listening I found that only Jim and Sam remained, still listening intently as songs and exhortations alternated; and that the eyes of the former were riveted upon the fair young face of the woman who played the tambourine. At every motion of her arms, as they shook the instrument, he gazed; at every tone of her voice, when she sang, he listened; gazed and listened; listened and gazed, as might the hunter whose soul was set upon the game which he yet feared to frighten by any act of indiscretion beyond his ken.

Now it was her turn to talk. She spoke rapidly, in a voice clear but not loud, never raising her eyes toward the faces of her listeners, but earnestly entreating them to "repent and believe." Still did Jim Greyson's gaze devour her. His whole soul seemed to be going out in one exhaustive effort to catch her eye.

What did it mean? I had never known Jim to flirt. It wasn't his way. Jim had sprees, when he could be as wild as his own untamed mustang, and as regardless of decorum with those who were like-minded of either sex, but this pure-faced preacher! Surely, not that!

Just then she finished speaking, and there was a movement as if the exercises were about to break up. Jim, with a face strained now to the very climax of desperation, leaned toward the young speaker, and in a half-whisper, hoarse and tense with emotion and dread of mistake, gasped: "Nell!"

"NELL!" HE GASPED.

Quick as thought the small head in the large bonnet was turned in the direction of the startling sound; the blue eyes, raised for the first time, met Jim's eager gray ones, in bewildered surprise, then gradually the voice and eyes of Jim Greyson took form and place in the woman's memory. A lightning flash of recognition; a swift smile from each to each; a burning blush on the pale Madonna-like face, suddenly grown childish; then to each came simultaneously the thought of the lookers-on. I think no one besides myself had observed this little by-play. No one seemed surprised when Jim, offering his arm, said in commonplace accent: "Come, sister," and they walked away demurely together, the other members of "the army" closely following. Soon they all disappeared within the door of a low brick building on Ninth street, over which on a white arch was painted in large black letters, "Salvation Army hall."

Next day I met upon the street Sam Hunt. "Did you know how suddenly Jim enlisted?" he asked. "That was the girl he left behind him—the one with the timbrel. Did you notice her? It's 15 years since they parted. They've loved each other since they were babies. She wouldn't write to him, though, because he had 'gone off out west and got wild and wicked.'"

"How will it be now?" I asked.

"Oh, he's all right now. He's a convert, sure enough," laughed Sam. "They prayed with him at the hall. I don't know what he told them, but he told me he was just everlastingly sorry for everything he had ever done to keep him and Nell apart. That's penitence, ain't it? Queer, wasn't it? How he happened to come up on her way out here. S'pose I'll have to go back alone now, but what a find for Jim!"—Springfield Republican.

An old Yorkshire farmer died. The funeral being over, the widow decided to have a tombstone that should do credit both to the deceased and herself. To the local stonemason she explained her wishes: "I don't want nothing out of th' way, but handsome and simple. Like this: 'William Wilson, Died October 4, 1896; Aged 85. "The good die young."'"—Chicago Chronicle.

The settlement of Ponce de Leon at Caparra, near the site of Pueblo Viejo, across San Juan bay, in Porto Rico, is now, by more than 55 years, the first town established within the present borders of the United States. Historians, therefore, must give the prestige of antiquity, not to the Spanish town of St. Augustine, Fla., of 1565, as formerly, but to Caparra, founded in the year 1509.

Rear Admiral Higginson declines to take a promotion because it would put him ahead of other naval officers whose gallantry he thinks should be rewarded. And Lieut. Ward refuses advancement because it would give him precedence over his classmate, Lieut. Staunton, and he regards this as unjust to the latter. Is it any wonder that the American navy commands the admiration of the world? Its lustre will never fade so long as it is commanded by such officers.

The historic Washington elm in Cambridge, Mass., under which Gen. Washington stood when he took command of the army of the United States, is rapidly decaying and the park commissioners say that it can live but a year or two longer. Special efforts are now being made, however, to preserve the tree, all the dead branches are being trimmed off and the ground is being enriched as much as possible, so that the historic old wood may stand at least until the end of the century.

While every dead American soldier on the fighting line in the Philippines represents glorious bravery and devotion, the most distinguished victim in Luzon thus far has been Col. Henry C. Egbert, of the Twenty-second infantry. Here, in the jungles of the tropics, was ended the career of an American officer of 40 years' active service. Col. Egbert had been wounded in three wars, in 1864, in the civil war; in 1898, at Santiago, in the war against Spain in Cuba, and in 1899, at Malinta, in the war with the insurgents of the Philippines. It is a rare record.

A venerable lady in New Philadelphia, O., recently gave a party which was thoroughly unique in its character. The company was made up of seven couples who were related to the hostess, and all of whom had eloped to get married. In no instance had there been any serious opposition to the different matches. It simply "runs in the family" to embrace matrimony in that way, and the style is faithfully maintained, the youngest couple having eloped in February in face of the cordial approval of their attachment for each other by their parents.

BLOODY RIOT AT PANA

Deadly Fighting in Which Seven Persons Are Killed.

Nine Wounded Are Reported—Troops Arrive and Restore Order—Origin of the Trouble.

Pana, Ill., April 11.—The most deadly riot that has occurred here since the union miners instigated a strike in April, 1898, was enacted at ten o'clock Monday morning, resulting in seven persons being shot to death and nine wounded. The dead are as follows:

Frank Coburn, citizen.
Xavier Lecocq, Frenchman, union miner.
Four negro men.
One negro woman.

The wounded:

Frank Laldsworth, shot in head.
Mrs. Henriot, shot in left arm.
Will Kuhn, laundryman, shot in legs and hand.
Cyrus Strickler, shot in back.
Albert Vickers, shot in hand.
George Kimball, farmer, Rosemond, shot in arm.
Henry Stevens, negro, shot in neck.
Cass Proffitt, shot in foot.
Carrie Felix, shot in breast.

Soldiers Arrive.

The situation quieted down at nightfall, and no more trouble was looked for. Adjt. Gen. Reece, Col. A. E. Culver and three companies of infantry arrived at six o'clock Monday evening on special trains and perfect order was maintained throughout the town from that time on. The soldiers immediately began patrolling the streets throughout the entire town.

Origin of the Riot.

Henry Stephens, a negro miner, who has long been considered a leader among his associates, is declared to have been the direct cause of the riot. It is said he was also the leader of the riot that occurred last September. Stephens has long cherished hatred for Sheriff Downey and has openly made threats that he would kill him on sight. Sunday he was on the streets with a revolver, saying he was looking for Sheriff Downey. He continued this Monday and Sheriff Downey came upon him on Locust street. The sheriff commanded Stephens to deliver the revolver and told him he was under arrest for carrying concealed weapons. Stephens without a word instantly leveled his weapon and fired at the sheriff, the bullet going wild. The sheriff immediately opened fire on the negro. Deputy Sheriff Cheeney hearing the shooting rushed to join Sheriff Downey.

Stephens took to his heels and succeeded in gaining Penwell's general store in Locust street, the principal thoroughfare, two blocks distant, and took his stand in the entrance. He hesitated there an instant and then stepped to the pavement, leveled his revolver down the street toward his approaching pursuer and fired.

Bystander Killed.

The bullet missed the deputy and struck Xavier Lecocq, a Frenchman, who was standing in the entrance of a near-by saloon, squarely in the forehead, killing him instantly. Stephens then turned and ran into the Penwell store and sought refuge behind a counter. By this time excitement was rampant and the streets were rapidly filling with men, all of whom bore weapons. Deputy Cheeney dashed into the store, followed by Deputy Joe Mullen and several citizens. A fusillade of bullets was poured into the store and Stephens emptied his revolver at his assailants from behind the counter. The infuriated crowd at the door continued the fire, and Stephens, seeing that death was inevitable if he remained behind the counter, made a desperate dash from his cover to a stairway in the rear of the store.

Shot Six Times.

He fell, pierced by six bullets, before he had gone ten feet. One of the bullets had gone through his neck, another through his back and the other wounds were of a minor nature. The firing stopped instantly and Sheriff Downey ran to the wounded negro and placed him under arrest. Stephens is a negro of robust constitution, big and brawny. The shock of his numerous wounds did not apparently hurt him, for he swore and said to the deputy: "I surrender," and with blood pouring down his clothing walked with his captor to a physician's office, where he was given medical attention. He was then taken to jail.

The Riot Rages.

Meanwhile the riot was raging in the street. As soon as the first shots had been fired the whistle of the electric light plant was blown as a signal for the citizens, the majority of whom had long ago been sworn as deputies, to turn out armed and ready to fight. At the same time the miners of the Pana and Penwell mines, which are located about four blocks distant from the Penwell store, which is in the center of the town, rushed into the tipples and opened fire on the thronged streets, the news that Stephens, one of their number, had been shot, arousing them to a pitch of fury. They shot at any living mark in sight, and as a result among their victims are three women, two of whom are white women wounded and one negro woman dead.

Disarmed by the Military.

The military upon arrival immediately arrested every deputy sheriff, including Chief Deputy Cheeney, all of whom were disarmed and then released. Chief of Police Kiely was also arrested by the soldiers and taken before Col. Culver, who disarmed him.

Tanner Takes Action.

Springfield, April 11. — Gov. Tanner, at five o'clock Monday evening, issued a proclamation declaring that a state of riot existed at Pana and placing the town under military control.

Honored by a King.

Washington, April 10.—King Oscar of Sweden has conferred knighthood upon George D. Meiklejohn, assistant secretary of war, and has decorated him with the insignia of the Royal Order of the Sword. Secretary Meiklejohn is barred by the constitution of the United States from accepting the knighthood, but he will retain the jewel which the Swedish monarch sent with the patent.

After the Glue Business.

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 8.—The Dispatch says it has been ascertained from a source, the reliability of which cannot be questioned, that Philip D. Armour, the Chicago beef king, is making strenuous efforts to absorb the glue business of the entire country.

LAWTON'S TACTICS WIN.

He Captures Santa Cruz, a Filipino Stronghold, with a Loss of But Six Men Wounded.

Manila, April 11. — Gen. Lawton has captured Santa Cruz, at the extreme end of the lake. He drove the rebels, who were commanded by a Chinaman named Pao-Wah, into the mountains. The Americans had six men wounded. The rebels lost 68 men killed and had 40 men wounded.

Santa Cruz was the Filipino stronghold on Lake Laguna de Bay and it fell into the hands of Gen. Lawton's expedition after some sharp, quick fighting, forming one of the most interesting and important battles of the war. Plans of the American commanders worked perfectly, with the exception that the progress of the expedition was delayed by the difficult navigation of the rivers. About 1,500 picked men composed the expedition, which was under the personal command of Gen. Lawton, on account of the illness of Gen. King. These troops partly surrounded the city while the gunboats Laguna de Bay, Napidan and Oeste, under the command of Capt. Grant, of the Utah battery, shelled the city and outlying trenches. Gen. Lawton and his staff accompanied the troops, sometimes leading charges in Indian-fighting tactics, which eventually resulted in the complete rout of the rebels, with the smallest amount of damage to the city and slight loss to the Americans.

A surgeon who traversed the field after the capture counted 80 killed, and Gen. Lawton will report at least 68. One Filipino, attempting to make his escape, slashed viciously at Maj. Weisenberger, who shot and killed him.

LAID TO REST.

Final Tribute Is Paid to the Heroes Who Fell in Cuba and Porto Rico.

Washington, April 7.—With full honors of war, upon the crest of the southern slope of Arlington cemetery Thursday afternoon, the nation, represented by President McKinley, his cabinet and other high dignitaries of the government, the commanding general of the army and other distinguished officers, all the regular and militia organizations of the district and a vast concourse of 15,000 people, paid the last tender tribute of honor and respect to the bodies of 336 officers and men who gave their lives on distant battlefields for their country during the Spanish-American war.

The funeral services were very simple, but were impressive. Rev. Freeland read the military committal service of the Episcopal church, after which Rev. Father McGee, consecrated with the churchly power invested in him the earth in which the bodies of the Catholic soldiers were placed.

In order to permit all government employes to attend the services all the departments and the federal courts were closed by an executive order of the president and all the flags in the city were half-masted.

Havana, April 7.—All the official flags were half-masted Thursday at the hour of the interment in Arlington cemetery of the 336 soldiers who gave their lives for their country in Cuba and Porto Rico during the war with Spain.

DELEGATION NAMED.

Men Who Will Represent the United States at the Disarmament Congress.

Washington, April 7.—The secretary of state has announced the constitution of the United States delegation to the disarmament congress which will meet at The Hague in the latter part of May. The delegation consists of Andrew D. White, United States ambassador at Berlin; Mr. Newell, United States ambassador to the Netherlands; President Seth Low, of the Columbia university, New York; Capt. Crosier, ordnance department, U. S. A., and Capt. A. T. Mahan, retired U. S. N. Mr. Frederick Holls, of New York, will be the secretary of the delegation.

The American commission as a whole is regarded as an exceptionally strong body, being made up of men well known not only in public and political life, but in the world of letters and international affairs. They are all men of scholarship, fine linguists, and those attainments helpful in a congress representing nations of the world, conducted under the diplomatic usage which makes French the accepted language.

Victims of an Ice Gorge.

Glendive, Mont., April 10.—Twelve persons are known to have been victims of the overflow caused by the ice in the Yellowstone river below Glendive Friday night. Mrs. R. W. Snyder, her brother, Eugene W. O'Connor, her niece, Miss Nellie Reagan, and a visitor, Miss Rose Wybrecht, lost their lives Saturday night trying to reach the Northern Pacific railway tracks, half a mile above Glendive, during the overflow of water and ice. The entire family of James Sullivan, wife and six children, whose residence is within 200 yards of the nearest point of the Yellowstone river, also perished.

Another Dreyfus Case Suicide.

Paris, April 11.—M. Louillier, who was private secretary to the late Lieut. Col. Henry, who committed suicide at Mont Valerine fortress last August after confessing to having forged a letter largely instrumental in delaying Dreyfus revision, killed himself Monday evening. After Henry's suicide he lived at Saint Quentin, in Aisne, where he committed suicide on receipt of a telegram summoning him to Paris.

Oldest Mason Dies.

Quincy, Ill., April 8.—James Clark, the oldest man in the city and the oldest mason in the United States, or perhaps the world, died here. He was born at Wilkesbarre, Pa., 100 years ago in July. He affiliated with the masonic order at Sunbury, O., in 1820, and the records prove him to be the senior mason in this country.

Small Town Suffers by Fire.

La Crosse, Wis., April 11.—Fire Monday afternoon destroyed two large stores, a warehouse and ten residences in Lynxville, a small town 40 miles south of here. The town had no protection from fire, and telegraphed this city for help, but the fire had burned itself out before the apparatus started. The loss is estimated at $40,000.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases of of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

"Did I really look as if I were tickled?"

"Yes. The story you were listening to must have been something very funny."

IN FAVOR OF THE CENTAUR CO.

Judge Adams Granted an Injunction in the Castoria Case.

In the United States Circuit Court Tuesday afternoon Judge Adams handed down an opinion in the suit of the Centaur Company, of New York City, against Samuel W. Eslinger, of St. Louis, the suit being for an injunction to restrain the defendant from using the plaintiff's remedy, "Castoria."

It was stated in complainant's bill that the Centaur Company, of which Charles H. Fletcher is president, is the sole manufacturer of "Castoria," and alleged that the defendant had been selling medicine in packages closely resembling those of the New York firm. A preliminary injunction was prayed for to restrain the defendants from in any way pirating upon the complainant's business. The bill averred that the damages sustained were large, but could not be estimated. The plea of the defendant was that he had a right to do as he had done.

Evidence in the case was taken by affidavits. Judge Adams, without leaving the bench, delivered an opinion in which he denounced imitators of well-known medicines. He said the practice was a species of robbery and he would grant the injunction sought.

The medicine "Castoria" was at first protected by patent and later by label and trade mark. The plaintiff claimed that other decisions similar to the one handed down yesterday have been secured in the Federal courts, cases being innumerable in Chicago, Indianapolis, District of Columbia, Texas and New Jersey, in all of which the courts granted injunctions.

The attorneys in this suit were Seddon and Blair, of St. Louis, and F. H. Scott, of Chicago, for the complainants and Michael Kineally for the defendant. The preliminary injunction is understood to settle the point of law involved, but the question of damages will be adjudged when the case has its final hearing.

The bottles of the original "Castoria" manufactured by the Centaur Company bear the facsimile signature of the president, Charles H. Fletcher, on the label, while the bottles sold by the defendant company bore on the label the words "Pitcher's Baby Castoria." It is said that criminal proceedings will follow, and that several arrests may be made.

THE WHOLE SYSTEM

May Become Invaded by Catarrh ---General Lewis' Case.

Hon. James Lewis, Surveyor General of Louisiana.

Pe-ru-na Drug M'f'g Co., Columbus, O.:

"Gentlemen—I have used Pe-ru-na for a short time and can cheerfully recommend it as being all you represent and wish every man who is suffering with catarrh could know of its great value. Should I at any future time have occasion to recommend a treatment of your kind, rest assured that yours will be the one. Gratefully yours, James Lewis."

Wherever the catarrh is, there is sure to be a waste of mucus. The mucus is as precious as blood. It is blood, in fact. It is blood plasma—blood with the corpuscles removed. To stop this waste, you must stop this catarrh. A course of treatment with Pe-ru-na never fails to do this.

Her Little Joke.

Jones delights in a practical joke, but having one played on him is a vastly different matter.

The other day his wife rushed breathlessly into the room, gasping "Come, Henry, quick! There's a catamount in the barn!"

Jones grabbed his rifle and sprinted for the scene of action, but his most cautious reconnoiters failed to discover the animal. "Where is the beast?" he demanded.

"Why, Henry, dear," his wife replied, "Tabby has some kittens, and that makes a cat amount, doesn't it?"

Close observers declare that the roof of the Jones residence was seen to suddenly elevate, but it slowly settled again in the course of 24 hours.—N. Y. World.

A Funny Gift.

Among the presents lately showered upon a rural bride was one that was the gift of an old lady in the neighborhood, with whom both bride and groom were prime favorites.

In cheerful reds and blues, suspended by a cord of the same colors, over the table on which the other presents were grouped, hung the motto "Fight on, Fight ever."—Detroit Free Press.

He (the switch engine) gave a vigorous push to the west-bound car as he spoke, and started back with a snort of surprise, for the car was an old friend—an M. K. T. box-car.

"Jack my drivers, but its homeless Katy! Why, Katy, ain't there no getting you back to your friends? There's 40 chasers out for you from your road, if there's one. Who is holding you now?"

"Wish I knew," whimpered homeless Katy. "I belong in Parsons. I've only been out ten months, but I'm just achin' homesick; I want to be in Kansas where the sunflowers bloom."

"Yard's full o' Homeless Katies an' Wanderin' Willies," the switch engine explained to .007. "Dunno quite how our men fix it. Swap around, I guess; anyhow I've done my duty. A WISH GRATIFIED.

The Slangy Young Man's Sire Gives Him the Wherewithal to "Raise the Dough."

"My son," said the old gentleman who very properly objects to slang, "I have been thinking over your request this morning, and I am inclined to think I may have been a little hasty in my decision."

"Thank you, governor."

"I believe in clearly understanding a case before reopening it. Now, as I remember the conversation, your call at the office was prompted by a desire to 'raise the dough.'"

"Yes; that is to say—"

"Never mind. I ask for no explanations. I do not seek to inquire into all the trivial whims of youth. I accept them as I do the wild flowers among the grain. They are useless, but they are cheering to contemplate. There are many things I do not understand, among them being golf, lawn tennis and football. But I do not assume to interfere with your innocent diversion any more than I undertake to keep track of the current fad. If you want to give up experiments with the chafing dish and go to work with an oven, I have no objections to offer, nor will I let the mere matter of expense stand in your way. I was rather busy when you spoke to me about raising the dough this morning. I know that I spoke shortly; but my heart is in the right place, and I am too generous and indulgent to deny your slightest request. Here, my boy, is two cents. Go and buy yourself a cake of yeast."—Washington Star.

LEGISLATIVE GOSSIP

Our Special Correspondent Tells of the Solons' Doings.

The Members are Busily Engaged, as the Session Draws Towards Close, in the Discussion and Passage of Various Measures.

St. Paul, April 6.—County option received another quietus in the senate yesterday. The committee on temperance submitted a majority report recommending the indefinite postponement of the bill and a minority report recommending its passage. A vote was taken on substituting the minority report for the majority and it was lost by 13 yeas to 24 nays with 25 absentees. While on the temperance work the senate also killed the bill for a temperance commission and also a bill of the liquor dealers association regulating the sale of intoxicating liquors.

The house bill for increasing the bounty for wolf scalps went to a conference committee and was amended to give from $3 to $5, for cubs and from $5 to $7 for full grown wolves. In spite of the argument that this would increase the cost from $10,000 to $15,000 per year the conference report was adopted.

The anti-boycott and anti-black list bills had another inning, but no result was reached. A large portion of the day was spent in considering bills in committee of the whole, during which the bill allowing city and county treasurers to give bonds of surety companies was recommended to pass. The baking powder bill requiring the formula to be printed on the package, and the pure vinegar bill were among those recommended to pass.

The house indulged in a long debate concerning the method of fixing the price of binding twine made at the state prison. The bill under consideration fixed an arbitrary price, but it was argued that this was unwise as circumstances would arise which the legislature could not foresee and that the prison managers should have more latitude. This view prevailed and the bill was defeated. The bill for paroling the Younger brothers was sent to the committee of the whole without recommendation from the prison committee. The house does not seem to think the state needs good roads and sent the bill for that purpose back to the committee. The bill requiring notaries to have their names on their seals was passed. A bill providing for the gathering of agricultural statistics was also passed. A large number of bills were considered in committee of the whole but none of general importance.

St. Paul, April 6.—The senate relieved itself of 15 bills yesterday by adopting the reports of various committees for the indefinite postponement of that number of proposed laws. Among the bills thus slaughtered was one increasing the salary of the dairy commissioner and another appropriating $20,000 for education in butter and cheese making. The bill making the state oil inspector's office a salaried instead of a fee office was defeated after a hot debate by 22 yeas to 25 nays. This will make a difference in favor of the present incumbent, during his term of from $25,000 to $30,000.

Under the supposed graduated taxation law, the Chicago Great Western railroad is only paying 2 per cent tax on its gross earnings, but the senate passed a bill requiring it to pay 3 per cent the same as the older railroads. Another bill passed was one requiring district schools to hold 6 instead of 5 months school in order to secure their full share of the state fund. A bill refunding to the National Guard the money expended in equipping them as volunteers was passed unanimously. The compromise trust bill was the special order yesterday afternoon. There were three bills pending a week ago, introduced respectively by Senators Miller, McGowan and Underleak. The Republicans held a caucus a few days ago and voted to kill the two former and support the Underleak bill. In accordance with this agreement the Miller and McGowan bills were indefinitely postponed and the senate took up the Underleak bill. Instead of the one considered by the caucus, however, substantially a new bill was reported by the committee and after some slight amendments it was duly passed. It is far less radical than either the Miller or McGowan measures.

There was a pleasant episode in the house in the morning when W. H. C. Folsom, of Taylors Falls, stood beside Speaker Dare and made a short address. Mr. Folsom is 81 years old and came to the state 63 years ago. He served two terms in the senate when the state was organized and three in the house some ten years later. Gov. Yale, now a member of the house, said he had known Mr. Folsom 40 years and presided in the senate when he was a member of the house.

The bill increasing the salary of Warden Wolfer, of the state prison, to $4,000 was passed. This was in accord with the agreement when he declined to go to Connecticut to take charge of one of their prisons. The senate bill for a custodian of public documents was passed. This gives some new man a $1,000 position. The new legislative manual is out and is the most complete manual ever issued by the state. Each member of the legislature receives 50 copies and one will be sent each school district. Twenty thousand copies have been printed.

St. Paul, April 7.—The senate yesterday passed quite a number of bills during the day, with very little discussion, as a rule.

An exception to this was in the case of the Batz bill, providing for the appointment of a state inspector of creamery butter to be located at New York city, whose duties it would be to inspect butter offered for foreign shipment. The bill was defeated, 14 ayes, 41 nays. During the debate Senator Halverson stated that, according to his figures the bill allowed fees for the inspector which would amount to over $30,000 annually, and Senator Batz, speaking to the same point, contended that if any such a sum was to be the fortune of the inspector, the better it would be for the state, and he showed that for every $100 of fees collected the value of the butter would have to amount to $2,125,000.

The house defeated the Daugherty peddlers' license bill, which had passed the senate by one majority. The friends of the bill in the house made a strong effort to have it placed on general orders.

The committee on general legislation, to which it was referred, reported Wednesday night in favor of an indefinite postponement by seven votes. There was a minority of three which yesterday was swelled to seven, equally dividing the committee. Mr. Laybourn submitted a minority report, signed by himself, Messrs. Stivers, Mausten, Staples, Truwe, Fosnes and O'Neil, recommending that the bill be passed and advanced to general orders for full consideration. The fight was over this recommendation, which, however, was defeated.

St. Paul, April 8.—There was a genuine sensation in the legislature yesterday over the veto sent in by Gov. Lind of the Anoka-Hastings insane asylum bill. Senator Schaller evidently labored under a mistake when he announced during the debate on the bill that he had the assurance of the governor that he would sign the bill. The governor recommended the county or colony plan of caring for the insane in his message and does not seem to have changed his views. His argument in the veto message was that it is the chronic, incurable insane who are overcrowding our present hospitals, and that if the hospitals were relieved of the chronics they have twice the necessary capacity for the acute or possibly curable insane. The chronic, he argued, are best cared for on the county or colony plan, where they can be given out door work and made largely self-sustaining, but that the erection of two more hospitals on the old plan of mingling the chronics and acutes, would involve large expense for maintenance which should not be assumed, and that the state does not need two more asylums which receive patients of all grades. There was a little string to the veto where the governor said he would have signed the bill, though he approves the county plan, if it had been so framed that the hospital trustees could, at their discretion, send only chronics to the new institutions. The bill as passed was a house bill which the senate accepted. Prior to this the senate had passed a similar bill and that is still on the table in the house. The talk now is that this bill can be amended as the governor suggests, limiting the new institutions to the chronics, and in case this is done, he is now publicly pledged to sign it. There is no probability that the bill can be passed over the governor's veto, and some such amendment must be accepted, or the much mooted Anoka-Hastings asylums will go glimmering.

As usual when such an important event as this occurs, it acted as a check on general legislation. The senate made no attempt to pass bills at the morning session, but worked in committee of the whole on bills which have no opposition, making disputed bills special orders for future dates. The next two or three days will be largely devoted to discussing these bills. This afternoon the senate spent most of the time in discussing the game and fish law. As it came from the house it allows the shooting of ducks for a limited time in the spring. This provision was stricken out and the bill passed, so it now goes back to the house for concurrence. There was a lively fight in the house over the provision before the bill passed that body, the city members opposing and the country members favoring it.

The house devoted its work to considering bills in committee of the whole which had no opposition.

The governor has signed the bill creating the office of custodian of public documents as an attache of the secretary of state's office, with a salary of $1,000. The secretary of state makes the appointment, and it is understood Mr. Berg will select Charles Rose, for many years janitor of the capitol prior to the present administration.

St. Paul, April 10.—The governor sent three communications to the legislature Saturday, but none of them were vetoes. With the present facilities at the state prison for manufacturing binding twine all has been ordered which can be made up to the 1st of next August, and hundreds of remittances have been returned to farmers because the capacity of the plant has been exhausted. Gov. Lind recommended that $20,000 be appropriated to buy additional machinery and increase the output. A bill of this character is already pending and will doubtless pass. Another message concerned the interests on state deposits. Under the present law the state treasurer must deposit his money in banks and must also secure three per cent interest on daily balances. The city banks refuse to pay but two per cent and in this dilemma the governor recommends legislation authorizing the state treasurer to accept two per cent if he cannot do better. This suggestion will undoubtedly be incorporated into a law. The third communication recommended legislation to amend the law of 1897, making the lists of delinquent personal property taxes returned by the county treasurers, prima facie evidence that the legal requirements as to the assessments and levy have been complied with.

The leading matter in the senate was the consideration of the house bill reducing the rate of interest and extending the time for the payment of unpaid principal on all state lands heretofore or to be hereafter sold by the state land commissioner. The opposition to the bill claimed that it would reduce the school fund $68,200 per year. After a protracted debate the bill was made the special order for next Tuesday afternoon. The votes Saturday indicated that the passage of the bill is doubtful. The house bill, regulating hail insurance companies, and a senate bill on the same subject, were indefinitely postponed. Senator Ryder made an ineffectual attempt to indefinitely postpone the bill to divide the assets and liabilities of Polk county and the new county or Red Lake that was cut out of Polk county.

The house spent a long time considering the bill providing for the modification of the Torrens system of land transfers, but beyond making some amendments reached no conclusion. The peddlers' license bill, which has been once killed and resuscitated, was killed a second time. The bill raising the age of school children from five to six years was also killed.

The house refused to concur with the senate amendment to the game and fish law abolishing spring shooting of ducks, and asked a conference committee. The bill making eight hours a day's work on all state buildings was indefinitely postponed.

The Hastings-Anoka people are getting together to frame a bill which will meet the governor's approval by having the new asylums confined to the care of the chronic insane.
